Pilobolus is Back. Two new members to the company, joining the four veterans, and several new works to see when the Pilobolus Dance Theatre returns to McCarter. The troupe comes every other year, and 1984 is the year.

They'll give three performances on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, April 9-11. Monday and Tuesday are already sold out in the Dance-at-McCarter subscription series, but tickets remain for the Wednesday performance.

Old favorites, like "Untitled," "Molly's Not Dear," "Walklyndon," "Moonblind" and "Day Two" will be on the program — there will be two different programs — and there will be three new works: "Stabat Mater," by Pilobolus' founder, Moses Pendleton to music by Vivaldi, "Scribble" by Peter Pucci and "Mirage" to music by Egberto Gismondi and Don Cherry, choreographed by the entire ensemble.

'CINDERELLA'

Live! The two silly stepsisters — not too wicked — a handsome Prince Charming, a loving fairy godmother and Cinderella herself are all alive and singing in the Prince Street Players' production of "Cinderella", due at the New Jersey State Museum, West State Street, Trenton, on Sunday, April 1. There will be performances at 1 and 3.

The group is the national touring company of the Detroit Institute of Arts' Youtheatre.

On Sunday, April 29, also at 1 and 3, the Museum will present "Bananas" a vaudeville comedy for children. Through song, dance, drama and comedy, the Sheffield Theatre Ensemble recreates the era of vaudeville.

Tickets for "Cinderella" and "Bananas" are $5.

Want to Act?

Equity and non-Equity auditions for the 1984 season at the Bucks County Playhouse, New Hope, will be held Saturday, April 7 at 10 a.m. No children will be auditioned at this time.

Singers should be prepared with picture, resume, 16 bars to sing, and dance clothing. Equity performers will be seen first.

The proposed season includes "They're Playing Our Song," "On a Clear Day You Can See Forever," "How to Succeed in Business," "Guys and Dolls," "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas," "Fiddler on the Roof," "Shenandoah," "The Mikado," "Pippin," "Man of La Mancha" and "Annie."

MUSIC

FINALS ON FRIDAY

For Symphony Auditions. The four finalists of the New Jersey Symphony Orchestra 1984 Young Artists Auditions will appear with the Orchestra under Associate Conductor George Manahan on Friday evening at 8 at the Nicholas Music Center of the Mason Gross School of the Arts at Rutgers University, New Brunswick.

The young musicians will compete for cash awards and an opportunity to appear as soloist on the NJSO's 1984-85 subscription concerts. The Young Artists Auditions, sponsored by the NJSO and the state-wide NJSO League, are supported with a generous grant from the Geraldine R. Dodge Foundation.

This year's finalists are: Tomomi Kumagai, pianist, 16, from Oakland; Aurelia Mika Chang, pianist, 15, from Englewood; Akemi Kawano, pianist, age 15, from Tenafly; and Joshua Gordon, cellist, 19, from Whippany. The top award winner will receive the $1000 Honey H. Frank Award as well as a solo engagement with the Orchestra during its upcoming season. Hei-Ock Kim of Lawrenceville, 1983 YAA winner, recently performed four concerts with the NJSO in Bergen County, Red Bank, and at Newark Symphony Hall.

PREVIEW PLANNED

Of Carnegie Debut. Harpsichordist Linda Kobler will preview her Carnegie Recital Hall debut recital on Tuesday, March 27 at 8 p.m. in Williamson Hall on the campus of Westminster Choir College.

Miss Kobler is the 1983 winner of the Concert Artist Guild Competition which awards a Carnegie Recital Hall debut as first prize. Admission to the Westminster recital is free and the public is welcome.

Linda Kobler has given solo recitals in concert halls throughout the Northeast and recently completed a tour of Europe. She is a member of the chamber ensemble "Tafelmusik," and has appeared as a fortepianist with the Federal Music Society. She has received numerous awards including a Juilliard fellowship to teach music history.

A graduate of the Peabody Conservatory, she holds a master's degree from the Juilliard School. In 1982, Miss Kobler made a nationally-aired public radio documentary, "Travels in Sound," which explored the musical instrument collection at the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

For more information about the recital or other musical events at Westminster, call 921-3202.

CHAMBER MUSIC SET

For Sunday Concert. An evening of chamber music will be presented this Sunday at 8 at All Saints' Church by the Trinity-All Saints' Concerts Series.

The concert will begin with sacred part songs by Haydn and Schubert by a vocal quartet composed of Sharon Alexander, soprano; Lois Laverty, alto; Eric Swartzentruber, tenor; John Woodard, bass; and Harriet Chase, piano. The second part of the program will be an instrumental trio performing pieces by Max Bruch and Mozart.

The trio will include George Jones, clarinet, and Daniel Schuman, viola, accompanied by June Tipton at the piano. The newly formed Princeton Singers under the direction of John Bertalot will conclude with Bach's Motet, "Jesu, meine Freude."

Funding for this program has been made possible by a grant from the New Jersey State Council on the Arts and the Mercer County Cultural and Heritage Commission. A donation of $4 will be requested.

For further information call 924-2277.

CONCERT FRIDAY

By Men's Glee Club. The Caltech Men's Glee Club, conducted by Dr. Donald Caldwell, will present a concert of male chorus music at the Princeton Univeristy Chapel on Friday evening at 8 p.m. Admission is free and the public is invited.

The California Institute of Technology, located in Pasadena, Calif., is a center of instruction and research, primarily in the fields of science and engineering. Its men's glee club has been heard throughout the continental United States, as well as in Germany, Austria, Yugoslavia, Canada, and most recently in Hawaii.

the program will be drawn consists of a group of primarily sacred pieces by Roger Quilter, Jean Sibelius, Randall Thompson and others, three choruses from operas by Vaughan Williams, Wagner and Gounod, the suite entitled "English Girls" by Kirke Mechem, a group of four compositions for male chorus by Charles Ives, and folksong arrangements by Dawson, McInnes and Shimizu.

TICKETS AVAILABLE

For Bach Festival. The Concerto Soloists of Philadelphia will be a featured part of the Bach Festival to be presented by the Nassau Presbyterian Church on Saturday, March 31, and Sunday, April 1.

On Saturday at 8 p.m. the group of young professional musicians, known for their performance of Baroque music, will join the church's Adult Choir to present Cantata No. 10 for choir and orchestra, "Meine Seele erhebt den Herren;" "Magnificat" for choir, orchestra and four soloists; and Brandenburg Concerto No. 2 for orchestra. The soloists are Anne Ackley, Lindsey Christiansen, Frederick Urrey and Daniel Pratt.

There is a $10 contribution per person for this concert, and tickets are on sale at the Nassau Church office from 9 to 5 on weekdays, and at the door on the evening of the concert.

On Sunday at the 10 a.m. worship service the Concerto Soloists of Philadelphia will take part in a performance with the Adult Choir and the Children's Bach Choir of Cantata No. 78, "Jesu, der Du Meine Seele." The order of worship will follow that used in Bach's St. Thomas Church in Leipzig in the early 18th century. Both programs are directed by Dr. Kenneth B. Kelley, Director of Music at the Nassau Church.

The weekend of Bach music is offered in anticipation of Johann Sebastian Bach's 300th birthday, to be celebrated in 1985. The weekend will be launched by a chamber music concert for special supporters of the Festival at the Great Hall of the J.S. Morgan mansion at Constitution Hill. This concert will be on Friday, March 30 at 7:30 p.m. and will be in the style of the concerts performed in the great homes of Leipzig in Bach's time.

Performing will be Emily Agnew, oboist, a string quartet and the four vocalists of Saturday evening. In addition to this concert, supporters of the Festival are invited to join Dr. William Scheide in a tour of the Scheide Collection of Bach manuscripts and memorabilia, housed in the Firestone Library of Princeton University. The tour will be held from 2 to 4 p.m. on Saturday, March 31.

AMERICAN SONGS SET

For Recital at School. Community Park School and PTO will sponsor an American song recital to be sung by Lila Deis, soprano, and Katherine Benfer, mezzo-soprano, at Princeton High School Auditorium on Friday evening, April 6, at 7:30 p.m.

The program will include songs by Stephen Foster, Charles Ives, Scott Joplin as well as traditional American songs. This program will be the culminating activity of a Theater Arts Week which will take place at Community Park School the week of April 2-6.

Ms. Deis and Ms. Benfer have given concerts extensively in this country and abroad. Ms. Deis has appeared with the Orchestre de la Suisse Romand, New York Choral Society, American Bach Society and the New Jersey Schola Cantorum.

Ms. Benfer has appeared at the Aspen Festival, Flanders Festival in Belgium, and the American Bach Society. In addition, she has appeared in opera in Houston, San Diego, and New York as well as having appeared as an actress at Circle in the Square in New York.

Students at Community Park School have been studying the composers and the music which will be presented at this concert. Tickets are priced at $2.50 for students and senior citizens and $5 for adults. For ticket information please call 924-5600, ext. 288.

McCarter Recital by Richard Goode Is Marked by Pianistic Extroversion

Princeton University Concerts presented pianist Richard Goode in the fourth event of its Virtuosi in Recital series held at McCarter Theatre on Monday evening. Goode's program was drawn almost entirely from the first half of the nineteenth century: Sonatina in G Major (Op. 79), Sonata in C sharp Minor (Op. 27, No. 2, "Moonlight"), and Sonata in D Major (Op. 28, "Pastoral"), all by Beethoven; and Schumann's "Fantasie" (Op. 17). Added to this was a twelve-tone work, "Ballade," written for the pianist by the American composer George Perle.

At first sight the program would appear to weigh a little heavily in favor of Beethoven. However, it would be difficult to find three works in the same genre by a single composer which are more dissimilar than these. The sonatina is small in scope and light in character, but incorporates many virtuosic passages; the "Moonlight" is most noted for its depth of expressiveness (barring its contrasting middle movement); and the Sonata Op. 28 is a work of pastoral repose. The combination of these pieces in a single performance amounts to a tricky bit of fine programming on the part of the pianist.

Goode seemed to be at his best in these three works. The sonatina was tossed off with considerable energy. Its sweeping runs were deftly played and the lilt given to the third movement was particularly delightful. The tone of the "Moonlight's" first movement was subdued throughout. Goode's treatment of its lovely sustained melody was sensitive, but not overly affected. The final movement was very fast and facile, and the pianist made the most of its many sforzandi. A hyperactive pedal foot regrettably added some unneeded percussive effects to the piece, marring its most impassioned moments. The "Pastoral" Sonata was also played very expressively, but sounded much less pushed than did the previous work. Its folk-like melodies were allowed to emerge and develop freely, and Mr. Goode's control at the softest dynamic levels was sublime.

Romanticism in Contemporary Work. Despite the fact that Perle wrote his "Ballade" in 1951, the work is firmly entrenched in the Germanic expressionism of the late nineteenth century. It is replete with romantic qualities, though it speaks in a more contemporary language. The serial techniques used by the composer are tempered by the prevalence of thirds, giving the ear something virtually tonal to hang onto. The fabric of the piece is often broken into fairly short phrases with an abundance of rubati and fermati. Goode delivered the piece in a coherent manner, making the most of its expressiveness and mastering its many unpianistic passages. Not untypical of McCarter audiences, this one received the work coolly, to say the least.

Goode's performance of Schumann's "Fantasie" (which was substituted for the scheduled "Davidsbundlertanze" written by the same composer) was not entirely satisfying. By its nature, the work is extraordinarily expressive, one in which Schumann's creative genius was allowed free rein. Goode seemed to force the issue beyond reasonable limits. Consequently, he was somewhat heavy-handed with the bass line, obscuring the long-tone melody in the right hand. Similarly, there was some lack of clarity in portions of the majestic second movement. When playing most vehemently, Goode passed the brink of musicality in his expressiveness, and the resultant note mistakes were painfully obvious.

Be that as it may, there were some marvelous moments in the Schumann. Goode played with a strong sense of the long line, and his phrasing was indicative of his keen ear for harmonic continuity. Inner melodies were often clearly defined, and the fluidity with which he played was beyond reproach. It is only unfortunate that his strident approach to the music interfered with its innate beauty.

Goode is clearly a pianist who loves the romantic fervor of Beethoven and Schumann. It seems from this performance that he would be well advised to ease up a bit on his pianistic extroversion in favor of letting the music speak to the listeners on its own.

Monday, April 2. Stage seats are still available from the McCarter box office.

The three sonatas — No. 30 in E Major, Op. 109; No. 31 in A-flat Major, Op. 110; and No. 32, in C minor, Op. 111 — were all written by Beethoven between 1820 and 1822 while the composer was also working on his "Missa Solemnis." The tension, weight and density of his last works puzzled Beethoven musicians and scholars for generations, and the technical and interpretative problems they presented to performers were blamed on Beethoven's loss of hearing, which was thought to have separated him from musical reality.

Ever since his first public appearance in 1959 at the age of 12 at the Marlboro Music Festival, Peter Serkin has established himself as a pianist whose musical sympathies are broader than those of virtually any young musician currently before the public. His repertoire ranges across every musical style, from baroque to contemporary, from Bach to Takemitsu.

Stage seats at $14 are available at the McCarter Theatre Box Office, 91 University Place or by calling 452-5200. Tickets may be charged on Visa, Mastercard and American Express.

KALEIDOPHOTO: Macrophotographs, larger-than-life images in larger-than-living color offer a new view of the familiar and a close-up of the scientifically exotic at the Squibb Gallery.

ART

FANTASTIC IMAGES

At Squibb, "Curiouser and curiouser" is probably the easiest way to begin a description of "Kaleidophoto," the current exhibition at the Squibb Gallery. The stunning display of macrophotographs, a collection of larger-than-life scientific photography in larger-than-living color, resembles nothing so much as the unlikely world that Alice discovered once inside the looking glass.

Like the diminutive heroine, the viewer is confronted with an assortment of fantastic images whose heroic scale and dramatic affect would have made the legendary Alice feel right at home. For in these unusual pictures — microscopic views of both the familiar and scientifically exotic — the subjects have been transformed into enormous abstractions using innovative combinations of the photographer's art. In fact, the collection opens the door on a world that resembles a science fiction setting rather than bits and pieces of real life.

In the process of developing the series that frequently seems more like abstract expressionist painting than scientific notation, Squibb staff photographer Charlotte Raymond has created imaginative color relationships through the introduction of light and the use of gels. She has also manipulated her images at times, making artful combinations of pattern and intricate balances by reversing and pairing negatives. The results — intense color statements, complex spatial constructions and subtle tonal relationships — create effects that frequently take on the character of avant garde contemporary surface painting.

"I can create something beautiful from quite ordinary objects by just moving in close," she says, adding ... "I try not to destroy the original quality of my subject but to give it new life."

Raymond's subjects range from the drugs, chemicals and laboratory equipment in the Squibb facility to a complex composition based on a detail of the company's anniversary flag. There are studies of beads of water, pipettes, petri dishes and mixing vats — even an exhaust vent. As they appear, however, they more often resemble lunar landscapes, whirlpools of color, and, sometimes, hard-edge geometric design. Scintillating color refracts and recombines. Repeated shapes merge into intricate areas of pattern, and Raymond's way with light and shadow is nothing short of phenomenal.

At the Art Museum. A collection of British prints and drawings from 1750 to 1850, on display in the Prints and Drawings Gallery, includes the work of many of the best known English artists of that period. Hogarth, Constable, Blake, Turner, Ruskin and Romney are among those represented by pencil sketches, delicate watercolor, chalk drawings and etchings.

Like many of the displays offered in this small gallery, this one is staged in a manner that invites comparison and, as such, creates a richer viewing experience. Small landscapes — watercolors and drawings — are grouped, an arrangement that provides an opportunity to compare such stylistic statements as Turner's fluid near-abstractions with more traditional fare. Figurative works are also presented as a unit, and, here, it is possible to contrast delicate, softly toned chalk sketches with the precise lines of an ink drawing and to view romantic and formalist styles in conjunction with more sparse notation.

At McCarter Theatre. The Princeton Art Association Juried Print exhibition, an impressive gathering of style and technique, offers a broad view of the varied forms that characterize contemporary printmaking. Hand cast

The Washington Crossing Audubon Society will sponsor a slide-lecture Monday on the snakes of New Jersey. A naturalist from the Rancocas Nature Center wil discuss the habits, habitats, and endangered species status of a variety of snakes. Live snakes will be included in the program.

The lecture will begin at 8 p.m. in Stainton Hall, Pennington School, Delaware Avenue, Pennington. Coffee and cake will be served at 7:30. The public is invited.

The Central Jersey Computer Club will meet Friday at 7 at the Radio Shack Computer Center in the Lawrence Shopping Center, Trenton. The program will feature a demonstration and discussion of the Radio Shack Model 100 "briefcase" computer and the Tandy Model 2000 — an IBM-PC compatible computer. Members and guests will be able to try out the new computers. The public is invited and more information is available by clling 466-0909.

The club was started five years ago by a group of hobbyists. Today its 50 members include computer novices, advanced amateurs, and business and professional users. Meetings are normally held on the campus of Trenton State College, and guests are always welcome.

Art in Princeton

papers, monoprints, traditional intaglio techniques, lithography, collograph, soft ground etching and mixed media work offer a virtuoso display of the printmaker's craft.

Style, too, ranges wide in this collection. The display includes both ends of the creative spectrum — fine, carefully rendered realism and a variety of non-objective and abstracted forms — as well as good examples of many of the artistic permutations and combinations that fall between the two extremes.

WINNERS

At Tri-County Show. Two Princeton artists received Honorable Mention in the recent Annual Painting Exhibit of the Tri-County Art Association. The judge was Elizabeth Ruggles, painter and teacher.

Artists are Lois Godfrey, who was cited for her "June Still Life" and M.J. Orcutt whose award was for "Hampden Bay." Juliet Bloor of Lawrenceville won second prize for "Annie's Dish" and Katryn Wright of Cranbury received Honorable Mention for "Moon Over the Mountain."

The exhibit will remain through April 1 at the Gourgaud Gallery, Old Cranbury School, Main Street, Cranbury. Hours are 1-4 Saturdays and Sundays, 10-noon and 2:15-4:15 Tuesdays and Thursdays. Information about special hours by appointment may be obtained by calling 448-8967.

STUDY ART

With Tri-County. Classes for adults and children form the curriculum for the spring schedule of the Tri-County Art Association. Registration is required, and classes will start March 31.

Among classes for adults are painting in all media, to be taught by Elizabeth Shore; all levels of watercolor, to be taught by Barbara Cook and Sharon Henneborn's "Creative Pottery." Jacqueline Burke will teach advanced watercolor and Ruth Bruh, acrylics or watercolor. Ms. Shore will also give a class in landscape painting or sketching.

For children, Barbara Cook will give classes for grades 1-3 and 7-12, and a class in multi-media techniques.

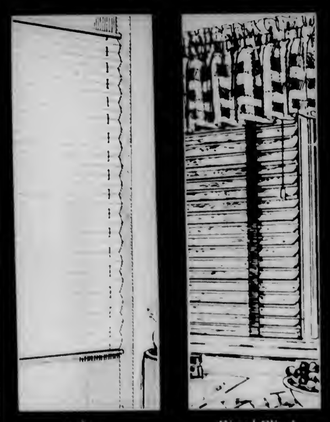
Detailed information may be obtained by calling 448-8967.

PAINT IN ITALY

With Vincent Ceglia. For the tenth year, artist Vincent Ceglia, professor of visual arts at Mercer County Community College, will lead a painting workshop in Italy, this time in the northern lake region on Lake Maggiore, 45 minutes from Switzerland.

Dates are June 5-25 and June 27-July 17. Painting sessions will be held daily except Mondays and the weekends. Studio space is in a small hotel on the lake in the village of Ispra.

The workshop is open to all age groups and all levels of experience. Non-painting participants are welcomed on a limited basis.



For additional information, call 215-493-4498 or write Professor Ceglia, R.D. 1, Washington Crossing, Pa., 18977.

EXHIBITS

Paintings by Anthony J. Conte will be exhibited at the Hopewell Frame Shop and Gallery from April 3 to May 12. The 21-year-old artist paints large canvasses in vivid realistic-romantic style. He exhibited at the Shop last year.

Oils by Karen Foote will be shown at the University League from April 8 to May 8, Mondays through Fridays from 9:30 to 1. Intricate precisely painted geometric patterns recall the influence of Byzantine mosaic design and Islamic prayer rugs. The artist has exhibited in the Firestone library's graphic arts collection and last year, received a merit prize at the Mercer County Artists exhibit.

DON'T START ANOTHER DIET TILL YOU CHECK WITH DIET CENTER!.

Their Program WORKS And It's TOTALLY NATURAL!

At 5'4" and 195 pounds, I was about ready to throw in the towel. I had tried to lose weight but nothing seemed to work. Then I checked with Diet Center. In that first introductory consultation, I knew I had found the answer! The diet was great and I was never hungry or moody as I had been before. But the real difference was the daily support from a counselor who really cares and understands.

I LOST 75 POUNDS IN JUST 24 WEEKS!

Now I can't pass a mirror or a store window without stopping to look at myself... and I like what I see. a whole new me! My family and friends are so proud of my success and my entire outlook on life is great! I agreed to tell my story in advertising because I know what it is like to try to lose weight, to fail and to blame myself for it. Now I know that on the right program anybody can lose weight, and Diet Center has the right program!

Tigers' Cinderella Story Cut Short This Year; Trip to NCAA Ends with 68-56 Defeat by UNLV

This year's Cinderella story for the Princeton basketball team is one chapter shorter than the 1983 version; the hoped-for upset at Salt Lake City never materialized.

Twelve months ago the Tigers knocked off Big Eight Champion, Oklahoma State, in the first round at Corvallis, Oregon, giving rise to expectations they might pull off a similar feat last Thursday night. Instead, they met a Nevada-Las Vegas team that more than matched the Orange and Black in ball control, and won, 68-56.

Unfortunately for Princeton fans, oddsmakers who don't believe in fairy tales were almost right on the money with their 15-point spread in UNLV's favor.

SPORTS

Dreams of a Tiger victory rested on the hope that the Runnin' Rebels might not be able to handle a slowdown type of contest, and would eventually begin to panic if Princeton could stay with them throughout the game.

It worked in the first 20 minutes, as the Orange and Black left the floor at the intermission, trailing by only three, 28-25. But, the winners quickly increased that advantage to nine in the second half, and Princeton never could close the gap.

"We didn't get them to worry," commented coach Pete Carril. "We had to get them to think about losing, and we couldn't. And that was about it."

If Nevada-Las Vegas ever entertained any thoughts of defeat, they evaporated with its 26-for-41 shooting from the floor, while the Tigers were 22 for 40. And the two players most responsible for this were not even among coach Jerry Tarkanian's starting five.

Strength off the Bench. Both Eric Booker and Ed Catchings came off UNLV's bench to pump in 18 points apiece, enabling the winners to maintain their comfortable second-half lead. No Ivy team, including Princeton, has the ability to counteract depth like that.

If a bit outclassed, the Bengals were never embarrassed, however. They never allowed the Runnin' Rebels to live up to their nickname, working patiently for good shots. Howie Levy had his best game of the season, scoring 24 points; Kevin Mullin followed with 18. Levy particularly owed many of his baskets to the superb passes of Billy Ryan, who finished with seven assists. The backdoor play worked on several occasions.

But the Tigers came up short in the rebounding department against the bigger opposition, losing the boards 24-15. Content to play at Princeton's pace, the winners worked for good shots, and often got the offensive carom when they missed.

To its credit, Princeton fought back from a nine-point deficit in the first half to close within three. In the second, UNLV built the margin up to 11, 42-31, and the teams pretty much traded baskets thereafter.

The Tigers kept trying to make something happen, but the winners never had any reason to become rattled.

The season ends with

HIS BEST GAME CAN'T SAVE TIGERS: Princeton University's Howie Levy (31), being fouled by a University of Nevada at Las Vegas player, had his best offensive game of the season last week, pouring in 24 points. But it failed to prevent the Tigers from being eliminated, 68-56, from the NCAA Tournament's western division playoff by the Runnin' Rebels.

There's a successful head coach in the National Basketball Association — Dick Motta — who, oddly enough, never played pro, college OR high school basketball! ... Despite his lack of playing, Motta has been an NBA coach for 16 years and was named "Coach of the Year" in 1971 ... Another oddity is that Motta had NEVER seen an NBA game in person until he coached in one, in 1968.

Mullin, Ryan Make All-Ivy Team; Carrabino Named Player of the Year

Princeton seniors Kevin Mullin and Billy Ryan were among six players named to the all-Ivy basketball team in voting by the league's coaches. Both second team honors and honorable mention eluded the other Tiger starters.

Mullin along with junior Joe Carrabino of Harvard and senior Butch Graves of Yale was a unanimous pick. Ryan was fourth in the voting, ahead of seniors Paul Anderson and Brian Burke of Dartmouth.

Carrabino was the overwelming choice for Ivy Player of the Year with 31 points; Ryan placed second with 17, and Graves third with 14. Cornell's hot shooting freshman John Bajusz ran away with Rookie-of-the-Year honors, tabbing 29 votes, Penn's center Bruce Lefkowitz followed with 17, Harvard's Arne Duncan was third with 14.

Five juniors were picked for the all-Ivy second team, including, Ken Bantum of Cornell, Chris Kelly of Yale, Bob Ferry of Harvard, Karl Racine of Penn, and George Meikle of Columbia. Penn's Anthony Arnolie, Brown's Stark Langs, Cornell's Brad Bomba and Bajusz received honorable mention.

For the third consecutive year, Graves won the league scoring championship, scoring 330 for a 23.6 average. He was also a first-team selection last season. Mullin averaged 16.8 points per game with a shooting percentage of 62. He was also 10th in rebounding. Ryan had no competition as the league's leader in assists, averaging six a game.

Princeton sporting a fine 18-10 mark, and light years away from an opening loss to Bucknell in Jadwin. Fortunately, Carril will have several months to prepare more magic for next season.

He loses both Ryan and Mullin from the starting five. Harvard looks to be very strong next winter with both Joe Carrabino and Bob Ferry returning. Cornell will have Ken Bantum and John Bajusz.

The experts will say he can't possibly win another title, but after this year they won't be saying it very loudly.

TIGER 9 REBOUNDS

On Southern Swing. After opening its season with five straight losses, the Princeton University baseball team suddenly reversed its fortunes in Florida, defeating Creighton and Rollins handily and tying Maryland before closing out its southern road trip with a narrow loss to Jacksonville.

The Tigers' home opener scheduled for Wednesday against Seton Hall has been postponed indefinitely; the next scheduled game at Clarke Field is Friday against Swarthmore, beginning at 3 p.m.

The team straggled back onto campus Monday night with a 2-6-1 record, but with some reason to believe that the rebuilding program of Coach Tom O'Connell is beginning to jell. The team's individual statistics already are dominated by freshmen and sophomores.

Sophomore Dan Arendas of West Windsor leads the team in batting with a .440 average and 11 base hits. Freshmen Todd Tuckner and Drew Stratton collected 13 hits apiece in Florida and posted averages of .419 and .361 respectively. Those three and sophomore Tom Urquhart, with eight hits, were the only Tigers to bat above .300. All but one of the remaining Princeton players batted below .200.

Pitching performances in Florida were shoddy, but sophomore Scott LaForest registered a respectable 1.93 earned run average, allowing 11 hits in 14 innings while striking out 11 and walking nine. Bill Beard had a 3.1 ERA in 20 innings pitched, striking out 12 and walking 11. He gave up 22 hits. The third leading pitcher in terms of ERA was another one of O'Connell's freshmen, Joe Pape. He struck out 10 and walked 8 in 12 innings, with an ERA of 3.75.

TIGERS FACES HOPKINS

Saturday in Lacrosse. Princeton's varsity lacrosse team, with one win, one loss, and one game apparently lost to the weather, will face perennial power Johns Hopkins this Saturday at 2 p.m. on Finney Field.

The team evened its record by defeating the University of Maryland at Baltimore County last week, 11-10, and then was scheduled to open its home season against Army on Sunday. But the field was declared unplayable and Princeton declined Army's invitation to play the game instead at West Point. The Tigers had arranged a similar change of venue for the opening game against Hofstra and ended up being trounced, 13-7. The Army game will not be rescheduled.

TIGER TAKES SECOND

In NCAA Wrestling. Princeton wrestler John Orr, a junior in the 142-pound class, fought his way into the finals of the NCAA wrestling tournament at the Meadowlands Arena earlier this month, before losing to Jesse Reyes of California-Bakersfield, 19-11. Orr had his opponent in a hamnmerlock and nearly pinned as time ran out.

Another Princetonian, sophomore Dave Crisanti, 118 pounds, lost in the second round to the No. 1 seed by a 12-11 score. Both Orr and Crisanti were undefeated in 23 matches during the Tigers' dual meet season.

HENDRICKSON RESIGNS

As Hun AD, Coach. Bob Hendrickson, who guided the Hun School basketall team to 43 victories the past two seasons, has resigned as the school's athletic director and basketball coach.

Kathy Quirk, the women's director of athletics, will finish out the remainder of Hendrickson's term as AD. Headmaster G. Gerald Donaldson said that he expects to fill the two vacant positions from within the school, adding "They may not be the same person in both positions."

Hendrickson is headed for New York to start a training session for his new job as Regional Director of Marketing for Aramis men's cologne, a division of Estee Lauder. Assigned to the midwest, he and his family, he said, will move to St. Louis.

A better financial opportunity was the reason Hendrickson gave for stepping down. "It was an outstanding offer, one I just couldn't pass up," said Hendrickson. "I have a son in college and a daughter graduating from high school; that's the primary reason."

Hendrickson came to Hun from Newark Academy four years ago, taking over for David Leete who had held both the AD and basketball coaching positions for more than a decade. At Newark, he had coached the school's football team for 22 seasons and the basketball team for 21.

He also coached the baseball team for nine years and had stints at coaching the track, golf and girls softball teams as well. On April 14, he will become the tenth person to be inducted into the Newark Academy Hall of Fame.

At Hun, Hendrickson quickly established himself as a winning coach, guilding the Raiders to a state Division A prep school state title last year and finishing second the past two in the Mercer County Tournament. His career record at Hun is 69-43.

Looking back, the personable Hendrickson, who also served as a college counselor at Hun, acknowledged that he will miss the friendships that he had developed during his stay at Hun among the students, parents and faculty. "The relationships — that's what I'll miss the most. Everyone here at Hun has been great."

Over the years, the personable Hendrickson, who was a class coach on and off the court, liked to comment that his chief goal was not to win games but to play the the top teams in the area which would, in turn, force his players to play up to their potential. He wanted to bring credibility to the Hun sports program.

Done My Job. "I've done my job for them," he said. "There are a lot of talented people here. I certainly feel that I've fulfilled my responsibility to develop the basketball program here and maintain the level of credibility of Hun athletics."

Hendrickson reported he had worked for the Estee Lauder firm the past two summers as a production manager. "This was not all of a sudden," he said.

His wife is a teacher in the Mountain Lakes school system and his daughter is a senior at Newark Academy. They will join him in St. Louis in June.

LAWYERS TOP FIELD

In Tennis Benefit. Scott Stoner and Jack McCarthy III, lawyers with the Princeton firm of McCarthy and Schatzman, won the third annual tennis benefit for the National Junior Tennis League of Trenton, a city-wide tennis program for youth. The tournament drew 28 doubles teams, consisting of lawyers, doctors, teachers, and business people, and raised more than $1,600 for the National Junior League of Trenton.

The team from McCarthy and Schatzman defeated John Wysocki and Rich Welher in the finals, 31-11, and Bill Kurtain and Jeff Kerr in an earlier round, 31-25.

A finalist for the last two years, Stoner is ranked fourth in New Jersey men's singles, McCarthy ranks ninth in the men's 35 division in the state.

PHS Nine Has Strong Pitching Staff; Catching Is Key to Successful Season

It places a burden on the infielder-pitcher, who shoulders of an untested player, but Princeton High baseball coach Ed Beacham says one of the big keys to the success of the Little Tiger squad will be whether John Blankstein makes it as the team's starting catcher.

The reason Blankstein is the key, points out Beacham, who guided PHS to a 7-14 record last year in his first season as head coach, is that he has two catchers now — Mickey Carnevale and Dino D'Angelo — who caught in spots last year behind veteran Ralph Carnevale who graduated. The problem is D'Angelo and Carnevale are his starting shortstop and second baseman.

"If Blankstein proves he can throw — get the ball to second — we will be very strong right up the middle with (Gavin) Hulsman in centerfield," said Beacham. "If Blankstein can't make it, I'll be forced to put Dino behind the plate and break in a new shortstop."

A junior, Blankstein caught for his freshman team and was behind the plate last year for the junior varsity. "Up to now his arm has been suspect but he's improving and he's very eager," Beacham commented. "If he can do the job, he'll help make us a better team all around."

"So, I'm optimistic. I'm optimistic every year I coach," said Beacham, who has been coaching various sports at PHS for a decade. "I probably should be pessimistic but I'd rather be optimistic. I think we have a shot with this team of qualifying for the state tournament."

Princeton will open its 19-game regular season next Monday, April 2, at home against Lawrence High.

If the Little Tigers have another strength it is in pitching, Beacham feels, where he welcomes back three starters. They are Hulsman, a junior righthander who posted the best record, three wins and one loss, and two seniors, John Sherin and D'Angelo. Between them, Sherin and D'Angelo won two and lost eight.

Also, Mike Petrone, an infielder-pitcher, who Beacham brought up last year in mid-season as a sophomore, and two from the jayvee squad — junior Eddie Eccles and sophomore Marvin Trotman Jr. The only lefthander, Trotman is 6-3, 170 pounds and throws hard, says Beacham. "If he can get the ball over the plate, he may help us this year.

"Pitching is in as good shape as it has been in a long time," summed up Beacham, "especially with three starters coming back."

Hole at First. He has a few holes to fill in his lineup, Beacham acknowledged, the biggest of which is finding a replacement for Cris Hoover at first base. Hoover was second in batting last year with a .327 average and was a fine defensive player. "It's probably our most glaring position and someone has to come around," said Beacham.

Two he is looking at are junior Jim Opperman and Trotman. Other gaps exist in the outfield where veteran Jason Petrone returns to join Hulsman in centerfield.

"When Gavin pitches we'll need two, so we have a few holes but I would rather have holes at first and in the outfield than pitching and catching," stated Beacham. "So we may surprise some people this year."

So far, Beacham has had to visualize his team on paper. Because of the wet and muddy condition of the fields at Valley Road School, the team has yet to play outside. The pitchers have been pitching and the batters have been hitting inside — thanks to a batting machine — but, as Beacham pointed out, "you have to be on a field to practice your double play combinations and all the situations that come up in a game. You can't do it inside.

"We need to be outside to get the whole team together. I don't want to cry about it, though, since the other schools are all in the same boat. That's why I'm glad for the pitching we have."

consists of a new jayvee coach Bob Vivens and freshman coach Bob Stuart.

Vivens graduated from Princeton University in January and is a social studies and history teacher at Princeton High. He was an assistant coach for the junior team while a student at Columbus Academy in Ohio and has had two years experience coaching baseball in summmer leagues. "He gets along well with the kids which means a lot," said Beacham.

"A great coach who knows a lot about the game," is the way Beacham described Stuart. Unlike the Ewings and Hamiltons, Beacham commented, Princeton doesn't get to teach most of its players until they reach ninth grade. "It's great to have a guy at that level who knows all the phases of the game. The kids just love him; he's a great guy."

The current freshman quad, incidentally, is another us mentioned by Beacham. There's 16 out for the team — perfect size — and we feel it s one of our better freshman teams," he said. "It looks like there are a few athletes on the team which means we shouldn't be going down hill in the sport — which is difficult with our enrollment going down every year."

Newcomer on Schedule. A newcomer on the schedule this year is Tom's River South, which the Little Tigers will play away. The remainder, aside from Hun School and South Hunterdon, will be Colonial Valley Conference league foes.

Again, as in basketball, PHS will play the larger schools in the league once — Steinert, Hamilton, Ewing, Hightstown, McCorristin and Notre Dame — and schools its size twice — Lawrence, Hopewell Valley, Nottingham and West Windsor.

However, until the league manages to straighten out its scheduling problems created by the infusion of new teams, the first time PHS plays schools its own size the outcome will not count in the league standings.

"We then play five big schools in a row and we'll be lucky if we are 2-3 before we play any teams in our own confernce," commented Beacham, shaking his head.

He picks Notre Dame, which won the CVC title last year, to be the team to beat again this spring. "Ewing is always up there and Steinert and Hamilton are tough competition.

"It's a tough conference."

34TH SEASON SET

For YMCA Little League. When Midget League Baseball for boys 9 to 12 began at the YMCA 34 years ago, the league's founding father, coach-commissioner Bergey Bergesen, had a guiding principal: "Never tell a boy he's not good enough even if he's really not."

There have been changes in the league since 1950 — games are played at the Y's field instead of at the Country Day School, the league has expanded to include 6, 7 and 8 year olds, and little girls now grace the basepaths.

But some things never change. Bergey's Law, for example.

Rules that were implemented by Mr. Bergesen to ensure that every boy was assigned to a team, that each player had at least one turn at bat and in the field, and coaches were permitted to substitute freely are still intact in the YMCA's Midget and "T" Ball Leagues.

Mr. Bergesen began coaching in Minnesota in the 1920's and then he moved east, where in the early 40's he helped start a Cub Scout league for 9 to 12 year olds in Main Line Philly. From this experience he said he knew that a need existed for an alternative to other leagues, like the Little League, where children were cut from teams and coaches lived and died for their team records.

That led to Bergey's Second Law: "Little League is a baseball program using boys. The YMCA is a boy's program using baseball.

Today the law has been amended to include girls, but the principle is intact. According to YMCA Physical Director and League Coordinator John Matune, the key is giving children the chance to play, and challenging boys and girls by increasing their skill levels.

This year the Midget League, for 9 to 12 year olds, and the "T" Ball League (so called because the ball is placed before the batter on a tee, rather than pitched), for children 6 to 8 years old, begin on April 30. The season is preceded by a 5-week Baseball Instruction Clinic to be held on Saturday mornings at the YMCA beginning March 31.

The teams are sponsored by area clubs and businesses — the Rotary Club of Princeton is entering its 34th season — and coached by volunteers. Uniforms, umpires, and a gala awards picnic are all part of the tradition.

There will be two games a week for each of the eight teams during the 7-week season. Game time is 6, and warm-ups begin at 5.

FIVE SWIM MEDALS

For Princeton Physician. Dr. William F. Haynes Jr. is a physician who practices what he preaches.

An internist and cardiologist at the Medical Center of Princeton, Dr. Haynes last week captured three firsts and two seconds in a pentathlon event in a Masters Meet held at the New York City College pool. The event consists of four 50-yard races in the freestyle, back stroke, breast and butterfly. The four are then combined into a 100-yard individual medley -- 25 yards for each stroke. Dr. Haynes, who swims every day during his lunch hour in Dillon Pool on the Princeton University campus, won the freestyle, butterfly and breaststroke races and came in second in the other two. "I was lucky all day," he said.

Swimmers from four states competed in the meet, although Dr. Haynes reports there were not that many -- about 20 -- in his 55-59 age group. His best time was in the 50-yard free, he said.

"It's a fun thing to try to keep your interest up," Dr. Haynes commented. "You're really competing against yourself. You see if you can do a little bit better than the previous time, if you can stick it to mother nature a little bit longer."

A graduate of the Class of '50 at Princeton University, Dr. Haynes said that he started serious swimming competition three years ago after years of playing squash and jogging. He himself is not impressed with his achievements since then in the pool.

"There's really not much to it," he said. "It's just something nice you can point to every month."

BUY SEASON PASSES

For Tennis Courts. Season tickets for the use of the 15 tennis courts at Coummunity Park are now available, the Princeton Recreation Department has announced. The courts will open April 7.

A season ticket entitles the holder to use the courts at any time during the week or weekend. Members may reserve courts one and one-half days in advance by signing up in person or by calling the Recreation Office at 921-9480 at designated times.

Season memberships are available to Princeton residents and non-residents. Fees for Princeton residents are $30 for adults 18 and over and $15 for those 60 and over and 17 and under; for non-residents, fees are twice the resident rate.

School Board

College. She has a 12-year-old daughter in the Middle School and a seven-year-old son at Community Park. The Muzyks have lived in Princeton nine years.

"The biggest thing confronting the school board is preparing for decreasing enrollment at the high school," Mrs. Muzyk believes. "The board is working on these problems now, and I'd like to, also. My expertise is in educational development programs, and I believe I can contribute ideas."

Harry Levine

"How do we solve the problem of a smaller high school without losing our identity? If we hook up with West Windsor-Plainsboro — they are huge! Could we do it, realistically? Hopewell and Montgomery have a problem similar to ours — could we share educational responsibilities with our neighbors? We could have specialized high schools — arts, sciences — if we hooked up with several districts.

Individualized Programs. "We must individualize our educational program, if we don't have access to other student bodies; for example, a math class where students do different kinds of math at different levels at the same time, and one teacher works with students doing algebra, calculus, or whatever. That single teacher would be less expensive than one teacher for five advanced students."

Mrs. Muzyk speaks enthusiastically of her work a few years ago on hazardous-route busing. Named by Township mayor Josie Hall, she joined with other parents to "fight for the survival of such busing. We did win, and hazardous-route busing is still with us. My work on busing led to my interest in school affairs."

Appointed by the board to fill the seat vacated by Dale Madden, Hugh Brandt is a former member of the board of the Middle School PTO and was on the School Closing Committee.

A resident of Princeton for 12 years, he has a daughter in 12th grade, a son in ninth grade and a daughter in fifth grade. Mr. Brandt is vice-president of the J.L. Prescott Company of Passaic.

"I like kids, and I like to do things for and with them," he begins. "Also, the things I do routinely at work can benefit the board, things like planning, fiscal management and human resource development — people-oriented activities and general business orientation.

"My priorities are the development of programs to meet the needs of all students, and make sure that all students feel good about themselves. We need improved communication between the board and the PTO and parent groups. The board has set aside this 9 p.m. time at board meetings for people to stand up and talk — and very few come. I'd like to talk to groups — parents, and the like — on my own, as a board member."

Keep Well-Rounded Program. Mr. Brandt says he will push for keeping a well-rounded program at the high school, even when enrollment goes down. "We need to watch both the breadth and the quality of the program," he warns, "and nobody has a lot of answers."

He sees three essentials in keeping outstanding teaching and programs: support for teachers from board and administration; getting an outstanding instructional staff in the first place and establishing expectancy and accountability.

Hugh Brandt

"I feel the Long Range plan is a good plan, as a framework, but it doesn't spell out all the answers. We must keep working on it."

This candidate also feels "strongly" that upkeep of the physical plant must be ongoing. With the bond issue, he says, there are resources to get the plant in shape, and after that, there must be "year-by-year maintenance to keep it there."

He also wants to move ahead to assure safety of students at school, and he points out that the schools now have the money for parking designs that separate buses from parents' cars.

Implement Long Range Plan. Running for his second term on the school board, Harry Levine believes the sharpest focus of the next two or three years should be on implementing the Long Range plan. He was school board liaison to the Long Range planning committee.

Immediately, the problems he sees are restructuring the high school to accommodate an enrollment reduced from 1,100 to 750; placing greater emphasis on staff development and evaluating the elementary curriculum.

"To face the loss of all those high school students without losing any quality at all, is the big question. Board members must encourage staff and administration to come up with ideas, including even experiments.

"Staff development and support is the most critical of all. We do a good job now, but we must do more because our staff is our major asset.

Evaluation Needed. "Have we an outstanding elementary school program? I don't know. Can improvement bring us closer to an ideal? I want to see an evaluation.

"The board must be effective in seeing that the Long Range plan's ideas are implemented. I have a lot of good ideas. I also have the perspective, the experience, the confidence of administration and staff and I'm very well-versed in the Long Range plan, having been board liaison to the committee."

This candidate does not see the primary issues as monetary ones, and he does not believe Princeton is in "dire financial straits."

"We must spend our bond issue properly, maximize outside revenues through real estate and prepare for the financial crunch of increasing 'cap' pressure (the present budget cap is four percent). Declining enrollment helps, but when enrollment levels out, the cap pressure will be extreme. Right now, we have a financial breathing spell."

Mr. Levine does not see any "hot issues" in the campaign. "Debate, if any," he believes, "should focus on the Long Range plan and on the working-style of the board in carrying it out."

—Katharine H. Bretnall

SPACE AVAILABLE

In YWCA Programs. Registration for spring programs at the YWCA will continue until the spring session begins on Friday.

There are still spaces available in spring offerings for youngsters. Pre-school children can participate in Happiness Is Music, Crafts for Little Bookworms, I Love a Parade, Games Kids Love to Play, and Where Does the Sun Go at Night. In Kendall Park, the YWCA offers Little Hands, Toddler Fun Club, and Krafts for Kids as outreach programs.

Opportunities for grade school youngsters include Expressions, a new art program for 10-14 year olds; Handcraft Sampler; Introduction to Calligraphy; Acting Improvisation; Munchie Madness for young gourmets and Back Pack Art.

Highlights of the Adult Department include Fiction and Non-Fiction, instruction in how to transform your experiences or events of everyday life into fiction, autobiography or feature articles. Making Your Move, a two-session program to provide strategies for dealing with the practical and emotional aspects of moving.

On Saturday, "An Invitation for Women: From Cocoon to Butterfly," will be presented. This one-session seminar-workshop will explore the ways women feel stuck and ways to become "unstuck." Adult registration is also continuing for two support groups: For Divorced Women in Their Sixties, for older women whose long marriages have ended in divorce; and On Your Own, for women at different stages of separation and divorce.

The Health, Physical Education and Recreation Department has openings in a full range of exercise, dance, and aquatics classes for all ages and levels of experience, including early morning exercise and swim classes, and Gymnastics for Boys (6 years old and up).

For further information on these and other programs, come to the YWCA, Paul Robeson Place, or call 924-5571.

Scholarships are available for women and children.

Borough to Pay Half Of $110,000 It Owes To Sewerage Authority

The Borough will pay only one-half the amount owed to the Stony Brook Regional Sewerage Authority this month — $50,000 instead of $110,000 — Council decided at last Thursday's work session.

The decision was made although Council had in hand a letter from Township Mayor Winthrop S. Pike urging the Borough to sign a repayment agreement and pay up. Otherwise, he warned, the other three members of the Authority — the Township, West Windsor and South Brunswick — would suffer "monetary damage" and might take the Borough to court.

At the meeting, Mayor Barbara Sigmund announced that the report on sewerage meters by CFM Inc., retained by the Authority, had been received the day before.

"Given the report of this consultant," she told Coun-

Ground-Breaking For PCH is Sunday

Housing for the elderly or handicapped will finally get off the ground by getting into the ground, and there will be ground-breaking ceremonies this Sunday at 3 on Elm Road for Princeton Community Housing's 89-unit apartment building. The public is invited.

PCH is not yet accepting applications. But those who are interested are invited to call the Princeton Community Village office, 921-1686, and leave names.

There are income restrictions for residents of the apartments. Single individuals may not have an income higher than $16,400; for a couple, the ceiling is $18,750. These figures represent 80 percent of the median income of this area.

Calton Homes Files Suit against Township To Force Changes in Housing Zoning Laws

Calton Homes, Inc. has filed suit in the Law Division of Superior Court against Princeton Township. Because it is a Mt. Laurel II lower-income housing case, it will be heard by Judge Eugene Serpentelli who has been assigned to handle Mt. Laurel II cases in the central New Jersey region.

Housing occupied municipal officials in various ways this week. In addition to the Calton suit, officials prepared for the first of the public meetings on the Affordable Housing program proposed by Township consultants John Nolon and Alan Mallach.

It is scheduled for this Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Valley Road Building. A second meeting will be held April 11 and there will be more, if necessary.

Copies of the report for public inspection are in the Planning Board office, the offices of Borough and Township clerk and the public library. Those who want to buy a copy may do so in the Planning Board office.

Also, the Borough's Affordable Housing Committee met Monday night and heard a representative from the New Jersey Modular Housing Association.

The Calton suit was expected. The firm warned the Township last month that it would file suit March 22 (which it did) unless Township Committee had introduced ordinances providing for the kind of zoning Calton wants.

The firm proposes 1,280 homes on the 128-acre Hunt Farm tract between Mercer and Stockton Streets, 20 percent of the homes "affordable to families in the lower-income range."

This Wednedsday's public Planning Board meeting is the Township's answer to Calton.

"We'll inform the court that the suit is unnecessary, in making the Township meet its Mt. Laurel obligations," said Township attorney Edwin Schmierer this week.

"The Township spent $18,000 on good consultants and has a workable proposal in process."

Mr. Schmierer said he expected the appropriate ordinance on line "within a couple of months."

"We plan to inform the court that Calton is premature: we're not the typical town that has done nothing. We're now on the final leg, while Calton is entering this suit for their own private purposes. We'll ask the judge to look at our work and give us a chance."

Mr. Schmierer said he had suggested to Calton attorney Henry Hill that the March 22 deadline was "unrealistic" and that the two discuss a middle ground. He said he told Mr. Hill the Township would consider introducing on March 26 the ordinance Mr. Hill had proposed, but he declined.

Modular housing is "decent, presentable and well-built," members of the Borough's committee decided Monday, after a slide-talk show. They recalled that immediately after World War II, various kinds of prefabricated houses were built in the Township, and are now sometimes on the market for around $150,000.

Costs for a ranch average $20 per square foot;

Princeton Is "Paired" With Town in Russia

"Make the first strike a knock on the door," is the way the Coalition for Nuclear Disarmament describes the pairing of two small cities — Princeton, N.J. and Shchekino, U.S.S.R.

Borough Council, last Thursday, followed the lead of Township Committee and endorsed, in principle, the idea of pairing. (Just what Shchekino would think of two Princetons — one Borough, one Township — may never be known. Is there consolidation in Shchekino?)

Hinda Winawer, for the Coalition, told Council that Shchekino is about the size of Princeton and about as far from Moscow as Princeton is from New York.

"Pairing" works like this. First, there is a letter of greeting from the governmental bodies of Princeton, "reaching out in peace and friendship," with no mention of nuclear war or related matters.

Then Princeton sends along a portrait of itself with pictures of landmarks and scenery, examples of

If You're Curious about Princeton Life in the Early 1900's Just Ask John Servis; He Can Remember Every Detail

There may be other 85-year-olds who were born in Princeton and have lived here all their lives. But it would be hard to find one who has as phenomenal a memory of this town, and what it was like to live here from the turn of the century all the way to the present, as does John P. Servis.

Founder of the electrical company that bears his name, Mr. Servis was born 85 years ago this Wednesday in a row house at the bottom of Bayard Lane owned by the Mountain Lakes Ice Company. His father, David Servis, and two of his uncles, drove the horse-pulled ice wagons that delivered ice to Princeton homes in the summer.

John Servis can describe the winter cutting of 300-pound blocks of ice from the lake on what is now the Clark property, floating it across to a storage barn, taking it later to Mountain Lakes Ice Company headquarters where three or four such blocks were loaded on a wagon. Housewives put tickets in the window indicating whether they wanted a 25-cent, 15-cent or 10-cent chunk, and little children ran behind the wagons hoping to get a sliver or a shaving which would taste as good as a lollipop or an ice cream cone to a later generation.

Reminiscences such as these, only in far more detail as to what house or shop stood where, next to what other house or shop, of what color and construction and by what it has been replaced today — details of family relationships in a town of only 4,000 inhabitants, the year of each Princeton hero's graduation, memories of livery stables, blacksmiths and bakeries — are all on the tip of Mr. Servis's tongue.

He has spoken them into tape for the Princeton History Project, publisher of the Princeton Recollector. Talking with him in person and reading some of the transcripts of his voluminous recollections is to see Princeton from the perspective of the "townie" — when pleasures were simpler and easier to come by and living in some ways was more difficult.

When he wasn't delivering ice, David Servis split kindling and bundled it for housewives to start their wood and coal stoves with. He was also a teamster, hitching his teams of horses to a big scoop of the type that excavated basements for the homes going up on the Western side of town and for the cut that brought

By law, PCH must have 30 percent of its units for lower-income families earning 50 percent of the area's median income. This means about 25 apartments — one of the 89 units is for the caretaker. Under the low income formula, individuals may not have an income higher than $10,250 and couples no higher than $11,700.

manufactured housing — which is different — is about $13, the committee learned. Land costs, a major factor in Princeton, are not included in these figures.

There is no zoning against such houses in either Borough or Township, they meet all state building codes and are particularly efficient from an energy point of view, according to the speaker.

"They do offer real alternatives for Princeton," said Peter Bearse, committee co-chair.

A housing Trust Fund was also discussed. To avoid confrontations between developer and taxpayer — who contributes to the fund? — the committee and Mr. Bearse believe that several sources of funding must be found.

Mr. Bearse suggested that an "opportunity" lies in Federal Urban Development Action Grant money, which involves negotiations between private and public parties. Other Federal or state grants, contributions from developers, public monies and possibly municipally owned land could all go into such a Trust Fund.

A final report is expected from the Affordable Housing Committee in mid-May.

HILL CAN STAY

Borough Attorney States. Does Council member Barbara Hill continue to satisfy residency requirements for holding elective office? "I conclude that she does," stated Borough attorney Walter Bliss in a letter to Council released at last Thursday's work session.

Neither R. William Potter nor Gerald Boswell will take the matter on to the courts, they said this week. First Mr. Potter and then Mr. Boswell — both in litigation with the Borough over Collins Development and Palmer Square — challenged Ms. Hill's legal right to sit on Council. She has stated publicly that she is moving to New York as soon as final closing is held on her house.

In his three-page letter, Mr. Bliss cited statutes and case law to buttress his opinion.

"It is well-established," he wrote, "that a domicile once acquired continues uninterrupted until a new one is established."

Mr. Boswell said this week that, since any losers in the Collins appeals will presumably continue on to court, that court will take Ms. Hill's residency situation into account when it hears the case.

He added that, of the four on Council who voted in favor of Collins, only Richard Woodbridge will remain after this year. Robert W. Cawley, who was mayor and cast the tie-breaking vote for Collins, did not run again. Ms. Hill will be off Council late this spring when she moves. Richard Macgill is not running again and will go off Council in December.

"Something that affects Princeton in the far distant future, was voted on by people who won't be on Council," he said, "and in Ms. Hill's case, by someone who is leaving town and won't be subject to all the added traffic and inconvenience."

TENNIS CLASSES SET

For All Ages. The Princeton Community Tennis Program is offering spring classes for juniors and adults. Classes begin the week of April 2 and continue for eight weeks.

Juniors are divided into different age brackets and there are beginner, advanced beginner, intermediate and advanced classes. The more advanced student may try out for the spring training program, a three-hour lesson per week for those interested in competitive play.

For the adult player, classes for beginner, advanced beginner, intermediate and advanced will be offered. Classes are held at Princeton High School and Princeton University Courts, beginning at 5:30 p.m.

Registration is being accepted at the Tennis Office, 71 University Place. For applications or additional information call 924-4343.

children's art, something of the town's history.

"It's non-political," Ms. Winawer told Council, "not a 'sell' of our way of life or propaganda."

Then, it's wait and see.

Don Blankenbush, who teaches grades 7-8 in the John Witherspoon Middle School, said his students have been studying the U.S.S.R. and the arms race.

Baher Azmy, one of Mr. Blankenbush's students, told Council that "governments will have to get out of the way and let people find peace."

His colleague, Neill Seltzer, said maybe "pairing" would lead to pen-pal correspondence with boys and girls in Shchekino.

So far, Ms. Winawer said, "35 to 50" towns in New Jersey have paired with communities in the Soviet Union. Lawrenceville has already sent its portrait to its Russian city; Newark is paired with Tula, a provincial capital.

NEWSPAPER REPORTER

Town Topics will have a position open on its editorial staff for a full-time reporter, beginning June 1. Duties include the editing of news releases, coverage of meetings and events, and developing and writing feature stories.

A keen interest in Princeton, the surrounding area, and the events shaping its future is the first prerequisite. A solid background in writing is a must—previous newspaper experience and the ability to use a computer terminal would be helpful, but not essential.

Benefits include annual vacation and participation in profit-sharing plan.

Please send a complete resume, plus samples of your writing to Donald C. Stuart, III, Town Topics, P.O. Box 664, Princeton, NJ 08540. Interviews with qualified candidates will be scheduled, beginning in early April.

COLLINS CHECK HELPS BUY MINI-PUMPER: The mini-pumper, a stocky, sturdy little fire-fighter, is the backdrop for presentation of a $5,000 check from Arthur Collins, left, to Borough Fire Commissioner Richard Woodbridge and the Princeton fire department. Next to Commissioner Woodbridge are Fire Chief Terrance Davidson; second assistant Chief Tom Hagadorn and last year's Chief William Rodweller. Collins will present the remaining $5,000 of its donation toward the $50,000 pumper when the Chambers garage is completed.

TOPICS Of The Town

WE BUILD A GARAGE

Collins Turns First Shovel. The 560-car garage planned by Collins Development as its first major construction project got under way Monday morning with a ceremonial ground-breaking attended by municipal and county officials.

"This signals the beginning of a project which promises to bring new rateables and new significance to the Borough," stated Arthur Collins, president of the firm, in remarks at the ground-breaking.

"Equally important," he said, "is the fact that once this parking facility is completed, one of the major problems whic has plagued the Borough — lack of parking space — will be significantly alleviated."

Collins expects the garage to be completed in one year. It will store about four times as many cars as the present parking lot.

After the ceremonies, Mr. Collins gave Borough Fire Commissioner Richard Woodbridge a $5,000 check representing a down payment on Collins' promise of $10,000 toward purchase of the Borough's new $50,000 mini-pumper.

The smaller vehicle, Commissioner Woodbridge explained, will be able to maneuver among the buildings Collins will construct north of Hulfish. He added that it will also be useful in remote locations in the Township where larger fire trucks have difficulty.

TO START APPEALS

On Collins. The four groups that are appealing Planning Board approval of Collins' Palmer Square Phase II were scheduled to meet this Tuesday in advance of the appeals that will start next Wednesday, April 4, before Borough Council.

The Tuesday night gathering is a broad strategy session designed to make sure the groups and individuals do not pit themselves against one another, according to one of the appellants.

A second appeal session will be held Thursday, April 5. Deadline for a decision on all four is Tuesday, April 10, but only these two sessions have been scheduled so far. Collins has stated that it will not grant an extension of the April 10 deadline.

So far, Council has not decided which appeal to hear first. Two of the four — the Witherspoon-Jackson Corporation and R. William Potter — protest lack of lower-income housing in Collins' plans, although Mr. Potter's suit has other elements as well. Neighbors on Greenholm are asking re-design of the area facing Chambers and Greenholm and Dwight O. North charges that the Planning Board did not give enough consideration to sewer problems.

$9,000 OVER ITS GOAL

For United Way. "What happened in February?" is the question at the United Way.

With the campaign tens of thousands of dollars short of its goal at the end of January, the Way ended its campaign last week $9,000 over its goal and 16 percent ahead of last year's drive — the biggest percentage increase in 21 years.

A determined, 11th hour push, plus corporate campaigns that began late and pledges that were reported late, is the explanation by

The total raised is $1,509,100. The dollar increase for this campaign is $200,000 over last year.

STUDENT'S JAW BROKEN

In School Fight. A 14-year old Township youth was assaulted last Friday, March 16, by another 14-year-old Township youth on the athletic field adjacent to John Witherspoon School.

According to police, the victim suffered a fractured jaw and had several of his teeth loosened when he was "forearmed" by the other youth. He was taken to an orthodonist and the Princeton Medical Center for treatment.

His assailant was taken into custody four days later, charged with aggravated assault by Township Juvenile Officer Jerry Offredo and remanded to the Mercer County Youth House. He was later released. Police report that the altercation was over a minor thing.

MERCER HOME LOOTED

Of $3,908 in Jewelry. A Mercer Street home was broken into last week and articles of jewelry, including a $2,500 diamond ring, a 16-inch triple strand of cultured pearls valued at $1,200 and several gold pins, were stolen.

The total value of the jewelry taken amounted to $3,908.50. Also missing are miscellaneous items valued at $225.

The home was entered in daylight Thursday between 9:55 in the morning a 1:50 p.m. by prying open a side door.

When Ptl. Michael Taylor arrived he felt the suspect was still inside and other backup patrols were called to assist. Police were unable to locate any intruder, however.

Dorm Rooms Robbed. Three dormitory rooms on the Princeton University campus were entered and robbed last week — two on Saturday.

There were two victims when a room in 1938 Hall was entered between 11:45 and 12:15 Saturday. One reported items worth $328 taken; the other placed his loss at $190. Among the items taken were an AM-FM stereo cassette player, Sony Walkman, a 35 mm camera with flash attachment, two clocks, a jacket and a leather wallet.

The victims told police they found the door to their room locked when they returned but they could not remember if it had been locked when they left.

In an entry into a Gauss Hall room between 9:45 a.m. and 3 p.m. the same day, $37 was taken from a card file box on top a dresser. Police report that drawers throughout the room had been searched but nothing else was taken. There were no signs of forced entry.

An intruder entered a student's room in Blair Hall Sunday night and departed with a 35mm camera worth $250. The room was not locked.

THEFT REPORT

Guitar, Chairs Taken. A guitar constructed for a left-handed player and twenty folding chairs still packed in their original cartons were among items reported stolen last week.

The guitar was owned by a resident of Massachusetts who told police that he was visting a friend at 24 Dickinson Street during the weekend. He had left the guitar in its black case overnight in a hallway. It is valued at $400.

The twenty steel-folding chairs valued at $20 each were reported missing last week by a member of the Princeton Senior Citizens Club. They had been left in their cartons in the former Miss Fine's School gym building behind Borough Hall and were taken sometime between January, 1983 and last Wednesday. The theft was discovered when a construction company started work to refurbish the building for use by the senior citizens and the Princeton Art Council.

A black leather jacket valued at $90 was stolen Saturday evening from a cafeteria in the basement of the Methodist Church, 160 Nassau Street, while the owner, a resident of Milltown, was attending a meeting there.

In another coat theft, a black herringbone overcoat worth $160 was stolen from the coat room in the Colonial Club on Prospect Avenue where the victim, a university student, had left it unattended between 12:30 and 2:30 Sunday morning. A 19-year-old Randall Road resident, a student at Princeton High School, reported the theft of her $170 blue tweed coat from a coat room in Tiger Inn, 48 Prospect Avenue. The coat, which also contained a $45 pair of gloves, was taken between 10 Friday night and 3 Saturday morning.

Car Stereo Stolen. An AM-FM stereo cassette player valued at approximately $500 was ripped from the dashboard of a car of a Spring Street resident while it was parked overnight last week in a Maclean Street lot — the car had been forced open — and

Spring Cleanup in Township

Spring Cleanup will begin in Princeton Township on Monday, April 16. It will continue until completed, with Township Public Works crews making collections on a one-time basis until the Township is covered. Township Engineer Robert V. Kiser expects that will take 10 days.

Materials to be picked up must be put out ready for collection before 8 a.m. on Monday, April 16. Residents are asked not to put items out more than one week before this date.

Only garden and yard debris, such as tree branches, twigs, leaves, lawn debris, and grass clippings will be picked up. Household items such as furniture and appliances will not be picked up at this time and should not be put out. They will be collected during the fall cleanup.

Brush, leaves, lawn debris and grass clippings must be placed in closed and sealed containers, cartons or plastic bags. Paper bags should not be used.

Tree branches and twigs should be tied securely in bundles not more than 12 inches in diameter and four feet in length. Rope or twine should be used, not wire, and large branches must be stacked neatly in lengths not longer than four feet.

Items to be picked up must not be placed in the street but in the right-of-way at the curb or edge of the street. The rules are for the safety and efficiency of the Public Works Crew. Items put out that do not meet the rules will not be picked up.

For further information call the Public Works Department at 921-7077.

four hubcaps were removed from the 1983 Ford of a Trenton resident while it was parked all day Friday at the rear of 180 Nassau Street.

Two suits with a combined value of $370 were shoplifted Thursday from Talbots on Nassau Street. The theft was discovered when a clerk noticed two empty hangers on a rack. A man and a woman are suspects in the theft, police said.

Two Bicycles Stolen. Two bicycles were stolen in the Borough last week.

On Saturday, a resident of Stanworth Drive parked his bike in front of the Mykonos Restaurant on Witherspoon Street to play a video game inside. Because all the machines were in use, the victim left, but the three to five minutes he estimated he was inside was all the time a thief needed to ride off on his Raleigh 12-speed worth $250.

Despite its being secured with a chain lock, a 10-speed Schwinn bicycle was stolen last week — chain and all — from the Walnut Lane side of Princeton High School. It is valued at $175.

In the only theft reported last week by Township police, a brown Puch moped valued at $450 was stolen ovenight from an unlocked garage on Dodds Lane.

Police said the garage doors were open and the moped was not locked. Ptl. Mark Emann investigated.

TWO ARE ARRESTED

On Trenton Court Warrants. Two Trenton residents were arrested last week in Princeton in separate incidents and later turned over to Trenton police who had court warrants for their apprehension.

Gary C. Adams, 20, was stopped Saturday evening by Ptl. Joseph Wilhelm at Palmer Square East and Hulfish Streets for failing to dim his headlights. During the investigation, police learned that he was wanted on a warrant issued by the Trenton municipal court for contempt of court. After being issued a motor vehicle summons, Adams was turned over to the Trenton Police Department.

Harry B. Stephenson, 34, was arrested at the Princeton Nursing Home last week and handed over to Trenton police on a warrant charging him with a March 17 robbery in Trenton.

Police here reported that Stephenson is an employee of the nursing home.

Alcohol Charge. Christopher Chonka, 20, of Nassau Street, and a 16-year-old Township youth were arrested last week and charged with possession of alcohol by minors.

The two were among four occupants who were acting suspiciously, police said, in a car parked last Wednesday evening at the rear of 291 Nassau Street. Both were arrested by Ptl. Charles Davall and Ptl. Dennis McManimon after they admitted they had beer in their possession.

Chonka was issued a complaint summons and released. The juvenile was released to the custody of his guardian.

DOMESTIC VIOLENCE UP

In Township. Since the beginning of the year, Township police have investigated eight incidents of domestic violence.

"We've definitely seen an increase this year," commented Chief Anthony Pinelli. One reason, he theorized, is that people are more aware of the new domestic violence law passed by the state two years ago.

Under the new law, victims have the right to go to the domestic relations court and file a complaint. They can also request a restraining order signed by a judge, directing the alleged attacker to leave the house or restrain from further abuse.

"It's quite involved now and time consuming," Chief Pinelli said. "It's not the normal routine of domestic quarrels years ago where you went to the home, quelled the dispute and asked if either one wanted to file a complaint."

Now, Chief Pinelli added, an officer can sign a complaint if there is physical evidence of abuse — even if both parties involved decline.

NEW CARS SCRATCHED

At Princeton Volvo. Three new Volvo cars and a used car parked in front of Princeton Volvo, 255 Nassau Street, were scratched last week, causing approximately $2,000 in damage.

Police report that the cars had been deliberately scratched on both sides with a sharp instrument between 2 Thursday afternoon and 10 the next morning.

TWELVE ARE FINED

In Traffic Court. Twelve Princeton area residents were fined Monday by Judge Russell W. Annich Jr. in Borough traffic court.

Four paid $60 each for making improper turns. They are Wayne Knutson, 8 Charlton Street; William Steiger, 87 Deerpath, Richard Niedt, Scotch Road, Titusville, and Paul Ferrara of Hopewell.

Also fined $60 each were Michelino Sferra, 107 Randall Road, and David M. Schrum, 2 Lucerne Drive, Lawrenceville, both stop sign; and Joanne Solomon, 84 Hardy Drive, and Geneva Bolden, 12 Mulberry Row, both careless driving.

Others: Pamela Mikkelsen, 8 Woodshire Lane, Belle Mead, $60, speeding; Bruce Biteover, 205B Kingston Terrace, $75, red light; Chun Hu, 225A King Street, $75, failure to yield the right of way at an intersection, and DiMeglio's Land Company, 22 Terhune Road, $20, no name or address on commerical vehicle.

In Township court last week, Andrew Alexander, The Great Road, was fined $115

Practice Your Humming! It's Spring, And Time for the Art People's Party

If it's spring it must be time to think of an Arts Council Art People Party. Haven't had one since last spring.

It's going to be a "Spring Sounds" music party swirling and skirling around the Witherspoon Street Art People Place Saturday, April 28 (rain date Sunday). Witherspoon Street will be blocked off from Paul Robeson Place north — not sure how far — and there will be dancers of all kinds from break dancers to the Princeton Ballet Society, singers, artists, photographers, puppets, good things to eat, even the League of Women Voters and the American Field Service Committee.

If you want to show off your singing, dancing, cooking or whatever, you should pick up an application form at Borough Hall, the public library or the Art People Place.

Actually, everything will begin two weeks earlier, on Saturday, April 14 with a fence-painting. It is the fancy of the Arts Council to paint framed pictures on the fence Collins will erect around the Chambers Street garage construction site, and at least one of the pictures will be an ad for the April 28 Party.

Scouts and Brownies will be at the Art People Party doing funnel cakes. Caterers will have tables — and many a Princeton caterer has started off toward success with a table at an Art People Party.

Maypole dancing — of course. And folk dancing and folk singing. Make your own instrument and bring it along.

Music, says the Arts Council, will even extend to humming.

Humming? Yes. The Council says firmly that if you can't sing, surely you can at least hum. Bring that along, too.

Pamela Nicholson-Allen, 150 Spruce Street, paid $65, U-turn, and Charles DiDomenico, 50 Meadow Run Drive, Skillman, paid $40, no license or registration in possession.

In criminal court, Louis F. Keifer, 107 Leigh Avenue, was placed on probation for a year, fined $25 court costs and ordered to pay $25 to the Violent Crime Compensation Board. He had five charges involving theft and receiving stolen property.

Richard Macgill Declines to Run Again After Six Years Service on Borough Council

Too old to run but not too old to ski.

That's what they're saying about Richard Macgill, 73, who says he isn't running for a third Borough Council term because he's too old but who is leaving shortly for his annual two-week skiing vacation in Switzerland.

Short of tongue and temper with a reputation for irascibility, Dick Macgill says "six years is enough" on Council. But even his 40 years as a skier isn't "enough."

Is he any good? "I'm not ashamed of my skiing."

One of the three Council members who has voted for Collins Development when various Collins matters came before Council, Mr. Macgill sees today "a co-ordinated opposition to Collins. Four appeals is just too much coincidence. But my decision not to run has nothing to do with that. I decided last summer."

This retired banker Democrat who has been accused of looking and acting like a Republican, says this of the town where he has lived since 1951:

"I have a basic fear that the Borough will follow the path of communities like New Brunswick, where the heart of the town deteriorated.

"When there is decline at the heart, the rateables go 'way down — that's what happened in New Brunswick — and the tax base declines. The center becomes a wasteland and this means a heavier tax burden on surrounding homes.

"If Collins is unable to develop a high-quality center, there is a risk of deterioration, and I fear that if the Central Business District starts to decline, the tax burden on home-owners will increase and residential property will be less desirable than property in the Township."

In his opinion, lower-cost housing in a development like Collins' "which ought to be a most-desirable residential area," could make it difficult for Collins to develop that "high-quality center."

"If I were Arthur Collins, I'd have become disgusted long ago and gone somewhere else to a more hospitable community."

The reasons for local hostility to Collins, Mr. Macgill believes, is traceable to two things:

"People don't like the idea of change. But the Borough has been changing for 200 years and I think it's done pretty well.

"Also, Collins was not very skillful in its initial moves on Palmer Square, and this roused public opposition."

Princeton an Oasis. Mr. Macgill sees Princeton as a needed oasis in central New Jersey, a place for high-quality stores, restaurants and hotels, "not a standard motel all chrome and gingerbread."

"People say Princeton is a golden ghetto.' Well, it's always been an upper-income place. I can show you maps from the turn of the century that show BIG properties — many of them.

"Today, the community is much more democratic than it used to be. It's not Levittown, but it's becoming more readily accessible to more people."

No, he doesn't think a lot of high-quality stores would bring in hordes of shoppers and traffic. The surrounding area isn't tuned to high-quality establishments, so the potential clientele is relatively small, he believes.

Particularly dismayed by Council's recent decision not to pay its sewer bill right away, Mr. Macgill sees it as the abandoning of "a co-operative effort to solve the underbilling problem.

"The (sewer) Authority is US — all four of us municipalities. It's not the enemy."

He adds that he is the only one on Council with a background in business and he believes the four municipalities should direct their attention, "not to faulty sewer meters but to faulty sewer management."

Mr. Macgill ended his lifelong career as a banker in 1976 when he retired from New Jersey National Bank. He'd been president for several years and was chairman of the board when he retired.

"I am a Democrat by conviction," he states. "But in local government, I'm a Princetonian: neither Democrat nor Republican. I do what's best for the town, not what's best for the party.

"There was no evidence of partisanship on Council in these last six years," he says, "I suspect that is not so true now, but I have no facts to back this up."

He has no post-Council plans. And although he says the prospect of door-to-door campaigning, "the rigamarole of getting endorsements of Democratic clubs" didn't appeal to him any more, he enjoyed the whole six years.

He cites President Reagan — who is the same age — as an example of "age slowing you down," but this Democrat by conviction declines to discuss the Republican president.

He'd rather talk about skiing. Of which he is not ashamed.

MORE PUMPS? NEIGHBORS SAY 'NO': These three pumps at the Nassau and Murray Place Sunoco station are plenty, say neighbors. They protest Sunoco's request to add five more and a cashier's shed.

Topics of the Town

MORE GAS PUMPS?

Neighbors Protest. Three pumps is enough, neighbors of Larry's Sunoco station said this week, and 80 of them signed a petition for the Planning Board to consider at its meeting next Tuesday (7:30, Valley Road Building.)

Sunoco wants to expand from three to eight pumps at the Nassau and Murray Place station. All would be on a single island. The station was turned down 17 years ago when the owner sought to build a second island.

"Increased traffic in and out of the Sunoco station will jeopardize all pedestrians, especially school children, elderly residents and those walking to a bus stop," the petition says, adding that people crossing Nassau are already in hazard from left-turn traffic at intersections and gas stations along the street.

"We are skeptical," they say, about the findings of James G. Martin, assistant Borough engineer, that the additional five pumps and cashier's shed will have no impact on surface-water drainage, traffic, pedestrian safety, waste disposal, noise, on-site parking and similar matters.

"We are convinced that a site modification of this magnitude cannot fail to have an adverse impact on our neighborhood."

The pump island would be 8 x 32 feet, to accommodate the eight pumps. A cashier's shed, 6 x 8 feet, would also be built.

TO SEEK DONATIONS

For Turning Basin Park. Turning Basin Park will be completed, and the turning basin will be dredged.

It will take private as well as municipal and state funds to complete the project, but in a spirit of which President Reagan would approve, the private sector is stepping up to assist the hard pressed public sector.

Flush with victory in its negotations with the Institute for Advanced Study to drop its development plans, the Friends of Princeton Open Space have decided on Turning Basin Park as its next project. Letters have been sent out to the 500 or more members requesting donations which would be applied against the $25,000 the Township needs to complete the whole package of $80,000 for dredging and $20,000 for site work.

The Township has assurances of Greenacres money--the last of the 1970s style grants--for one half of the project, and Township Committee had decided to put up $25,000 as a capital project and seek the other $25,000 from the Borough on the grounds that it is a community asset. However, Committeewoman Barbara Cantrill reported Monday night that "there's no chance of getting any money from the Borough."

Lawrence Norris Kerr, vice president of the Friends of Princeton Open Space, told Committee she was "fairly confidant" her group could raise the remaining funds. With that assurance, Committee gave the green light to the Township Attorney to draft the necessary capital ordinance. The Township Engineer was also asked to notify the New Jersey Water Supply Authority to include the basin in its dredging of the nearby Delaware and Raritan Canal.

In other business, Committee held the public hearing on and adopted amendments to the budget which do not affect the total budget nor the SIGNING UP FREEZE VOTERS: Coalition for Nuclear Disarmament Director Robert Moore, center, meets with Anthea Spencer and Don Blankenbush before the three set out to canvas residents as part of the Freeze Voter '84. amount to be raised by taxes. For technical and procedural reasons, the Township's 1984 budget was scheduled to be formally adopted at an early morning special session this Wednesday.

CAMPAIGN IS LAUNCHED

For Freeze Voters. New Jersey Freeze Voter '84 kicked off its door-to-door canvassing drive last Saturday in Princeton and in 15 other towns around the state.

Forty Princeton residents met at the Christ Congregation Church before the canvass to hear a pep talk by Borough Mayor Barbara Sigmund, who told the group, "If you see any manholes during your walk, think about these aspects of the weapons freeze: the fact that we are spending so much on defense means that needed funds for human services are getting spent, and also there's no money available in the (federal) budget for fixing up the sewer collection system."

The canvassers also heard talks from State Senator Gerald Stockman and Princeton physicist Frank von Hippel, who is the president of the American Federation of Scientists, both of whom canvassed with the group. Volunteer canvassers collected more than 600 signatures in the Borough and Township on a pledge to make candidates' support of a nuclear weapons freeze a key determining factor in their choice of candidates in November.

"Two-thirds of the voters of New Jersey, and more than 80 percent of Princeton voters, support a nuclear freeze, and yet many of them in 1980 and 1982 voted for candidates who did not support the freeze," said state canvass coordinator Rachel Findley. "We can elect a president and a congress who will enact a freeze." The afternoon ended with a talk by Alan Karcher, Speaker of the State Assembly.

Freeze Voter '84 plans to continue its canvass of Princeton on April 28. Throughout the summer workers will canvass in central New Jersey. Anyone interested in signing the pledge or volunteering time to the canvass should call Carol Segur at 924-9690 or David Madole at 921-0425.

TENTH FESTIVAL SET

By International Center. The annual International Festival will take place on Sunday, April 8, in Dillon Gym on the Princeton University campus from noon until 8 p.m.

With the purpose of acquainting the community with the customs, cultures and arts of the more than 70 countries represented on campus, the Festival features continuous performances of ethnic and specialized dance groups, poetry readings, singing groups, karate demonstrations. Pam Berkowsky, co-chairperson of the festival, promises that the Korean children, dressed in flowing brocades, silks and beads, will once again dance under the direction of Heyun Paek. Israeli folk dancers, Scottish reelers and Australian singers and a Chinese Tai Chi Sword demonstration are among the performers scheduled.

Helium balloons will be on sale as well as UNICEF gift items including records and tapes from Israel, Mexico and other lands. Under the guidance of Mary Ann Wong, the many food booths will attract tasters all day long with Indian, Chinese, Philippine, Turkish, Dutch and even Afghanistani culinary treats as well as homemade cookies provided by the University League Nursery School parents.

Booths will exhibit typical products of many lands. Embroideries and handicrafts from Rumania and crafts from Africa, the West Indies and Laos will be for sale. Children will be able to have their names written in Chinese. A fine collection of Korean vases will be on exhibit and demonstrations of brush painting and Chinese calligraphy are scheduled.

Sponsored by the International Center, the Festival brings together diverse student groups such as the West Indies Student Association, the Chicano Students Association, the Organization of Black Unity and the Accion Puertorriquena y Amigos, to name just a few.

For further information, call the Center at 452-5006.

TEENS AE INVITED

To Job Workshop. In an effort to make the search for a summer job easier and more successful for a teenager, the YWCA and the Youth Employment Service of Princeton are co-sponsoring a special day for teens on Saturday entitled "Summer Jobs: Where They Are and How to Get Them."

There will be informational workshops on the job search and hiring process as well as the opportunity for teens to register with the Youth Employment Service as the first step to securing a job.

Teens will be able to participate in three workshops during the event. "How to Fill Out a Job Application," to be conducted by Peggy Sentz, placement specialist at the Hunterdon County Occupational Training Center, Inc., will prepare teens for the kind of information they are expected to provide an employer. Linda Meisel,

Help With Income Tax

Every Wednesday night between 7 and 9 from now until April 11, volunteers at the Princeton Public Library will offer free help with income tax forms. The library also has a variety of tax forms on hand.

The volunteers include two enrolled IRS agents. They will help taxpayers fill out forms, and they will answer questions. The service is free and no advance registration is needed.

Details may be obtained by calling the library at 924-9529.

A.C.S.W., Family Service Agency of Princeton, and Jan Kouzes, assistant professor of psychology at Trenton State College, will lead "The Interview Process: Making It Work for You."

Marty Richmond of Career Development Office at Princeton University will conduct the "How to Choose a Job" workshop, designed to help teens focus on their talents, experience and interests and use these tools to find the right job.

Youth Employment Service has a long record of successfully placing young people in a variety of job situations. Teens registering with its service will gain access to the many jobs on file in the area. A directory of types of summer employment available in the Princeton area will be distributed to teens on Saturday. An updated listing will be available later in the spring.

"Summer Jobs: Where They Are and How to Get Them" will be held from 10 to 1 at the YMCA-YWCA facilities on Paul Robeson Place. Admission is free of charge to all area high school students.

For further information, contact Joanne Lupica or Linda Loberg at 924-5571.

EDITORS HERE

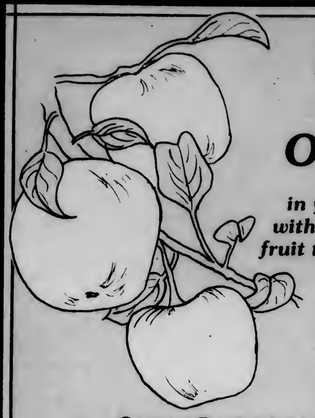
For Writers' Workshop. Two editors from New York will be the featured speakers at a seminar on "Breaking into Print" sponsored by the Princeton Writers' Center, in cooperation with the adult department of the Princeton YWCA.

The speakers will be Eileen Schnurr, fiction editor of Mademoiselle magazine, and Stephanie Von Hirschberg of Doubleday. Ms. Schnurr was formerly with Show magazine, Glamour and Redbook, and has had many years of experience as a fiction editor. Ms. Von Hirschberg handles both fiction and nonfiction at Doubleday.

The seminar will take place at the YM-YWCA building on Paul Robeson Place on Saturday from 10 to 12:30. The fee is $18 for members of the YWCA, $20 for non-members. For further information, call the YWCA at 924-5571.

SUNDAY IS START

Of Spring Sailing Season. The Carnegie Sailing Club will begin its spring season Sunday when a fleet of Sunfish and a combined fleet of Lasers and Force 5's will start the first race at 1:30. Racing will continue for twelve consecutive Sundays.



The Club extends an invitation to all interested boat owners and spectators to participate. Tips for racers and spectators together with application forms are available at Force 5 boat No. 7333 at the dock on Sunday. For further information, call 924-8980.

HUN TO GAIN

From Auction Event. A benefit auction for friends and neighbors of The Hun School will take place on Saturday evening, April 7.

More than 350 items — ranging from 250 gallons of gasoline to an ounce of perfume — will be offered for bid. Hot air balloons hovering at the entrance of the school gymnasium will set the scene for the "Up, Up, Up and Away" auction theme.

Festivities will begin at 6 p.m. with a reception, prime rib dinner and silent auction. Music will be provided by Marty Bergen's Dixieland band. Auctioneer Samuel Freeman II of Samuel T. Freeman and Co. of Philadelphia will open the live bidding on 50 select items at 8 p.m., following a raffle drawing for a fully-equipped Volvo GL station wagon, valued at $17,900, and provided through Volvo of Princeton. The raffle winner will be among 350 purchasers of $100 tickets.

The "Up, Up, Up and Away" auction is sponsored by the Mothers and Fathers Association of The Hun School and chaired by Mrs. Raymond Marlatt and Noel Kohn. Heading the auction committees are Mrs. Alvin Darvin and Mrs. Gerald Zahn, dinner; Gary Hilton, entertainment; Mrs. Ronald Kadi, decorations; Diane Mitnaul, publicity; Jim Roberts, live auction; Mrs. Dietrich Wahlers, silent auction; and Mrs. Andrew Yusko, reservations.

HUN SCHOOL QUILTERS: Sharon Hanley, left, and Kim Lake are working on a quilt that will be offered for bid at the Hun School benefit auction on Saturday, April 7. The quilt is being made by sixth, seventh and eight graders in Mrs. Andrea Sweeny's art class and a quilt rack by woodworking teacher Mark Niederer.

Items for bid range from the contemporary to the collectible — from "smart set" telephones, computer software, a DIS OF TRON video game, and Cabbage Patch doll, to a vintage Singer treadle sewing machine, Victorian dresser, "French Bronze" and 40-year-old set of Lionel trains. Gourmet pleasures include a side of beef, a covey of pheasants, as well as dinners, brunches and lunches at scores of favorite restaurants.

Vacation retreats include weekend accommodations in New Orleans, Atlantic City, New York and Stowe, as well as week-long accommodations in Maui, Hilton Head, Myrtle Beach, the Blue Ridge Mountains, Avalon, and Newport Beach, locale of the summer Olympics. Art works feature pieces by area artists. One attraction is the opportunity to bid on a 22" x 28" portrait "of the person of your choice" painted by the Charles J. Fox Studio of New York City, and valued at $7,000.

All are welcome to attend the Hun School auction. Dinner reservations, which include admission to the auction, are $12.50 per person and should be obtained in advance through the school. Admission to the auction is $5 per person and may be obtained at the door.

A catalog of auction items is available by calling the school at 921-7600.

Priorities Questioned.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

In reference to the Board of Education's plan to appeal the court ruling concerning teachers, Thomas Murray and Larry Ivan, I feel I must question the priorities of the School Board.

I have been a lifetime resident of Princeton. The street I was raised on no longer exists. I question if the Board would pursue this matter if the child was not related to a member of the Board.

In this day of rising municipal and school taxes I feel any money used for an appeal could be much more wisely invested for the good of all students, not just one.

I feel it is time for the Board of Education to admit their mistake instead of using tax payers money to attempt to correct their mistake.

PREA Clarifies Stand.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

In your March 14th article on "the Ivan and Murray case against the Princeton Regional Board of Education," you stated that the two teachers have not had the formal backing of the Princeton Regional Education Association (PREA).

The PREA officers wish to clarify the record. The Princeton Regional Education Association was never formally asked to be involved in the court case. The teachers chose to fight that case privately.

Is Poison Needed?
To the Editor of Town Topics:

Our family is saddened by the untimely dealth of our handsome male cat, "Tiger."

When he became ill, he was taken to the vet and died a week later. The veterinarian thinks that he ate a poisoned animal. He said the symptoms matched the effects of a common poision used on rats and mice.

Our immediate neighbors have pets and young children. We would be most distressed to have anyone suffer from such poison. It seems to us there are alternative ways to handle household pests that do not endanger others.

We ask that people faced with a pest problem think of others.

CASE Has Bizarre History.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

In a story carried in the March 21st issue of Town Topics, school board candidate Titiana Ermalaev describes herself as sponsored by an organization called "Citizens for American System Education." This, in turn, is characterized as a "conservative" group. Nothing could be further from the truth.

Lyndon H. LaRouche, under whose auspices CASE was created, is the leader of a political cult whose rather bizarre history extends back to the late 1960s. Beginning as a radical leftist, (using the name "Lyn Marcus" — from Marx and Lenin), LaRouche founded the National Caucus of Labor Committees, a revolutionary movement espousing a conspiracy theory of politics built around the alleged machinations of the Rockefeller family.

Though he has since abandoned Marxism, LaRouche continues to peddle the notion of a sinister cabal controlling the direction of world events. According to LaRouche the evil oligarchy presently threatening mankind is to be identified with "the British," described in his writings as a species outside the human race. LaRouche sees "the British" as being behind a variety of nefarious activities including the drug trade, all aimed at undermining the fabric of western civilization.

Moreover, Zionists, the Rothschilds, Henry Kissinger and "wealthy Jews" are also frequently associated by him with these plots. In short, LaRouche's thinking is based on a weird melange of fantastic notions, some drawn from the far left, some from the far right, and others of his own strange creation, but none of them in any sense "conservative."

In all likelihood Mrs. Ermalaev shares none of these beliefs. Quite possibly she is even unaware that LaRouche holds them. Nonetheless, Princeton voters will wish to seriously consider whether anyone involved with such a figure should be entrusted with the education of their children.

Candidate's Backing Queried.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

According to an article in the March 21 TOWN TOPICS, one of the candidates for the Princeton Regional School Board, Tatiana Ermolaev, has stated that she is one of a group of 111 school-board candidates running this spring in New Jersey as "Citizens for American System Education." This bloc has been organized by the "National Democratic Policy Committee," which will — according to a letter sent to Ms. Ermolaev — provide financial support and policy proposals for her and the other 110 "Citizens." The Committee has no connection with the Democratic Party.

While Ms. Ermolaev is quoted in your article as indicating that she does not agree with all of the positions of the overarching Committee, Princeton voters should give some attention to the expressed positions and reputation of the committee, since she is actively associating her campaign with its state-wide effort. Some relevant information:

1. In a letter dated February 27, 1984 to Ms. Ermolaev, the "Policy Committee" notes that this school-board effort is to be combined with a broader attempt to elect its candidates to Republican and Democratic party posts, to county and municipal government offices generally, and to Congress. This approach appears contrary to the tradition in New Jersey of non-partisan school board elections.

2. The "underlying issue" in this and other campaigns financed by the Committee is, according to its letter to Ms. Ermolaev, "whether we, as a people, have the moral fitness to survive." In an attached statement, the "Citizens" group observes that influences such as television and punk rock, as well as drugs, must be "ruthlessly stamped out."

3. Such reforms as the "new math" and "open classrooms," the statement continues, "do not work" and "must be repealed."

4. In an extensive article in the Bergen Record of March 2, 1984, on the Committee, staff writer Jeffrey Page concludes that "its attitudes about Jews and blacks have made it the object of careful watch by civil rights organizations."

5. A year ago, when this group ran a slate of nine candidates in a school district in Manhattan, the New York Times followed the campaign closely and concluded editorially (May 2, 1983) that voters in the school district "would be wise to select their preferred candidates from among those who are not endorsed by the 'National Democratic Policy Committee.' To elect any of its candidates would reward intolerance, and indifference to education."

We hope that Ms. Ermolaev will give careful consideration to rejecting financial support from the "Committee" and severing other associations with this group.

Harry Levine Cares.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

Thanks for the article on the school board elections. As a member of the Long Range Planning Committee it is gratifying to note the importance attached to the long range plan which was submitted to the Board last June by our Committee.

Harry Levine took the time to share and contribute to our deliberations. He has demonstrated his commitment to the concept that it is essential that the Board adopt, implement, and continually update a long range plan with the help of the public.

I hope that Township voters will recognize Harry Levine's service and continue him as a Board Member at the election on April 3.

Avoid Partisan Elections.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

Contested elections for school boards are a sign of healthy interest in schools and education.

However, this year in Princeton Borough there is a candidate sponsored by CASE "Citizens for American System Education" which, according to its founder, Lyndon LaRouche, Jr., hopes to have 1,000 New Jerseyans running with LaRouche for Congress, county, municipal offices and Republican and Democratic committee posts, as well as school board.

It seems to me that this puts school board elections squarely in the middle of partisan politics, a situation Princeton citizens have carefully avoided much to the benefit of the Princeton Regional Schools.

Teachers Overpaid?
To the Editor of Town Topics:

It is unfortunate that the public will not have a chance to query the candidates for the Princeton Regional School Board on the question of the '84-'85 school budget which will be voted on next week.

In reviewing the '84-'85 budget I wish to comment on the following:

1. Although a capital bond for maintenance and grounds (over and above the $1,355,400 for the "operation of the plant" in the '84-'85 budget) was just voted in for $4 million, this budget includes an additional $200,000 for capital expenditures.

In addition, from '78-'79 to the current budget, '84-'85, the sum of $2,538,300 has already been spent for capital expenditures (not for new buildings). Why are our buildings in such disarray that a citizens committee recommended and taxpayers passed an additional $4 million bond for neglect of these same buildings and grounds?

2. The '84-'85 net Cost Per Pupil is $6,116.50. (Simply divide the projected number of students, 2252, into the Total Expenditures, $13,774,400.) Probably in the highest percentile in the state or country. Look up the costs of outstanding districts and see for yourself.

3. In June, 1984, the budget shows a surplus of $863,800 and an expected surplus of $663,000 for next June. (It looks like another $200,000 went into capital repairs this year.)

4. This budget indicates some 316.99 total staff. The "Fixed Charges" or "perks" of $884,600 includes retirement, social security, medical insurance, etc. These are not included in any of the following salaries that are culled out of the budget document as follows. (Incidentally, it is good to see that our valued staff is so well paid.)

Some School Librarians will receive $34,700 and two district "Media Specialists" together will earn $56,500. Some nurses will earn $28,800, and some Guidance counselors will earn an average of $33,000. Our Social Workers earn $35,400, Learning Counsultants $34,700, $35,400, etc. Some Music and Art teachers earn $31,200, $33,300, and $31,900.

This pattern is consistent throughout the various disciplines — Physical Education $34,000 average in the Middle School plus extra pay for coaching, etc. for many of these same faculty. Please bear in mind that there is no differentiation in salaries between the different disciplines, as I understand it ... we just have a top-heavy older teaching staff. I would estimate that the average teaching salary would be about $30,000.

5. Administrator's salaries have grown since we last looked. The budget does not specify the Superindent's salary. However, he and his Assistant collectively receive $119,300, an increase for them of $6800. They have $4000 for travel expenses plus other perks.

6. The Business Administrator School Board Secretary (not an accountant) receives $50,400 and the head of custodial services $43,700. We are now down to four school buildings.

7. There is a hefty $33,000 for Attorney's fees (not including more for the Negotiating Attorney who earns $20,000 for this current year's negotiations with the teachers — for a future contract.)

8. There is one-tenth of one percent ($13,800) devoted in this budget for Gifted and Talented children. But that's a value judgement, isn't it?

There are many other interesting things in the '84-'85 budget. If you have the time, take a look.

RARELY VISITED ARCHAEOLOGICAL SITES OF MEXICO
Many people have been to Mexico and have seen the commonly visited sites such as Teotihuacan and Tula. But few have had the opportunity to visit some of the more remote and remarkable sites on this itinerary which have never before been offered on an organized tour. This program represents the culmination of a great deal of research and field investigation to make such a Unique Travel Experience possible. So, join us as we venture out of the realm of the Aztecs to visit the Mattazingas, the Tlahuicas, the Totonacas, the Olmecas, the Tlascalans, and the Huastecas.

will focus on common concerns about the normal stages of establishing new social and personal relationships, based on the participants' own decisions and standards.

The Adult Department of the YWCA also has two offerings of special interest to the divorced and/or separated woman. "On Your Own" and "For Divorced Women in Their Sixties" are meeting on Tuesday nights and are led by psychotherapist Barbara K. Pollinger. The special needs of the older woman emerging from a long marriage are examined in the "Sixties" group, while younger women find help in "On Your Own."

Registration is available for all three support groups. For further information call the YWCA Adult Department at 924-5571.

'VIALS OF LIFE'

Junior League Project. The Provisional Class of the Junior League of the Central Delaware Valley will soon distribute more than 8,000 "Vials of Life" free of charge to county residents.

The program is designed to supply emergency medical and rescue teams with personal medical information in the event an individual may be unable to provide it personally.

Standard size vials which contain forms on individual family membes are taped inside the refrigerator. A red sticker on the refrigerator door alerts the rescue team that the family is a participant in the "Vial of Life" program.

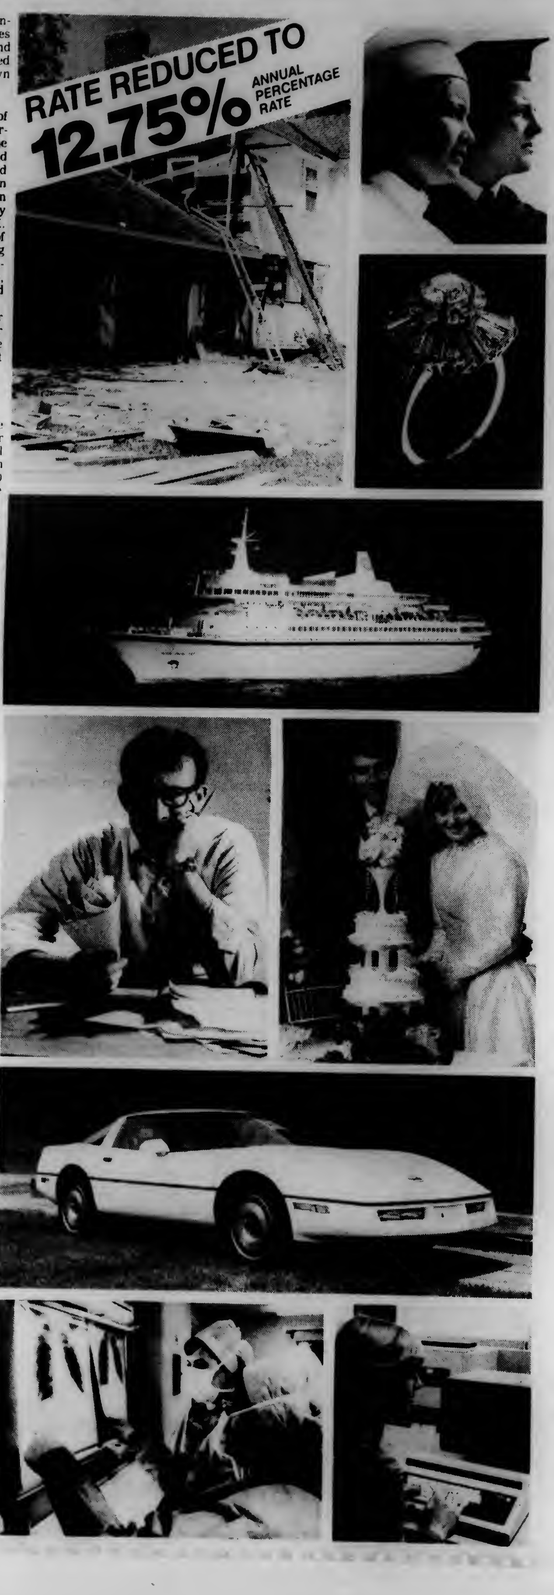
Junior League members plan to distribute the vials, which were donated by New Jersey Bell, through area Senior Citizen groups, health fairs and community rescue squads.

The Junior League is a nonprofit organization dedicated to promoting volunteerism and ensuring the well being of children, women and the elderly.

Individuals, families or organizations interested in the "Vial of Life" should call their rescue squad or may write to Junior League Vial of Life, 27 Federal City Road, Trenton, N.J. 08638.

WRITER TO SPEAK

At Art People Place. Writer Jerome Charyn will read from several of his works this Wednesday at 8:30 at the Art People Place, Witherspoon Street in the Arts Council's Spring Authors Series.



Mr. Charyn will read from his most recent novel, "Pinocchio's Nose" and from a collection of detective stories, "The Isaac Quartet." He teaches in the creative writing department at Princeton University and at the Breadloaf Writers Conference, Middlebury, Vermont. His appearance in the Arts Council's series is funded by a grant from the Mercer County Cultural and Heritage Commission through the New Jersey Council on the Arts.

FOR PARENTS, TEACHERS

Session on Nuclear Issue. "Talking with Children about Nuclear Issues: Facts and Feelings," a program for parents and teachers, will be presented on Thursday, April 5 at 8 p.m. in the Assembly Room of the Nassau Presbyterian Church.

The program will open with a showing of "There's a Nuclear War Going On Inside My Head," a videotape created by Physicians for Social Responsibility. Kathryn Boals will then moderate a panel discussion which will include remarks by Dr. Steven Hefler, pediatrician and father, Joel Weisberg, Princeton University physicist, and Jenny Allen, educator and mother.

The evening will include a period for informal discussion and an opportunity for the panelists to answer questions. Copies of relevant articles and suggested lists for both children and parents will be available.

Sewers

cil, "I don't see how we can sign an agreement binding us to ANY amount."

The report shows that the two meters in worst shape are the two that serve Princeton. The one at the Princeton Pumping Station, which measures one-half to two-thirds of Princeton's flow, cannot be calibrated accurately. It is 30 years old and parts are no longer available.

The second, Meter Number Six, which measures one-third of Princeton's flow, records 53 percent more flow for Princeton than it should.

Council member Richard Macgill said the Borough should pay up. If the other Authority partners sue, he pointed out, the Borough as a member of the Authority would have to pay, not only its own legal fees but one-fourth of the Authority's legal fees as well.

The problem, he continued, "is slovenly administration of the Authority — all four of the Authority members should be working on that." If the Borough paid and had paid too much, the money could be credited, he said.

Otherwise, the Borough taxpayer will be "royally disadvantaged" because of all the legal fees.

"Once payment is made," observed attorney Walter Bliss, "there is no reason for anyone to listen to us until next year."

Mr. Macgill's formal motion met a 2-2 tie which Mayor Sigmund promptly broke with a vote against the proposal and it died.

Peter Bearse then suggested the $50,000 payment and it passed.

The sewer billing situation is complicated, for both Borough and Township — and indeed for their Authority colleagues, West Windsor and South Brunswick — by the existence of several "agreements."

First, there is the service agreement, the only one that has been signed by all four members of the Authority. It has been working well for four years. A municipality's bill is due — if it owes money, and isn't getting a refund — March 1. If the bill hasn't been paid in 30 days, a 10 percent penalty is charged.

Second, there is the agreement signed late last year — but not by the Borough — to work out the unexpected problem of underbilling that had gone on for three years because the Authority had multiplied the readings from Meter Number Six by a factor of 100 instead of 1000.

This agreement included a repayment schedule. The first installment was paid at the end of last year. The second payment is due this month. Money not paid by March 31 will incur six percent interest.

Then, early this year, the Authority announced still another underbilling traceable solely to arithmetic errors.

A third agreement, agreed to by all but the Borough, was worked out to recognize these mistakes in arithmetic and is now making the rounds of the four Authority partners.

Mayor Pike proposed that a new paragraph be added to the third agreement: if meters proved inaccurate, financial adjustments would be made.

Mr. Bliss, the Borough's attorney, thinks the second agreement of last fall was wiped out by the third agreement and is no longer relevant. He also thinks the third agreement is a completely new agreement because of Mayor Pike's paragraph.

He believes it is vital for the four parties to negotiate, and he also thinks the Borough must be willing to go to court.

If you're unwilling to go to court and everyone knows that, he says, it simply negates any negotiations from the start.

The Borough does not want to pay bills based on meters certified as inaccurate. If the other municipalities go to court, how can they prove what the Borough owes them, based on the evidence of the CFM report?

That's where the Borough stands.

SCHOOL IS 'MODEL'

West Windsor-Plainsboro. West Windsor-Plainsboro High School has been cited as "a model of effective schooling practices" by the Northwest Regional Educational Laboratory. It is one of six schools nationwide to be chosen by the research organization.

The profile, published by NWREL, notes high test scores, "high standards of excellence developed in response to high parental expectations of students," few discipline problems, strict attendance requirements and student awards in choir, band and sports.

Principal Ronald Watson said the school was recommended to NWREL by Research for Better Schools, a Philadelphia-based research organization.

Sarah Glinka, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Glinka of Walnut Lane, has been initiated into Omicron Delta Kappa, a national honor society for student leadership at the American University in Washington, D.C.

Ms. Glinka is a senior in the College of Business Administration and expects to graduate in May.

Lawrence W. Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Nicholas Miller of 60 Brookstone Drive, has been awarded a Certificate of Merit as a finalist in the Merit Scholarship competition.

Lawrence, a member of the current senior class at Princeton Day School, attends Reed College in Portland, Oregon, as a freshman.

J.M. Korobow, 305 Forrestal Village, Building 2, is one of six New Jersey cardplayers who will receive state championship medals from the American Contract Bridge League for his success in 1983 contract bridge tournaments. He is ranked as Advanced Senior Master for having achieved 158 points.

Lynette E. Campbell, daughter of Floyd and Consuelo Campbell, 105 Leigh Avenue, has completed her studies toward the M.Ed degree at Antioch/New England Graduate School in Keene, N.H., where she concentrated on the administration and supervision of human service organizations.

Miss Campbell held the position of assistant director of financial management and administration with the South Arsenal Neighborhood Development Corporation in Hartford, Conn. She has moved to Detroit, Mich., where she plans to continue her studies at the University of Michigan.

Denise Calaprice of 42 Valley Road, a student at Princeton High School, was third place winner in the Fourth Annual Physics Competition at Seton Hall University. She received $50 in the competition in which some 125 high school students from 32 schools took part.

Princeton High School won a Commodore 64 computer, presented to the school with the highest average, computed on the basis of its three highest scorers other than the first, second or third place winners. Anthony Curtis, Kelvin Chu and Sarah Bolton were the high scorers from Princeton.

Hubert N. Alyea, professor emeritus of chemistry at Princeton University, will receive the 1984 Priestley Award at Dickinson College on Thursday.

Dr. Alyea will deliver a lecture on "The Spirit of Research in Teaching," following the presentation of the award by Dickinson College President Samuel A. Banks. The Priestley Award is given annually at Dickinson to a scientist. The award commemorates Joseph Priestley, who was noted for the discovery of oxygen.

Although Prof. Alyea, now 80, retired from Princeton in 1972, he has not been idle. He has been a visiting lecturer in 80 foreign countries including one-month intensive workshops given in Thailand, Greece, Russia, Africa, India, Mexico and Taiwan. He estimates that he has delivered over 5,000 lectures since retiring.

Princeton Regional School HIGHLIGHTS

Highlights is a column compiled and prepared by the Parent Teacher Organization of the Princeton Regional Schools.

Awards, guest speakers, and field trips have enriched the students of Princeton High School in recent weeks.

Awards

The PHS Jazz Band, under the direction of Tony Biancosino, won the national trophy at the Berklee Jazz Festival on March 10. Students George Fox and Marcus Blevecker received scholarships of five hundred dollars for their excellence in performance.

Dan Caspy, Kathryn Crafton, Sam Zimmerman, and Sandy Huffaker received recognition in the art competition sponsored by the PTO. Their drawings have been reproduced on note paper which is now for sale as a fund raising project of the PTO.

At the Rider Drama Festival, Susan Huffaker and John Russo, students of Carol Wimberg, won awards for excellence in acting.

Theodore Bradford, Monika Gorniewicz, David Taylor, and Kieran Williams, students of Dr. Victoria Ellis, scored above the ninetieth percentile on the National German Examination. This qualifies the students for an all-expense-paid trip to Germany.

Lisa Schkolnick, student of Ronald Gendaszek, was awarded a gold medal in the Olympiada of spoken Russian sponsored by the New Jersey Area of the American Council of Teachers of Russian. Lisa is now eligible to compete on the regional level for one of the seven places on the American Olympiada team which will go to the Soviet Union in June.

In the March competition of the New Jersey Science League, the Chemistry I, Biology I and II, and Physics teams placed first. The Chemistry II team placed second.

Guests and Guest Speakers

Madame Betty Veyret and 15 students from Arachon, France, are visiting PHS until April 6 as part of the French Exchange. During their stay, the students will be hosted by area families and will visit the surrounding historic areas, New York, Philadelphia, and the Amish country.

Dr. Lawrence Danson, professor of English at Princeton University, recently addressed the English classes of Catherine Campbell. Dr. Danson, author of "The Harmonies of the Merchant of Venice," discussed the various aspects of "The Merchant of Venice" with the class.

The History classes of Jeffrey Lucker were enriched by two guest speakers. Professor John Waterbury, political scientist of Princeton University, spoke on the Iran-Iraq war. John Baker, a naval reserve officer on the New Jersey, presented slides of his recent experiences on the ship.

Careers in science was the subject of an address by Dr. James Miller, Chairperson of the Biology Department of the Delaware Valley College, to the biology classes of Cherry Sprague.

Field Trips

Katy Crafton, Sam Zimmerman, Doug Shanefield, Gail Ellis, Ken Beer, Dan McDonough, Carmen deBoer, Felicity Taylor, Ricky Miller, and Lara Lomer attended the architectural career day sponsored by the Hillier Group.

The literary contributions of Gretchen Bohach, Wendy Crites, Jessica Danielson, Jenny Howarth, Alana Jeydel, Julie Kyle, John Lysaker, Heather McFarlane, Marni Rice, Lindsay Smith, Josh Teweles, Gillian White, Gwyneth Young, and Cindy Haag have been selected for publication in the 1984 edition of Aspirations, published by Mercer County Community College. The students will attend a workshop and reception during the week of May 7.

Advanced Biology students of Cherry Sprague visited the Mutter Museum in Philadelphia. At the museum, associated with the College of Physicians, the students viewed the unique collection of anatomical parts, physicians' instruments, medical curiosities and memorabilia.

PSE&G hosted the Chemistry classes of Dr. Issam Taha recently. At the Maplewood facility, the students observed chemical testing equipment research in energy conservation.

Twenty-five members of the French Club enjoyed a dinner at the home of Abby Tate on March 10. After the dinner, the students viewed the film, "Cousin, Cousine."

In conjunction with the study of "Rosencrantz and Guildenstern Are Dead," by Tom Stoppard, the students of Carol Wimberg and Jane Jacobs attended another Stoppard play, "The Real Thing," in New York.

PRINCETON REGIONAL SCHOOLS
OUR BUSINESS IS CHILDREN

Strong, caring teachers are the foundation of the Princeton Regional Schools. As the District's Long Range Plan Advisory Committee has explored the decades ahead, the importance of this foundation has been underlined repeatedly. A changing society characterized by dramatic technological innovation will require flexibility, originality, and growth from its teachers. Fortunately, Princeton's staff is greeting the future with a positive and energetic spirit.

Computers have been welcomed to Princeton with enthusiasm. The High School and Middle School were among the first in the State to introduce computer literacy for all students, and now the elementary schools lead the State in the introduction of LOGO, a programming language designed by MIT for young children. Unlike many school systems, Princeton has not been content to stop at computer literacy. Students may elect advanced programming courses at High School and computer applications are being integrated into the regular curriculum. The success of this effort can be directly tied to the willingness of teachers to embrace new methods and new experiences.

The positive attitude of teachers is supported by the systematic review of programs, the commitment of time and resources to long-range planning, and the resolve of the schools to stay in the vanguard of educational practice. A major goal of the schools is to nurture the growth of thoughtful, questioning individuals who are equipped to meet the complex challenges that lie ahead; and programs are carefully selected or revised with that goal in mind. Decision-making, problem-solving, and higher level thinking skills are valued and frequently stressed.

Advancement of excellence depends upon the continued support of fine teaching. The District searches exhaustively to identify superior teachers to fill vacancies, and it invests substantially in the development of teachers already employed. Training programs and opportunities for professional growth are essential elements in a plan of education for the 80's and beyond. The Princeton Regional Schools are preparing for the future with confidence and enthusiasm.

THINGS YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT THE BUDGET

There are two important constraints on the school budget. "Cap" legislation defines the allowable increase in per pupil expenditures. Princeton's cap is well below the State average and well below the rate of inflation. Declining enrollment further jeopardizes budget flexibility as rising overhead costs threaten to infringe upon funds designated for programs.

The budget presented to the voters on April 3 has received careful review by the Board. Six public hearings were held.

The budget reflects a total increase of 3.1 percent over last year's budget. The projected increase in taxes for 1984-85 is 2.8 percent which is the smallest increase in the last seven years.

Washington Road through the hill down to Lake Carnegie.

John was the youngest of five children — an older sister, Eva, and three older brothers, Grover, Walter and Elmer. The family moved from the foot of Bayard Lane to Mt. Lucas Road and then became the tenant farmer on Priest's farm on Mountain Avenue, better known in recent years as the Knox property.

Mr. Servis remembers throwing the snow off his blanket when he got up in the morning — a comment on how well the windows on the old farmhouse fit — and calling down to his mother to see if the kitchen stove was going well enough for him to come downstairs and get dressed.

David Servis was just getting started acquiring his own stock and farm tools when he died — probably of a burst appendix, his son thinks — about 1907. His father was taken over to Elm Road by carriage and then by trolley to St. Francis Hospital, there being no hospital in Princeton.

Life changed abruptly for his mother, a young woman in her early 30s with five children to support. Long before social security, food stamps and welfare, she had to sell the stock, move out of the farm and find work at the University emptying slop jars. In search of a better rent, the family lived on just about every street in Irishtown — as the John-Witherspoon area was then known.

Help from the Children. The five Servis children helped put bread on the table. His sister became a telephone operator for the telephone company — smoke coming out of the great at that time in a building locomotive where the English shop is now.

His brothers went into construction. For a nickel, being Servis went through seventh the smallest, John Servis grade at the Nassau Street would take a feather duster elementary school and then he and keep the flies off the knew it was time to learn a horses at Snedeker's trade. He became an apprenBlacksmith Shop on Hulfish tice to Harry Brown at $4 a Street. Or for 10 cents a day, 60 week, six days a week. Park Place, Madison, and Moore, all before school.

Sometimes, after finishing his own route, he substituted for another fellow out around Bayard Lane, Cleveland Lane and Hodge Road. That's how he met Woodrow Wilson, who asked him to come in and get warm one snowy day.

Having been around horses he could earn $1.25 a week at age 13 or 14 working at Brown's Livery Stable — where the Nassau Inn Greenhouse is today. Wrapping the horse's blanket around himself to keep warm, he drove the buggy out to the Junction to meet the Owl coming out of New York at 1 or 2 a.m. He'd have to stand by the horse's head to keep it from shying at the sparks and smoke coming out of the great

Time to Learn a Trade. John Servis went through seventh grade at the Nassau Street school and then he began learning the blacksmith trade. He became an apprentice to Harry Brown at $4 a week. The scale back then was $1 an hour, he says, for a 44-hour week, which some said was a "fabulous wage" — it would never go higher.

"Good Old Days." For Mr. Servis the good old days really are the period before the Depression when he was in his teens and early 20s and so was the century. He remembers collecting chestnuts and picking blackberries up along Mt. Lucas Road and diving off the trestles of the Alexander Street bridge into the canal on hot summer days. The big event of the year, talked about long before and after, was the annual Thanksgiving football rivalry between Irishtown and Downtown — the region east of Vandeventer Avenue.

His heroes were the Princeton University football players, and he would stand on his porch at 58 Williams Street and watch them go by to the athletic fields where the Engineering Quadrangle is today. He and his friends would boost each other up over the fence into the practice field and scoot under the stands — until they were discovered and shown the gate, only to repeat the whole routine.

He remembers how everyone crowded into Alexander Hall on the eve of a football game to hear coach Bill Roper give one of his famous pep talks. Reunions today, he says, are nothing compared to what they were then, when the whole town would be involved for almost a week. The John P. Servis Co. put in the temporary electricity for tents that were everywhere — more numerous it would seem than today's array.

On Friday night the town would gather on overturned peach baskets across the street from Nassau Hall to watch and listen as class after class marched behind its own band up the street and on the campus for an impromptu concert, before giving way to the next class.

Although born into a Methodist family (the old, stucco Methodist Church, not the new one that is there now), Mr. Servis seized the chance to sing in the Trinity Church Choir — an important activity in his life from 1910-1913. "Name me a street and I can tell you a choir boy who lived on it," he says, proud to show his long linear photograph of the choir ranged in pairs and by height like robed animals entering the Ark.

donfield, for instance, and supplying the electricity for what may have been the first computer in the world — at the Institute for Advanced Study.

Mr. Servis retired gradually, turning the shop over to his son completely in 1967. He remembers that when his shop was at Bellows he could pay 10 men with one half of what his son had to pay one man a week. The scale back then was $1 an hour, he says, for a 44-hour week, which some said was a "fabulous wage" — it would never go higher.

"Good Old Days." For Mr. Servis the good old days really are the period before the Depression when he was in his teens and early 20s and so was the century. He remembers collecting chestnuts and picking blackberries up along Mt. Lucas Road and diving off the trestles of the Alexander Street bridge into the canal on hot summer days. The big event of the year, talked about long before and after, was the annual Thanksgiving football rivalry between Irishtown and Downtown — the region east of Vandeventer Avenue.

His heroes were the Princeton University football players, and he would stand on his porch at 58 Williams Street and watch them go by to the athletic fields where the Engineering Quadrangle is today. He and his friends would boost each other up over the fence into the practice field and scoot under the stands — until they were discovered and shown the gate, only to repeat the whole routine.

ting gas fixtures to electric in homes on the west end of town.

Later Mr. Servis worked as a journeyman electrician for J.P. Kelly in Trenton, "a marvelous guy, a fair and good man," before returning to Princeton and setting up his own shop in 1923. He began in what is now known as the Bellows building — one of four businesses under that roof at the time. After he built his own home at 30 Harrison Street in 1930, the business was conducted out of his side porch and garage.

Electricity was a novelty and the industry in its infancy. The motto at John P. Servis Electrical Contractor was "For Electrical Service, Call Servis." Before long he had 10 or 12 people working for him and was doing wiring for most of what architect Rolf Bauhan designed and Matthews Construction Co. built. That included the mansion of Thomas Dignan ("football player — married a Ward, not Montgomery-Ward, the baking family") that is now the centerpiece of Our Lady of Princeton and most of the big brick houses on upper Edgerstoune Road, on Lafayette Road, and North Road.

His work included institutional buildings — the Hun School gym that now belongs to the Seminary, Joline Hall, the University Store, the Graduate College quadrangle, the Institute for Advanced Study Library, and a group of houses on Frog Hollow donated by Dean Mathey.

After World War II, when his son, John E. Servis, a Cornell University graduate in hotel management, got out of the Coast Guard and joined him, the John P. Servis Co. did commercial work as well: wiring Woolworth's in Princeton, Trenton and Had-

Cuyler, Dick Cuyler, Harry Farr, James Farr, Albert Baker Hollenbeck (named for Trinity's longtime Dr. Baker). That the Trinity Church Choir was paid was undoubtedly an attraction, but it also had a baseball team and went for two weeks to a camp on the Metedeconk River.

Later, Mr. Servis played first baseman on the town team that was a prime source of recreation of a summer evening for townspeople who would loyally follow the team to engagements from Hopewell to Pt. Pleasant and Bradley Beach. "I'm the only survivor of the 25-30 guys who played town baseball," he says.

Mr. Servis knew his wife, Edith, who died in 1977 at the age of 77, from the time they were both in 5th grade at the Nassau Street School. She was the daughter of John Cooper, an ornamental plasterer who came to this country in 1905 with an English masonry company to work at the University.

John P. Servis is third generation Princeton — his grandfather, William Pittinger Servis, from whom he gets his middle name, was born here of a Seminary family. William was totally blind, and never saw any of his children, Mr. Servis says. Nevertheless he walked all over Princeton and would stand at the corner of Williams and Charlton Streets selling peanuts and knowing the change from the feel of the coins.

There is a fifth generation now, his son Jack's boy John Perry Servis, a Cornell graduate now in law school. Mr. Servis had a daughter, Edith, named for his wife, who died in infancy.

He is amazed at the changes that have taken place in his lifetime — the streetcar, the automobile, the telephone and electricity. Central heating and the refrigerator. Pictures coming through the air!

"It seems like it would have taken two, three, four hundred years for all those changes," he remarks. "I don't see how this country developed to the stage it has in this short a time. I think I've lived through the most interesting time of our nation."

FINAL CONFRONTATION: Monique Muri (left) and Gwyneth Jones, teammates on the 1980 Princeton High girls lacrosse team, went on to compete against each other during the past four years as college players. Last week, they played their final game against each other when Swarthmore defeated Johns Hopkins, 11-7. Jones, co-captain and leading scorer for Swarthmore, scored seven goals, while Muri, also a co-captain, had three for Johns Hopkins.

BUSINESS

CHANGE IN NAME

For Law Firm. More than 300 guests attended a reception last week sponsored by the law firm of McCarthy and Schatzman at the Hyatt Regency Hotel.

The affair was a joint celebration of St. Patrick's Day and the addition of another McCarthy to the long established Princeton law office.

A part of the Princeton area since its establishment in 1927 by John F. McCarthy Sr., the firm has been located on Charlton Street for three generations of McCarthys. Last November it became known as McCarthy and Schatzman with the addition of Richard Schatzman to the firm name. Mr. Schatzman had been affiliated with the firm for 14 years and specializes in real estate law.

In January, Kevin E. McCarthy, formerly a prosecutor with the Manhattan District Attorney's Office, joined the firm. He is the fourth McCarthy to practice law on Charlton Street.

CELEBRATING CHANGE IN FIRM NAME are, from left, Richard Schatzman, Michael A. Spero, F. Patrick Mcmanimon, John F. McCarthy III and John F. McCarthy Jr. They are members of the law firm McCarthy and Schatzman.

The firm has offices in Princeton and Plainsboro. It recently conducted a real estate law seminar attended by more than 100 sales people and real estate brokers. In addition to specializing in real estate, McCarthy and Schatzman concentrates on banking, litigation, estate planning and business law.

OPENS BROKERAGE

In Auto Leasing. Logan A. Pemberton has opened the "Engage-A-Car" brokerage firm. The company will lease new cars, vans and light trucks — foreign and domestic — to individuals and firms.

According to Mr. Pemberton, Engage-A-Car differs from other programs in that it combines the best features of both open and closed-end leasing and then introduces many additional benefits. The end result is that the consumer is able to obtain the exact vehicle he or she wants with lower monthly payments.

Engage-A-Car has a protection plan option, for instance, which offers clients the opportunity of pocketing the profit if, at the end of the "engagement" period, the used car market is up. On the other hand, if the market is down, the client can simply exercise his option to return the car and walk away.

Mr. Pemberton was born in Princeton, received a B.S. from Rutgers University and a master's degree in business administration from Fairleigh Dickinson University. Active in community affairs, he is Commander of the American Legion Post 218 and has been serving on the Witherspoon Jackson Development Corporation board for the past three yeas.

A brochure on the Engage-A-Car program is available to the public on request. Copies may be obtained without cost by writing to Logan A. Pemberton, R.D. 4, Box 520, Princeton 08540, or by calling (201) 297-4686.

BRIEFINGS AVAILABLE

On Third World Countries. Informational services for internationally oriented companies are being offered to the Princeton business community by Inter Link Associates. The firm located at 406 Rosedale Road now includes some of the training facilities previously offered at its Language and Training center at Guilford College, Greensboro, N.C.

Inter-link arranges background briefings, workshops and seminars to familiarize employees and their families with countries of the Third World to which they have been assigned. In addition, foreign employees and visitors arriving in the Princeton area can be introduced to the American scene, its language, social customs and working habits.

With more than 20 years of experience in the international human relations field, Inter-link welcomes questions in regard to dealing with two or more cultures. John W. Bing, Ph.D. is vice president for training. The phone number is 921-0557.

FIRM JOINS NETWORK

In Real Estate. Richard A. Weidel Company has joined the Real Estate Information Network, a computerized property information exchange network known by its acronym, REINET.

The network is operated by the National Association of Realtors and serves nearly 600 brokerage companies by satellite. According to Richard A. Weidel, president, once entered on REINET, property description can be reviewed within minutes by brokers in the same city, in the next state or across the country. In 1984 subscribers to REINET will also be able to market property internationally, he said.

FIRM IS CITED

For Relocation Efforts. John T. Henderson Realtors has been cited for outstanding service in home sales to relocating families, primarily corporate transferees, in this area.

John T. Henderson, Jr., president, has received a plaque honoring the real estate firm for its achievement. Formal recognition of the honor will occur at the next RELO conference to be held in New Orleans, La. The award cites the firm as a member of the "RELO Multi-Million Dollar Referral Sales Club."

As a RELO member, Henderson Realtors helped for the past 20 years, has been with Audrey Short for 12 years. She was a multi-million dollar sales agent in 1983. She specializes in residential real estate.

Ms. Willard, a veteran of 11 years in real estate in the Greater Princeton area, specializes in land and residential real estate. She is a Montgomery Township resident. Ms. Gilvarg, a Princeton resident, has been with Audrey Short for five years and specializes in residential sales and listings.

Ms. Hill, a Princeton resident and new to the real estate profession last year, has earned the sobriquet, "Rookie of the Year," with more than $1 million in residential sales for the year.

William O. Dahn of Henry Horowitz and Associates, architects at 134 Nassau Street, has been promoted to associate.

Mr. Dahn joined the firm two years ago and is currently project manager for a 21-story office building in Fort Lee.

Joseph Noval of John T. Henderson Realtors led sales in 1983 in the Pennington office with more than $2 million in closed transactions.

Mr. Noval has been marketing residential, commercial, farm and investment properties with Henderson for five years and is currently pursuing his broker's license. He is a former professor at Temple University Medical School and is currently associated with the University of Pennsylvania Medical Center.

Philip S. Lansky, M.D. has joined the staff of the Princeton Whole Life Institute as its first medical doctor. Dr. Lansky practices family medicine and specializes in pain and stress management. He will divide his practice between the Whole Life Institute and his Philadelphia office.

The Institute offers counseling, hypnotherapy and several other therapies in a clinical setting. With the additional services of Dr. Lansky, the Institute will provide diagnostic services, acupuncture, biofeedback, nutritional and herbal therapies. The phone number is 452-0830.

Thomas W. Gillespie

INAUGURATION HEAD

For Seminary President. Dr. Thomas W. Gillespie was inaugurated as the fifth president of Princeton Theological Seminary this Wednesday in a service at the Princeton University Chapel.

Formerly pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Burlingame, Calif., Dr. Gillespie began his responsibilities as leader of the country's largest Presbyterian theological seminary in September. Delegates from more than 200 colleges, universities, and theological seminaries represented their institutions in the academic procession beginning at 2 p.m. Overseas delegates attended from the University of Edinburgh, the University of Glasgow, the University of Basel, Tainan Theological Seminary in Taiwan, and the Presbyterian College in Seoul.

Presiding at the service were John M. Templeton, president of the Seminary's board of trustees, and J. Randolph Taylor, moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). James I. McCord, former president of the Seminary and now chancellor of the Center of Theological Inquiry in Princeton, gave the charge to the new president.

Dr. Gillespie responded with his inaugural address, "The Seminary as Servant." Music for the service was provided by the Seminary choirs and the Westminster Choir from Westminster Choir College.

Special guests at the ceremony included Dr. Jan Milic Lochman, professor of systematic theology at the University of Basel, and Dr. Thomas W. Torrance, professor of Christian dogmatics, emeritus, of New College, Edinburgh. Both delivered inaugural week lectures at the Seminary. Dr. Torrance addressed "The Concept of Order in Theology and Science" on Tuesday and Dr. Lochman spoke on "Zeal for Truth and Tolerance: Spiritual Presuppositions of Christian Ministry" preceding the service of inauguration Wednesday.

He is also scheduled to lecture Thursday at 10:45 a.m. on "The Remission of Sins: The Common Denominator of the Christian Life."

Other participants in the inauguration included the Rev. Nancy J. Lammers, associate pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Burlingame; Carol M. Gregg, moderator of the Seminary Student Government Association; Dr. James H. Costen, president of the Interdenominational Theological Center in Atlanta; Dr. Bruce M. Metzger, professor of New Testament Language and Literature, Princeton Seminary; Dr. David B. Watermulder, vice-president of the Seminary's Board of Trustees; and Dr. T. Hartley Hall, president of Union Theological Seminary in Richmond, Va.

Earlier in the day a service of worship was held in Miller Chapel on the Seminary campus. The Rev. J. Randolph Taylor, representing the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), the denomination with which Princeton Seminary is affiliated, preached the sermon.

Princeton Theological Seminary was established in 1812 by the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church to provide a school for the training of Presbyterian clergy. It has had five presidents in its history: Francis Landey Patton, J. Ross Stevenson, John A. Mackay, James I. McCord, and Thomas W. Gillespie.

JOINT CELEBRATION SET

Of Passover. Members of Congregation Beth Chaim will host a mock Seder for the members of the Dutch Neck Presbyterian Church in West Windsor, on Sunday, April 8 between 12 and 1 p.m.

Helping to officiate at the Seder, which celebrates the beginning of Passover, will be Rev. Floyd Churn and Rabbi Eric Wisnia. The traditional Passover Seder plate containing a roasted shankbone, roasted egg, moror, charoses, matzos and karpas will be explained, and the story of Passover will be told.

Passover is the celebration of the exodus of the Jews, led by Moses, from the land of Egypt. A light luncheon will be served. For further information, call Congregation Beth Chaim at 799-9401.

BULLETIN NOTES

The noon Mass this Sunday, St. Anthony of Padua Church, Hightstown, will be celebrated for separated and divorced Catholics. Father Frank Santitoro, pastor, will be the celebrant.

Coffee and doughnuts will be served in the Parish Center immediately following the Mass. Separated and divorced Catholics in the area are invited to attend. For further information call Barbara Keller, 780-1297, or Pat Cleaves, 921-6863.

Some 100 members of the Princeton congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses were among 1,300 who attended a two-day seminar in Buckingham, Pa. They heard a talk entitled, "Why Submit to God's Rulership Now." A highlight of the seminar was the baptism of 11 new members from the Central New Jersey area.

The Westminster Chapel Choir will conduct the Vesper Service at Kingston United Methodist Church on Sunday at 4.

Located on Church Street in Kingston, the church welcomes the public and will serve refreshments immediately following Vespers. The service will include sacred music from various musical periods with an emphasis on contemporary American church composers.

The First Baptist Church will present A&T Gospel Chorus from Greensboro, N.C. on Sunday, April 8, at 7 at the John Witherspoon School, Walnut Lane.

The donation is $5. Tickets may be purchased in advance. For further information call 883-8051.

LET'S TALK ABOUT

SPRING TONICS FOR YOUR TREES AND SHRUBS with Sam DeTuro

Woodwinds Associates

A large proportion of your trees and shrubs problems can be traced right back to the roots. Root diseases cannot be completely avoided, but with a little knowledge of the causes and some common sense, a lot of trouble can be averted. Some of your trees problems can arise from improper planting -jamming the roots into too small a space, planting too deeply, which smothers the plant and planting it too shallow, which allows the roots to be frozen in winter and cooked in summer.

If you are planning on putting in some new plants this spring, or if you are seeing a decline in your existing trees, remember a few simple safeguards to avoid problems in the future.

Select good healthy stock and plant it with care, avoiding root injury when handling it, and do use good soil at the planting site. Insure good adequate drainage and be sure to water sufficiently during dry periods. Most importantly, be sure to have your trees and shrubs fed regularly. This will help in assuring you of keeping your garden at its peak of health and vigor.

WOODWINDS (924-3500) is happy to answer any questions you may have concerning your garden ... please call us.

OBITUARIES

Lewis C. Kleinhans, manufacturer, corporate executive and Princeton resident for 60 years, died suddenly March 25 at his residence at the Nassau Club. He was 79.

Mr. Kleinhans was born in Newark, graduated from Montclair Academy, the Lawrenceville School and Princeton University, Class of 1925, where he earned a bachelor of arts degree in history. He remained active in university and class affairs and served as president of the Class of 1925 from 1965-70.

After graduation he joined a family-owned firm, Keratol Company, manufacturer of artificial leathers. While there, he worked closely with Hercules Powder Company in the development of wood celulose to replace cotton liners in the nitration process. He joined Hercules during World War II and was assistant general manager in the construction and operation of the New River Ordinance Works in Pulaski, Va.

In 1942 he was transferred to Kansas as assistant general manager for the construction and operation of Sunflower Ordinance Works, at that time the only rocket facility in the country and the largest powder plant built.

After the War, Mr. Kleinhans remained with Hercules as regional manager with an office in New York City until 1947 when he became president, chief executive officer and part owner of Standard Insulation Company of East Rutherford. He held that post until 1958. After retirement he served as president of Corroplast Corp. in Passaic and Drew Chemical Company of New York City.

In retirement, Mr. Kleinhans was an active investor and consultant. He was instrumental in the founding of the International and Comparative Law Center of the Southwestern Legal Foundation in Dallas, Tex.

Mr. Kleinhans was a member of the Princeton University Graduate Council; a member and director of the National Association of Manufacturers; a member of the Society of Plastics Industry and the American Ordinance Association. He was a director of a number of corporations. He was a member of the Canadian Club, Metropolitan Club and Princeton Club of New York City, and of Pretty Brook Tennis Club, Springdale Golf Club and the Nassau Club in Princeton.

Survivors include his son, Lewis C. Kleinhans III of Norwich, Vt., and New York City; two daughters, Mrs. Francis E. Gilverton of Rumson and Mrs. Geoffrey C. Murphy of Wilmette, Ill., and nine grandchildren. He is also survived by a brother, Richard E. Kleinhans of South Norwalk, Conn.

Wilfred Hall, 94, of State Road, died March 22 at the Merwick Unit of Princeton Medical Center.

Born in Penarth, Wales, Mr. Hall came to the United States in 1904. He lived in Brooklyn, N.Y., for many years before moving to Princeton 10 years ago. He retired in 1960 after 30 years with Andrews Co. Exporters-Importers of New York. He was manager of the firm's Brazil-South America Division.

He was an Army veteran of World War I and a member of the Joyce Kilmer American Legion Post No. 55.

Husband of the late Jane B. Hall, he is survived by a son, John B. Hall of Dover, a daughter, Ruth J. Wulff of Princeton; three grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

The service was held at the Mather-Hodge Funeral Home, the Rev. Cynthia A. Jarvis of Nassau Presbyterian Church officiating. Burial was in Kensico Cemetery, Valhalla, N.Y. Memorial contributions may be made to the Hospice Program at Princeton Medical Center.

Florence D. Hillman Miller, 92, of Pennington, died March 23 at the Lawrenceville Nursing Home.

Born in Camden, Mrs. Miller had lived in Pennington for more than 65 years. A graduate of Rider Moore Business School, she was employed in the accounting department of Sterns Department Store in Trenton before her retirement. She was a member of the First Presbyterian Church of Pennington.

Widow of Benjamin C. Hillman and Winfield S. Miller, she is survived by two sons, Benjamin C. Hillman Jr. and Richard D. Hillman, both of Hopewell Township; and two grandsons, Barry L. Hillman of Montclair and Richard D. Hillman Jr. of Avon, Colo.

The service was scheduled to be held this Wednesday at 10 a.m. at the Blackwell Memorial Home, 21 North Main Street, Pennington, with burial in Ewing Cemetery. Contributions may be made to the Pennington First Aid Squad, Bromel Place, Pennington.

Mary E. Cornew, 84, of Lawrenceville, died March 24 at home.

Born in Lawrenceville, Miss Cornew was a lifelong area resident. She was retired from the Verbeyst Cleaners of Princeton.

Daughter of the late Alfred W. and Mary White Cornew, she is survived by a niece and a nephew, Mary E. Haas and John E. Cornew Jr., both of Lawrenceville.

Mass of Christian Burial was celebrated in St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church. Burial was in St. Mary's Cemetery, Hamilton.

Joseph N. Applegate, 90, of Hopewell, died March 24 at Connelly Memorial Hospital in Hamilton. Born in Jobstown, Mr. Applegate had lived in Hopewell for 30 years.

Husband of the late Mabel C. Applegate, he is survived by two daughters, Marie Braddock of Lanka Harbor and Gertrude Parks of Pennington; a son, Earl C. Applegate of Greenwich, Conn.; three grandchildren, nine great-grandchildren and five great-great-grandchildren.

A graveside service was held at Crosswicks Cemetery.

R. Merton Probasco, 61, of 70 Lillie Street, Princeton Junction, died March 26 in Mahneman Hospital, Philadelphia.

Mr. Probasco was born in Allentown and had lived in West Windsor Township for 37 years. He worked in the purchasing department of EMR Photo-Electric in Princeton Junction. Many years ago he was a self-employed farmer. He was a member, elder and former Sunday School teacher at First Presbyterian Church of Dutch Neck.

He is survived by his wife, Elizabeth Oldis Probasco; two daughters, Grace Weil of Painted Post, N.Y., and Susan Glein of Brockton, Mass.; a son, Richard M. Probasco in submarine service with the U.S. Navy; a sister, Janet Mundus of East Hampton, N.Y.; and four grandchildren.

The service was held in the First Presbyterian Church of Dutch Neck, the Rev. Floyd W. Churn, pastor, officiating. Burial was in Ewing Cemetery. Arrangements are under the direction of the Kimble Funeral Home.

Memorial contributions may be made to the First Presbyterian Church of Dutch Neck, South Mill Road, Princeton Junction, or to Twin First Aid and Rescue Squad, Everett drive, Princeton Junction 08550.

Kingston Acres II

$128,900 & up

Yes, after five years of planning and developing KINGSTON ACRES II has arrived. And it was worth the wait.

A limited edition of just fourteen outstanding colonial houses, KINGSTON ACRES II has begun construction and two models have been completed for your inspection.

Basically, the houses are expanded, oversized models with proven floor plans to delight the most discerning family. Large entry foyers are just the beginning with tremendous living rooms and formal dining rooms. Enormous eat-in kitchens are standard, too. The family room is available with brick fireplace and wooden panelling if desired. Large 2-car garage, of course. And don't forget the tiled powder room.

Upstairs you'll find four super bedrooms and two full baths. The master suite is especially oversized with many extras.

Please make it a point to visit KINGSTON ACRES II. We're open for inspection from 10:30 to 6:00 on weekdays and 11:00 to 4:00 on weekends. Closed Tuesday.

BLENDED WITH TASTE

to make a happy mixture of contemporary and traditional in Princeton's lovely Edgerstoune! Wonderful new glass enclosed, Jerry Ford designed kitchen – breakfast room and deck overlooking private grounds made even more so by "The Mall." Modernized living room, large dining room, both with track lighting, opening to cozy sitting room. Master suite with dressing room-study, and state of the arts bath, 3 other bedrooms and 2½ baths, plus an oversized recreation room for all kinds of activities. Everywhere there is imaginative use of built-ins, fabulous closets and storage areas. In fact, too much to describe in a small ad - so come see for yourself! A delightful new listing priced at $325,000 and all of downtown Princeton, we offer an expansive frame house with large living and entertaining areas and numerous bedrooms and baths. Set on almost an acre, this new listing on Bayard Lane has a location well worth exploring for its many future potentials and present possibilities. Call for further information.

WITHIN WALKING DISTANCE OF PALMER SQUARE

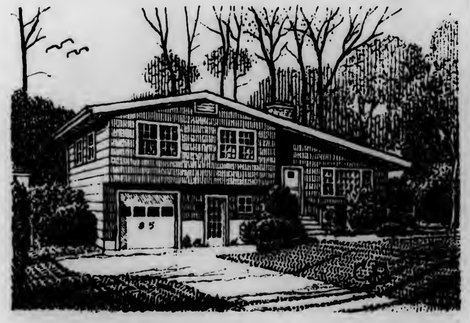
A LOT OF HOUSE FOR YOUR MONEY

and a pretty one, too! Situated on about ¾ acres near the Province Hill area of Lawrence Township, it's just minutes from downtown Princeton. Attractive living room with fireplace, dining room with pine wainscotting, cozy panelled study or den. Four bedrooms, 1½ baths, screened porch overlooking flagstone terrace and pretty grounds. Solidly built by Houghton, with plaster walls, and of course, oak floors.
Newly listed at $159,500



BIG, BEAUTIFUL AND BUILT

to last! Here, on a heavily wooded 2½ acre lot in Princeton's Western township, this brick and stucco house is wonderful for a large and active family. Lovely living room with bow window and fireplace, formal dining room with chair rail, gourmet kitchen with both Jennair range and magic chef stove, tiled floor, breakfast area and play space for small fry, raised fireplace opening also to the adjoining step-down recreation room. All this overlooks a beautifully landscaped private patio and pool. There are 6 bedrooms, 3½ baths, a panelled library with yet another fireplace - space galore!

Add new carpeting in the master bedroom and the whole second floor, step saving central vacuum and central air, plaster walls and excellent storage space -

Could anyone ask for more?

ONE OF A KIND - Post modernist architect designed residence, 6 plus wooded acres. Light, airy, air conditioned and energy conserving. 4 bedrooms, 3 baths, separate office or guest house. $450,000

WONDERFUL PRINCETON AREA, beautifully landscaped and manicured grounds, attractive 3 bedroom, 2 bath contemporary split level. Cathedral ceilings in living and dining areas, family room, study. A find for someone! $174,500

RIDGEVIEW ROAD

Spring, Summer, Fall and Winter - all seasons are beautiful when viewed from every room of this dramatic contemporary house. On four plus acres in northwestern Princeton Township, it seems to offer the seclusion of much more acreage. Spacious living room with fireplace and two walls of glass, dining room, bright kitchen, screened porch, two bedrooms and bath on main level. Family room, two bedrooms and bath on lower level. $335,000

CONSTITUTION HILL

Once a large Princeton estate with the master house appropriately called the Morgan Mansion. Now the Mansion retains its elegance but is sharing its gracious rooms, formal gardens and spacious grounds with a limited number of fortunate people. Handsome one, two and three bedroom brick houses with garages are available with flexible floor plans, condominium ownership. From $238,000

DODDS LANE

Two fireplaces is but one of the custom details that make this wonderful family house of special interest. Located in Princeton Township, a short walk from the lake and the bus line, it offers - living room with fireplace, formal dining room, sunny eat-in kitchen, family room with fireplace, laundry and lavatory on first floor. Five bedrooms and two baths on second. Finished basement. $240,000

PRETTY BROOK ROAD

Spring has officially arrived and soon will bring this delightful road in western Princeton to its full beauty. The natural woodland and rippling brook create a rural scene yet it is near town. Rarely is a house available here so this one is of special interest. Gracious living areas overlooking beautiful grounds, four bedrooms, two full baths and two half baths. $315,000

ROLLING HILL ROAD

Distinctly different, this contemporary in the prestigious area of the Bedens Brook Country Club offers the best of modern living. The cedar siding blends well with the wooded setting of three and one-half acres of "Greenacres" behind it. The living room is enhanced by a cathedral ceiling, beams and a fireplace. A second fireplace graces the family room adjoining the kitchen which would delight the heart of any cook while letting her share in the family's activities. One bedroom and bath are on the first floor. Three others and two baths on the second. $325,000

STUART ROAD

Nature's woodland, huge boulders and the rolling countryside make a perfect setting for a limited number of contemporary houses on this picturesque road in Princeton Township. With seclusion assured by the required acreage, this unique hillside home also overlooks a running brook and acres of parkland, beautiful when snow covered or when the dogwoods bloom. Weathered cedar siding, glass walls, two fireplaces and outside decks, add interest to the dramatic living areas, four bedrooms, three baths and family room. $349,000

NEWSPAPER REPORTER

Town Topics will have a position open on its editorial staff for a full-time reporter, beginning June 1. Duties include the editing of news releases, coverage of meetings and events, and developing and writing feature stories.

A keen interest in Princeton, the surrounding area, and the events shaping its future is the first prerequisite. A solid background in writing is a must—previous newspaper experience and the ability to use a computer terminal would be helpful, but not essential.

Benefits include annual vacation and participation in profit-sharing plan.

Please send a complete resume, plus samples of your writing to Donald C. Stuart, III, Town Topics, P.O. Box 664, Princeton, NJ 08540. Interviews with qualified candidates will be scheduled, beginning in early April.

RELO: World Leader In Relocation

Interest Increases in School Board Elections In Response to Support of Candidate by CASE

A school board race which seemed placid took on sudden life last week after one of the two Borough contestants said she was running as a candidate of CASE, the Citizens for American System Education sponsored by Lyndon H. LaRouche's right-wing National Democratic Policy Committee (no connection to the Democratic Party).

The candidate, Tatiana Ermalaev, emphasized this week that "it's quite a tenuous connection and I don't want to get involved with their political stuff at all.

"I, personally, am not political and am not a political activist. I am a professional educator and my campaign is strictly along educational lines. I want people to know I have had no help from CASE — this is my biggest concern."

Mrs. Ermalaev, who taught Russian at Princeton University from 1974 until last year, holds a doctorate in Slavic languages and literatures from the University of California at Berkeley, where she also received her undergraduate degree. She taught Russian in summer sessions at the University of Indiana and spent one academic year there. She is a native of Latvia and came to this country in 1950.

Ideal Curriculum. She said last week that CASE's "classical core," with almost no electives, seemed to her an ideal curriculum.

"The CASE people convinced me I should run and helped me get the signatures on my petition, but I have had only one telephone call from them, simply asking me, 'How are you doing?' They have offered me no financial aid and I would never ask for it.

"This is my own campaign. As a teacher, I have seen problems and I didn't know exactly how I could help and this seemed like a chance to serve the community, something I could contribute personally. I want to help — not just stand there as a reformer.

"We have a very good curriculum, but in my view it certainly could be improved."

She feels American curricula are "fragmented," Mrs. Ermalaev said, giving as an example, an elementary school unit on Africa or Latin America and then only "bits and pieces of geography" afterwards. Although American and British literature are taught, she continued, World Literature is an elective.

Greek and Latin Roots. "Where are the roots of American and British literature?" she asked. "They go back to Greek and Latin, but because World Literature is an elective, many students may never even get it."

She added, "We don't differ much in our views, my opponent and I. Everything we have could be made better; we could make better the excellent curriculum we already have. I want everyone to know that I realize Princeton is one of the best systems in the country."

Corrine Kyle, running against Mrs. Ermalaev, expressed regret that there will be no PTO-League of Women Voters forum this year.

"I wish I could speak with my opponent face to face, so that she could have a chance to answer," Mrs. Kyle said.

Important Issue Raised. "Her candidacy raises a very important issue, more important than the difference between us on demonstrated commitment to the schools and community involvement.

"The issue is intellectual independence and community control of the educational system. Mrs. Ermalaev was recruited by CASE, which is headed by Lyndon LaRouche who is expressly interested in a broad partisan agenda not limited to the educational system."

There is "an enormous distinction," Mrs. Kyle stated, between looking over and evaluating the ideas of others and relating them to Princeton, and "a prepackaged agenda developed by an outside group, which is part of a broad political agenda."

Mrs. Kyle said she did not think Mrs. Ermalaev had ever attended a school board meeting, and questioned whether she understands all the things a board does. She cited review of plans for loading and unloading buses at Community Park, for tighter control over safety.

"There are important matters that need to be done, far removed from stimulating discussions on educational theory."

Local Control Important. In her view, Mrs. Kyle said, Mrs. Ermalaev "puts a low value on intellectual independence and local control of educational matters."

Pointing to last year's election, in which only nine percent of Borough voters voted, Mrs. Kyle said "the town needs to be more sensitive. We've been almost complacent in leaving board matters to a small segment of interested parents.

Details of CASE's curriculum are "irrelevant," she said. "It's somebody else's curriculum, and explicitly part of a broader political agenda."

Mrs. Kyle is manager of the social science research group at The Gallup Organization.

3 Township Candidates. Voters in the Township will chose two school board members from a slate of three: Hugh Brandt, Harry Levine and Sharon Muzyk. Mr. Levine is running for his second three-year term. Mr. Brandt was appointed five months ago to fill out the term of Dale Madden and Mrs. Muzyk is running for the second time.

In his second Town Topics interview, Mr. Brandt emphasized his belief that "there are no simple answers to the problem of declining enrollment."

"The Long Range plan sug-

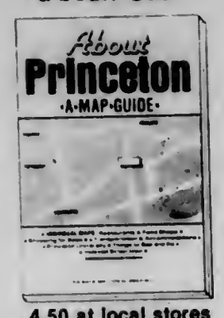
Candidates Asked Views on Appeal Of Ivan-Murray Case to Supreme Court

All the candidates were asked their views about the school board's decision to seek a ruling from the New Jersey Supreme Court on the case of teachers Lawrence Ivan and Thomas Murray. Mr. Ivan and Mr. Murray, protesting their transfer from Princeton High School's physical education department to other schools, took their case to court. They have won in the Appellate Division of Superior Court and the school board has decided to ask the Supreme Court for a ruling.

"I am very sorry for everyone concerned that this has gotten as far as it has," said board member Hugh Brandt. "There are very broad, precedent-setting issues involved and this is why we must go forward. But I have real concern for Larry and Tom and what they've gone through."



"It would be out of order to ask either side not to carry through its right of appeal," was the statement of board member Harry Levine. "Yes, there is extra expense involved, but I believe it is a justifiable action on the part of the board."

Mrs. Muzyk, Mrs. Ermalaev and Mrs. Kyle declined to comment. All of them said that, because they are not on the board, they do not feel they have enough information to form an opinion.

Community Players Mount Adequate But Poorly Paced Production of 'Equus'

The Princeton Community Players have mounted "Equus" as their third production this season, running in Trenton's Mill Hill Playhouse due to what we hope is only a temporary lack of a theatre in Princeton. As those who saw the show during its long run on Broadway will undoubtedly remember, Peter Shaffer's play about a teenage boy who blinds six horses with a metal spike is an intense and gripping tour de force about religion, sex, and the give and take of a relationship between a troubled psychiatrist and his disturbed patient.

It is, in a way, a psychological thriller, deriving its tension and suspense from the slow unfolding of the boy's internalized code of worship, interwoven with the psychiatrist's growing sense that the malaise from which he is suffering is more than just "professional menopause."

Clearly, this is an ambitious project for any theatre group, and particularly an amateur one. Thus it is no surprise that the Players' production — under the direction of Ralph Siegel — falls off in various areas; what is perhaps more surprising is that it manages to come off at all.

The main problem with this production is pacing: "Equus" is a long play, and rather than proceeding at a gallop here, the show sometimes slows to a walk, but more often trots or canters along — which makes for less than riveting viewing. The creaky junctures between scenes, due for the most part to technical difficulties, are perhaps most to blame for this. But whatever the cause, the discrepancy between Shaffer's taut writing and this somewhat baggy production is unfortunate.

The cast is basically adequate but brilliant only in rare moments — in a play that calls for bravura performances, at least from the two leads. Joseph O'Laughlin is quite good as the crazed boy, pulling off some very

Lovers of the English Language Will Delight In Intime's Revival of "The Cocktail Party"

When T.S. Eliot's comedy in blank verse, "The Cocktail Party," opened in New York in 1950, its backers hoped it would be a "succes d'estime," favorably received by critics and intelligentsia. The critics were divided but the public wasn't, and to the surprise of many it ran for a solid year with more than 400 performances.

That audiences can be drawn to a literate play of ideas, rather than of action, is demonstrated anew at Theatre Intime's current revival of "The Cocktail Party." I have rarely sat among an audience as completely absorbed as last Friday's in Murray Theatre. Eliot's language often requires close attention, but this audience was eager, not listless, quick to laugh at civilized wit, and bursting at the end into the kind of applause that wanted the too reluctant actors to come back for more than a single curtain call.

At a cocktail party in Edward Chamberlayne's London flat, three of those present are beset by troubled relationships with others in the group. A fourth, Edward's wife Lavinia, is deliberately absent from the party. Two other guests, though above the emotional battles, still are closely concerned about some of the tangled ones. One guest, a stranger to most of the others, later proves to be the instrument that changes the direction of four lives.

The seven characters are all sharply individualized. Here is a pattern whose gradual unraveling is the play. It is rather fascinating to watch it happen.

For lovers of language Eliot's style is a bonus. Its quality offers a change from the everyday American most of us hear and speak all day long. This is a welcome change, even though at times the words slide past our ears too quickly to savor all of them. When Celia Coplestone tells her host, "I am not sure, Edward, that I understand you," an appreciative but friendly chuckle was audible out front.

Meg Patterson, the director, has done several nice things for the production. She has chosen actors one can easily warm to. And she has taken an American cast and made them comfortable as Britishers. They speak London English, and there is no sense of straining to get it right. Furthermore each of them seems to thoroughly understand, hence to live, his character. They are consistent, they are vigorous, and they are all different.

Confident strength issues from Ray H. McCard, who plays Sir Henry Harcourt-Reilly, psychiatrist. The complexities of his clients' problems and their projected cures need to be made clear. He does this admirably, at the same time emerging as a likable if not always faultless practitioner.

Eleanor Moseley is altogether splendid as Lavinia Chamberlayne. Much is said about her by the others before she appears; she makes an unheralded entrance, however, and at once — very quietly — is perceived as the most important person in the room. Contrasted with her, Janis Martinson's Celia is young, unsophisticated, earnest. She is more genuinely modest than any of the others, yet turns out to be the strongest in the end.

Heidi Tinsman is a delight as Julia Shuttlethwaite. By turns gabby, flighty, impractical, behind these superficialities she hides a scheming mind and warm compassion.

Robert Brink, with a long, bearded face and a twinkle in his eyes, is refreshingly uncomplicated as Alexander Gibbs. Brian Jennings, as young Peter Quilpe, seems to overdo his nervous manner in the beginning, but it is exactly right for his moving scene in the last act. Least convincing of the men is Michael Kohler in the challenging part of the middle-aging Edward. His movements are too youthfully brisk. He is better in the later scenes where he has accepted the station of a middle-aged husband.

Daniel Renn's satisfactorily solid set owes something to an assist from McCarter Theatre. A program note states that the doorways and woodwork were originally designed by David Potts for the McCarter production of "Ah, Wilderness." McCarter's friendly expertise is evident also in the high quality of the costuming by Linn M. Vercheski and the lighting by Douglas B. Lidz.

"The Cocktail Party" will play four performances this week, Thursday through Sunday, at 8 p.m. For ticket reservations the box office number is 452-4950.

dramatic moments without sinking into melodrama. But Churchill Clark is more convincing at his mental detective work when treating his patient than when trying to express his own anguish at leading a life without passion, with no worship at its core. Part of the problem here is that the doctor's confidante, the magistrate who saves the boy from prison and brings him to the hospital for proper psychiatric care, lacks credibility as played by Lelia Matthews. We can't believe the doctor would confide in such a narrow-visioned woman (who doesn't seem to be listening to him, anyway), and we can't understand their relationship. This has the effect of undermining the psychiatrist's entire confession.

In the supporting roles, June Connerton plays the boy's mother with feeling; Felisa Tibbitts is nice and perky as Jill (who does not actually bare her breasts in this production); Poli Cappiello is the rather stern nurse; Mark Donnelly is the angry stable-owner; and Millon Koosman is the all-too-human father.

Although the play is set in England, all of the characters speak with American accents — with the exception of the doctor when he mocks his Scottish wife. The decision to eschew English accents makes sense in terms of ease and skill, but I couldn't help missing them, as playwright Shaffer so clearly intended them to help define his characters in terms of education, class and social level, as accents are wont to do in England.

Another decision made by Director Ralph Siegel which I also question was to seat the audience on three sides of his projecting stage — despite the fact that the actors play primarily to the center audience, as in a conventional production. Siegel is also responsible for the uncomfortably minimalist set design as well as the quite effective and dramatic lighting.

Finally, one can't write about "Equus" without mentioning the horses. In this production they are played convincingly by David Neumann and by two professional mimes, Sandra David and Michael Joyce, wearing elaborate horses' heads made of twisted wire, which they twitch and flicker most appropriately while stomping an occasional foot or resting with one knee bent.

"Equus" continues at the Mill Hill Playhouse in Trenton throughout this weekend.

AND TONIGHT ...

'This Evening's Performance.' First, Nagle Jackson's play was a staged reading in the 1982 Playwrights-at-McCarter series; then a Stage Two production in 1983; now, in 1984, it's on McCarter's main stage, opening this Friday after two evenings of previews, and booked through April 15.

The set for "At This Evening's Performance" keeps the illusion, evoked so successfully last year on the small 185 Nassau stage, that the actors in Mr. Jackson's comedy-drama are performing in a smallish grade-B theatre. Elizabeth Fischer has redesigned the set with false walls and sides that black out the true size of McCarter's proscenium. Dressing-rooms are on motorized runners and can move upstage to reveal the stage-within-a-stage that plays a vital part in the goings-on "At This Evening's Performance."

'SOPHIE'S CHOICE'

In Kresge, William Styron's novel, "Sophie's Choice," in the film adaptation by Alan Pakula, will be shown in Kresge Auditorium, Washington Road, next Monday through Wednesday at 7 and 9:45 each evening. It's part of the Movies-from-McCarter series.

In a Brooklyn boarding house in 1947, three people — an aspiring Southern novelist, a Polish-Catholic survivor of Auschwitz and her Jewish lover — become involved in a poignant tale of double suspense and power. Meryl Streep won an Oscar for her Sophie. Peter MacNicol and Kevin Kline portray the two men.

'DON'T BOTHER ME...'

At Crossroads, Crossroads, the theatre of black professional actors, will end its 1983-84 season with the musical "Don't Bother Me I Can't Cope" by Micki Grant and Vinnette Carroll. It will open Friday, April 6, closing May 27. The theatre is at 320 Memorial Parkway, New Brunswick.

Originally produced by Urban Arts Corps Theatre in New York (1972), "Cope" won the Obie Award for Best Musical and the Outer Critics Award. It's a musical revue combining gospel, ballad, rock and calypso, all under the direction of Rick Khan, executive director of Crossroads.

Curtain is at 8 Wednesdays through Fridays, 4 and 8:30 Saturdays and 3 on Sundays. Reservations may be made between noon and 6 daily except Mondays at 201-249-5560.

Encore, Shoestring

Due to popular demand, as the saying goes, the Shoestring Players will give an additional show of their original material this Saturday at the Art People Place, Witherspoon Street. It will be at 2:30.

There are two other performances that day — one at 10 a.m. and the other at 1. Tickets for any of the three are $5 and may be bought at the door, or at the box-office of McCarter Theatre which is joining the Arts Council of Princeton to present the Shoestringers.

They are appearing as part of the ongoing Crackerjacks series for children sponsored by the theatre and the Council.

Founded "on a shoestring" by a Rutgers University professor, the troupe consists of Rutgers students.

MUSIC

VIOLINIST TO PLAY

With Little Orchestra. Violinist Yfrah Neaman will appear with The Little Orchestra of Princeton in the final subscription concert of its "Season of Celebrities and Premieres" on Sunday, April 8, at 3 in the Princeton High School Auditorium.

Yfrah Neaman

Mr. Neaman will travel to this country to perform the official U.S. premiere of English composer Michael Blake Watkins' new Violin Concerto, which has already been heard on the B.B.C. and in several European countries.

Yfrah Neaman, one of Britain's most distinguished violinists, has led a busy concert life as a violinist of international repute and his foreign tours have taken him to five continents. He has a wide and varied repertoire and is known particularly as an eloquent champion of living composers, many of whom have written works especially for him. He is the artistic director of the Carl Flesch International Violin Competition.

Harpist Andre Tarantiles will be featured in the Sacred and Profane Dances of Debussy. Mr. Tarantiles has performed as soloist at Avery Fisher hall, Carnegie Recital Hall, The Garden State Arts Center, on the PBS Television Network for the 1979 "Obie" Awards, and as recitalist throughout the United States. His appearances with noted conductors include Aaron Copland, Sergiu Commissiona, and Gerard Schwartz.

Jayn Rosenfeld will play the flute solo in the slow movement of Haydn's Symphony No. 24 in D Major. The conductor is Portia Sonnenfeld.

Tickets at $6 (seniors $4, students $2) are available at the Princeton University Store, the Music Cellar, and the Princeton Arts Council. Telephone reservations may be made by calling 921-2879 or 452-1365 or by mail to The Little Orchestra, 1 Westcott Road.

TO CLOSE WITH HANDEL

And Many Soloists. The Princeton Society of Musical Amateurs will gather Sunday at 4 at the Unitarian Church to sing through Handel's "Israel in Egypt." This is the closing session of the 1983-84 season.

Walter Nollner, professor of Music and director of the Glee Club at Princeton University, will conduct the oratorio with chorus, soloists, and full orchestra. The soloists will be Ann Ackley, first soprano; Cynthia Lake, second soprano, Mary Wescott, alto; Jeffrey Stamm, tenor; Rand Hix, first bass; Allen Crowell, second bass.

Anyone interested in choral singing is welcome to participate. These "sings" given by the Musical Amateurs are not performances. Auditions are not required for the chorus, but a modest sight-reading ability is helpful.

There is a charge for non-members to cover the cost of refreshments and music. For further information call Mrs. Ramus at 924-4266.

STUDENT TO PLAY

On Campus. Princeton University junior, Thomas Hornyak, pianist, will give a concert on Sunday at 3 in the McAlpin Rehearsal Room at Woolworth Center, on the University campus. Sponsored by the Friends of Music, the recital is free.

A native of Michigan, Mr. Hornyak performed the Saint-Saens Piano Concerto No. 2 with the Toledo Youth Orchestra, in his junior year in high school. At Princeton, he is the pianist for the Princeton University Orchestra and played the harpsichord continuo for the Princeton University Opera Theatre's production of "Cosi fan tutte" last December. He is a member of the Princeton Footnotes singing group and a resident adviser for Wilson College.

A music major, Mr. Hornyak is currently studying piano with Sylvia Nichols.

The program will be Bach's English Suite No. 2 in A Minor; Beethoven's Sonata No. 31 in A Flat Major, Opus 110; Schubert's "Moments Musicaux," Opus 94 and Ballade No. 4 in F Minor, Opus 52 by Chopin.

RECITAL PLANNED

By Baritone. Westminster Choir College faculty member Alan Seale will give a recital in Bristol Chapel at the Choir College on Saturday at 7.

Mr. Seale, a baritone, will be accompanied by pianist Steven Blier. The program will include "Liederkreis," Op. 39 of Robert Schumann, and songs by Faure, Wolf, Poulenc and Paul Bowles.

A graduate of Westminster, Mr. Seale has been a full-time member of the voice faculty since 1980, teaching both male and female students at both undergraduate and graduate levels of study. He is also instructor in voice at The New School for the Arts in Montclair, maintains a private voice studio in Princeton, and is organist and choirmaster at Allentown, N.J., Presbyterian Church.

Pianist Steven Blier has studied at Yale and the Juilliard School. He has been a member of the artist faculty at Aspen and is now a member of the artist faculty at Chautauqua, N.Y., School of Music. He has played in recitals for Evelyn Lear, Catherine Malfitano, David Holloway, and Alan Titus.

TWO RECITALS SET

By Conservatory Faculty. The Westminster Conservatory of Music will present two solo faculty recitals this weekend. Ena Bronstein pianist, will perform music by Bach, Liszt, and Schumann Saturday at 7 in the Playhouse. Junko Ota, violinist, will present a program of sonatas for violin and piano, by Bach, Brahms, and Grieg Sunday at 2, also in the Playhouse. Ms. Ota will be accompanied by Phyllis A. Lehrer, head of the Westminster Choir College piano faculty.

Ms. Branstein has had a world-wide performance career as a recitalist, duo-pianist, and soloist with orchestra. A native of Chile, she made her South American debut in 1958, touring her native country and winning a national competition which enabled her to travel, in 1959, to New York to study with Claudio Arrau. Her 1961 New York debut was received with outstanding reviews.

Ms. Ota, a prolific performer, made her Carnegie Hall debut in 1961. She has appeared as soloist with orchestra, as chamber musician, and as solo recitalist.

Junko Ota

Ena Bronstein

A native of Japan, Ms. Ota studied in Japan, was a featured artist on radio, and appeared in recitals and chamber concerts and as a soloist with various orchestras. As the First Prize Winner of the Japan Cultural Broadcasting Music Prize, she was awarded a full scholarship to study at the Juilliard School with Dorothy DeLay and Felix Galimir.

Ms. Ota received her Master of Fine Arts Degree from Rutgers University where she studied composition with Robert Moevs. She has played with the Piedmont Chamber Orchestra and the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra, and has given numerous recitals throughout the eastern states and the New York Metropolitan area. She is currently a member of the New York City Opera Orchestra.

Phyllis Alpert Lehrer has performed throughout the United States as soloist, accompanist, and chamber player.

For more information call 921-7104.

SYMPHONY IN CONCERT

At War Memorial. The New Jersey Symphony Orchestra will perform music by Mahler, Mendelssohn and Dvorak on Saturday, April 7, at 8:30 in the Trenton War Memorial auditorium.

Jorge Mester, music director of the Aspen Music Festival and head of conducting at the Juilliard School of Music, will lead the orchestra in Mahler's First Symphony, Mendelssohn's Piano Concerto No. 1 and Dvorak's Carnival Overture. Pianist Joseph Kalichstein, a New Jersey resident, will be the featured soloist in the Mendelssohn work.

Jorge Mester is a frequent guest conductor in Europe, South America, Australia and the Far East. He has conducted such U.S. orchestras as the Baltimore, Boston, Cincinnati, Houston, Philadelphia and Pittsburg.

Since winning the Leventritt Award in 1969, Mr. Kalichstein has appeared with such prominent conductors as Daniel Barenboim, Pierre Boulez, Zubin Mehta, Andre Previn and George Szell. He has also developed a reputation as a leading recitalist and chamber musician and is a member of the Kalichstein-Laredo-Robinson Trio.

Tickets for the concert area available at $16.50, $13.50, $11.50 and $9.50, with student and senior rush tickets available one hour before performance at $6.50. Tickets may be purchased at the door, or in advance from the New Jersey Symphony box office, (201) 624-8203, or toll free in New Jersey, (800) 631-3407, Monday-Friday, 9-5. Charge orders are accepted by phone.

JEAN RITCHIE HERE

For Folk Society Concert. The Princeton Folk Music Society will present Jean Ritchie in a concert of traditional folk music on Friday, March 30, at 8 at the YM-YWCA on Paul Robeson Place.

Jean Ritchie, a folk singer whose clear soprano ballads have thrilled audiences for more than 25 years, feels young people are rediscovering the old Scottish, Irish, English and American ballads that she sang in her childhood in Viper, Ky. Miss Ritchie appears as a soloist, accompanying herself on the dulcimer.

A Phi Beta Kappa graduate of the University of Kentucky, Miss Ritchie has been both a teacher and a social worker, and still exudes a sense of mission in her concerts.

Admission is $5 for adults, $3.50 for students, $3 for Society members, $2 for children and senior citizens. There are no advance sales. For further information call 924-9143.

NEW COMPOSITIONS SET

For University Concert. Princeton University graduate students will present Friday, March 30, at 8:30 p.m. in the McAlpin Rehearsal Room on the University campus. Sponsored by the Friends of Music, admission is free.

Graduate student composers featured on the program are Adrian Carr, Beth Wiemann, Doug Henderson and Jody Rockmaker. In addition, "Clapping Music" by contemporary composer Steve Reich will be heard.

Performers include Dean Franke and John McGrosso, violins; Susan Chan, viola; Kathe Jarka, cello; Robert John, trumpet; Martin Butler and Adrian Carr, pianists; Evelyn Chan, soprano and Doug Henderson, solo guitar.

Composer Steve Reich is a graduate of the Juilliard School and in 1970 made a trip to Ghana to study African drumming. His music explores the potentialities of mixed media, electronics and ethnic resources.

ORCHESTRA FESTIVAL

Involving All Schools. Musicians from grades 4 through 12 will join forces on Wednesday, April 4, at 8 in the new gym at Princeton High School for a demonstration involving approximately 250 students.

All of the Princeton Regional Schools' string players will be joined by the PHS Choir and various wind and brass players from the middle school and high school orchestras. Portia Sonnenfeld, William Trego, Nancianne Parrella, Russell Hoffmann, Mark Zaki, and Barbara Huff have all been involved in preparations for the event.

After all of the groups have presented their musical selections, ranging from Vivaldi to Brahms, the combined 250 instrumentalists and singers will perform together, finishing with a simplified arrangement (for the sake of the beginners) of the "Ode to Joy" from Beethoven's ninth symphony. Everyone is invited to attend, and admission is free.

String players who are not currently enrolled in the school program are invited to participate. They should see their school's violin or cello teacher, or call Portia Sonnenfeld at 924-5600.

CELEBRATE EASTER

At the Country Mouse. Celebrate the Easter season and visit the Country Mouse where the whimsical world of teddy bears, miniature hand-carved animals, imported hand-painted eggs, woolly lambs, squeaking ducks, and characters from Mother Goose are all on parade. This tiny shop is owned by Cynthia Bittinger, who has a special talent for finding things of quality to charm her Princeton customers, and offers a vast selection of gifts, decorative arts, cards and invitations.

Harbingers of spring can be seen everywhere at the Country Mouse. Among the newest ideas to welcome the coming season is the "door hat," simple straw Easter bonnets reminiscent of the old fashioned leghorn complete with flowing pastel ribbons and dried flowers which can be worn or put on one's front door.

Baskets, one of the most effective and inexpensive decorations, are found in every nook and cranny of the shop. Handsome pastel ones in pink and aqua (large enough to carry an infant) will look wonderful with fresh greens or bunches of dried flowers at $28. Miniature baskets to fill with a few thoughtful goodies will bring cheer to friends and relatives and begin at only $2.75.

This year The Country Mouse will prepare ready-to-go Easter baskets for the Easter Bunny, filled with unusual little toys found only in this shop, imported chocolates and jelly beans beautifully wrapped in colorful paper.

There are a number of special gifts and thoughts to commemorate the joys of the season. Teddy bear mania has proved that stuffed animals are not just for children, although gifts for youngsters abound here. The American Bear Company continues to provide large plush bears of stunning quality and notable backgrounds such as: Kareem Abdul Jabear; Elvis Bearsley; Humphrey Beargart; Lauren Bearcall, and Muffy vanderBear who has joined her parents this year. Bunnies of all sizes, squeaky pigs in 100 percent wool, geese and ducks line the shelves of The Country Mouse. Bing Crosby's classic "Teddybear Picnic" book and record are available in the store.

Mrs. Bittinger always manages to find something special to put in her shop's window each season. This year a lifesize rocking lamb with tight wool curls greets the shopper, who will soon learn that Mother Goose is the theme this month.

Characters from Mother Goose rhymes such as "Hickory Dickory Dock" (a mouse running up the clock), and "Little Jack Horner" or "Old King Cole" are among the poems represented to delight the young and the young-at-heart. Handsomely illustrated books of Mother Goose rhymes are nice gifts. Geese of many sizes and shapes are on display including a selection of American folk art primitives, new arrivals at The Country Mouse.

The collector will be enchanted by a shepherd with three lambs trailing behind him, bunnies on wheels made from pieces of old quilts and several other one-of-a-kind treasures.

Many people enjoy having a tiny egg tree or one decorated with miniature wooden ornaments for their Easter tables. A good assortment of pastel candles will adorn spring tables as will the Danish paper cutout mobiles. This year primitive floor mats by Gloria Shattil are being featured at The Country Mouse, an excellent house gift or perhaps a wedding present.

Occasions of all kinds will be remembered with the fine assortment of cards, invitations, and blank notes available in the shop. Mrs. Bittinger finds it difficult to keep in stock the boxed notes by Caspari, and Marshal Sherman, only two of her many big sellers. Hundreds of art poster cards, and of course a wide array of Easter cards, including those by Judith Winslow of Princeton, are now on display.

Pinatas from Mexico, where the Easter holiday is seriously observed followed by amazing "fiestas," are a delightful way to entertain friends of all ages. They can be filled with imported chocolate eggs from Germany, or perhaps jelly beans, and broken at the end of the festivities.

The Country Mouse is a headquarters for the sticker-lovers in town who might stop in soon to guess how many jelly beans fill the jar, an annual contest. Stamp art is also popular among the younger set, good ideas for birthday gifts.

Men are just as frequent shoppers as women these days. A collection of Victorian jewelry, pretty glass beads which look like pearls, titanium earrings, clip-ons and pierced, and plain beads of onyx, garnet, mother of pearl, and jade will make special gifts for a favorite girl this spring.

The Country Mouse in Princeton has been so suc-

GROWTH ON THE VIDEO SCENE: Harold Haskel, owner of the Video Scene in Rocky Hill, has expanded his business extensively in the last year. In addition to his other disc and movie rental shop in the Clover Mall, he and his partner, Carol Smith look forward to opening three more stores in the near future. The shop features more than 1500 movie titles and 250 discs.

It's New to Us

cessful that Mrs. Bittinger and her husband, William, will open its counterpart, The Town Mouse, in the new Headquarters Plaza Mall in Morristown in early summer.

EXPANSION PLANNED

At Video Scene, Harold Haskel is clearly content with the growth of his business, The Video Scene, located in the Clover Mall on Quaker Road, and in the Village Shopper in Rocky Hill. He and his partner, Carol Smith, who does all of the now computerized accounts and paper work, are looking for three to five new locations for their video and disc rentals. The Clover Mall shop has recently been expanded by 60 percent!

"This is a hot business right now; in fact, it's a bonanza. Despite competition and the advent of cable, we continue to expand and are now offering more than 1500 movie titles and 250 discs for rental," says Mr. Haskel with enthusiasm. The Supreme Court decision and the advances in the technology of the video recorder have combined to make its use much more prevalent this year. Mr. Haskel believes that cable television will do little to decrease the use of the VCR because its owner can choose the time and the title of what he or she would like to see.

"To my mind it increases the quality of television watching for adults and children, whose programs can be monitored unlike cablevision," explains Mr. Haskel.

Equipment has become more sophisticated with improved sound and a sharper picture on a 25-inch screen, according to the Video Scene which sells top-quality VCRs, cameras, and furniture to house the machines. Stereo sound and big screen viewing have become more popular of late. The shop sold several models during the Christmas holidays when the VCR was cited as the single most-purchased gift of the season.

Prices seem to be dropping substantially, according to Mr. Haskel, who views the biggest breakthrough in the video camera area. The cameras are now lighter and smaller, the sound is better, development is immediate, one uses all parts of the film and can go back over what has been taken all at once.

"The home video camera can rival a commercial camera now. We even have one which will take movies in almost total darkness!" he continues.

The disc business is growing as well, with discs costing from $20 to $40.

Handsome compressed wood cabinets with vinyl coverings or all wood with a natural veneer have been designed with a more decorative view in mind, and can be ordered at the Video Scene.

Unique to this video store is the printed catalogue of movie rentals which is updated every two months. Club memberships can be much more reasonable. Fifty dollars annually entitles members to reserve films and discs with no limit on the number of films to be rented at one time for $2.50 each. Non-members may rent for $4 a day with a $50 deposit. Hours are Monday through Friday from noon to 8 p.m. and Saturdays from 10:30 to 5 p.m.

New arrivals include: War Games; Never Say Never; the original Heaven's Gate; Tender Mercies; and Tootsie.

"There's still time to cut your 1983 income tax!"

A timely reminder! You can still contribute to your Nassau Savings IRA, and save on your 1983 federal income tax. There's time until you file your tax return (April 15, 1984). Contributions are tax deductible and the interest earned is tax deferred until you start to withdraw funds from your IRA (between ages 59½ and 70½ when most people are in a lower tax bracket).

Reduce your income tax! If you are in the 25% tax bracket, for example, and contribute $1,000 to your IRA, you deduct the $1,000 on your federal tax form; your tax is reduced by $250. Your net IRA cost is $750. You keep the additional $250 of your hard-earned money.

You can still open an IRA for 1983 with as little as $10, or up to $2,000 ($2,250 if your spouse does not earn outside income). Anyone who is gainfully employed is eligible, even if covered by an employer pension plan.

For your passport to a more carefree retirement, develop the profitable IRA habit at the Nassau Savings nearest you. Follow up whenever you desire. There's no minimum deposit required. The younger you start the greater the tax savings, and the more you will have for a financially secure retirement.

PORTRAIT OF MRS. FINE: This photograph of Mrs. John V.A. Fine by Eileen Hohmuth is included in the exhibit "After 65 — A Celebration" in the Anne Reid Art Gallery at Princeton Day School. It will open April 6.

ART

'AFTER 65 ...'

Photo Exhibit at PDS. "After 65 — A Celebration," is the title of an exhibit of photographs and sculpture to open Friday, April 6 in the Anne Reid Art Gallery, Princeton Day School. It will remain through April 23. An opening reception, to which the public is invited, will be April 6 from 5:30 to 7:30.

The photographs are by Eileen Hohmuth, insructor in photography at PDS. They have been selected from a 1982 exhibit at the Franklin Institute Science Museum called "What About Aging?" Photographs show changes in the way older people see and hear, and the diversity of life styles among people in their later years.

Ms. Hohmuth exhibited in the New Jersey State Museum's 1979 Biennial Show, and last year, won a fellowship in photography from the New Jersey State Council on the Arts.

Painting 'Discovered'

Two paintings by Marian MacIntosh, one of which is in the Bainbridge House exhibit, were discovered in storage at the John Witherspoon Middle School, where they were taken after sale of the old Nassau Street Elementary School — Princeton University's 185 Nassau Street building — in 1966.

"The Skaters" and "Clam Diggers," by MacIntosh, were bought in 1937 by Helen Brearley, then principal of the school, and art teacher Edith Margerum. Children had contributed pennies, nickles and dimes toward their purchase and they hung in the auditorium.

Peg Lutz, a member of the committee researching the exhibit learned of the two paintings. Working with William Johnson, principal of the Middle School, the research committee uncovered both paintings. "The Skaters" was chosen to hang in the exhibit.

The three sculptors who are exhibiting, all from Princeton, have all continued to work after the age of 65.

They are Joseph Brown, 75, professional boxer who was boxing coach at Princeton University from 1937 to 1962 and instructor and resident sculptor at Princeton from 1939 to 1977; Dorothea Greenbaum, 91, who has retired as an active sculptor because of her almost total loss of sight, but who still exhibits, and Jane Teller, 73, who has been in over 50 solo and group shows here and abroad.

Professor Brown, known for his sculpture of athletes, has exhibited at Yale, as well as Princeton, at the National Academy of Arts and Letters, the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts and the New Jersey Pavilion at the 1964 World's Fair. His work is in permanent collections at the Kennedy Memorial Library and Madison Square Garden.

Mrs. Greenbaum was chosen in 1952 as sculpture representative for the United States delegation to the UNESCO International Conference on the Arts in Venice, and in 1963 was elected to the National Institute of Arts and Letters. Her sculptures are in the collections of the Whitney Museum of American Art, the Smithsonian Institution and the Philadelphia Museum. Her child with bird stands at the entry to the children's room of the Princeton public library.

Mrs. Teller has exhibited at the Whitney, the Museum of Modern Art, the Gallerie Claude Bernard in Paris and the American Embassy in Tokyo. She is represented in the permanent collections of Firestone Library, Princeton University, the Newark Museum and the Lehigh University Art Museum.

PRINCETON PAINTERS

From the '20s. The paintings of four artists who lived, painted and exhibited in Princeton in the 1920s are now on view at Bainbridge House, headquarters of the Historical Society of Princeton at 158 Nassau. They will remain through June.

"Painters in Princeton: the 1920s" features Howard Russell Butler, John Potter Cuyler, Marian T. MacIntosh and Marie Spaeth.

Butler, who died in 1934 at the age of 78, gave up his career as patent lawyer when he was 28 in order to devote his life to painting. Primarily a landscape artist and marine painter, he also did portraits as a way to supplement his income.

From 1911 until his death, he painted from his home at 107 Library Place. He won several exhibition medals and saw his works in the permanent collections of leading American museums.

John Potter Cuyler came to Princeton early in the century, working from homes at 34 Edgehill, 95 Library Place, "Mansgrove" and finally from a small studio at 19 University Place.

His drawings of friends and family, Princeton scenes and buildings were well accepted and regarded as "original and imaginative." His "Princeton Garden," which is hung in this exhibit, was shown in 1929 in the annual watercolor exhibit of the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts in Philadelphia. He died in 1939.

Marian T. MacIntosh moved to Princeton in 1920. Primarily a landscape painter interested in atmosphere, weather and time of day, she received the landscape prize of the National Association of Women Painters and Sculptors in 1927.

She exhibited at the Corcoran Gallery of Art, the Cincinnati Art Museum, the National Academy of Design and the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts. In Princeton, her studio was in a house behind her home at 291 Nassau.

With the Present Day Club, she established an annual exhibit of Princeton artists which was held yearly from 1922 to 1929.

A painter of flowers, landscapes and children's portraits, Marie Haughton Spaeth worked in a small building next to The Barracks on Edgehill Street, a house bought by the Spaeths in 1905.

She received considerable recognition in her lifetime and is represented in the collection of the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Art. She exhibited in the National Academy, the Brooklyn Museum, the Corcoran Gallery and the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts.

Bainbridge House is open from noon to 4 Tuesdays through Sundays. There is no admission charge.

EXHIBITS

Paintings by Princeton artist Sylvette de Aldrey-Krause will be shown from Sunday, April 8 (reception, 8 p.m.) through the month at the Jewish Community Center Gallery Lower Ferry Road, Ewing. Oils, acrylics and watercolors include surreal landscapes and abstract figurative designs.

Five Princeton artists — Joy Barth, Ilene Shabender, Richard Kaiser, Robin Gary Wood and Paula Bellando — are displaying their paintings at Art Masters Gallery, 44 Spring Street. Figurative bronze sculpture by Brad Bock is also on view.

HOPKINS TOO TOUGH

For Tigers in Lacrosse. The Princeton lacrosse team attended its annual clinic last Saturday, and came away with a 16-6 lesson from Johns Hopkins. It was the first home game for the Tigers, in three attempts; their record is now 1-2.

The Tigers at least want to be on the same field every year against the powerful Blue Jays, currently ranked number two in the nation behind Syracuse, in hopes that some of their excellence will rub off. A victory is too much to ask.

Since 1957, the Blue Jays have compiled a 26-1 mark against the Orange and Black. Princeton last beat them in 1966.

A large and appreciative crowd of 2,000, with Hopkins rooters in the majority, turned out on Finney Field to watch the contest on a pleasant afternoon. They did not see Princeton particularly overmatched, but the outcome in this one seemed assured very early. Never behind for a moment, Hopkins scored just three and a half minutes into the game, and soon had a 3-0 lead.

Rob Coughlin tallied Princeton's first goal, unassisted, at 8:22 of the first period, but the Blue Jays scored again and led 11-4 at the half. The home team played a strong third period, getting off 13 of its total of 21 shots. Credited with 29, Hopkins was not that far ahead in that department, but it made more of its count.

Third-year coach Jerry Schmidt, a Hopkins graduate, himself, lamented his players' inability to score. "We didn't shoot well, that's for sure," Schmidt said. "We made too many mistakes and you just can't have them and beat a team of Hopkins' caliber. We played really well in spots, but we made just so many errors."

If Schmidt was momentarily disappointed by the loss, he is optimistic about the future. "We got a super defense and we are not discouraged at all," he said. "We can play on a field with any team as long as we are playing real well. We've got to put 60 minutes together. Not just 30 good minutes and 30 poor ones.

"We schedule these tough teams because we want to play' em. There is no way we are expected to beat these teams, but we can. And we'll beat Navy next week."

Princeton will travel to Annapolis for that game this Saturday, and then meet Yale in the Ivy League opener here on April 7.

Ivy competition got underway last weekend with the two league favorites, Cornell and Penn, both winning. The Big Red knocked off Harvard in Cambridge, 10-5, while the Quakers also won on the road, beating Yale, 10-7.

ANOTHER TRY FRIDAY

For Baseball's Home Opener. Having tried twice and failed both times to play its home opener last week, Princeton's baseball team will try once more this Friday.

The Tigers and Swarthmore, originally scheduled to play last Friday will try again this week, beginning at 3 at Clarke Field. The Seton Hall contest has been rescheduled for April 26.

Spring may arrive on or about March 21 on the calendar, but the warmer weather associated with the season never seems to hit Princeton until several weeks later. March baseball at Clarke Field is always an "iffy" proposition, and this year is no exception.

Weather permitting Princeton was scheduled to play a road game against Drew Tuesday afternoon. This weekend it will begin play in the Eastern Intercollegiate Baseball League, meeting Columbia in New York on Saturday and Penn in Philadelphia Sunday for two games apiece. The EIBL includes the Ivy teams plus Army and Navy.

Looking to move the Orange and Black's 2-6-1 record closer to the .500 mark, coach Tom O'Connell will start freshman pitcher Art Peponis against Swarthmore for the first few innings. Ed Aulisi and Bill Beard will start against Columbia; Joe Pape and Peponis will go against Penn.

The leading Tiger hitters after the trip south are Dan Arendas at .440, and a pair of freshmen, Todd Tuckner, .419; and Drew Stratton, .361.

THE NET RESULT

PHS Tennis Strong Again. "If everyone stays healthy, we should be as strong or stronger than last year."

This pre-season assessment by Princeton High tennis coach Joe Diefenbach translates into another bleak year for opponents of the Little Tigers who open their season Monday against visiting Lawrence High.

How strong is strong as far as PHS is concerned? On the order of six-love. Last year PHS, led by its standout singles players Jacob Leschly, finished with a 21-2 record. Its only losses were to Lawrenceville School and to Holmdel in its final game in the NJSIAA Central Jersey Group 2 state championship game.

Those 21 victories were two more than the previous high of 19 posted in 1976, '77, and '79. Since taking over from Bill Humes in 1976 Deifenbach has compiled a 143-23 record. Since 1971, Princeton High has won 230 matches and lost 33.

Diefenbach bases his optimism about the coming season on the return of Jacob Leschly at the number one singles, sophomore Mark Leschly at number two and the emergence of freshman Bruce Ellis at number three.

Leschly, a senior this year, posted a 23-1 record last season. His only loss was a 6-4, 6-4 decision in the state competition to Dan Nahirny, who went on to become the N.J. singles champion and the one in sixth -- both of whom, rumor has it, are just as good as their older brothers.

HULSMAN TO PITCH

In PHS Nine Opener. Junior Gavin Hulsman will be on the mound when the Princeton High School baseball team opens its 17-game schedule Monday, playing host to Lawrence. The game will be played at Princeton's home field adjacent to the Valley Road School building and has a 3:45 starting time.

PHS coach Ed Beacham has nominated his number two pitcher, Jon Sherin, to start against visiting Trenton High when it comes here on Wednesday, April 4, for a 3:45 contest.

Beyond that, everything else remains a question mark

national 16 and under champion. "Leschly gave him the toughest match in the tournament," commented Diefenbach.

Mark Leschly was just as effective as his brother, winning 19 of 20 matches last year. Ellis surprised senior Rob Dunham (19-2 last year) with victories in pre-season competition.

Dunham, who like Leschly, will play for the Princeton University team next year, will join with senior Mark Elliott to form the number one doubles. Others from whom Diefenbach will form a second doubles include sophomore Deron Elliott, and junior Matthew Mack, both of whom played in a few matches last year, and from three other juniors: Nick Rudenstine, Brett VandeBovenkamp and Paul Johnson. Said Diefenbach, "They are all decent players."

CVC Champions Again? Last year the Little Tigers were undefeated in the Colonial Valley Conference League. This year, Diefenbach commented that Hopewell Valley High has a fine program and that West Windsor and Lawrence will be competitive. But, candidly, he added that he sees no reason why PHS shouldn't repeat as CVC champs.

And there is more bad news for opponents who think they may have seen the last of the Leschlys when Mark graduates in two years. There are two more on the way -- another in eighth grade and for the beleaguered Beacham who reported wearily over the weekend that his team has yet to practice on the field. The squad has tried to improvise by doing what drills it can in the leftfield corner of the field — the only dry area. "I haven't even had a chance to look at somebody," Beacham sighed.

Last week's scrimmage with Hillsboro was cancelled and has been rescheduled for this Wednesday. Beacham called it a key scrimmage because it offers the only chance for Hulsman to pitch before the opener.

The Little Tigers are also scheduled to meet Freehold Friday and Pennington School Saturday in two more pre-season tests. Beacham is counting heavily on the return of three experienced pitchers — Hulsman, Sherin and Dino DeAgelis — to try to improve on last year's 7-14 record.

Softball Opener Monday. Doug Snyder, starting his second year as coach of the Princeton High girls softball team, is hoping that a larger turnout and the return of pitcher Marcy Murray will bring the Little Tigers more wins this season.

The team will open its season Monday at 3:45 at the Community Park field against visiting Lawrence High. It second game will be against Nottingham the following Monday.

Other returning players Snyder will be counting on to make PHS more competitive this season — the team was 1-15 last year — will be senior shortstop Monica Greenland and second baseman Diana Schmidt, another senior.

Soccer to Begin

The spring season of the Princeton Soccer Association will begin this Saturday morning at the Washington Road fields and continue through May 26.

The League is open to any boy or girl in kindergarten through eighth grade. For more information call 921-0442.

Also important are senior infielder Martha Gilham and Tomi Morton, a sophomore outfielder. Freshman Wanda Heard will back up Murray on the mound.

PHS vs. Notre Dame. The PHS boys spring track team coached by Marc Anderson will open its season Tuesday when it travels to Notre Dame.

The squad will engage in its second of ten dual meets the following Tuesday in its home opener against Hightstown.

Girls Lacrosse, Too. Another PHS team that will open its spring season is the girls lacrosse team coached by Joyce Jones.

A squad numbering more than 100, including the junior varsity and freshmen teams, led by veterans Pam Jennings, Alison Fraker, Harper Hoff, Carol O'Donaghue, Erika Gabrielsen and Nadia Glucksberg, will entertain Columbia Tuesday at 4. The team will then be idle for 11 days before playing a strong Cherry Hill East team the following Saturday on one of the Princeton University fields.

PHS LACROSSE OUTLOOK

Too Early to Tell. The outlook for the Princeton High boys lacrosse team this year? With one scrimmage against the Princeton University jayvee team and with the opener against Bridgewater East next Wednesday at 4 a week away, second-year coach Pete Larsen says it is still too early to tell.

"We're hoping to win some games but we are a young club. We're going to need a lot of hustle and hard work," said Larsen.

One of the weaknesses on this year's team, according to Larsen, is that the Little Tigers are not very big physically. Some beefy players lost through graduation like Alec Hoke, Willie Whittaker, Ken Varvel and Matt Kinnan are going to be hard to replace, Larsen continued.

"We don't have any of what I call threatening players. We're going to have to finesse a lot on defense.

Larsen lost six starters from last year's 5-9 team, including three-year veteran Scott Gabrielsen, who was second in scoring with 40 points, and Whittaker, who was third with 37.

Back, however, is Chris Carrington, the leading scorer with 42 points and this year's co-captains Troy Norris and Peter Gager. Also back are juniors Keith Green, Tommy Sheehan, Jim Sharp, George Fox and senior David Schowalter.

Larsen said that he will have a better idea of who is going to start following scrimmages this week against Livingston, St. Joseph's and Columbia — the last on Saturday and a team described by Larsen as "real tough" and a good test.

He also has three freshmen and two juniors vying for the goalie position vacated by the departed Alex Taft.

Last year, the Little Tigers were inconsistent but they finished up strongly by crushing Boonton, 17-5, and outlasting Johnson Regional, 7-5, in their last two games.

"Not good enough; I had expected more," summed up Larsen at the end of the season. This year, he hopes he can finesse his team to a greater number of wins.

DILLON TITLES WON

By Blue Crew, Fellas. The Blue Crew capped its Cinderella tournament season by defeating the favored Nuggets, 30-25, last week in the Princeton Recreation Department's Dillon Basketball League finale. The Crew, who finished third during the regular season, had to defeat two top seeds to capture the championship.

The key to the Blue Crew's triumph was a man-to-man defense that denied the Nuggets' inside game. At the other end of the court, Jay Jackson continued to have an excellent tournament as he went inside to score a game-high 23 points.

Other standouts for the Blue Crew were Jason Plaks, Albert Raboteau and Harold Barnshaw. Roland Glover paced the losers with 13 points.

The Fellas, playing their best game of the year, combined excellent shot selection and defensive rebounding for a 55-46 victory over Phi Slamma Jamma.

Offensively, the Fellas shot better than 50 percent from the floor, put five players into the scoring column, and kept the Slamma defense from keying on any one player. When Fellas' center Tim Rumer (24 points) was not hitting jump shots, forwards David Gross and Brian Trelstad (15 and 10 points respectively) were consistently scoring. Guards Bill Byrne and Jacapo Massucato also contributed enough scoring to keep the Slamma guards from dropping off to help in the middle.

Darius Young, the Jammers all-star guard, led the losers' fast break with 12 points.

HUN LOOKS TO PITCHING

To Carry Team. As Hun baseball coach Bill McQuade starts his thirteenth season, he has to look at a lot of new faces as he strives to improve on last year's 13-8 record.

McQuade lost his four top hitters, his entire outfield and most of his speed -- the departed Paul Pintella and Martin Sumners accounting for 41 stolen bases between them.

"Pitching has got to carry us," said McQuade. While he confessed he doesn't think that he'll be able to replace the hitting he lost, the pitching "is the strongest since I've been here far and away. I've never had three starting pitchers before. It's a nice feeling," added McQuade.

Senior Richie Stout, 4-3 last year including that memorable perfect game against West Windsor, heads the mound staff. Sidelined half the season last year with a knee injury, Stout, reported McQuade, had a "super year" during the summer in the American Legion League where as a pitcher for Hamilton Post 313 he was named pitcher of the year. The Lafayette-bound Stout also batted over .300 near the end of the season last year and will see service at first base or as a designated hitter when not on the mound.

The second half of what McQuade calls his 1-2 punch is senior Pete Stam, who was 9-3 last spring. Between them, Stam and Stout were credited with all 13 Hun victories. A right hander like Stout, he also had a banner season in Legion ball, McQuade reported. He may wind up in the outfield when not pitching.

The team's third tri-captain (together with Stout and Stam) is catcher Barry Landis, a third year veteran behind the plate. A .270 hitter last year, Landis, McQuade feels, will improve in that department with a year's added strength but he is counting primarily on his "good defense. He's going to be the heart of this team and

The Volvo, for example, comes with a long list of standard equipment including air conditioning. Power windows and door locks. A sunroof. And an electrically-heated, orthopedically-designed driver's seat.

Of course, the 300D comes with an impressive list of standard features too.

But what makes the 300D so exceptional is not what it comes with, but what it goes for. More than twice the price of the Volvo.*

So if you're in the market for a roomy, well-equipped diesel that's built to last, you can spend a small fortune on a Mercedes.

Or you can make the much wiser purchase and buy a Volvo. Or two.

gested some ways to go," he explained, "but it's a tough issue. Our commitment must be to maintaining quality and as broad a program as possible.

"It's important to have a certain proportion of board members from the business community," he said. "I have business experience in cost-cutting, personnel and human development programs which can help the board."

He is vice-president of manufacturing for the J.L. Prescott Co., Passaic.

Better Communication. Like other candidates, Mr. Brandt said he wishes for better communication between board and community.

"I'm increasingly aware that the board needs more input from the community and needs to listen more to parents, PTO groups and the community as a whole.

"We must find ways we don't now have, for listening to the community."

Mr. Levine, who spoke last week of the "working style of the board," amplified that phrase this week.

"The board itself must embody the goals of the Long Range plan. A goal of education, in the Long Range Plan, is 'learning to co-operate.' We on the board must improve our style so that the system is more of a 'team' than a series of hierarchial levels."

He cited the teacher-administrator-superintendent-board ladder as an example.

Co-operation. "'Co-operation' must be district-wide, with the board implementing the Long Range plan through 'leadership by example.' The board should adopt the Long Range plan for its own activities and, by that example, get the system as a whole to follow the plan.

"For example, if we want drastic curriculum changes, we shouldn't demand them, but inquire whether change is appropriate — have a more open, co-operative attitude."

He suggested this might mean some re-structuring of the board, perhaps shifting to a task-force system, rather than continue with the present committee structure.

"If we want flexibility in our students, we must be flexible ourselves."

Mr. Levine is a real estate consultant and developer.

Solution-Oriented. Sharon Muzyk, whose campaigning has been curtailed because she is recovering from successful surgery, regards herself as "solution-oriented."

"The board must find answers," she states. "It's good to appoint citizens committees and a study is nice, but if you already know what the problems are, let's solve them — by-pass a study and find workable solutions.

"The Long Range plan is exciting to read — it's stimulating and sets a philosophical basis for education in this community. I like the plan because it's an educational philosophy, but we must now build the rest of the house."

Future finances are an issue, Mrs. Muzyk believes.

She sees 83 percent of the budget going to salaries and says, "Teachers deserve good salaries for good work, but there is very little left over, with problems ahead so long as the state thinks we're rich."

She praises board efforts in lobbying key politicians in Trenton for school funds. She points out that special education and bi-lingual education — two areas where Princeton was reduced — are easy for politicians to cut because special-ed. parents aren't organized, and the Hispanic vote is not significant.

Renting out school space helps, but she sees a future challenge if the state itself challenges the right of schools to make money from their buildings.

Mrs. Muzyk is director of the High School Equivalency Program and Adult Basic Education at Mercer County Community College.

Voters will go to the polls between 4 and 9 Tuesday. Polling places are listed elsewhere in this issue.

provide the leadership," McQuade said.

Owen Cane Returns. Four more returning seniors -- McQuade has 14 on his varsity -- include infielders Owen Cane and Lorenzo Mendoza and pitchers Brad Mumme and Mark Okomota. Cane played third last year, had an 11-game hitting streak at one point, and is expected to open the season at third -- although McQuade is holding out the option of moving him to second to fill a gap at that position.

Mendoza batted over .300 while playing shortstop last year but missed some games. McQuade is hoping he can come back and use his talent to do another fine job for the Raiders.

Mumme was used as a relief pitcher, and with his good speed and nice arm is being considered as a fill-in at second or third. Okomota is a spot pitcher and utility infielder.

In Ted Bransfield, a post graduate student from Pennsbury High in Pennsylvania, McQuade has found his third starting pitcher. Bransfield was a standout on the Hun basketball team but McQuade insists that baseball is "far and away his best sport.

"He is a superb hitter and a really good pitcher. He throws hard -- 80 to 85 miles an hour -- and is a fine prospect." Bransfield will pitch and play first base.

In high school ball, one good pitcher can beat a good offensive team, one pitcher can dominate, observed McQuade. In Stout, Stam and Bransfield he feels he has three who can do just that.

Two more seniors up from the jayvee squad are Mike Foster, a scrappy, contact hitter, a candidate for second base or the outfield, and Shawn Neufeld, a utility infielder. Two PGs trying to earn a starting berth include outfielder Greg Somers, left-handed hitter with good speed, and John McDonough, who like Bransfield, was a star on the basketball team. From Christian Brothers Academy, he has not played the sport since his sophomore year but wants to give it another shot, said McQuade. He is an outfield prospect.

While McQuade says that he will, by necessity, do or die with his seniors he also has several new faces to try to fill those outfield spots.

Among them are sophomore Tom Jingoli, a pitcher on the jayvee team last year who can also play second, and another sophomore, Rick Brenner. Brenner, says McQuade, is big, strong and hits the ball well. "It's a question of whether he can handle the defense so far."

Anthony Martelloni, a junior, played first and second on the jayvee team last spring and has improved with his glove and bat, reports McQuade, who described another candidate, senior Joe Scandareioto as a good hitter and one of the fastest players on the team.

Freshman Prospect. Nick Miller, a freshman, "has a good shot at making the varsity at short or second right now," stated McQuade. "He's going to be a ball player." In scrimmages, McQuade reported that Miller has not been overmatched at the plate and has hit the ball well. "For a freshman, I've been impressed with his play."

Consistently one of the most successful coaches at Hun, McQuade, the former Princeton High baseball captain and standout college player at Juniata, came up short last year.

"We didn't win anything in the County Tournament or the State Tournament so the kids have an incentive," he concluded.

After three scrimmages, Hun was scheduled to open its season this Tuesday against West Windsor. It will play its home opener next Thursday against Hopewell Valley High.

LACROSSE ANYONE?

Rec. Department Wants to Know. The Princeton Recreation Department is considering a summer lacrosse program for boys and girls in grades 6-8, which will meet once or twice a week from 5:30 to 7:30 during late June through July. The program would be instructional and recreational.

However, before the Recreation Department begins it is taking names of those who feel they would commit themselves to such a program. There would be a fee of approximately $10 for residents, $20 for non-residents. Those interested should call 921-9480.

TENNIS CLASSES SET

By Community Tennis Program. The Princeton Community Tennis Program will begin its 29th season of outdoor tennis classes on April 2.

Afternoon junior classes and adult evening classes will meet for eight weeks. Adult daytime classes will begin April 23 and will meet twice a week for four weeks, while junior classes are scheduled on Saturday.

Included are beginner classes for third graders, a spring training program for teenagers, and a seniors class. For further information, call 924-4343.

Ground Breaking at Elm Road Site Climaxes 3 Years of Effort by PCH

"It wouldn't have been possible without all the local people hanging in there," remarked HUD representative Thomas Verdun at Sunday afternoon's PCH ground-breaking.

And even though HUD itself tossed in a last-minute obstacle (a new HUD lawyer, unfamiliar with the background, required a new resolution from Borough Council regarding land lease), a start has finally been made on the 89-unit apartment complex Princeton Community Housing, Inc. plans to build on Elm Road for low and moderate-income elderly and the handicapped.

The Borough project has been three and one-half years getting into the ground. The most recent problem was objection and legal action by some neighbors. PCH invited all the neighbors to Sunday's ground-breaking, and a few did attend, including at least one opponent.

"We want this to be a credit to the neighborhood and the town," declared PCH president Harriet Bryan in her formal address.

In his invocation, Dr. Thomas W. Gillespie, new president of Princeton Theological Seminary, one of the institutional members of PCH, gave thanks for "this gift of community."

Speaker after speaker praised Mrs. Bryan for her persistence and skill in bringing the project forward to success and Township Mayor Winthrop S. Pike pointed out that, although it is a Borough project, Mrs. Bryan herself lives in the Township.

Mrs. Bryan also announced that PCH will shortly launch a fund drive to pay for things that had to be sliced out of the budget. Most are higher-quality items which will mean less costly maintenance over the long run. They include thicker insulation, energy-efficient

Levine, Brandt Win School Board Posts; Budget Passes Easily

Hugh Brandt and Harry Levine easily won re-election as Township representatives on the school board in Tuesday's election, and Corinne Kyle, unopposed, won the single Borough seat.

The budget also passed easily, by margins of about three to one in both Borough and Township.

Tatiana Ermalaev, who had originally opposed Mrs. Kyle for the Borough seat, withdrew last week, but not in time to have her name removed from the ballot. She won 11 Borough votes; Mrs. Kyle had 156.

Mr. Brandt led the Township balloting with 559 votes, followed by Mr. Levine with 455. Sharon Muzyk lost her second bid in a row with 208. She had run unsucessfully last year and was handicapped in campaigning this year by convalescence from surgery.

Mr. Brandt, appointed by the board six months ago to fill out the term of Dale Madden, is now in office for his own three-year term. Mr. Levine won his second full term.

Voters approved the $10,795,384 current expense budget by 591 to 229. The breakdown: Borough 119 yes; 57 no; Township 472 yes, 172 no.

Curiously, although there was technically no capital budget to vote on, 45 voted "no" in the Borough and 129 voted "no" in the Township. "Yes" votes were 111 and 440, in Borough and Township respectively.

Overall, 6.3 percent of the voters went to the polls. In the Borough, where the election to the school board was uncontested, 3 percent voted; in the Township, 8 percent went to the polls.

Alexander Road May Close Monday

Alexander Road may or may not be closed, starting next Monday, so that the wooden canal bridge can be resurfaced by Mercer County engineers.

The qualifier is the weather. Originally, the closing date was firm. Then it rained last week. That meant the county was delayed in completion of the Route 518 bridge in Rocky Hill. County engineers don't want to start on Alexander until Route 518 is open because of probable traffic snarls if too many roads are closed off.

If Alexander is closed, it will remain so until April 27, the county says.

This means drivers will have to use Quaker Road, Washington Road or Harrison to get into town. Sgt. Mario Musso, traffic officer for

Appellants against Collins Will Be Heard This Week; President Bowen Supports Developer in Letter to Mayor

The four appellants against Collins were preparing themselves this week for the first hearing of their cases before Borough Council, scheduled for this Wednesday and Thursday at 8 in Borough Hall.

Council will hold its regular meeting next Tuesday. Presumably there will still be appeals to hear, although Tuesday is the decision deadline and Collins has refused to grant an extension. So far, Council has not said in what order the four will be heard.

Five of the six Council members are expected to be present. Richard Macgill is on vacation. In order to overturn the Planning Board's approval of Collins or send the case back to the board for re-consideration, a majority vote by Council is required. This means four votes. The mayor has a vote only in case of a tie.

For the first time in all the Collins deliberations, Princeton University, which sold Palmer Square to Collins, has expressed an opinion. In a letter to Mayor Barbara Sigmund and Council, University President William Bowen said "I hope very much that you will do what you can to enable the Collins organization to proceed with the substantial work required to move their plans toward fruition."

President Bowen wrote that "for more than a decade, the University sought ways to improve the economic vitality and attractiveness of Palmer Square."

But University trustees realized "we were not well-suited to development and management of the Square" and decided everyone would be better off with a new owner.

In Arthur Collins, he continues "I believe we found what we were looking for." He said no developer could please everyone, "but Collins does seem to have been willing to listen carefully and to work toward a final outcome that will enhance the distinctive ambience of the Square."

President Bowen said the University has "no continuing financial interest in the economics of the Square."

In reply, Mayor Sigmund said "Of course, I am interested in the opinion of President Bowen, and will give him the same consideration as any other citizen of the Borough — which he is."

Which Hat Is He Wearing?

She then questioned whether he was writing as a citizen, as president of the University or a spokesperson for the University trustees. She suggested there had been no vote by faculty, trustees or students on the opinions in his letter.

"In the letter, no special interest is claimed, so on the face of their own argument, they will be treated like everyone else."

She also pointed to his statement that the University had no "continuing" financial interest in the Square and asked what he meant by "continuing."

President Bowen himself has declined to speak to reporters regarding the letter or the mayor's comments, delegating that to his assistant, Robert Durkee.

Mr. Durkee explained that Collins bought the Square for $17 million, has already paid slightly over $14 million and has one more mortgage payment of "$3 million plus" to the University, due in 1985.

"This will conclude their obligation to us," Mr. Durkee said. "The University has no economic stake in the profits of Collins and the Square — no agreement for a percentage of the gross, or anything similar.

"The word 'continuing' means that fixed obligation. We do not share in the equity basis so we are not writing to mayor and Council out of our own financial interest. We do, however, have a 'continuing' interest in the quality of the Square."

President Bowen wrote the letter as the President of the University, Mr. Durkee continued: "His viewpoint has been discussed with the trustees and is his best judgment as President of the Institution.

"We have no quarrel with the mayor's saying our letter will be considered with all the others. We are a Princeton University institutional citizen and the institutional viewpoint ought to be considered with the viewpoint of others. We ask that it be part of the record."

Mayor Sigmund added, "In a macro sense, we are all here because of Princeton University. Its prestige in the world at large has accrued to the benefit of the town's people."

The mayor's husband, Paul, is on the University faculty. She said she saw no conflict of interest if she were required to cast a vote in any of the Collins appeals.

BOAT TRIP PLANNED

On Hudson River Sloop. The Stony Brook-Millstone Watersheds Association has chartered the Hudson River sloop Clearwater for a five-hour educational sail in New York Harbor. The sloop will depart from the dock at Liberty Park on Saturday, April 28, at 9:30 a.m. with 45 passengers from this area.

While on board, passengers may navigate and sail the sloop, net fish and other marine life from the harbor, learn about water supply and quality in the process, and sing and work along with the crew. Passage on the Clearwater, bus transportation from the Watersheds headquarters on Titus Mill Road in Pennington to the dock in Elizabeth and return, snacks and a box lunch are included in the $50 charge, $40 for a second ticket.

The bus will depart at 7:45 a.m. and return by 4:30. Those interested should call the Watersheds at 737-3735. Children must be over 10.

NOTHING LIKE A FOUNTAIN FOR BACK-YARD CHARM: Unless it's an overflowing manhole. This fountain, close to Harry's Brook, is in the garden of Dr. and Mrs. Leon Nergaard on Rollingmead. It is, of course, sewage, augmented by infiltration of ground water — of which Princeton had plenty on Thursday, when this was taken — and inflow of surface water. The state's Department of Environmental Protection built the fence to catch bits of toilet paper — visible here in the meshes.

ILLEGAL CONNECTIONS

One Is Found in New Search. In a survey which began only this Monday, the new three-member Sewer Operating Committee crew has already found one illegal connection which is pouring storm water into sewers, assistant Borough engineer Martin Dorward said this week.

The camera that was drawn through sewer lines several months ago, revealed various problems in sewer laterals. The new inspection crew is calling on homes where these problems seem to be located. Connecting downspouts, patio drains, sump pumps and the like to sewers is illegal.

The sewer capacity study, expected more than two weeks ago, will not be delivered for another two weeks, Mr. Dorward said, adding that problems like that on the Nergaard property (see photo, this page) are largely capacity problems, traceable to undersized sewer lines.

The line leading into the Nergaard manhole is 15-inch line, he explained, and the two lines leading out are only 10 and 12 inches respectively. They may need to be replaced, but there are so many of these lines that the project is a large one.

The capacity study is expected to provide information on lines like these and give the Sewer Operating Committee data on possible replacement.

Also, according to Robert Kiser, Township engineer, the SOC cleaned out siphons, resulting in "minimal overflow," but last week's heavy rain caused problems. With such a rain, he said, and high infiltration and inflow, the sewer system must take on three times its normal load.

JEWELRY, SILVER TAKEN

From Morven Place Home. Returning from a vacation Saturday night, the owners of a Morven Place home discovered that it had been entered and looted of silver and jewelry worth approximately $10,000.

Missing, police said, are two silver candlestick holders valued at $700 each, silver flatware settings for 12 and silver plates plus an assortment of jewelry. The home was entered sometime during the previous week by way of a broken window pane on the north side of the house.

Last week, someone entered a locked bar area in Prospect House on the Princeton University campus and departed with an AM-FM stereo cassette record player valued at $175 and three tapes worth $24.

signs of forced entry into the building, which was entered between 7:30 in the evening and 11 the next morning.

In another campus theft, approximately $2,000 in camera equipment and $800 in stereo equipment were stolen from a student's room in the Princeton Inn College dormitory off Alexander Road.

Ptl. Dennis McManimon had observed a suspect near Stockton Street about 7:30 in the evening carrying something and acting in a suspicious manner. When he approached the suspect, described only as a black male, he fled on foot. All of the missing items were recovered in a search of the area. Police later found sneaker prints under the victim's first-floor apartment window.

Late Monday night, Borough police received a report of an entry into storage bins in the basement of the 100 Stockton Street building on the Princeton Seminary campus.

According to police, a student in his room heard loud noises in the basement just before 11 o'clock and went to investigate. He observed a suspect in one of the bins with a pair of pliers in his hand. "What are you doing?" the student asked. "Looking for something for my brother," the slender, 18 to 20-year-old black male suspect replied.

Police said that the student decided to play along with the suspect until he could get him to go back upstairs, where the chances for his apprehension were greater. However, the suspect, police said, threw a chair at the student, ran out of the building carrying a yellow bag, got on a bicycle and cycled away. Police, in searching the area later, were unable to locate him.

Three bins were broken into, police said. The owners of two reported nothing missing; a third victim listed the theft of three jackets.

CAR IS TOTALLED

In Skidding Accident. The ingredients for skidding accidents were all there: last week's snow and slush, rain and intermittent freezing temperatures made driving in the Township an adventure. An adventure for some that ended in accidents.

Tsong-Hoim Chen, 36, of 2G Meadow Land Apartment, was taken to Princeton Medical Center for treatment of lacerations of the face he sustained when his 1976 sedan was totalled. Police said Mr. Chen was traveling south on Ewing Street and rounding a curve of the road into N. Harrison Street, when he skidded out of control into a tree in front of 492 N. Harrison. His skidding car also damaged 15 feet of fence, a mailbox and some shrubbery on the property.

A short time earlier, Sandra Bulach-Allen, 23, 606 Hunters Glen Drive, Plainsboro, had skidded off the Mt. Lucas roadway near Ewing Street. Her car continued across 15 feet of lawn before colliding with two trees on a lawn at 508 Mt. Lucas Road. She was not injured and her 1981 sedan received only minor damage.

Less than an hour earlier, at 4:48 last Wednesday afternoon, William D. Schwartz Jr., 19, of Route 27, skidded on a curve on Van Dyke Road, some 100 feet from All Saints Chapel. Although his Ford Bronco struck and sheared off a Public Service pole, Mr. Schwartz escaped injury. In his accident report, Ptl. Renn Kaminski noted, "driving conditions extremely hazardous."

Also last Wednesday in the Township, a Trenton resident skidded off Route 206 between Quaker and Province Line Roads and struck a pole and a traffic sign; a Fairless Hills resident skidded on ice on Cherry Valley Road while rounding a curve, hit a guard rail and blew a tire; the car of a Plainsboro driver had to be removed from the mud and snow by a wrecker after it slid off twisting Cherry Hill Road near Heather Lane; and a Leigh Avenue resident slid into the rear of a car parked on Leigh.

In the Borough, Joseph E. Testa, 59, of East Windsor, lost control on the snow and ice and struck a tree in front of 26 Alexander Road. He escaped injury. It was snowing and hailing at the time of the mishap on Thursday.

THEFT REPORT

Pickup Truck Stripped. A 1979 Ford pickup truck owned by a Spring Street business firm was the target of thieves last week.

Police report that while the truck was parked at the rear of 45 Spring during the weekend, someone stripped off its chrome front grille, two side view mirrors, both headlights and parking light covers and mounts. Replacement cost: $424.54.

A Hopewell resident lost $100 when someone removed the lock from his locker at the YMCA and took his tan leather wallet. The wallet was valued at $28 and also contained credit cards.

In another incident, an employee of the Princeton Medical Center last week reported the theft of his wallet from his locked locker on the third floor. He lost $24, credit cards and the wallet, valued at $20.

A Princeton University student left his unlocked locker in Dillon Gym unattended for ten minutes last week. The oversight resulted in the theft of a 20-inch gold chain valued at $185, a $100

Latest Storm May Have Broken Records; It Definitely Damaged Several Umbrellas

You remember last Wednesday and Thursday. If you don't, your umbrella does — its ribs are still aching from 55-mile-an-hour gusts and it has filed for overtime pay.

Princeton absorbed — or didn't absorb, which is more like it — 3.06 inches of rain. Wet indeed. In the 24-hour period between 8 a.m. Wednesday and 8 a.m. Thursday, 2.41 inches fell. Only .65 between then and Friday at 8 a.m.

And the barometer!

Science Associates watched it tumble to 28.84 inches at 5 p.m. Thursday — that's equivalent to some hurricanes, say the SA meteorologists. Normal would be 29.92.

Wind gusted as high as 55 m.p.h. — estimated.

During Thursday, Princeton was slopped by snow, rain and sleet, sometimes in turns, sometimes all at once. There were even intervals when nothing at all fell. There were never intervals when the wind didn't blow.

But in Trenton and the country around Lawrence, there was only rain. And even Princeton, with all its wet and the street intersections that looked like Lake Erie, had nothing like the snow that dumped on northern New Jersey communities. But that rain was more than they had in New York.

It was probably a record-breaker in its lateness — almost April, after all — its intensity and its geographic spread. It also passed rapidly. After that low of 28.84, the storm center passed and the barometer began to climb.

Temperature change was also abrupt — from warm to cold — because it wasn't a cold rain, for all its volume.

Tell that to your umbrella.

NEWSPAPER REPORTER

Town Topics will have a position open on its editorial staff for a full-time reporter, beginning June 1. Duties include the editing of news releases, coverage of meetings and events, and developing and writing feature stories.

A keen interest in Princeton, the surrounding area, and the events shaping its future is the first prerequisite. A solid background in writing is a must—previous newspaper experience and the ability to use a computer terminal would be helpful, but not essential.

Benefits include annual vacation and participation in profit-sharing plan.

Please send a complete resume, plus samples of your writing to Donald C. Stuart, III, Town Topics, P.O. Box 664, Princeton, NJ 08540. Interviews with qualified candidates will be scheduled, beginning in early April.

watch and a gold medallion valued at $40.

A dark blue London Fog trench coat valued at $125 was stolen last week between 8 and 9:15 in the morning while the victim, a Princeton Junction resident, was dining in the Greenroom at the Nassau Inn. In one of the coat pockets was a First National Bank checkbook.

$500 Bicycle Stolen. A thief last week pried open a locked storage cage in the basement of 100 Stockton Street and stole a men's 10-speed bicycle valued at $500. The victim is a Princeton Seminary student.

A second 10-speed bicycle valued at $120 was stolen between Thursday morning and early Saturday afternoon from the side of a Moore Street home. Police said that it was not locked.

DRIVER IS CHARGED

With Marijuana Possession. A 19-year-old resident of Puerto Rico, Pablo Jose Casellas, has been charged by Borough police with possession of less than 25 grams of marijuana. He faces an April 18 hearing in Borough Court.

Casellas was observed at 12:31 Saturday morning by Ptl. Michael Taylor and Ptl. Ronald Wohlschelgel as his blue Ford swerved across Nassau Street. The officers pursued the car and stopped it on Dickinson Street while Casellas was attempting to make a K-turn. He told the officers that he was going to make a U-turn on Nassau but swerved at the last minute when he saw their patrol car.

During their investigation, the officers noticed a two-foot, hand-made yellow plastic pipe on the car floor and smelled a marijuana residue. They searched the car and the suspect, uncovering a small plastic container of green vegetation believed to be marijuana.

Casellas was taken to headquarters, issued a complaint summons and later released.

Trespasser Arrested. Jeffery W. Vassey, 21, of Columbia, Mo., whom police said had been warned repeatedly in the past by Princeton University officials about trespassing on campus, was arrested last week.

He was apprehended by University proctors while

THE TRUCK STOPS HERE: This leased Parcel Service tractor-trailer failed to complete its run last Wednesday morning when it went off Route 206 near Arreton Road and struck two large trees before coming to rest. Driver Francis P. Montemurno, 40, of Oxford, Pa., who was taken to Princeton Medical Center for treatment of minor injuries, told police he heard "metal against metal" when he applied his brakes after three cars in front had slowed. His brakes locked, causing the truck to strike a guard rail fence. Mr. Montemurno was issued a summons by Sgt. Mario Musso for careless driving. Thirty feet of state-owned guard rail was damaged in the 7:39 a.m. mishap.

arrest for parole violations. He was turned over to the Trenton PD when he couldn't post $4,000 bail.

Rogers had been observed placing the filet under his coat by two store employees. When he ran out of the store they took up the pursuit and caught up to Rogers at the corner of Nassau and Vandeventer and held him until Sgt. William Clark and Ptl. Donald Dawson arrived.

YOUTHS APPREHENDED

For Breaking Bottles. Two nine-year-old boys and two ten-year-olds were apprehended by Township police Sunday afternoon after they had allegedly broken several dozen bottles at random throughout the Princeton Shopping Center.

The bottles had been taken from the recycling shed located in the northeast corner of the shopping center lot, police said. The youths were advised by Ptl. John S. Seely Jr. and later released to the custody of their parents.

loitering in the afternoon in the Green Room in McCarter Theatre. He was taken to police headquarters where a complaint was signed by a proctor.

When it was learned that Vassey had earlier received a 40-day suspended sentence in Borough municipal court for trespassing on the university campus, he was sent to the Mercer County Workhouse.

FOUR TIRES SLASHED

On Two Parked Cars. The tires on the passenger side of two cars parked overnight in front of 252 John Street were slashed this week with a knife. The vandalism was discovered at 1 Tuesday morning.

Police said one of the victims was a Witherspoon Street resident while the other was from Hopewell. The replacement cost for two steel-belted tires on the one car is $150 and $132 on the second.

When a Nassau Street resident attempted to start his car Sunday afternoon after it had been parked overnight in a lot at the rear of 173 Nassau Street, he discovered it wouldn't start. He called a mechanic.

The mechanic reported that the ignition switch and wires on his 1980 Volkswagen had been tampered with, resulting in a $132.70 replacement cost. When police told the victim they could find no signs of forced entry into the car, he told them that he might have left it unlocked.

Township police report that a bowling pin was thrown last week through the rear window of a car parked overnight in front of the victim's house on Leabrook Lane.

Replacement cost for the window and dented window molding was placed at approximately $200. Ptl. Robert Nielsen investigated.

SIGHTED STEAK

Stole Same. A 34-year-old Trenton resident has been charged with shoplifting after he stole a filet of beef valued at $31.70 Thursday afternoon from Davidson's Market on Nassau Street.

Michael Rogers is scheduled to appear in Borough court April 18 to answer a complaint signed by the store manager. While Rogers was in custody police learned that there were several outstanding warrants from Trenton police for his

Post Office Substation Opening Soon In Shopping Center's Pants Saloon

A post office substation will open in the Pants Saloon of the Princeton Shopping Center Monday, April 23, Princeton Postmaster Victor Zuczek announced this week.

The station will be open from 10 to 4:15 Mondays through Fridays, and will offer the standard services of the main post office and the Palmer Square branch; that is, it will sell stamps, handle certified mail, packages and money-orders. It will have a mail drop and a mail pick-up.

It will not, however, set postage meters, Mr. Zuczek said.

The postmaster also said he had been talking with Joseph Morawski, director of purchasing and office service for Princeton University, about the possiblity of a sub-station on campus, which the Princeton post office would like "very much" to have. Several townspeople have also suggested campus sub-station as a way of relieving lines at Palmer Square.

"We're not contemplating it now," Mr. Morawski said this week. "We considered it about ten years ago, but found it was not cost-effective."

The University has established four small sub-stations in the new freshman and sophomore residence colleges, and will probably "do something" for upperclassmen along those lines, Mr. Morawski said. The stations are, however, only mailrooms for sorting and distributing mail and do not sell any services.

The arrangement with Pants Saloon is on a contract basis. They provide the post office in their shop and the main post office pays them a fee, based on potential revenue and square footage available. Mr. Zuzcek declined to reveal the dollar amount.

Pants Saloon was the only store responding to advertisements run last winter by the post office, Mr. Zuzcek said.

Cut Rates in Township. Princeton Township residents may take advantage of a municipal tree planting program with the advice and assistance of the local Shade Tree Commission. A list of approved shade trees for spring planting is available at the Township Engineering, at 369 Witherspoon Street. Details can be obtained by calling 921-7077.

Under this program a number of tree types, found to be suitable for Princeton conditions, are available for purchase at nursery cost from the Township. Planting will be done by Township employees at a site mutually agreed upon by the homeowner and a Shade Tree Commission member. Some of the more popular trees are October Glory red maple, Redspire callery pear, sugar maple and flowering crab.

BACH TO ROCK

And on to Vienna. Princeton High School's orchestra and choir, seeking to raise $186,000 to fund a trip to the international music festival in Vienna, Austria, this July, will stage a marathon dance at the high school this Saturday from 1 to 11 p.m.

The student organizations are only about $25,000 short of their goal. Parents of the 120 students who will participate have pledged more than $100,000. Area businesses have contributed nearly $20,000. The students themselves have raised $19,000, and the recent cabaret show at the Nassau Inn netted $13,500.

The 1984 youth and music festival is considered a prestigious event in the world of music and Princeton High School will be the first in the United States to send both an orchestra and a choir.

Corporate donors include Merrill Lynch, Dow Jones, Mobil, IBM, Lenox, Hyatt Regency, Gulton Industries, Avon Products, Princeton Bank, Nassau Conover, Nassau Broadcasting, and Lewis C. Bowers and Sons. Support for the cabaret came from Collins Development, Advanced Vehicle Technology, Callaway Real Estate, Clancy-Paul, Commodities, Dana Productions, Freedman and Drucker, the Gallup Organization, the Hillier Group, Minute Press, Quidnet Capital, Tucker, Anthony, and R.L. Day, and WHWH.

Bohren's Moving will donate the labor to make packing cases for instruments. Others who wish to make tax-deductible contributions should contact Florence Burke at the high school, 924-5600, extension 305.

COURTS TO OPEN

For Tennis at a Fee. The Recreation Department will activate the fee system for the Community Park Tennis Courts beginning Saturday.

Permits may be purchased by check only at the Recreation Office or at courtside. Resident tickets cost $30 for adults and $15 for children under 18. There are a limited number of non-resident season tickets available at twice the resident rate.

Season tickets entitle holders to make reservations during prime time, either in person or by phone. Ticket holders have complete access to both the hard surface and cushion courts for seven months of the year. The membership also entitles access to evening play under the lights at no extra cost.

For additional information, call 921-9480.

SMOKERS RESTRICTED

By Township Committee. Lest anyone accuse it of doing business in smoke-filled rooms, Township Committee this week passed an ordinance prohibiting smoking in designated meeting rooms. Following a spirited discussion with one smoker in attendance, Committee indicated that the ban would apply to the smaller conference rooms rather than the large meeting rooms.

The Township also introduced an ordinance that would raise more than $200,000 for use in dredging the Turning Basin park. A hearing was scheduled for April 16. Committee also approved the filing of a request for $50,000 in Green Acres funds to help fund the dredging work.

REGISTER NOW

For June Primary. The Princeton Chamber of Commerce reminds voters that the deadline for registering to vote in the state's June primary election is May 7, and the deadline for changing party affiliation is a week from Monday, April 16.

To faciilitate the process, the Chamber has set up a voter registration desk in its office at 32 Nassau Street. Applications for absentee ballots also are available. For information call 921-7676.

Computer Facilites at High School To Be Available to Princeton Public

The computer lab of Princeton High School will be opened to public use — on a trial basis — Mondays and Fridays from 4 to 10 p.m., starting April 23 and continuing to the end of the school year. Use of the computers will be free.

"The school board felt that the taxpayers' investment in equipment should pay dividends for all citizens," said Superintendent Paul Houston.

"Also, this school system places a strong emphasis upon student research and we expect that many reports will be written on word processors in coming months and years. If we do not provide machine time outside the regular school day, students without home computers will be at a real disadvantage."

Princeton residents interested in using one of the 16 machines may obtain a registration form by calling 924-5690, ext. 217. Most of the computers are Apple IIe. No instructors will be present although the school system is considering free evening instruction sessions.

Word processing software — the Bank Street Writer, designed for grades 5-7, which has a built-in tutorial showing you how to use it — will be available. You must supply your own disks and they may be purchased at the high school lab. No game playing will be allowed.

Machine time will be scheduled on a first-come-first-served basis, with a time limit of 60 minutes if demand is heavy.

In a recent issue of Newsweek, Princeton schools were cited for their unusual approach to use of computers. Assistant Superintendent Jamie McKenzie was critical of many of the games and software chosen by other school districts.

"We have avoided what we call the 'arcade curriculum' in favor of computer experiences which model adult uses of the computer," he said. "For example, in science class we will equip students with the skills to use computers to build and use data banks in testing hypotheses."

'FANTASY' GROWING

For AAMH Auction. Visit with Mike Wallace after a production of "60 Minutes." Attend a Joan Rivers concert at Resorts International and trade insults with her backstage. Take a VIP tour of the White House and then chat with Senator Bill Bradley. Join Joanne Woodward for lunch.

All these fanciful opportunities and more will be on the auction block Saturday, April 28, at the third annual fantasy auction of the Princeton-based Association for Advancement of Mental Health.

The fundraiser, which begins at 3 p.m. with a preview of items for sale at a silent auction, will be held at Educational Testing Service. The fantasy auction, with Art Buchwald and Princeton University freshman Brooke Shields serving as auctioneers, begins at 6:30 p.m. The benefit will conclude with a patron's dinner at the Bedens Brook Country Club starting at 8:30.

AAMH officials say that the $15 tickets to the auction itself may be sold out within several weeks, and that the $100 tickets for the patron's dinner also are selling ahead of schedule. For information call 924-7174.

The diversity of auction items might even upstage the celebrity hosts. Among the offerings that can be previewed at area businesses are a Cybis Aphrodite on view at LaVake Jewelers; a personal computer at Clancy-Paul, and a sterling silver tea service at the Gilded Lion.

Bill & Barbara & Arnie & Brendan. The-one-of-a-kind events being auctioned include the chance to conduct the New Jersey Symphony, having your name appear as the hero or villain of Rick Spencer's latest mystery novel, and reviewing a private performance of the "Klutz Cabaret" with Bill Mathesius, Barbara Sigmund, Arnold Roth, and Brendan Byrne.

Other items and events on the block include Prince tennis racquets, a tour of "All My Children," a tennis match with Squibb president and Davis Cupper Jan Leschley, and lunch for two with the Penthouse Pet and her chaperone. One might hope that a higher bid would get lunch with the Penthouse Pet without her chaperone.

Trips being auctioned include a visit to the American Embassy in Prague, a week on Martha's Vineyard or a stay at a Nantucket house, and a day at Bloomingdale's.

TO DESCRIBE LEBANON: David Dodge, former acting president of the American University, Beirut, and his wife, Doris, will talk about the Lebanon they knew and give a slide show next Wednesday, April 11 at 8 in the auditorium of Princeton Day School.

HOUSING PROPOSALS

And Some Suggestions. Five days after the Planning Board's first public hearing on the Affordable Housing proposals of the Township's planning consultants, the Borough's own Affordable Housing Committee, through its Ordinance Revision Subcommittee, came forward with proposals of its own.

At last Wednesday's board meeting, consultants John Nolon and Alan Mallach detailed their ideas to a scattered audience of slightly over a dozen, most of whom were either landlords, developers or institutional representatives.

The consultants' plan is a voluntary one, with a suggested ratio of 20 percent lower-income housing in a given project, lower-cost housing dispersed throughout town, modest density and small, clustered scale. It calls for an "Affordable Housing" district consisting of almost the entire Borough and Township except for environmentally sensitive areas. In this district, owners could build at a higher, carefully-controlled density.

On large lots (more than five acres), owners could build according to standard zoning, or to a gross density of 2.75 units an acre with 20 percent lower-income required or get a bonus density and in return donate five percent of the sale price instead of building the lower-cost units.

On small lots, owners could get double-density if one-third of the units were low-income or three times the density if one-half.

All developers would be assessed a fee to pay administrative costs of a Community Housing Trust. Developer Benedict Yedlin promptly said he would sue if this went into effect. His position was endorsed by Gary Green, vice-president of Collins Development, and Eugene McPartland of Princeton University, although neither of the latter threatened suit.

The Trust is risky, Mr. Mallach warned: "You must maintain the political will, and get experts to do the work." Money from developers through the density bonus would go into the fund, he said. Developers could deed land to the Trust, or the Trust could buy land.

Mr. Nolon defended the proposals as "broad-based," pointing out that a community-wide Affordable Housing district meant that "the whole town shares in this housing, so it's a good political solution."

Township Mayor Winthrop S. Pike protested the estimated $150,000 yearly budget of the Trust, but Mr. Mallach explained that the town would need professionals to make sure housing remains low-cost after sale, to advise developers and Planning Board and to work out ways to use small lots.

When Peter Bearse asked why volunteers couldn't run the Trust, Mr. Mallach reminded him that "even Princeton Community Housing had to pay professional fees."

"Fire the consultants!" exploded Mr. Yedlin. "Find the sites and contract for building through taxes paid by everyone. The obligation is the town's."

Mr.Green remarked that charging developers a fee is "like legislating supermarkets to provide Food Stamps." He suggested a real estate transfer tax. Mr. Mallach said it should be explored, but would probably need a special act of the Legislature.

Mr. McPartland warned that the fee "could be a disincentive to locate in Princeton." The 75 cent-per-square-foot fee, he remarked, could be devastating for the University's 110,000-square-foot molecular biology building.

Taxpayer versus developer is "an unproductive face-off," Mr. Bearse said, urging a mix of resources.

It's possible that developers may choose not to build this housing, Mr. Mallach acknowledged. "If so, it's the town's responsibility to flag it before all the sites are gone and ask why it isn't working."

The exact number of Princeton's "fair share" is still not known, he told one questioner.

H. Philip Minis predicted more need for moderate housing than for low-income, and said the proposed Trust should work with existing organizations, not compete with them.

The Borough group examining lower-cost housing voted Monday night against mandatory set-asides and a retroactive ordinance and in favor of an increased density bonus (provided the whole project is lower-income) and builders' contribution to a Housing Trust Fund, provided the builder could make "a normal profit."

It was the sense of the group that last fall's report from former Borough attorney Edwin Schmierer contained useful recommendations, such as a more liberal flat ordinance.

Although they discussed putting lower-cost housing in the old Borough sewer field on Herrontown Road, they conceded that this might mean concentrating all such housing in one spot.

Most members of this Ordinance Revision Subcommittee are landlords or developers.

The report of the whole committee will be finished April 27, with clean-up work done April 30 for presentation to Council May 3.

REMEMBER THE FETE

On April 16. With the deadline for filing personal income tax returns approaching, the planners of this June's Hospital Fete remind residents to recall the items they donated last year for the annual fundraising event. They also urge that contributions be made soon for this year's auction, which will be held in conjunction with the Fete on June 9.

The large storage facility at the Princeton House on Herrontown Road is available for drop-off every Tuesday and Saturday from 10 to noon in April and May. A van or truck can be arranged to pick up bulky items. Appraisal of expensive items can be provided by the Fete organizers.

For information call the auction solicitation chairmen, Margaret Cruikshank, 799-3123, or Tanya Cope, 924-6199.

NEWCOMERS WELCOME

To 'Y' Activities. The YWCA Newcomers Club will hold its general meeting Thursday, April 12, at noon, at the YM-YWCA Building. Karen Crowell and Mary Pinney, both working in special programs for women at Rider College's School for Continuing Studies, will present a discussion entitled "Women Returning to School — Options and Opportunities."

Anyone who has moved within 15 miles of Princeton in the last three years is welcome. Refreshments will be served. A nursery will be available for children age 1-5. For reservations call Kathleen Robicheaux at 799-5407.

Other club events include a tour of Winterthur in May. This nine-story DuPont estate houses the world's greatest collection of decorative arts made or used in America between 1640-1840 and is located in the Brandywine Valley in Delaware. Call Karen Shuey, 921-8962, or Mary Ann Williams, 683-4031.

YMCA DISCOVERERS: Lamont Fletcher, left, director of the YMCA's Discovery Camp, meets with Alan Taback, executive director of the 'Y.' This year's Discovery Camp will run in weekly sessions from June 25 to August 17 at the Johnson Park School. The program will include sports, day trips, arts and crafts, and games to promote communication and community among the children. Mr. Fletcher, an elementary school teacher, also coaches track at Princeton High School.

NURSERIES MERGE

Now Nassau Nursery School. Two long-established Princeton nursery schools will merge and open under a new name at a new location in September. Nassau Co-Operative Nursery School and Trinity-All Saints' Nursery School will become The Nassau Nursery School, and will move to 454 Terhune Road, the location of the Italian-American Sportsmen's Club. Cindy Chessler, present director of Nassau Co-Op, will be director of The Nassau Nursery School, which will be staffed by the experienced teachers of the two merging schools.

One new feature will be a five-day, extended hours option (8:30 to 5:30) designed for 3 and 4-year-old children of working parents. There will be two classes for 2½-year-olds, one meeting two days a week, the other three days a week, from 9 to noon.

The core program for 3- and 4-year-olds meets five days a week from 9 to noon. There is an optional 9 to 3 program for this age group. In addition, the school will permit regular 3- and 4-year-old students to stay past their usual departure time on an hourly basis upon request.

Lower tuition rates will be available for parents who choose to help out in the classroom on a regular basis. Applications for September classes for 2½, 3, and 4-year-olds are now being accepted. For information, call registrar Elaine Friedman at 924-2793.

ENTER PHOTO CONTEST

At U-Store. The Princeton University Store is now accepting entries for its tenth annual Photo Contest. Deadline for entries is April 28 at 5:30 and the show itself will be held at the U-Store May 3-9. There will be an opening reception on the evening of May 3.

The contest is open to all amateur photographers, except for U-Store employees and their families.

There will be two categories, Color and Black and White, with prizes being awarded in both categories. Photographers may enter a total of two pictures in either or both categories. The prizes,

"Eden of Effluence."
To the Editor of Town Topics:

Saints, savants and classicists applaud, as the greatest advance of science and technology in all history, the invention and utilization of indoor plumbing.

With less than amusement or approbation we read that in our "Golden Ghetto," in this "Athens of America," in this acme of affluence, we have an "Eden of Effluence."

A man's home ought to be his castle — and not the dumping ground of his neighbor or cumulative community negligence. Open sewers of retarded Asia or medieval Europe no longer can have their modern and local equivalents in Princeton "rocks and rills," Harry's brook, or remarkable presumed underground drains counter-productively operating on the surface, far from Harry's notorious stream.

Until these unthinkable conditions are corrected — NOW — ahead of public expenditures for anything other than protection of life itself — be they our fault or others' — how can our public officials, our press, and we individuals whose homes are outside affected zones, take pride in our community and intelligence and ethics?

B.E. BERGESEN JR.
Crestview Circle

An Old Story.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

The present dispute over the Sewer Authority is not the first time that one of the Authority's municipal members has taken exception to its operation. In 1976-77 Princeton Township Committee, for environmental reasons, opposed plans being pushed by the Authority to construct an interceptor from Pennington and Hopewell to the Princeton plant on River Road. I was appointed as Princeton Township Board member in June 1976 at the height of this dispute. The Township at that time was concerned enough to appropriate money for a consultant, who contested cost information supporting the interceptor concept prepared by the Authority's consultants.

In August, 1976, Authority members voted 6 to 1 in favor of the interceptor. As the lone opponent to the interceptor concept, I prepared a minority report showing cost and environmental differences with the consultants' reports. This was directed to the Director of Environmental Protection of the State, who would make the final decision. Josie Hall, Mayor of Princeton Township, organized the municipalities opposing the Authority's stand, who passed resolutions against the interceptor concept and directed them to the DEP. In March 1977 Commissioner Bardin, Director of DEP, placed the force of the State behind the Princeton Township position and the Authority reversed its August vote.

Borough Mayor Barbara Sigmund, sworn in on January 1 of this year, inherited Sewer Authority billing problems of considerable consequence to Princeton Borough tax payers. Immediately after the elections of last year, the news leaked out that for three years the Sewer Authority had been underreporting the flow of the Princetons' Sewage as a result of multiplying the figure at one of Princeton's two meters by 100 instead of 1000. The result was a lopsided billing over a three-year period favoring Princeton against the other user communities. The Princetons immediately were faced with a very large increase in sewer taxes as money would have to be raised to pay back the other communities.

The new mayor of the Borough decided quite sensibly that if the Authority could make such a colossal error on the meter report other things could be wrong. On the single problem of billing a great deal is wrong. Arithmetical errors were found in the billings a month ago and in a report dated March 20th, CFM Inc., reporting on the entire metering system, made the following comments:

"We feel that the metering system presently has several inherent problems that must be addressed by the Authority in order to obtain accurate data upon tributary sewage flow. In addressing each of these problems, it may be necessary for the Authority to improve the existing systems or the way in which they are being utilized. Above the need for improvements, however, is the constant requirement of routine maintenance and periodic calibration. The existing systems include sensitive measuring devices that mut be carefully maintained in order to insure a high degree of accuracy in the recommended sewage flow. We cannot overemphasize the need for adequate maintenance and consideration of the improvements that we are recommending."

Lack of proper maintenance is emphasized throughout the report. The two Princeton meters are particularly unreliable but so also is the influent meter which measures all sewage coming into the plant.

Going back to my own records, I find the consultants' estimate for manpower requirements presented in 1976 for operation and maintenance of the Sewer Authority plant was 25 employees. The 1983 adopted budget carries provision for 43 operational and maintenance employees. The projected fiscal year 1983 budget was 28 percent higher than the 1982 budget.

To my mind questions should be raised. Presumably the Borough mayor wants to know much more about what is going on before signing agreements committing the Borough to the three-year period repayment and the 1984 payment.

As Princeton Township taxpayers share a problem which is identical with Borough taxpayers, it seems inappropriate that Mayor Pike of the Township would direct a letter to Princeton Borough asking them to sign up and pay up or face up to a possible suit from Princeton Township, South Brunswick and West Windsor. It is a time for a new basis of cooperation between Princeton Borough and Princeton Township for working out the past billing differences. Enough seems wrong for it also to be worth while for all the user communities to promote a thoroughgoing review by qualified experts of the operation and maintenance function of the Authority.

Mr. Kling, the Executive Director of the Authority, has resigned and the present Chairman, John Magee, has stated that he believes he should be replaced by promoting from within. In a large organization with a cadre of qualified persons available for a given job, promoting from within is morale boosting. There is no such cadre at the Authority, however. This is a very important appointment and in addition to considering the one or two persons now working at the Authority who might qualify, every effort should be made to solicit as many qualified outside applicants as possible.

Challenges Frisch Comments.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

(The following is a letter to Rosalind Frisch, former school board member, whose views on the school budget appeared in last week's TOWN TOPICS.)

Last week, both of our local papers printed your letter commenting on the '84-'85 school budget....

I noticed that you timed your letter so the School Board could not respond before the budget vote. A little checking revealed that you did not send a copy to the Board to give it an opportunity for rebuttal, nor did you attend any of the hearings on the budget. Although this response is too late to be informative to the voters, I believe they should have more correct information for future reference.

You were a board member for three years and spent a great deal of time on budgets, but you seem to have forgotten some of the basics ...

1. You question the inclusion of $200,000 for Capital Expenditures on top of the recent bond approval. If you followed the bond proposals, you will remember that most were for major long-deferred maintenance items and expensive capital items such as new roofs. This does not eliminate the on-going need to make improvements and provide equipment for the school programs.

A major reason for the bond issue was the fact that past boards did not provide sufficient capital funds each year to keep up with the needs of the school system ... You and I, as former board members, share in the blame for that neglect ...

2. I do not question your cost-per-pupil data, but this has been discussed ad nauseam ever since enrollments began to drop. Arithmetically, the decrease in enrollment alone has the effect of increasing the cost per pupil ...

3. You conclude that "It looks like another $200,000 went into capital repairs this year." Not true. This amount was appropriated from surplus for Capital Expenditures to keep the tax impact down ...

4. Your long section on teacher salaries is puzzling. Although the impression is that you believe they are too high, you have a sentence which says, "Incidentally, it is good to see that our valued staff is so well paid."

5. The salaries of top administrators is always a subject for debate, but you and I both know the thought and care which the Board devotes to them. If memory serves, you helped to forge the procedures for the evaluation which precedes salary determination ...

6. You say the Business Administrator is not an accountant, and in a sense, that may be true. It is irrelevant, however, because she holds certification as a Business Administrator in addition to several formal degrees ...

As for the other administrator mentioned, we do not have a "head of custodial services"; the last I heard he is Manager of Facilities Services, a vastly broader responsibility. Also, we have the same seven school buildings, four of them now used for our public schools. The manager must oversee them, deal with the tenants, etc. In addition he will have the responsibility for supervising many projects under the recent bond issue.

7. You imply that $33,000 is excessive for legal fees, but one-third of one percent of the budget seems in order. As for the negotiator, $20,000 is a downright bargain when you consider that he watches over labor contracts which cost us many millions of dollars.

8. You say that only one-tenth of one percent ($13,800) is budgeted for Gifted and Talented children. Time has not permitted me to inquire, but the amount cannot possibly be the program cost; salaries alone would be much greater. My hunch is that this is an appropriation to provide special materials ...

You conclude by saying, "If you have the time, take a look (at the budget)." I would add one small phrase, "and ask questions."

ENGAGEMENTS

Habgood-Carpenter. Mary Lawrence Habgood, daughter of Robert P. Habgood III of London, England, and the late Julia F. Habgood of Princeton, to William T. Carpenter III, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter of Swampscott, Massachusetts. A September wedding is planned.

A graduate of Denison University, the bride-elect is a foreign exchange corporate advisor with the Shawmut Bank in Boston. The future groom, also a Denison graduate, is starting his own cabinet-making business in Brookline, Massachusetts.

Predhome-Kaye. Deborah Jean Predhome, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Predhome of Princeton, to Larry A. Kaye, son of Dr. and Mrs. Norman Kaye of Ewing. A May, 1985, wedding is planned.

Miss Predhome, a graduate of Hopewell Valley Central High School and Hofstra University, is employed by Van Note-Harvey Associates of Princeton. Her fiance, an optician, graduated from Ewing High School and Nasson College.

Williams-Carmody. Rebecca A. Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond J. Williams of West Windsor, to Vincent M. Carmody, son of Mr. and Mrs. John V. Carmody of East Hartford, Connecticut. A June wedding is planned.

A graduate of West Windsor-Plainsboro High School, Miss Williams expects to graduate in May from the University of Connecticut and to enter Johns Hopkins University in the fall. Mr. Carmody graduated from the University of Connecticut and is employed by the Department of Defense.

St. George-Marron. Patricia L. St. George, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul T. St. George of Princeton Junction, to Brian R. Marron, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald J. Marron Sr. of Pompton Lakes. A June, 1985, wedding is planned.

The bride-elect, a graduate of West Windsor-Plainsboro High School, is completing her undergraduate studies in biology at Muhlenberg College and plans to enter nursing school in the fall. Her fiance, a Muhlenberg alumnus, is completing his final year of study at the William and Mary law school.

Dienst-Rotolo. Amy E. Dienst, daughter of Patricia D. Dienst of Pennington and Joseph F. Dienst of Harvard, Massachusetts, to Victor A. Rotolo, son of Victor P. Rotolo of Point Pleasant and the late Vincentina Rotolo. A summer wedding is planned.

A registered nurse, Miss Dienst works for the Princeton Medical Center. Mr. Rotolo, an attorney, is associated with a Morristown law firm.

How Sweet It Is: Norma Gumbiner to Retire To Run Ice Cream Shop in Washington, D.C.

In a career change quite possibly unparalleled in the annals of contemporary American education, Community Park principal Norma Gumbiner is retiring in June to run a Thomas Sweet ice-cream and chocolate shop.

It's in Washington, D.C. on Wisconsin and P Streets in Georgetown, and it's a franchise of the Princeton shop. Jerry and Norma Gumbiner opened it on January 24, on the birthday of their son Lewis, and "it's doing fine."

A feisty lady who in spite of her passionate dedication to education and "the kids" has never done anything by the book, Mrs. Gumbiner will actually be returning to her original career — retailing.

After her 1949 Brooklyn College degree in psychology (minor in speech correction), she took a training job at Alexander's because she wanted to work, rather than go on to advanced degrees. Besides, she had always enjoyed fashion.

Incidentally, she went to Brooklyn College even though she lived in the Bronx ("why are you going out of town to college, my friends asked") because in the mid-'40s, Brooklyn was the only city school that allowed girls to take a liberal arts curriculum. The others would only let girls take courses leading to teaching.

Later, while the Gumbiners were living in Willingboro, Norma had a dress shop on Route 130.

GOODBYE, MRS. GUMBINER: After 13 years in the Princeton school system, Norma Gumbiner is retiring this June. The Community Park principal and her husband will run a Thomas Sweet chocolate and ice-cream shop in the Georgetown section of Washington.

'Something of Our Own.' She and Jerry had talked for a long time about "having something of our own," and they investigated restaurants and various retail enterprises. Jerry, a vice-president with United Merchants, had been in retailing, advertising, promotions work all his life and when a re-structuring of UM destructured Jerry's department, they decided "this was the chance for us."

Thomas Sweet was — well, it went like this:

"My hairdresser's roommate was the lawyer for Thomas Sweet and when he mentioned that Thomas might be ready to franchise, I said 'Let me know' and he did."

Fortuitous encounters like this are not new for Norma. When the Gumbiners moved back to New York from Willingboro, Norma joined the Continuing Education program at Hunter College to obtain the credits she would need for teaching. Because there was a teacher shortage, she taught on an emergency certificate for a time on the staff of P.S 191, Manhattan.

"For half a year, I taught third grade, then I became a permanent substitute. It was terrific on-the-job training: I had to teach gym, science, music, even a class for emotionally disturbed children.

"I had a wonderfully supportive principal, a true 'educator', and I learned a lot from him. He's been a role model for me, as a principal."

Registering for a summer course at Hunter one hot, chaotic day, Norma got in line to sign up for a course she'd been urged to take because it was given by a tremendous teacher.

"When I finally got to the head of the line, the woman said to me 'Sorry, that course section is closed.'

"I told her I simply HAD to take that course because it was taught by an Edith Scott and I had been told she was the best. 'Well,' the woman said, 'I'll let you in, but — you'd better be good!'

"That was the beginning of a wonderful friendship. Because the woman registering me, turned out to be Edith Scott herself".

Later, when she had become Edith Francis, that Hunter College teacher came to Princeton at Norma's suggestion and was hired to be principal of Riverside School. She asked Norma to teach at Riverside and Norma joined the faculty there in September, 1970, teaching second grade.

After a year's leave and a Columbia University masters, she returned to Riverside in 1972, succeeding Mrs. Francis as principal in 1977 when Mrs. Francis became Ewing superintendent, moving in 1979 to become principal at Johnson Park and now, with the JP closing, to the principal's office at Community Park.

In a statement announcing Mrs. Gumbiner's retirement, Superintendent Paul Houston points to the Cooperative Learning program she developed. "It continues to be a major thrust of the district's efforts to blend more collaborative learning experiences into the curriculum," he stated.

The program, in essence, has children sharing the learning process with each other and according to Mrs. Gumbiner, benefits both those who are having troubles and the effortless achievers.

She will serve as a consultant for this program for $15,000 in consulting fees. In addition, she is receiving $20,000 in severance pay. Between July 1 and June 30 of next year, she will spend 20 days in Princeton and 40 days in Washington. For her work in Washington, she will investigate various grants, and probably confer with officials at Johns Hopkins regarding mathematics programs in the schools.

"My three years here at Community Park have been wonderful — I am very lucky. The teachers are so committed to what they're doing — the time, the caring, the talk! Even the most casual conversation is about kids, or program or what the teachers are doing every day

"And they have such respect for each other, even though they may teach with different styles. The cooperative feeling in this school — it's just incredible. I think the town should be very excited about the kind of education that goes on in all the schools here, but of course I know CP best."

What will she miss, when she leaves? The answer is quick and strong:

"The kids."

Princeton Regional School HIGHLIGHTS

Highlights is sponsored and prepared by the Parent Teacher Organization of the Princeton Regional Schools.

JOHN WITHERSPOON SCHOOL

Foreign Language Week was observed at JW from March 5-9 with a variety of activities stressing the value and pleasure of foreign language study. A poster contest on that theme opened the week, and tri-lingual announcements on the loudspeaker each day, international menus in the cafeteria, and bulletin boards illustrating French and Spanish culture continued the emphasis. While many language classes featured cultural activities related to Mardi Gras/Carnival, the major event, Immersion Night, was reserved for eighth graders. These advanced students made a simulated trip to "France" or "Spain", speaking only the language of that country while going through customs, checking into a hotel and finally dining on typical foods of the country. Parents and PHS students who speak the language assisted the teachers in creating an atmosphere of being truly abroad.

Why are approximately 7500 empty soft-drink and beer cans piled in huge plastic-bag mounds filling the back of Ward Campbell's science room? And why are the seventh and eighth graders of House 6 combing the town hoping to double that amount? What started as a study of nature's recycling process may turn out to be a long-run benefit for the community as well as a source of some profits for the students.

After learning how nature reuses rocks, soil and water, the students turned to man's place in the process and found much that needed to be done. Aluminum cans littering parking lots and gutters seemed an obvious place to begin. Students point out that these cans will never decompose and enrich the soil as many other waste products do. Collecting, flattening and recycling them now can save 95% of the energy required to reclaim them from landfill areas in some future aluminum shortage. The 35 cents paid for each pound in excess of 500 lb. gives students an additional incentive. The money will go to the PTO's Environmental Education Fund and be used to finance camping and day trips for the whole school.

Sources of cans have been limited only by the Middle Schoolers' imaginations. They have signed up their neighbors for regular collections, policed the University, Choir College and Nassau Street, arranged for cans used at school functions to be handled separately and organized a retrieval squad for the Hospital Fete in June.

Angela Coin, House 6 president, says that educating parents and neighbors to separate and save their aluminum cans for student pick-up is only a first step; the ultimate goal is a permanent recycling facility for the community. Students have contacted local governments about this possibility. In the meantime House 6 welcomes all contributions of aluminum cans, sent with JW students or left at the Main Office.

SOMEBODY MUST HAVE BEEN HUNGRY: Hence the plucked rooster. Barbara Schwarzschild, life-long bird-watcher, took her hobby and a skeleton rooster to a third-grade class at Riverside. She also displayed different kinds of bird feathers and showed slides. Here she talks about the skeleton with Andrew Skey and Alicia Kohn. Later, Andrew's mother, Mrs. Sally Skey, showed children how to mold birds with air dry clay and these student-made birds are now on display in the Riverside entrance. (Where did Mrs. Schwarzschild get the skeleton? If she told the third-graders, they're keeping it a secret.)

CANOE, CANOE

With Watersheds Association. The Stony Brook-Millstone Watersheds Association will launch its spring schedule of canoe trips this Saturday with an expedition to Brainerd Lake in Cranbury and into Cranbury Brook. The trip, subject to weather conditions, will last about four hours.

Cranbury resident Al Meiss and the Watersheds staff will offer short presentations on the natural history and ecological problems of the lake and its feeder brook. There will also be opportunities to perform simple water tests.

Participants are asked to bring their own lunches and to meet at the Association headquarters on Titus Mill Road in Pennington at 9 or at Cranbury Park at 10. Canoes will be available to rent.

On Saturday, April 14, canoes will travel the Millstone River. Participants will meet in Kingston at 9 and head down the Millstone to learn about the natural history and geology of the area. After a stop for lunch, there will be a short portage and the return trip will travel up the Delaware and Raritan Canal. Return time is approximately 3 p.m. Canoes may be rented from the Watersheds.

Those requesting further information should call 737-3735.

OPEN HOUSE SET

For Broadmead Nursery. The University League Nursery School will hold an open house next Monday from 2 to 3 at 171 Broadmead. Prospective families are invited to view the facilities of this co-operative school for 3, 4, and 5-year olds. Classes, which are held three, four, or five days a week, begin at 8:45 and last until 11:30 with an optional extended day until 1 p.m.

Teachers will be on hand to answer pertinent questions. Limited scholarships are available. For information call 924-3137 or 737-8266.

NATURE FILMS OFFERED

By Stony Brook Group. The Stony Brook-Millstone Watersheds Association will sponsor a series of movies and slide presentations Thursday nights at its headquarters in Pennington. Programs begin at 8. Admission is free. The schedule:

This Thursday: "In Our Water" — An academy award nominee and documentary by Meg Switzgable on the chemical pollution of water supplies in a nearby community.

April 19: "Pond Life" and "Spring Wildflowers" — slide programs, including microscopic views from the Watersheds' research pond.

May 10: "The Garden of Eden" (a film from the Nature Conservancy) and an Audubon Wildlife Film.

May 24: "The Underground Story" — slides featuring area geology.

Those interested in further information should call the Watersheds' office at 737-3735. The headquarters building is located on Titus Mill Road in Pennington.

35 GRADUATE

As Practical Nurses. Thirty-five young women from 18 New Jersey communities and from the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania were graduated from the Medical Center at Princeton School of Practical Nursing in recent ceremonies at the Center for Health Affairs.

Greetings were extended by Dennis W. Doody, president of the Medical Center, William M. Geen, M.D., president of the medical and dental staff, and Elizabeth Buff, R.N., M.N.A., vice president of nursing. The graduates were presented for awards and diplomas by Jean A. Alito, R.N., M.S., the Director of the School of Practical Nursing.

Awards for outstanding clinical and scholastic efforts were presented. In the class of 1983, Dorothy L. Ashton received the Emerson McMullen Memorial Award; Michele Masterson received the Charlotte Dougherty Memorial Award; Robin McIntyre was the recipient of the Wilson Award; Alice Stewart, recipient of the Nightingale Award and Elizabeth Tourish received the Wrightman Award.

In the class of 1984, the Nightingale Award was presented to Clare Bogdan, Patricia A. Giberson received the Wilson Award, Kathy Klockenthoer the Emerson-McMullen Memorial Award. C. Jean Schneck received the Wrightman Award and Jennifer L. Smarto the Charlotte Dougherty Memorial Award.

In addition to these graduates, diplomas were presented to Suzanne Akin, Victoria Askins, Barbara Bartlett, Josephine Boccanfuso, Patricia Burger, Suzanne Ferri, Deborah Kimmer, Patricia Ninaltowski, Barbara Oldzej, Mary Paul, Lane Smith;

Also Kimberly Allison, Debra Buongiovanni, Eileen Collins, Cynthia Drake, Nancy Dungan, Laura Filippo, Laurie Huber, Nancy Klevze, Catherine Lewane, Patricia McKiddie, Barbara Noyes, Carla Sedlak, Penny Smith and Judith Steimer.

HOUSE TOUR PLANNED

In Hopewell Valley. The Hopewell Valley Historical Society will hold its annual House Tour in the Valley on May 6 from noon to 5.

Half of the locations will be in and around Hopewell Borough and the other half in and near Pennington Borough. This year the focus will be on the past and present uses of buildings in the valley.

The tour will include a modern house with a view of an historic part of the valley; the historic Old School Baptist Church in Hopewell; a pre-1800 house recently purchased and in process of renovation; a 19th century two family town house converted by the current owners into a single-family dwelling and office; and a 19th-century country inn, now a dwelling with a newly added sculptor's studio.

Also included will be an historic register building — the Pennington Train Station, now a home; the recently restored New Jersey National Bank Building; and a barn-carriage house that has been converted into a lovely country decorated home. The Hopewell Museum will be open during the day.

As in last year's tour, there will be antique dealers, craft demonstrations and sales in some of the locations.

Tickets may be purchased during April at Gail's Gifts, 20 North Main Street, Pennington, and at Country House, 47 Broad Street, Hopewell. Senior citizens needing transportation to attend may make arrangements by calling Pat O'Hara at 737-0063.

Make an Easter Egg

A Ukrainian Easter Egg Workshop will be held at the New Jersey State Museum, West State Street, Trenton, on Saturday, April 7 from 10:30 to noon.

Guided by Alexandria Horodysky, participants will learn how to make their own Pysanky (the Ukrainian Easter egg) from the raw eggs they are asked to take to the workshop. The $3 enrollment fee includes a kistka (drawing instrument), beeswax, three dyes and written instructions.

The workshop precedes the April 21 opening of "Folk Art from the Ukrainian Museum" and "Peoples of New Jersey: An Historic Photographic Profile of the Ukrainians."

Enrollment in the workshop is limited, and registration should be made by sending a $3 check, payable to the Friends of the N.J. State Museum, to the Bureau of Archaeology-Ethnology, New Jersey State Museum, CN530, Trenton, N.J. 08625, by March 30.

JEWISH FARMER TOPIC

Of Symposium, Exhibit. An exhibit of archival photographs and historic memorabilia will be featured at the symposium on Jewish agriculture, "New Americans — New Farmers: 100 Years of Jewish Agriculture in New Jersey," to be held on Sunday at Corwin Hall at Princeton University. Gertrude Dubrovsky is coordinator of the event.

Most of the material for the exhibit comes from an archive of primary documents, interviews, film, and video tape footage reflecting the history of Farmingdale, one of many small Jewish farm communities across the country. The archive was assembled by Dr. Dubrovsky and funded by grants from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

The photographs collected in the exhibit show how these people lived together in a community which they created. They depict some of the organizations which the farmers founded, some of the work experiences they had, the buildings they lived in, the children they nurtured and the contributions they made. Some of the photos show them before they came to America, in their Eastern-European environments.

Most of the Jewish farm communities had a mix of settlers. Early Eastern European immigrants were joined by German-Jewish refugees escaping Hitler. After World War II, American intellectuals sought a better life for themselves and their families on the farm. In the late 40's and early 50's survivors of the Holocaust looked for refuge in quiet on farms also. Unhappily they arrived at a time when the farm economy was already beginning to collapse and people were searching for other ways to support themselves.

The Curator of the exhibit is Sally K. Davidson who has recently moved to Princeton from Rochester, N.Y., where she had extensive experience as an independent producer and director of various media shows. Priscilla S. Algave, a graphic artist and a calligrapher, assisted Ms. Davidson.

SPONSOR A MUSICIAN

In Marathon Dance. Princeton High School musicians will hold a marathon dance Saturday to raise money for travel to an international competition in Vienna, Austria, this summer. Both the orchestra and the choir will represent the United States in the July competition.

Directed by William Trego with Nancianne Parrella, the choir was named the best high school concert choir in the country by a national committee of choral directors in 1981. The orchestra, which is directed by Portia Sonnenfeld, won first place in the National Orchestra Contest in Washington D.C. in May, 1982.

Those who wish to sponsor a musician may call Florence Burke (924-5600, ext. 305) for information. The dancers will begin at 1 p.m. Saturday at the High School and finish at 11 p.m. The public is invited to come and "cheer them on" or participate in the dancing from 8 to 11 p.m.

Mr. Pershey will discuss the earliest films and filmmaking techniques invented by Thomas Edison at the West Orange movie studio in the late 1890's. Vintage films will also be shown.

This program is free and open to the public. For further information call the library at 924-7073.

POET TO READ

At Arts Council. Mekeel McBride, visiting poet in the Creative Writing Department of Princeton University, will read from her poems in the spring P&N Series sponsored by the Arts Council. The reading will take place Wednesday, April 11, at 8 at 102 Witherspoon Street.

The collected poems are in two volumes, "No Ordinary World," 1979, and "The Going Under of the Evening Land," 1983, both published by Carnegie Mellon Press and distributed by the University of Pennsylvania Press. Ms. McBride's poems appear in The New Yorker, Kayak and Poetry among other publications.

The recipient of a Nationaal Endowment of the Arts Fellowship in Poetry, a Radcliffe Fellowship, she has taught at Harvard and at Wheaton College. She has been a resident of the McDowell Colony and has taught at the Aspen Writers Workshop.

QUILT EXHIBIT SET

In Rocky Hill. The Mary Jacobs Library in Rocky Hill will present a quilt exhibit Wednesday, April 4 through Wednesday, April 8 by the Rockingham Quilters. Traditional styled pieced and quilted pillows, quilts, and wall hangings hand sewn by Jean Graff, Jean Gustassen, Ann Kim, Alice Martch, Heeson Park and Mayeve Tate will be on display.

This exhibit is free and open to the public. For further information, call the library at 924-7073.

ANTIQUES SHOW SET

In West Windsor. The second annual Antique Show sponsored by the West Windsor Plainsboro Community Education will be held Saturday, April 14, from 10 to 5 at West Windsor-Plainsboro High School.

Admission is $2.50 but with a show discount card it is $2. The show will feature American country period furniture and other antiques. There will be 70 exhibitors. Refreshments will be available.

The West Windsor Plainsboro High School is located at the corner of the Princeton-Hightstown Road (571) and Clarksville Road in Princeton Junction.

EDISON FILMS

Topic of Talk. The Mary Jacobs Library in Rocky Hill will present a program on "Early Edison Filmmaking" with Ed Persehy, curator of the Edison National Historic Site, on Saturday at 10:30.

STUDENTS SOUGHT

For Red Cross Council. High school students in grades 9 through 11 are invited to join the Red Cross High School Council of the Princeton Area Chapter.

The Council, a volunteer group run by students, is looking for individuals who want to donate time by working on community service projects such as blood drives, teaching a course, or sponsoring an event, among others.

At the present time, council members have been working on an art poster contest and two blood drives. Plans are underway for a talent show at an area nursing home.

Participation in the Council gives young people the opportunity to meet students from various area high schools and to gain a sense of self-satisfaction from helping others in their community. Schools participating thus far are Princeton High, Stuart Country Day, Montgomery High and Hun.

The council usually meets two evenings per month. Interested students should contact Elizabeth McCredie, student chairman, or Marilyn J. Ebert, director of Youth Services at the Princeton Area Chapter at 924-2404.

FOR SIGMUND

Fund-Raiser. Congressman Barney Frank (D., Mass.) sometimes called "The Art Buchwald of Congress," will be guest of honor at a "Champagne and Connoli" fund-raiser for Mayor Barbara Sigmund Saturday, April 14 at 7:30 p.m. The event will be held at the Sigmund home, 8 Evelyn Place.

The purpose of the fund-raiser is to help Mayor Sigmund reduce the debts incurred in her unsuccessful 1982 U.S. Senate campaign. Contributions for the party are $25 each. Details are available from Mary Perone, 924-3741.

Congressman Frank is a member of the banking, housing, judiciary and government committees of the House of Representatives.

CHILDREN'S SPECIALS

At Library. During the spring vacation the Princeton Public Library will present two special programs for children. On Wednesday, April 18, 'Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" will be shown at 3:30. This 1938 classic stars Shirley Temple and is recommended for children ages six and up.

Fifi Longo will give a clown and mime performance on Thursday, April 19, at 3:30 for children ages 3½ to 5 and parents.

Free tickets for both programs are available at the children's desk on a first come, first served basis, starting April 4.

Road Closing

Princeton Township police, has worked out a plan.

Traffic controllers on the staff of Princeton University will be stationed at Faculty and Alexander, and Faculty and Washington during peak hours.

If you normally drive south on Alexander on your way to work — or at any time — make a left turn onto Faculty and proceed to Washington. Turn right there and continue to Route One.

If you use Alexander's jughandle over the West Windsor train bridge, take the first street on the right to the train station.

So far, it is not known whether West Windsor police plan to have officers stationed at crucial bottlenecks.

Sgt. Musso suggests that if you use Alexander between 6:30 and 7:30 a.m., you allow an extra ten to 15 minutes. If you are there between 7:30 and 9, allow at least 20 minutes more.

You will be able to drive south on Alexander as far as West Drive, which leads into the Lawrence Apartments. To reach Obal's Garden Market, however, you must take the long way around.

The bridge to be repaired is the one over the Delaware and Raritan canal. It's a wooden bridge, and will probably be re-surfaced with new wooden planks.

"When they're in," warns Sgt. Musso, "watch braking when they're wet — wooden planks can be slippery."

He expects back-ups at Washington and Route One unless West Windsor takes some kind of action, but overall, he is optimistic about traffic.

Ground Breaking

windows, sturdier tile on lobby floors, better bathroom lighting and so on. PCH is still obtaining cost-estimates, she said.

PCH has also applied to NJ Transit for a van to take residents into town, and will apply to the state's Division on Aging for money to establish congregate housing. Such housing provides one meal a day in a community dining-room and, depending on the needs of residents, apartment cleaning and housekeeping service. Some residents, Mrs. Bryan pointed out, will be "frail elderly" and others, not necessarily elderly, will be handicapped.

She said later that caterer Tom Root has been advising on the kind of kitchen equipment congregate housing would require. Mr. Root, who has volunteered these services, also sent two large flower bouquets to the ground-breaking.

Twitting PCH for its "puckishness" in chosing April Fool's Day for its ceremonies, Borough Mayor Barbara Sigmund said "Princetonians should be proud to be called 'crazy idealists' in working to bring this project to fruition."

Mrs. Bryan, also aware of the calendar, quoted Benjamin Franklin: "Experience keeps a dear school but fools will learn in no other."

Mayor Sigmund declared that "no public oficial deserves more credit than (former Borough mayor) Robert W. Cawley. He has been almost as persistent as Harriet Bryan."

Mr. Cawley himself praised Mrs. Bryan in his brief history of PCH's travails. He told the audience of approximately 100 that aides of U.S. Senator Bill Bradley had commented on the unusual "broad community and governmental support" PCH had.

"It's been a long, long time," Mr. Cawley said, "and this is indeed a happy day."

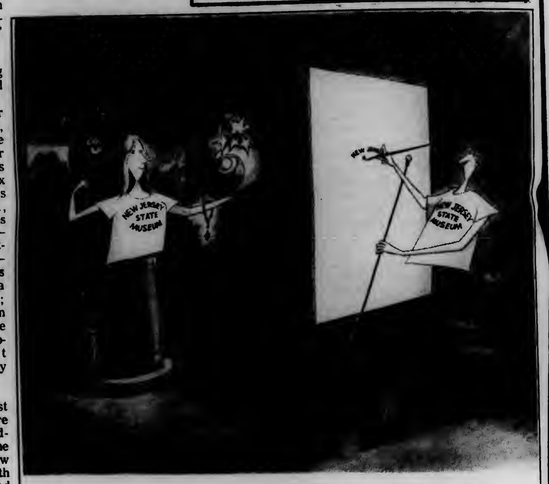
Mrs. Bryan singled out, for PCH's thanks, Mr. Cawley, Borough clerk Penelope Carter and Borough engineer George Olexa; architects Robert Geddes, William Dix and Jeremiah Ford; attorneys A.C. Reeves Hicks Jr., Christopher Baker, James Britt and Edwin Schmierer — (she said Mr. Baker had attended 13 public hearings) — PCH's housing consultants Martin McCarthy and Laura Jervis; planner Jerry Lenaz; engineers Wayne Patterson and Howard Rippetoe and the contractor, Robbins Development Corp., who built Princeton Community Village.

Last Minute Hitch. Last Monday, only six days before the scheduled groundbreaking, HUD adjourned the PCH closing because a new lawyer was not satisfied with the lease agreement and wanted another resolution from Borough Council. PCH is leasing the Elm Road land from the Borough.

Mr. McCarthy and Mr. Schmierer drafted a resolution and took it to HUD's Newark office. It was approved Tuesday in time for a hastily called special emergency meeting of Council late Thursday afternoon.

At that meeting, Council passed the resolution. It states that the Borough will not sell the land for another purpose without a 60-day notice to HUD so they can find someone else to run the project.

PCH is receiving $4.5 million for the project, and will receive $740,000 a year in rental subsidy.



Commenting on PCH's three-plus years of work, Mr. Verdun, the HUD representative, told the audience that "after three years, you get your own filing cabinet."

BUSINESS

NEW MORTGAGES SET

At New Jersey National. Prospective homebuyers can choose the mortgage to suit their needs from among seven fixed and adjustable rate mortgages now offered at New Jersey National Bank.

A 30-year adjustable rate mortgage (ARM) provides for interest rate adjustments every one, three, or five years, depending on the customers' preferences. The interest rates are tied to the weekly average of the United States Treasury securities. The ARMs also feature a payment cap option which can restrict the monthly payment to a 7.5 percent increase following an interest rate increase.

The bank recommends that homebuyers ask about the "interest margin" which determines how high the interest rate can rise at each anniversary period (every one, three or five years). A low initial interest rate can sometimes mask a higher interest margin. In this situation, the homebuyer could end up paying more over the life of the mortgage.

New Jersey National also offers two fixed rate mortgages with maturities of 15 or 30 years and a "balloon" mortgage. The balloon is a three-year mortgage with monthly payments based on an amortization schedule of up to 30 years. At the end of the three-year period, the loan is either extended or refinanced.

ABOUT MCCC

At Chamber Lunch. The services provided to the business community by Mercer County Community College will be explained this Thursday at the monthly Chamber of Commerce luncheon to be held from noon to 1:30 at Scanticon-Princeton.

Rose C. Nini, dean of the Division of Continuing Education at MCCC; Walter A. Meyer, director of Training and Development and Richard T. Walsh, director of Community Education, will speak. Reservations may be made at 921-7676.

FOR WOMEN

Who Own Businesses. Workshops for women who own their own businesses will be given in April and May at Mercer County Community College as a follow-up to last year's New Jersey Women Business Ownership conference.

"The Basics for Doing Business from Home" will be taught by Kera Green Herzog, owner of a management consulting firm, and Marion Behr, co-author of "Women Working at Home" from April 11 through May 9 from 7 to 10 p.m. on MCCC's West Windsor campus.

Gail Silver will lead a 45-hour "Introduction to Business Orientation," which includes full-day sessions on Saturdays, April 14 and June 23 (including lunch) and workshops Tuesdays from 7 to 10 p.m. from April 17 to June 26. It is a comprehensive training course designed for women who are considering business ownership. Ms. Silver founded and owns a jewelry business in Lawrence Township.

Eva Ginsburg, industrial specialist with the Small Business Administration, will conduct a workshop on "Selling Your Product or Service to the Government" on Thursday, May 3 from 5:30 to 10.

Marilyn Thomas, coordinator of MCCC's Small Business Development Center, will lead business planning workshops starting Wednesday, May 2 from 7 to 10.

Registraton information may be obtained by calling MCCC at 586-4697.

LET'S TALK ABOUT

TREES NEED A SPRING CLEANUP, TOO!!! with Sam DeTuro
Woodwinds Associates
Spring cleanup of the garden is never complete unless it includes the trees. Mending broken parts of shade trees, dormant spraying and feeding can be done weeks before garden soil is workable, or a lawn is ready to repaired.
A look into your trees will show what major work needs to be done. Dangling branches left by winter winds should be pruned out. Dead and dying or unwanted limbs should be removed. And the same pruning will improve a tree by better branch spacing, giving new character to a tree which has grown out of bounds.
WOODWINDS advises that the singular most important phase of spring tree care is feeding. Feeding is a necessity in order to restore health to trees weakened by last year's dry weather and winter's cold.
A new found importance is being attached to a tree's root system, where so many tree ills originate. Rootlets or feeding roots are often torn loose by threshing winds and the wrenching action of storms. Hungry and thirsty buds soon will be calling for food and water. Unless a tree's roots are healthy and unless there is enough nutrient in the soil, the tree cannot attain optimum growth and health.
Call WOODWINDS (924-3500) for all your tree care needs.

THEIR TIME IS COMING: With winter finally disappearing, John Henderson, broker, Robert Tuschak, developer and Brian Moore, landscape architect, discuss the details of replanting more than 300 flowering dogwoods at Colfax, a new development near Bedens Brook. Mr. Tuschak has preserved nearly 200 of the dogwoods by transplanting them to temporary holding beds and them replanting them along the various borders and lot lines. Additionally, more than 100 Norway Maple, ash, oak, locust and red maples have been carfully selected and positioned throughout the area. Overlooking the Sourland Mountains, Colfax has 23 building lots, 10 of which have already been sold, and a five-acre park belonging to the homeowners.

Mr. Mills, who lives in Hopewell, has been with Short and Ford for six years and has a Bachelor of Architecture from Princeton University in addition to a Master of Science in Historic Preservation from Columbia University. As the firm's Historic Projects manager, he directed the restoration of the James Fenimore Cooper House in Burlington, which received an award in the 1983 New Jersey Society of Architects Design Competition. He also designed the restorations of the historic Senate and Assembly Chambers in the New Jersey State House, the Burlington County Court House and the Hermitage in Ho-Ho-Kus.

Roger Craig of Kendall Park has joined Adlerman, Click, the Princeton real estate firm, and will assist commercial and residential clients to locate and market their properties in the greater Princeton area. Mr. Craig has previously served the insurance needs of businesses and individuals. He has taught at Rutgers University and Rider College.

The Craigs, Roger and Nanette (also a real estate associate of Adlerman Click), have five sons. Mr. Craig has been active in youth athletic programs and has served on the Board of Education.

Elizabeth Thomas of Lawrenceville, assistant press secretary to Governor Thomas Kean, has been selected "Young Career Woman of the Year" by District 5 of the Business and Professional Women's Club (BPW). BPW is a national organization dedicated to promoting the interest of women in business and the professions. District 5 includes clubs in Mercer, Middlesex, Somerset and Union Counties.

Ms. Thomas, the candidate of the Princeton BPW club, also received an award for business and corporate achievement. Judges for the competition were Donna Satow of the Women's Newspaper, Joan Geberding of Nassau Broadcasting, and Harriet McCormick, president of McCormick Associates, an executive search firm.

Ms. Thomas earned a B.A. degree in English and sociology from Moravian College. She will represent District 5 in the competition for "State Young Career Woman," to be held during BPW's statewide convention at Harrah's in Atlantic City May 18-20.

PEOPLE in the News

In the preface to his new book, Freeman Dyson tells of the time a soldier in an airlines terminal helped him rinse out his baby daughter's bottle after a long flight back to this country from Europe.

"So was born the dream that the military establishment of my adopted country might serve a humanly comprehensible and ethically acceptable purpose," he writes. The book, Weapons and Hope, published this month by Harper and Row, is "an attempt to make the dream come true." Much of the work first appeared in four sections in the four February issues of The New Yorker magazine.

Prof. Dyson, a resident of Battle Road Circle, has been a professor of physics at the Institute for Advanced Study since 1953. Born and educated in England, he worked for the Royal Air Force doing operations research during World War II. Since that time, he says, he has been unable to stop thinking about the great human problems of war and peace.

Weapons and Hope is a "meditation, attempting to understand in greater depth that part of the human condition which involves nuclear weapons and nuclear strategies." In it he seeks to bring together--at least in understanding of each other's point of view--the hawks and the doves or what he calls the warriors and the victims.

John von Neumann, Robert Oppenheimer and George Kennan all figure prominently in this long essay as Prof. Dyson poses questions, describes weapons as they exist and as they are perceived by the public, studies man's involvement with weapons from an historical point of view, and examines seven strategic doctrines that have grown up around nuclear weapons. He tries to define a doctrine or way of thinking that "may offer the world hope of escape from the trap into which reliance on nuclear weapons has led it."

In the struggle to abolish nuclear weapons, Prof. Dyson believes the moral conviction must come first, the political negotiations second and the technical means will come third. He concludes his essay with a question. "The basic issue before us is simple: Are we, or are we not, ready to face the uncertainties of a world in which nuclear weapons have been negotiated all the way down to zero? If the answer to this question is yes, then there is hope for us and for our grandchildren."

The Princeton Coalition for Nuclear Disarmament, of which Prof. Dyson is a letterhead sponsor, also figures prominently in the book. He was invited to give a talk at the church-sponsored conference on the nuclear arms race in 1980 out of which the Coalition evolved. The talk, "In Quest of Concept," formed the nucleus of the book, and in the preface he thanks Dr. Wallace Alston of Nassau Presbyterian Church and the Rev. John Crocker Jr. of Trinity Church for the opportunity.

Prof. Dyson will not be speaking from Weapons and Hope when he again mounts the podium at Nassau Church on Sunday night to address the Coalition's Membership Gathering. But that talk, "The Cult of Obedience and the Cult of Destruction," will no doubt be another "meditation"--the ponderings of a theoretical physicist who reads Tolstoy and the Bible and The Oxford Book of Russian Verse and who is a consultant to the Defense Department and the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency.

—Barbara L. Johnson

Colleen Cosgrove of Princeton has been named program director for the Princeton Community Tennis Program, 71 University Place.

Previously, Miss Cosgrove was a director of women's and junior programs at the Hopewell Valley Tennis Center and in 1980 was a research associate for the United States Tennis Association. Before coming to the Princeton area, she taught and coached at James Madison University in Harrisonburg, Va.

Robert G. Flory, a student in applied physics at Stockton State College, Pomona, has been awarded a summer assistantship at the National Radio Astronomy Observatory in Greenbank, W. Va. He will assist in the installation and operation of receiving equipment for astrophysical research.

Mr. Flory has also been a tutor in physics and mathematics at Stockton, as well as a science laboratory assistant. He is the son of Robert and Eleanor Flory of 157 Shadybrook Lane.

Patricia M. Dinella, 220 Terhune Road, a Haverford College sophomore, has won the Archibald MacIntosh Award at the annual banquet of Beta Rho Sigma, a college alumni service society. The award recognized the outstanding student-athlete in the freshman class during the 1982-83 school year.

Ms. Dinella placed third in the 1983 Eastern A.I.A.W. Division III women's tennis tournament. She completed her freshman season with a 13-3 record as the Fords' number one singles competitor and was selected as the Most Valuable Player of the 7-2 team.

Elaine Murray of Princeton has been named quality control coordinator for Lehn & Fink Products Group in Montvale. She was previously employed in several companies in the the fragrance and chemical field, including Faberge and Halston.

In her new position, she will coordinate the production and approval of products and packages for the Tussy, Dorothy Grey, Ogilvie and Givenchy lines at Lehn & Fink.

Two Princeton residents have received honors grades for the fall term at Skidmore College, Saratoga, N.Y. They are Paulyne M. Peters, '84, daughter of Betty K. Peters of Princeton Junction, highest honors, and Barbara A. Short, '85, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Short of 3 Taylor Road.

Scott Chace, son of Dean and Sue Chace of Drakes Corner Road, scored 13 goals and had six assists in helping lead the University of Vermont lacrosse team to a spring-break three-game road trip sweep of Ohio State, Georgetown, and Lehigh. Mr. Chace set a UVM lacrosse scoring record last season with 35 goals. He is a Dean's list junior who is majoring in Economics and Russian.

Matthew W. Hallgarth, 4 Woodmeadow Lane, Princeton Junction, a junior at Baylor University in Waco, Texas, was named to the Dean's Academic Honor List for the 1983 fall semester.

Maureen Freda, a resident of Springfield, Va. and daughter of Ann Freda of Princeton, will be listed in the 1983 book of Outstanding Young Women of America in recognition of her work in organizing sporting events for disabled individuals.

Ms. Freda works at the National Hospital for Orthopaedics and Rehabilitation in Arlington, Va. For the past three years she has been spending a number of off-work hours organizing and officiating at local and regional wheelchair athletic events. This year she will serve as meet director for the Capital Wheelchair Invitational Games sponsored every fall by the hospital for which she works. In July she will serve as head statistician for the first Junior National Wheechair meet to be held in New Jersey.

In her spare time she sings with the Manassas Choral Society.

A number of Princeton area residents are involved in athletics with their respective college teams.

Ken Hallows, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Hallows, 351 Cold Soil Road, is a freshman at Brown University where he is a member of the tennis team. Last year, the Bruins set a school record for the most tennis wins in a season--14.

Hallows was a four-year letterwinner at Lawrence High and also lettered at Lawrenceville School. A co-captain at Lawrenceville, he was the New Jersey Independent School Sports Association winner of the third flight singles in 1981 and of the second flight in 1982.

Dan Kramer, a resident of Rocky Hill, has been awarded a varsity letter as a member of the wrestling team at Haverford College where he is a senior. A graduate of Montgomery High School, Kramer was a finalist in the National Merit Scholarship competition and is an English major at Haverford. He is the son of Penelope Schott.

The son of Dr. and Mrs. Leroy Hunninghake, 154 Dodds Lane, Leroy Hunninghake is a member of the Middlebury College lacrosse team, a perennial, nationally-ranked New England Division III power.

A senior, Hunninghake plays defense for the Middlebury team which will open its season in California as the first Eastern team ever invited to play in the Western States Lacrosse Tournament at Stanford University. He is a graduate of Princeton High School.

Pat Huckins of 56 Finley Road is one of four freshmen on the 1984 Lafayette College women's lacrosse roster. The Princeton High graduate plays defense for the Leopards, who have 10 of 12 starters back from last year's team which posted an 11-6 record.

Albert O. Hirschman, professor of social science at the Institute for Advanced Study, was awarded the Talcott Parsons Prize of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences at a recent meeting of the Academy in Cambridge, Mass.

The prize, which is given at irregular intervals "for excellence in the social sciences," is named for the noted sociologist Talcott Parsons, late professor of Harvard University. Prof. Hirschmann is the fourth recipient of the prize and the second member of the Institute faculty to be so honored; his colleague Clifford Geertz won the first award in 1974.

The title of Prof. Hirschman's speech on the occasion of the presentation of the prize was: "Against Parsimony: Three Easy Ways of Complicating Some Categories of Economic Discourse." Best known perhaps for his contributions to thought on economic development, Prof. Hirschman is the author of numerous books and articles on various topics in the social sciences. His most recent book, "Shifting Involvements: Private Interest and Public Action," published in 1982, was based on the Eliot Janeway Lectures he gave at Princeton University.

Anna Navarro, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Navarro of College Road, is a member of the women's varsity lacrosse team at Boston College where she is a freshman in the School of Nursing.

She is a graduate of Princeton High School where she played field hockey, lacrosse and track.

POLLSTER TO SPEAK

On Attitudes Toward Israel. The Adult Education Committee of the Jewish Center, 457 Nassau Street, will meet Sunday at 8 p.m. to discuss "Attitudes of the American Public toward Israel." The speaker will be Dr. Irving Crespi.

Drawing upon almost 50 years' experience with public opinion polls, Dr. Crespi will discuss how American attitudes toward Israel and Jews have changed since the 1930s.

Dr. Crespi, a recognized authority in public opinion research, now runs his own consulting firm in public opinion, policy, communications and marketing research. He currently has a grant from the National Science Foundation for a study of the accuracy of pre-election polls. He played an instrumental role in the American Jewish Committee's decision to monitor American public opinion regarding Jews and Israel. Refreshments will follow the presentation. The public is invited.

BULLETIN NOTES

Kathleen Rademaekers will present a program on "Liking Yourself Again" at St. Paul's School, on Monday at 8 for the Separated and Divorced Catholics Support Group. All interested persons are invited. For further information, call Pat Cleaves, 921-6863 (evenings) or Marjorie Gilbert, 924-2681 (daytime).

The Griggstown Reformed Church, will hold a Rummage Sale Friday, April 6, from 9 to 7 at the church on Canal Road, Griggstown.

Stuff-a-bag-for $1.50 will begin at 3. The sale is sponsored by the Women's Guild.

The Princeton chapter of Hadassah will hold a roller skating party Sunday from 4:30 to 6:30 at the Kendall Park rink. Prizes include gift certificates for area stores, video tape rentals, toys and games. Proceeds will benefit the Hadassah Medical Organization. Call Anne Kahn, 924-0632, or Linda Meisel, 921-0974.

A former Princeton resident, the Rev. Jane Henderson, will lead the service this Sunday at 11 a.m. at the Lawrenceville School Chapel. She is now a minister at Heavenly Rest Church in New York.

The Rev. Dr. George F. Regas, rector of All Saints Church in Pasadena, Calif., will preach Sunday morning at 11 at the Princeton University Chapel. Dr. Regas, co-chairman of the Interfaith Center for Reversing the Arms Race, will speak on "U.S.-Soviet relations in the arms race and the need for us to begin to risk in that relationship."

OBITUARIES

Ethel S. Brummer, of Whitehorse-Mercerville Road, died Sunday at Princeton Medical Center. Born in New York, Mrs. Brummer had lived in Princeton for more than 45 years before moving to Mercerville last year.

She and her sister co-founded the New York City Sunshine Nursery Day Care School for underprivileged children 60 years ago. She was instrumental in initiating and organizing the first summer ice skating program in Lake Placid, N.Y.

She is survived by her daughters, Mary B. Calkins of Santa Clara, Calif., and Joan R. Somberg of New York City; a sister, Margaret S. Bookman of New York City; and three grandchildren.

Memorial services will be held Sunday, May 6, at 2 at the Unitarian Church of Princeton. Arrangements are under the direction of the Mather-Hodge Funeral Home.

Contributions may be made to the Fund for Sunshine Nursery Day Care School, 2165 Randall Ave., New York, N.Y. 10473, or the New York Lung Association for Research, 22 E. 40 St., New York, N.Y. 10016.

Dora Eddy Close, 97, of Princeton, died March 31 at the Meadow Lakes nursing home in Hightstown.

Born in Sidon, Lebanon, Mrs. Close was a third generation member of a Presbyterian missionary family in Lebanon. She lived there until moving to Princeton in 1955 with her husband, the late Harold W. Close, a former dean and professor at the American University of Beirut.

Surviving are three sons, Ralph E. of Jacksonville, Florida; Arthur C. of McLean, Virginia; Raymond H. of Millwood, Virginia; nine grandchildren; and five great grandchildren.

A memorial service will be held Sunday, April 15, at 2 p.m. in the Nassau Presbyterian Church. Arrangements were made by the Mather-Hodge Funeral Home.

Patricia A. Blount, 32, of Princeton, died March 29 at Middlesex General University Hospital in New Brunswick after a lifelong affliction with diabetes.

Survivors include her mother, Marie Moffett of Princeton; her father and step-mother, I. Tipler Blount and Carol Robb Blount, both of Princeton; a brother, Barry B. Blount of Hopewell; two sisters, Catherine Blount Helmke of West Amwell and Tina Kline of Flemington; two step-brothers, Ridgely W. Cook Jr. of Myrtle Beach, South Carolina, and Buzby Robb Cook of Princeton; a step-sister, Sandra Cook of Hartford, Connecticut; and her paternal grandmother, Mrs. Quay Branton Blount of Albuquerque, New Mexico.

A memorial service was held at Trinity Episcopal Church under the direction of the Mather-Hodge Funeral Home. Contributions may be made to the Trinity Counseling Service, 22 Stockton Street, or to the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation, Surrey Drive, Belle Mead.

Helen G. Weasner, 63, of Pennington, died April 2 in Helene Fuld Medical Center after a long illness.

A resident of Pennington for 40 years, Mrs. Weasner was born in Newtonville, Mass., and graduated from LaSalle Junior College in Auburn, Mass.

She was a member of the First United Methodist Church of Pennington and served as a dispatcher for the church-affiliated service organization, FISH of Hopewell Valley. She was a former regent of the Penelope Hart chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Surviving are her husband, Albert O. Weasner; four daughters, Elizabeth Henninger of Pennington, Judith Akey of Eatontown, Sandra Princiotta of Hightstown, and Virginia Weasner, at home; a sister, Louise Osborne of Wayland, Massachusetts; and four grandchildren.

Services were held in Pennington, the Rev. James H. Biggs, pastor of the First United Methodist Church, officiating.

NEWSPAPER REPORTER

Town Topics will have a position open on its editorial staff for a full-time reporter, beginning June 1. Duties include the editing of news releases, coverage of meetings and events, and developing and writing feature stories.

A keen interest in Princeton, the surrounding area, and the events shaping its future is the first prerequisite. A solid background in writing is a must—previous newspaper experience and the ability to use a computer terminal would be helpful, but not essential.

Benefits include annual vacation and participation in profit-sharing plan.

Please send a complete resume, plus samples of your writing to Donald C. Stuart, III, Town Topics, P.O. Box 664, Princeton, NJ 08540. Interviews with qualified candidates will be scheduled, beginning in early April.

SOME JUICY LISTINGS...

THE GOLDEN EGG ON ROLLING HILL!

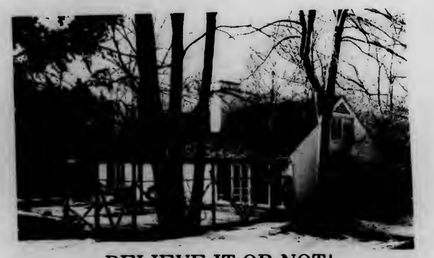
No play on words, but the name and location, of this extraordinary contemporary, Oriental in design, expertly executed, peaceful as a result! Built in 1972, young enough to be modern, and just old enough to have withstood the test of time, this extraordinary plan for our area captures the mood of another world and offers a restful oasis from daily living. All the windows open to the woods behind which form the artistic background for this open floor plan. A deck around half the house is actually another living room! For discerning people who appreciate nature and the opportunity it offers. $485,000

WHO WOULDN'T WANT WALLS OF WINDOWS?

A sea of daffodils will be the view in a few months from this outstanding Contemporary in the Western Section of Princeton Township. This architect-designed house, sited beautifully on 2.02 acres offers great privacy, quality materials used in construction, covered and uncovered terraces, bookcases galore, lovely pool, great storage -- all this plus, four bedrooms, three baths, library and WONDERFUL NEIGHBORHOOD. $380,000

IT'S McCOSH ... BY GOSH!

One of Princeton's most elegant condominiums, if not the most! Old world charm, tomorrow's conveniences blend in this tastefully restored, truly gracious two-story experience! High ceilings, intricate moldings, wonderful woods, interesting floorboards, circular staircase, many fireplaces including one in the reception hall. On Nassau Street with wonderful landscaping and really majestic. $335,000



A MARCEL BREUER HOUSE IN PRINCETON

This dramatic contemporary has been sited beautifully at the end of a private lane, totally secluded, although very close to town. A sweeping addition with solar qualities was added in 1981, blending with the original design to perfection. The house includes three/four bedrooms, three full baths, living room with dining area, breakfast room, 56 foot long conservatory with a sunken hot tub and wet bar, sun alcove, plant gallery, very workable kitchen, lovely gardens and fenced grounds. $450,000

HOW'S YOUR SERVE?

The tennis court that accompanies this really sleek contemporary will bring aces your way! A wonderful situation with a Princeton address in Hopewell Township ... perfect for the short drive to ETS, Western Electric, Mobil and Squibb! Divided into wonderful living spaces for a busy family, including a separate apartment area for a live-in or in-law! Wonderful woods, tiles and overall feeling. It's like Arizona living in Princeton! Gracious circular drive, and professional landscaping for privacy. $265,000

BELIEVE IT OR NOT!

This very comfortable contemporary cape is located in Princeton Township...near the Stuart School! It has four bedrooms, three full baths, study, fireplace, finished lower level for lots of fun, inground pool, self-cleaning oven, two-car garage and beautiful deck off the living room and master bedroom! Best of all, it's only $249,500! BELIEVE IT OR NOT!

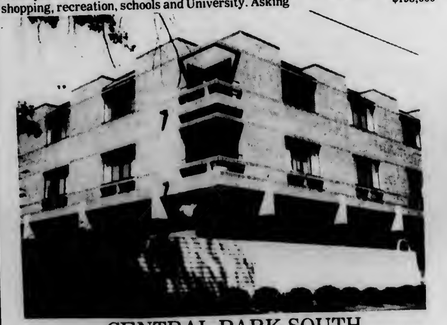
TROT ON DOWN TO GALLUP ROAD!

Sure...there's a great family house in Princeton...on a good-sized lot. No traffic to play in...but lots of space in the comfortable colonial. Living room, dining room, large kitchen with breakfast area, family room with fireplace, fifth bedroom or study, bath, laundry and screened porch. Tall trees, and a two-car garage. All for an asking price of: $275,000



HOW ABOUT A TWO-IN-ONE... FOR OLD AND YOUNG?

An extraordinary situation in Princeton Township...Built 22 years before its time by architects for home-office complex. Exceptional construction, durable, comfortable, inside area opens to flagstone patio. Contemporary design - a free flow of rooms on both levels, two fantastic brick fireplaces, full-glassed and awning windows throughout, kitchen with Glochar range a gourmet's delight. Four bedrooms plus huge studio upstairs, family room with fireplace plus two other spacious rooms for office or flat. Presently occupied as 3 bedroom apartment plus one bedroom flat with office, study/fp, and storage room. Walk to shopping, recreation, schools and University. Asking $195,000

DON'T GIVE UP CHARM FOR CONVENIENCE!

This Williamsburg Colonial oozes charm and has large fireplaces with beautiful appointments in the step-down living room, panelled family room/library, master bedroom and basement! Lots more, too, with a guest suite on the first floor, formal dining room, upstairs sitting room, 3½ baths, workshop, inground pool and beautiful terracing. Yet all conveniently located on prestigious Mercer Road in Princeton...for easy shopping, little driving and even a pleasant walk or two around the old Drumthwacket grounds! Asking: $285,000. PRICED FOR SALE!

CENTRAL PARK SOUTH COMES TO PRINCETON!

Sophisticated Living is available at MARKHAM ONE right on Princeton's very own Nassau Street! A two-bedroom, two bath luxurious apartment...in an elevator building...with a terrace...across from a park! Wonderful, care-free, easy...and affordable! Underground parking, too! $180,000. Please call a Henderson agent for the details!

LIKE A HOUSE THAT'S REALLY BEEN LOVED?

This open, light-filled colonial on Woodlane Drive in Lawrence has been just listed...and awaits its first appointment! Once it's seen, it will sell quickly because it offers lots of contemporary living. Ideally situated off Cold Soil Road in Lawrenceville with a fenced yard screened by trees, designed for lots of space and fun: wonderful, workable eat-in kitchen, a nearby family room with fireplace, separate utility room, formal living and dining rooms, of course. Upstairs features a sweeping master suite, four other bedrooms (one is a study) and two and a half baths in all. All the extras for comfort and protection. Come see it before the Open House. $168,500

Princeton's Continuing Education Program Attracts Older Students to the Scholarly Life

You've got a gray hair and a wrinkle you didn't have ten years ago. But the mind — except for a bit of rust, easily dusted off — is as smooth and sharp as ever.

Why not take a college course or two? Not just any college course, but one at Princeton University?

You'd love it, and they'd love to have you.

Although it does not lead to a degree, the University's Program in Continuing Education is a serious academic program. You don't just drop in and audit a course, cutting class when you feel like it.

It's the regular University curriculum — very challenging, very difficult, designed for the undergraduate or graduate students who will be sitting next to you in class, perhaps young enough to be your sons or daughters.

"It wasn't difficult to get back, academically," says a woman who was graduated 40 years ago from a top university. "It's lots of fun. The undergraduates are very interesting — and very tolerant of me! I've had some of them over to my house and we enjoy each other very much. I've never seen a 'generation gap' "

This spring, 24 women and 19 men are enrolled in the program; last fall, there were 29 women and 23 men. The University has a ceiling of 100 participants and would like very much to have more older students enroll.

Most of the students — 44 percent — are 21 to 30 years old; 30 percent are 31 to 40. There is only one 51 to 60, one over 60.

Dr. Cecelia Hodges Drewry, who runs the program, will hold an Information Meeting next Monday from 5 to 6 in Bowl 6 of the Woodrow Wilson School, Washington Road. All those who are interested are invited to come. Deadline for application: May 10. Call 452-5001.

"You're treated just like everyone else," Dr. Drewry explains, "The regular students may not even know you're special, and sometimes they're taken aback to realize you're older. We've found that Continuing Education students enjoy working with the undergraduates, and are able to contribute a lot to classroom discussion from their own life and experience."

A soft-speaking person, gentle yet enthusiastic, Dr. Drewry is the one who will interview you, if you decide to apply. A committee makes the final recommendation and has actually rejected only two or three applicants.

A CONTINUING SCHOLAR: Sister Hilda Carey, a religious of The Sacred Heart, is studying in Princeton University's Continuing Education program. Sister Carey, on leave from her teaching assignments, is taking graduate courses in literature and an undergraduate course in religion.

You'll need official transcripts of all the academic work you've done beyond high school, and the results of any standardized tests you've taken, like SAT, ACH, CLEP or GRE. In addition, you must submit two letters of reference commenting on your work in specific detail.

Tuition is $1235 per course. So far, there is no scholarship aid.

But those grades from long ago — do they make you squirm a little? And what about your SAT scores from 1959? And that year when you almost dropped out, you were so bored?

"If your grades are poor, and you graduated a long time ago," Dr. Drewry says, reassuringly, "we ask 'Why?' Maybe you just weren't interested. We look at your experience since leaving college — what have you been doing? what other courses have you taken? are you working at a responsible job?

"But sometimes, in the interview, you'll be told, gently, not to. And if you are very busy, we don't encourage you, either."

Strict Screening. This initial screening is very strict, she warns, although now and then, a student will come along who needs tutorial help. So far this semester, by the way — no failures.

Her years of academic experience give Dr. Drewry a sensitivity to the student — young, or not so young. On the University's staff for 14 years, she taught a course in black American literature at Princeton while she was still associate professor of speech and drama at Douglass College. Then she taught in Princeton's English department, became assistant dean of the college, headed a board of advisors for freshmen, set up a sophomore advisory program and ran it for several years, and has been in charge of Continuing Education since last fall. Her doctorate is from Northwestern.

"You need an identifiable interest so that we can perceive your strengths," Dr. Drewry explains. "This is not for dilettantes."

What does motivate these older students?

A tally shows that 39.5 percent are taking courses as a kind of dry run before making formal application for admission to undergraduate or graduate status. The same percentage is studying for reasons related to a career. Only nine percent indicate "personal interest" as the reason.

The Corporate Man. "We have a lot of men in industry and the corporate world," Dr. Drewry reports. "They are research-and-development types studying astrophysics, or some kind of engineering, for example.

"One student is an employee of the Princeton University Press who was editing a book by a Russian scholar and wanted to improve her Russian.

"A secretary in one of our administrative offices had always spoken Italian at home, but wanted more formal work in the language, so she started right at the beginning, with Italian 101. Did all the home-work, took the tests.

"Sometimes a student dropped out of another college and needs only one or two courses to complete a degree there. If the student lives in Princeton, it's easier to take the courses here."

Sister Hilda Carey, a religious of the Sacred Heart, was given a year's leave by her order and chose to study at Princeton because she discovered that it's one of the few "academically motivated" universities that allow older students to take regular courses.

An ebullient lady who has taught English in various Sacred Heart institutions for 28 years, eight of them in the Orient, Sister Carey is taking two courses in comparative literature at the graduate level. She's also in an undergraduate religion course on the Gnostic Gospels. Last semester, she took graduate-level courses in modern drama, modern poetry and the 19th-century American novel.

Heavy Reading Load. "The amount of reading was very hard to get used to and my eyes rebelled!" Sister Carey found. "I go into Firestone Library at 8 in the morning and read straight through to lunch. I couldn't do that at first, but I got new glasses and

MEANWHILE, BEHIND THE IRON CURTAIN ... Penelope Reed, in what is surely one of the memorable costumes of all time, reads her lines to an alarmed Gerald Lancaster, in McCarter's farce about backstage life back of the Iron Curtain. It's "At This Evening's Performance," at the theatre through April 15. (Cliff Moore Photo)

When McCarter Theatre Makes a Mistake In the Selection of a Play, "It's a Beaut!"

One hates to knock the final play of an otherwise spendid McCarter Theatre Company season, but "At This Evening's Performance," which opened last Friday, struck this reviewer as tiresome, despite some funny lines, a visually attractive production, and the always happy experience of going to a handsome, convenient old theater and seeing friends and neighbors in the audience and on stage.

To make the reviewer's job more painful, this play — the first real disappointment in four seasons of Nagle Jackson's Artistic Directorship — was written, as well as directed and selected for production, by Mr. Jackson — which, if our estimate of it is correct, puts him in a position to say with the late, great New York mayor Fiorello LaGuardia, "When I make a mistake it's a beaut!"

The beaut behind him, Mr. LaGuardia continued on to greatness, and we look forward with great expectations to Mr. Jackson's next season.

As local newspaper readers must know, "ATEP" has to do with a troupe of professional actors touring a mythical iron curtain country called Strevia, playing, or overplaying, the classics. They are drawn into violent politics because one of them — the others don't know which — belongs to the local democratic underground and is conveying coded messages to fellow revolutionaries in the audience through one line in each evening's performance. (Or is it only certain performances?)

The secret police uncover the plot, learn what the line will be "at this evening's performance," and will have a hit man in the audience to pop whichever actor speaks it.

The actors know one of them

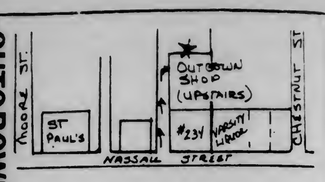
And Now — Triangle!



"Revel Without A Pause." That's this year's Princeton University Triangle Club production, booked into McCarter Theatre for an April 26 opening night. It will play through Sunday, April 29 and again Friday and Saturday, June 1-2.

Written, produced and performed by Princeton undergraduates, the show is a musical comedy that pokes fun at leisure and recreation. And it features, but of course, the traditional all-male kickline.

The advance says it "promises to be an energetic display of dance, music and comedy which integrates the talent and enthusiasm of 60 cast members."

Miriam Fond will return, after a year's absence, to direct her second Triangle show. She did "Stocks and Bondage" in 1982. Choreographer will be a newcomer — Eddie Wright, who did the current revue "Legs," now in the Rainbow Grill at Rockefeller Plaza.

will be shot; but, not knowing the trigger line, don't know which it will be. (Wouldn't it have to be the revolutionary?)

There are romantic, or at least sexual, subplots — various members of the five-person company carrying on with one or more other members — but the main story is about the impending rubout; and this is one of the play's three serious flaws.

Farce Must Be Simple. A farce, which this basically is, can accommodate one implausible plot device IF it is a simple one, quickly swallowable as the kind of nutty thing that just might happen in unpredictable real life, especially in a place like Strevia.

But, as you may have gathered, Mr. Jackson's plot device is far from simple. In fact it is so horrendously complicated it never stops nagging the mind. One thing a farce cannot afford to do is keep the audience's critical faculties on edge. Moreover, this plot, instead of seeming rooted in real life, bears the clear stamp of something devised by a clever author to set up a great comedy scene.

A second flaw is that the characters of "ATEP" are the creatures and not the creators of the plot; puppets, not people; neither self-directed nor self-propelled, they render some of McCarter's finest actors tiresome in their mindless fulminating and charging about the stage.

Flaw three is that Mr. Jackson tries to exploit both the daffy absurdity and the political reality of his story. Again, nothing wrong with laying some weight on a comedy IF the comedy is strong enough to carry it. But this one is not, despite those funny lines and some amusing parodying of Shakespeare. The resulting effect is of an embarrassingly incompatible marriage — or a vaudevillian trying to get an exit hand by waving the flag.

Overplaying Is Tiresome. Barry Boys, a fine actor and farceur happily remembered for many McCarter roles, is the troupe's leader. If there is an interesting or amusing way to play this fatuous character, Mr. Boys and his usually ingenious comedy director have not found it. Underplaying might help. The overplaying it gets is — well, tiresome.

Penelope Reed as his cheating and cheated upon wife is great to look at in her flamboyant costume, and at moments she does bring the leading lady to a forlorn kind of life. But in general her formidable talents are wasted, as are those of Stacy Ray as the sexy ingenue, Greg Thornton as the young leading man, Robin Chadwick as an older actor, Gerald Lancaster as a Charles Addams-like stage manager, and Jay Doyle as the Minister of Culture who would make this company Strevia's State Theatre if they would agree to perform his own plays, an offer they nobly refuse. Small flourish of the artistic-integrity banner.

Elizabeth K. Fischer's messy backstage setting is realer than anything in the script, and the set on which the actors perform their slug-dodging number is fine, as are Emelle Holmes's seedy-gaudy costumes, and Richard Moore's lighting.

As always, you are urged to see the play. This assessment of it may be wrong: quite a few first-nighters seemed to be laughing and enjoying themselves. This is a show people may be talking about for some time, one way or another. Do you want to be left out of the conversation?

—William McCleery

Mention of CTU

Creative Theatre Unlimited is cited in the new edition of a textbook for teachers, "Creative Drama in the Classroom", by Nellie McCaslin, teacher in the program in educational theatre at New York University.

The author mentions "on location" history-dramas like CTU's workshop series in which young students took the parts of historic persons at Port Mercer Canal House, the Kuser Farm Mansion and the State Museum in Trenton, each the site of events in New Jersey history.

The drama group is also praised as an example of "generous sharing of space." CTU has offices in Trinity Church and has also held workshops in McCarter Theatre and the historic locations mentioned above.

'GIN GAME'

McCarter on the Road. First stop: Cranbury. McCarter Theatre will open its 1984 Spring Tour with a presentation of "The Gin Game" Friday, April 27 at 8 in the auditorium of Cranbury School. Sponsor is the Women's Club of Cranbury.

In D.L. Coburn's Pulitzer-winning comedy, the game of gin rummy, endlessly played by two old people on the back porch of a nursing home, becomes a metaphor for the games we play with our own lives.

Those familiar with the play feel that the playwright has infused so much tender detail into the comedy that "The Gin Game" becomes not only an examination of luck and losing, winning and responsibility but a gentle examination of life in an Old Folks' Home.

Robert Lanchester and Penelope Reed, two members of McCarter's resident acting company, portray the two players. Set and make-up have been kept to a minimum so that the script itself may star.

The performance will benefit the Women's Club scholarship fund which provides interest-free loans to girls in Cranbury who are going to college.

Ticket price is $10. Reservations may be made by calling 655-5361 after 5 or 655-3725 or by mailing a check made out to The Women's Club of Cranbury to the club, 4 Pine Hill, Cranbury, N.J. 08512.

'TEAMWORK'

In Dance Recital. The Princeton modern dance company known as "Teamwork" will perform this Friday, Saturday and Sunday at 8 at the Art People Place, including four new dances in the program.

One of the new works has been choreographed by Mary Pat Robertson, one of Teamwork's two directors, to Bach's French Suite Number Four. Pianist Marianne Lauffer of the Westminster Choir College faculty, will provide the accompaniment.

Another new dance is "Fais Comme Si," three duets to music by Edith Piaf choreographed by Robertson and Janell Byrne with sets by Laura Clark.

John Watson Stewart, Teamwork's other director, has composed a new group piece, "Block and Tackle," to music by the Talking Heads, and an Irish duet for himself and Robertson.

Dancers, in addition to the above, are Greg Nacozy, Pam Fabri, Mark Brown, Susan Guerrera, Ellen Inkellis MacDonald, Steven Myers and Nancy Thiel, and Janell Byrne. Lighting director is Dale Wilcox.

THOSE JAZZMEN FROM PRESERVATION HALL: They must think Nassau Street is Bourbon Street by now — they've been coming to Princeton every year for the past 15. As usual, clarinet Willie Humphrey who celebrated his 84th birthday in December, will lead the band. Colleagues in Dillon Gym on Saturday, April 7, will all be familiar because they've been here before: Percy Humphrey on trumpet (age 79); Marvin Henry Kimball on banjo (age 75); Frank Parker on drums (68) and the two juniors: Frank Demond on trombone (51) and the baby of them all, Allan Jaffee on tuba. He's only 49 and is the founder of P. Hall. Tickets at McCarter.

"Once Upon a Mattress" and the Princeton Opera Association will do Gilbert and Sullivan's "H.M.S. Pinafore" August 9-11, 15-18.

The season will conclude with Encore Theatre Productions' "Oliver!" August 23-25, 29-31 and September 1.

Details may be obtained by writing the Washington Crossing Association, P.O. Box 86, Titusville, N.J., 08560.

ABOUT WITCHES

"Vinegar Tom." A play about witches, written today but set in the 17th century, will open Thursday, April 12 at Princeton University's Acting Studio, 185 Nassau. Curtain time is 8.

The play is "Vinegar Tom," by Caryl Churchill, author of "Fen" and "Cloud Nine." The Acting Studio's production will continue April 12-14 and 19-22.

The action focuses on several women whose neighbors suspect them of being witches, and on the professional "witch finder" called in by the villagers to help determine the guilt of the accused.

Director Carol Elliott, faculty member of the Program in Theatre and Dance, producer of the play, is particularly interested in why so many suspect witches were women. She asks whether similar factors today create a different kind of witch and "who are the witches now?"

Reservations may be made at 452-3676.

DANCE CONCERT

By Daniel Lewis. Four works will be danced by the Daniel Lewis Dance company in a free concert to be given next Wednesday at 8 in the 185 Nassau playing space of Princeton University's Program in Theatre and Dance.

The company specializes in dances choreographed by New York artists, and will present works by Doris Humphrey and Anna Sokolow, among others.

other two, to be danced Wednesday, April 11, are "Scribble" by Peter Pucci, and a work by one of Pilobolus' founders, Moses Pendleton. It is "Stabat Mater," to music by Vivaldi.

The balance of the Wednesday program will include "Molly's Not Dead," "Untitled" and "Bonsai." On Monday and Tuesday, the company will also dance "Day Two" to music by David Byrne and Brian Eno.

Standing room only remains for Monday and Tuesday. There are a few seats for the added Wednesday program.

James May, a member of the University's dance faculty, is a resident dancer with the company.

'LIANNA'

At the Movies. Set in a New Jersey academic community "not far from New York" which has never been identified, the movie "Lianna" is the second low-budget feature from John Sayles, the New Jersey director who made "Return of the Secaucus Seven."

"Lianna" will play Kresge Auditorium, Washington Road, next Monday through Wednesday at 7:30 and 9:30 each of the three nights. It's on the Movies-from-McCarter circuit.

Faculty wife and mother, Lianna leaves husband and children for a lesbian relationship with a woman faculty member. The director focuses on each character's response: the stony silence of the children, husband's anger, uneasiness of Lianna's women friends. In the end, she finds "happy self-acceptance as a homosexual."

Because of its subject matter, "Lianna" is for adult audiences only.

FROM PILOBOLUS

Three, New to Princeton. When the Pilobolus dance troupe comes to McCarter for its biennial engagement next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, it will bring along three works new to Princeton audiences. Performances are at 8.

"Mirage," one of the newcomers, is set to music by Egberto Gismondi and Don Cherry and will be danced Monday and Tuesday. The

'84-'85 SEASON SET

By New Jersey Symphony. The New Jersey Symphony Orchestra will give four concerts in the Trenton War Memorial in the 1984-85 season.

Associate conductor George Manahan will conduct two of the concerts; the other two will be led by guest conductors Maxim Shostakovich and Henry Lewis. Mr. Lewis is a former music director of the New Jersey Symphony, which is still seeking a permanent music director.

Guest soloists in the Trenton series of the 1984-85 season will include violinist Miriam Fried playing the Beethoven Violin Concerto in D Major, Rudolph Firkusny in the Brahms Piano Concert No. 2 in B-flat major, and Bella Davidovich playing the Beethoven Symphony No. 3 in E-flat major. Works by Wagner, Bartok, Stravinsky, Schumann, Janacek, Hummel and Chopin will also be performed.

Subscription series tickets are available from the New Jersey Symphony Orchestra box office, 213 Washington Street, Newark 07101. The box may be reached weekdays 9-5 by calling (202) 624-8203 or, toll free in New Jersey, (800) 631-3407.

VIOLINISTS TO PLAY

At Princeton Day. More than 300 young violinists from the age of 3½ to early teens will participate in a Suzuki violin spring festival from 8:30 to 5 this Saturday at the Princeton Day School. The participants will perform concerts for the public at 11:30 and 4:30.

Some of the children will play one-sixteenth size violins while the most advanced students will play standard violin repertoire including the Bach Double Concerto and Handel sonatas.

The festival has been organized by area teachers and officers of a consortium of Suzuki teachers: Louise Topp, president; Mary Anne Walker, secretary; Barbara Greenberg, treasurer; and Carlette Winslow, coordinator of the festival.

Two special events will be held and repeated for different groups of children. Marjorie Harrington of "Marjorie's Music" from Kendall Park will present a puppet show entitled "The Chinese Nightingale." Charmaine Cave, a specialist in eurythmics, will have several sessions with the older children in the afternoon.

VIOLIN CONCERT SET

In Woolworth Center. Sandra Goldberg, violinist, with pianist, Elizabeth DiFelice will give a concert Sunday, April 15 at 3 in the McAlpin Rehearsal Room at Woolworth Center on the University campus. Sponsored by the Friends of Music, admission is free.

A graduate of the Peabody Conservatory and the Eastman School of Music, Ms. Goldberg is currently Principal Second Violin of the New Haven Symphony and Concertmaster and soloist of the Chamber Orchestra of New England. Elizabeth DiFelice a graduate of Oberlin College and SUNY at Stony Brook, is a member of the piano faculty at Princeton.

The program will be: Beethoven, Sonata in A Major, Opus 30, No. 1; Bartok, Sonata No. 2; John Cage, Six Melodies for Violin and Piano; Faure, Sonata in A Major, Opus 13.

FACULTY TO PERFORM

At Westminster. The faculty recital series of the Westminster Choir College's Conservatory begins this Saturday at 8 p.m. with Laurie Altman presenting a trio of original compositions for voice at the Playhouse on the Choir College campus.

Mr. Altman will perform a soprano and piano composition with singer Sharon Alexander. A musical fantasy for children will be sung and narrated by members of the Westminster Choir.

Pianist Marion Zarzeczna will perform Sunday at 4, also in the Playhouse, in a program featuring music by Bach, Beethoven, Schubert, Brahms, and Chopin. Miss Zarzeczna's concert career includes performances throughout the United States and Europe and radio broadcasts over the Voice of America.

SOPRANO, BARITONE

In Concert. Soprano, Judith Nicosia and baritone, Alan Seale will give a concert on Saturday at 8:30 in the McAlpin Rehearsal Room at Woolworth Center. Sponsored by the Friends of Music, with assistance of the Composers Guild of New Jersey, admission is free.

The program will include six songs by Charles Ives sung by Mr. Seale and five songs by local composer, Frank Lewin, performed by Miss Nicosia. The two singers will join forces in presenting 10 songs on poems by William Butler Yeats by Francis Golia.

Judith Nicosia is pursuing an active career that combines voice teaching at Westminster Choir College and at Rutgers University with singing in the major concert halls of New York City and across the country. She was most recently heard in Princeton as soloist with the Westminster Symphonic Choir and the Princeton University Orchestra's performance of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony.

Bariton Alan Seale made his operatic debut in the Opera Theatre's production of "Cosi fan tutte" last December. A native of Kentucky, he came to Westminster Choir College in 1977 to do graduate work, and in 1980 joined the voice faculty there. Mr. Seale has appeared in recital in New York, Washington, D.C., Kentucky, Tennessee, and New Jersey.

15TH SHOW PLANNED

By Barbershop Singers. The Princeton Chapter of the Society for The Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America will present its annual show at the Trenton War Memorial on Saturday, April 15.

The theme this year will be "Take Your Sweetheart to the Movies," and the Barbershop Singers will present song hits from famous movies. There will be two performances, a matinee at 2 and an evening performance at 8, followed by an optional "afterglow" with refreshments.

A portion of the proceeds will support the Institute of Logopedics which provides therapy for children who suffer speech defects as well as adults whose speech has been impaired as a result of strokes. This service project is the inspiration for a Society theme song which proclaims, "We Sing That They Shall Speak."

Tickets at $5 for the matinee or $6 for the evening show may be ordered by calling 924-0565. They may also be purchased the day of the shows at the box office.

HUMMEL WORKS

At Choir College Concert. The New Brunswick Chamber Orchestra, John Eric Floreen, conductor, and the Westminster Oratorio Choir, Allen Crowell, conductor, will present a free concert on Friday at 8 in Bristol Chapel on the campus of the Westminster Choir College.

The featured work will be the Mass in B-flat by Johann N. Hummel (1778-1837), composed in 1804 shortly after Hummel began his duties as music director-composer at the Esterhazy Court near Vienna, Austria. The work is scored for mixed chorus and a small orchestra. The concert will also include works by Ives, Vivaldi and Mozart.

TWO WORKS PLANNED

For Milbank Concert. The Princeton University Chapel Choir, under the direction of Prof. Walter Nollner, will present its annual Milbank Memorial Concert in the University Chapel on Sunday afternoon, April 8, at 2:30 p.m. Admission is free and the public is invited.

The Monteverdi Magnificat for six voice-parts will begin the concert and will be conducted by the assistant conductor of the Chapel Choir, Clark Anderson. Mr. Anderson is also assistant conductor of the Princeton University Glee Club, University Organist and a graduate student in the Woodrow Wilson School. The organ will be played by graduate student Curtis Lasell, Principal University Organist.

The program concludes with the "Missa Sancti Nicolai" by Haydn. Written in 1772 and scored for two oboes, two French horns, strings and organ, plus chorus and quartet of soloists, this particular mass has long been noted for the lyric beauty of many of its movements, in particular the opening "Kyrie" and the resumption of the same music for the closing "Dona nobis pacem."

The soloists will be members of the Chapel Choir. The chamber orchestra accompanying the Haydn will be made up mostly of Princeton University students, all members of the Princeton University Orchestra.

HANDEL AT SEMINARY

'Brockes Passion'. The Princeton Theological Seminary Chapel Choir and Chamber Singers will present Handel's "Brockes Passion" Monday evening at 7:30 in Miller Chapel.

The choirs and orchestra will be directed by David A. Weadon, director of music at the Seminary. Guest soloists are Thomas Farraco, singing the part of the Evangelist, Frank Reen as Peter, Rand Hix as Jesus, and Winifred Livesay, the Daughter of Zion, with other soloists from the Chapel Choir.

Based on biblical accounts and the poetic text of German poet Barthold Heinrich Brockes, The Passion story is the eighth in the series of Musical Offerings 1983-84 presented by the Seminary. The performance is open to the public at no charge.

For additional information call 921-8300, ext. 247.

CHRISTIAN MUSIC

In Contemporary Vein. A contemporary Christian music concert will be held on Saturday, April 14, at 8 in the Playhouse on the Westminster Choir College campus. The concert is an informal presentation of up-tempo, popular music sung by Choir College students with piano or guitar accompaniment.

The students will be joined by Larry Gaines, a professional contemporary singer. The concert is a non-classical approach to music, centered on a Christian theme.

FLUTIST TO PERFORM

Sunday in Ewing. Carol Wincenc, flute, will play this Sunday at 8 at the Jewish Community Center located at 999 Lower Ferry Road in Ewing Township.

As at her last season's performance, which played to a standing room only audience, the flutist will be accompanied by a pianist. Admission is $6 for members and $7.50 for non-members and includes a coffee and cake reception to meet the musicians.

A 20th anniversary benefit concert by Lois Shaffer, pianist, will be held Saturday, April 28, at 8 p.m. The $10 admission, which is tax deductible, will enrich the the Jewish Community Center concert series piano fund. For information call 883-9550.

MUSIC CLUB MEETS

Kazdan To Sing. The Princeton Music Club will meet next Wednesday, April 11, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. McKim Norton to hear Eleanore Kazdan, mezzo-soprano, in a group of Schubert songs, accompanied by pianist Shirley Batchelor.

Other performers include Nora Stoner and Lynne Pendergast in pieces for flute, solo and duet; Selma Ehrlich, soprano, in songs by Paul Hofriter, accompanied by the composer; and Patricia Arden, pianist, in two movements from the Concord Sonata by Charles Ives.

HAYDN TO MENOTTI

At Westminster. Kathryn Olson, soprano, will be featured in a recital on Sunday at 5 in Bristol Chapel on the Westminster Choir College campus. Ms. Olson, a graduate student at Westminster, is a student of Judith Nicosia.

Stephen Peet, a graduate accompanying major, will accompany the recital which will include a wide variety of musical styles, from Haydn to Menotti. Mark Zaki, a member of the faculty for the Westminster Conservatory, will play violin.

CHAMBER MUSIC SET

At Unitarian Church. The Quartet Montage will conclude its chamber series at the Unitarian Church Sunday, April 15, at 3 p.m.

The musicians will perform Beethoven's "Archduke" Trio, the Berg opus 5 pieces for clarinet and piano, and the Schoenberg Kammersymphonie, opus 9, with guest artist Susan Rotholz. Tickets will be available at the door: $6 general admission, $3 students and senior citizens.

THE WORLD SIMPLIFIED

In Kemble Works. When you leave the exhibit of Richard Kemble's prints and drawings at Full House Gallery in Kingston, and head south on Route 27, it almost seems as if you have happened upon a Kemble designed setting. The simple shapes that are formed by the lake and its environs look like nothing so much as the artist's renderings of similar subjects. The edge of the lake curves away gently, the shoreline forms complementary horizontal movements and the trees at the water's edge offer simple vertical contrasts — all in all, a pleasing composition.

After looking at Kemble's work, you see the world differently. A visit to the collection cannot help but heighten a viewer's awareness of the lyrical abstractions that are part of every landscape — arrangements of volume, color and rhythm as nature creates them.

Kemble's prints simplify life. Flowers, trees, mountains and lakes are reduced to their most basic forms. The color, often almost-real, is used imaginatively in passages of flat, rich hues that are muted by the effects of rich papers and the use of techniques that make the color seem mellow and the silhouette soft. The world that Kemble creates in his prints, and in the collection of pastel drawings that is also included, is a good example of less being more.

Figurative sculpture in the classic mode by Jean Pasley represents the other side of the artistic coin. The bronze, plaster and terra cotta figures are faithfully rendered, accurately capturing the softness of surface and the nuance of silhouette. There is an elegance in the directness of statement in these works that is enhanced by Pasley's deft handling of her materials.

LYRICAL ABSTRACTION: Richard Kemble captures the pictorial essence of the landscape in a collection of simplified color prints and pastel drawings on display at Full House Gallery in Kingston.

Abstracts at ETS. Lucille Paris' abstract paintings are more about thinking than looking. Sleek, professional looking oils, acrylics and watercolors employ intense, if limited, color, in combination with a few simple visual counterbalances. In some cases, imagery is restricted to four squares, close in hue, on which a scattering of dots is employed to break the stark geometry. In others, visual interest depends on activity created by the use of impasto surfaces that combine texture and color.

The total affect is minimal and, at times, one could wish for more. Since these works are, essentially, based on understated relationships, there is frequently more to think about than to look at.

At the Art Museum. A small collection of Spanish old master drawings and prints includes the work of Goya, Murillo and Ribera, together with quite a few less familiar names. And, it almost seems as if the works of the three masters are there as a form of contrast. While there is no doubt about the merits of the entire display, the eloquence and skill to be seen in both the Goya and Ribera make their companions seem pale by comparison.

The incredible tonal richness of the Goya etchings, for example, sets a standard that few other printmakers could meet. The same is true for the velvety, even aquatints and the great depth created by the pure, clean areas of light that contrast dramatically with the well developed darks.

Work by Ribera, including several red chalk drawings, is equally impressive. There is an exquisite delicacy in the deftly rendered lines and subtle value changes. Facial details for example, are eloquently articulated using crosshatch that is so fine that the lines almost disappear.

Also at the museum, a collection of photographs by Ekioh Hosoe — a leading contemporary Japanese photographer — presents life as art. Hosoe describes his work as an "attempt to catch the human drama." And, Nobuya Yoshimura notes in the catalogue that these are ... "near mad, extremely high voltage products of passion and genuine ... creative madness."

Images from several series include erotic photographs, those that are surreal in concept — complex combinations of symbols and figures — and some that present the erotic on a surreal setting. There is even an architectural photograph from the series focusing on the work of Gaudi, that presents a ceiling detail in a near-erotic manner that intensifies its voluptuous character.

Most moving, however, are the photographs that grew out of the photographer's unhappy childhood memories of life outside the city during World War II. Here, landscape and figures are combined, often in strange but extremely evocative combinations that easily convey Hosoe's feelings.

Photos at McCarter. The Princeton Art Association's Juried Photography exhibit nicely displays the diversity of style characteristic of this

Annex Restaurant

"Locally owned and operated by Henry and Louis Carnavale"

Established 1950

Fine food, drink, and atmosphere is a favorite topic of conversation, for it speaks a universal language. At the ANNEX RESTAURANT in Princeton, located at 128½ Nassau Street (at the corner of Tulane and Nassau Streets, downstairs), phone 921-7555, food and drink is more than just a topic of conversation, it is a most enjoyable reality. This outstanding establishment has become a favorite gathering place for particular people who know and appreciate the best.

The Carnavale Brothers have recently revitalized the decor and fine atmosphere, making the ANNEX one of the finest restaurants in this area, not only for their regular customers, but for their future customers to enjoy as well. Of course, they feature all the classic Italian and American cuisines. They also have a lovely cocktail lounge and private dining rooms with facilities for dinners and parties.

The editors of this 1984 Business Profiles Review heartily recommend the ANNEX RESTAURANT to all our readers. Remember, if you appreciate outstanding service and really good old world Italian and traditional American food and drink served at the peak of perfection, we suggest you drop in soon and enjoy hospitality at its best. That's at the corner of Tulane and Nassau Streets, downstairs (across the street from the Firestone Library). Call 921-7555 for a great dining experience!

Chiropractic Life Center Of Plainsboro

"Specializing in Chiropractic care for the entire family"

No profession has made greater and more rapid strides in recent years than that of Chiropractic. The efforts and results are being recognized by more and more people each day as is best evidenced by the steadily increasing number of people who are turning to chiropractic as means of treatment.

Chiropractic has been successful in treating conditions such as low back pain, headaches, migraines, neuritis, bursitis, whiplash, arthritis, and shoulder pain, along with other musculo-skeletal problems and multiple vertebral subluxations.

The unusual success of chiropractic, its doctors claim, lies in the fact that it goes to the root, the cause, of the trouble and then takes immediate steps to remedy the cause.

They state that the nervous system is so constructed that it leads to and conveys life to every distant part of the body. If there is the slightest interference in the spine with the balance of this delicate nervous system, complications are bound to set in which will cause pain and distress.

Dr. Mark B. Schulman Chiropractor, is located at the CHIROPRACTIC LIFE CENTER OF PLAINSBORO, 503 Plainsboro Rd., Plainsboro, phone 799-4300 today for an appointment or 24 hr. a day emergency service.

It has often been said that with the help of a chiropractor you can add life to your years and years to your life.

Estate

"Your Landscaping & Tree Specialists"

Your home and property are the most valuable things you own, so don't trust them to anyone but the best. In the Princeton area, your landscaper of choice is ESTATE, phone 896-9022.

The experts here will help you formulate a step by step plan to make your home or business property more beautiful and more valuable.

Unlike so many other landscapers, owner Kyle Nylander is a trained plant biologist. He'll put the same personal care into the proper planting selection and landscape design you would yourself. His expert advice can be invaluable.

For instance, did you know that, when done properly, landscaped shrubbery can keep your house warmer in winter and cooler in summer?

And did you know that many landscapers offer lower bids by purchasing lower quality plants? ESTATE uses only healthy flowering, evergreen and deciduous plants that have been crossbred and hybridized to resist disease, so that years from now your investment will be safe.

ESTATE helps you save money where it counts by economically planning improvements to exactly fit your needs and with the proper maintenance, including fertilizing, seeding, tree pruning, topping, feeding, bedcare, bark mulch, lawn care and emergency services.

The editors of this 1984 Business Profiles Review commend this company for their integrity and high standards in service and products, and suggest you let ESTATE handle all your landscaping and tree needs.

Hahn Electrical Contracting

Arthur E. Hahn - Electrical Engineer

"Over 15 Years Experience"

City and county ordinances affecting electric wiring of all buildings and homes are definitely stringent. The purpose, however, is evident. Many disasters, fires and home accidents are the result of defective wiring by homeowners or tenants who have neither the knowledge or the expertise in electrical wiring and are not aware of the dangers involved. For these reasons, it is imperative that everyone needing electrical wiring insist upon the services of a competent, licensed and insured electrical contractor who is qualified to do the work.

HAHN ELECTRICAL CONTRACTING, phone 466-1313, is a local, insured, licensed electrical contractor. Few persons in this line of work can boast of over 15 years of competent and skilled service to the residents and business concerns of Princeton and vicinity. HAHN ELECTRICAL CONTRACTING has established an enviable reputation throughout the entire field of electrical contracting and has proven worthy of the faith and patronage of our people. They specialize in rewiring on new or existing homes and buildings. For all your electrical problems, whether industrial, commercial or residential wiring, see HAHN ELECTRICAL CONTRACTING first.

The editors of this 1984 Business Profiles Review recommend HAHN ELECTRICAL CONTRACTING to all our many readers. Call them today at 466-1313. HAHN ELECTRICAL CONTRACTING would like to take this opportunity to wish prosperity to all during this new year.

medium today. The collection is varied and the quality of the included work is high. People, architecture and landscape, and still life are among the subjects that are carefully examined.

Two of the exhibited works, however, win this reviewer's nomination to share the top prize — an award that should, but doesn't always, reflect a fresh point of view and creative approach. "Pears," a still life in color by William Vandever, is everything a fine photograph should be and then some — beginning with concept and ending with print quality. And, "Museum Guard" by Richard H. Williams is a fine and a witty bit of photojournalism; one that is well conceived and entertaining at the same time.

'TRIO ON WHITE': This oil, by Princeton artist Eli Dimeff is included in the exhibit of Dimeff's works now in the office of architect Andrew M. Sheldon, 14 Nassau Street. The exhibit may be seen during 9-5 business hours.

YESS TO SPEAK

In Art Series, Mary Yess, executive director of the Princeton Art Association, will lecture this Saturday and Sunday and again Saturday, April 14, in the "Weekends at Ellerslie" program of the Trenton Artists Workshop Association. Talks will be at the Trenton City Museum, Cadwallader Park, Trenton.

The April 7 workshop will be "Drawing Techniques." On April 8, Ms. Yess will lecture on "Landscapes in the Romantic Period" and on April 14 will lead a workshop in "Painting Techniques on Paper."

Saturday workshops begin at 9:30 a.m. and there is a $5 fee. All Sunday lectures are free.

TO AWARD PRIZES

In Carrier Festival. Four prizes in each of four categories — oil, watercolor, print, sculpture — will be awarded during Arts Festival '84 sponsored by the Carrier Foundation Auxiliary. Festival dates are April 27-28, with an opening Friday, April 27 at 6 (reservations 201-874-4000).

Judges will be Eli Dimeff, artist and instructor; Jeanne Pasley, painter and sculptor and Florence Wender, printmaker and co-founder of The Printmaking Council of N.J.

Details are available by calling 201-874-4000, ext. 329

AND THE CLOISTERS

In PAA Trip. Museums in the upper reaches of Manhattan are on the itinerary of the Princeton Art Association tour on Tuesday, April 10. An afternoon at The Cloisters is included.

Participants may choose from these museums: The Hispanic Society of America at Broadway at 155th Street, which has works by Goya, Velasquez, El Greco, Sorollo and artifacts of Spanish culture; The Museum of the American Indian, also at Broadway and 155th Street which has decorative and functional objects from North, Central and South America and a large museum shop, or the Morris-Jumel Mansion, 160th Street and Edgecombe Avenue, a 1765 house — second oldest building in New York City — and noted gardens.

At the Cloisters, Medieval branch of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, tour participants will have a one-hour lecture tour starting at 1. Tour charges and admission to The Cloisters are included in the trip fee. There will be time to explore The Cloisters before the return trip starts at 3:30.

The bus will arrive at the Acme side of the Princeton Shopping Center at 8:15 for boarding, leaving at 8:30. The fee is $22 for those who do not belong to the PAA and $18 for members. Participants should take lunch as there are no restaurants near or in the museums.

Reservations, accompanied by check, may be sent to the PAA, Rosedale Road, Princeton, N.J. 08540.

DISCOVER PRINTS

In Printmaking Classes. "Discoveries in Printmaking," a new series, has been added to the schedule of spring classes at the Printmaking Council of New Jersey, Somerville. The series, to be held Saturdays from 9:30 to 1:30, is designed as an introduction or an alternative to a six-week course.

Mini-workshops will be given in papermaking (April 28); lithography (May 5); drypoint-etching (May 12); woodcuts (May 19); embossing-collograph (June 2) and monoprints (June 9).

For children, a Saturday morning "Discoveries" series will start with rubberstamps (May 5); papermaking (May 12); monoprints-found objects (May 19) and silkscreen (June 2).

Regular clssses, starting April 16, will be given in silkscreen, intaglio techniques, lithography and photo processes. For details, call 201-725-2110. The Council studios are in North Branch Station, five miles west of Somerville off Route 22.

EXHIBITS

Avant garde art works by Dorothy Gillespie, Irma Holland, Po Kim and Sylvia Wald will be on view at Full House, in Kingston from this Sunday (reception, 4-6) through May 3. Gillespie's metal ribbon constructions; Holland's detailed scenes of houses; Kim's vivid pencil-pastels and Wald's constructions and sculpture will be on view.

Paintings and drawings by Robert and Bruce Gherman and bronze, stone and wood sculpture by Kris Sendra and Sunny Wilson will be at Art Masters of Princeton, Spring Street, from Sunday, April 15 (reception: 2-4) through May 12.

The Ghermans, who own the gallery, take a classic, traditional approach to their paintings. Both sculptors served apprenticeships at the Johnson Atelier.

Landscapes, still-lifes and people by Eli Dimeff, Princeton artist, are now on view (through May 1) at the 14 Nassau Street office of architect Andrew M. Sheldon. A judge in the forthcoming Carrier Foundation show, the Princeton artist is represented in the current Ellerslie show in Trenton. He teaches at the YWCA, Art Masters and Adult Education programs for West Windsor.

Abstract scientific photographs by Charlotte Raymond will be on view through April 22 at The Squibb Gallery, Lawrenceville Road.

The Princeton Community Homemaker-Home Health Aid Service

The HOMEMAKER-HOME HEALTH AID SERVICE of Princeton, phone 799-0069, is one of those in-home health and social services of which we are able to speak in the highest terms. This non-profit group of skilled para-professionals has played an important part in the better health of the community for 25 years. As you might expect, their services are available 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, to fit your needs. Their Homemaker-Home Health Aides are New Jersey certified and RN supervised.

Through all periods of economic fluctuation this service has always been ready to serve the best interests of the people of this area. They are accredited members of the New Jersey Home Care Council and the Princeton United Way, so you can be sure that the personalized care they offer is a source of pride and genuine satisfaction to the staff of THE PRINCETON COMMUNITY HOMEMAKER-HOME HEALTH AID SERVICE.

A business of this kind is essential to the entire section. By skilled professionalism THE PRINCETON COMMUNITY HOMEMAKER—HOME HEALTH AID SERVICE has gained the confidence and patronage of the people of this community.

We, the Editors of this 1984 Business Profiles Review, would like to take this opportunity to recommend them for their service to the area since 1959.

Christensen Roofing, Inc.

David Christensen and John Healey - Owners

"Serving the Princeton area for 10 Years"

A good roof is an all-important factor in the protection of your building investment. A firm well known in Mercer County for high-quality installation and maintenance of all types of roofs is CHRISTENSEN ROOFING, INC. located at 184 Carter Road in Princeton, phone 921-1277 or if no answer, 924-7737.

The professionals at CHRISTENSEN ROOFING, INC. stand by their work. They feature modern single ply maintenance-free roofing for commercial and industrial applications, and a great variety of asphalt shingle roofs for residential customers.

Your roof represents only about three percent of your building investment, so it is said. Yet, its value is out of all proportion to its cost; for a roof acts as a guardian of your building and all its contents.

Just as you take inventory of any possessions periodically so you should check up on your roof. Let the roof specialists at CHRISTENSEN ROOFING, INC. examine your roof. They may find that it is in good condition, ready for many years of protection, in which case they'll be happy to tell you so. They may find defects that can easily be remedied but which, if neglected, might soon dangerously weaken your roof. Or again they may discover that your roof is so badly worn that it needs a new covering to protect it and to prevent a costly leak.

For a roofing contractor with a reputation for integrity, competence and experience in the Princeton area, call CHRISTENSEN ROOFING, INC. at 921-1277, or 924-7737 if no answer. They do the job right at CHRISTENSEN ROOFING, INC.

Orthotic and Prosthetic Affiliates

Robert Manfredi C.P.O. & Mort Levy C.P.

Through the years the people of the entire state of New Jersey have come to depend on the community minded and specialized efforts of the ORTHOTIC AND PROSTHETIC AFFILIATES at 239 Broadway in Long Branch, phone (201) 222-0366 for service in all areas of Orthotics and Prosthetics.

They employ American board certified Orthotists and Prosthetists who have had formal training and practical experience in the science of properly making and fitting various aids to people who need them. You will find them always friendly and understanding and willing to help you no matter what special or individual attentions you might need.

In addition to using advance video gait analysis and audio sensor prostheses, the 1984 Business Profiles Review would like to point out to our readers for the second year in a row that ORTHOTIC AND PROSTHETIC AFFILIATES has done great research in developing a soft socket made from flexible materials.

With over 650 patients in the state of New Jersey using this unique method, even the Medicare program has authorized payment for it. This means an exciting, new, comfortable life for the patient. Only a few companies throughout the U.S. are even using this method.

We, the editors of this 1984 Business Profiles Review, suggest that if you should have need for anything in the line of orthotic and prosthetic devices to contact this reliable company today. Their experience in this field will help guide you to a happier life. We are proud to give our wholehearted endorsement to this outstanding community minded company.

The public is welcome.

The Hopewell Chapter of Deborah will hold a bake sale Friday during banking hours, 9-3 and 6-8 at the Princeton Bank in Hopewell. The holder of a lucky ticket will receive a three-layer German chocolate cake made from a famous recipe.

The Gay Alliance of Princeton and Gay Women of Princeton are sponsoring several events under the theme "Gertrude Stein Week," a week of cultural events designed to educate and entertain gay and straight about the talents, accomplishments, thoughts, and feelings of gay men and women.

On Thursday at 7:30 a film, "Before Stonewall," a history of gays in America before 1968, will be shown in McCormick 101. Greta Schiller, creator of the film, will speak on "The History of Gays in Cinema.

This will be followed by dramatic readings at 9 by Creative Writing Professor J.D. McClatchy, author Vincent Virga, and poets Alfred Corn and Honor Moore reading from their own fiction and poetry. They will also read from a piece for four voices adapted from the work of Gertrude Stein by Ms. Moore.

On Saturday, Ricky Garcia '79 will speak at 7:15 in the Murray-Dodge Basement Cafe on "The Unimportance of Being Gay." There will be music to follow, by Tom Harshman '85 playing the piano and Mark Guenette '85 singing. There will be a dance Saturday from 10 to 2 at Terrace Club to which everyone is welcome. Admission is $3.

"Nutrition and Weaning" is the topic of the next meeting of La Leche League of Princeton on Wednesday, April 11, at 9:30 a.m. at the Family Resource Infant Center (corner of Nassau and Vandeventer). The discussion will include suggestions about nutrition for nursing mothers and their families, as well as information about weaning the breastfed baby. For more information, call 921-2923.

The Princeton Senior Citizens Club will meet at the Chestnut Street Fire House on Monday at 1:30 p.m. A representative of the Bell Telephone Company will address the group. A representative from Princeton High School will also address the club regarding a program being initiated to allow seniors to audit regular high school classes. Refreshments will be served.

A free public introductory lecture on the Transcendental Meditation program as taught by Maharishi Mahesh Yogi will be held on Wednesday, April 11 at 8 p.m. at the Unitarian Church, Room One. For information, please call 448-4822.

The Central New Jersey Parkinson Support Group meeting will be held on Wednesday, April 11, at St. Lawrence Rehabilitation Center, I-95 and Lawrenceville Road. Ann T. Crystal, a registered nurse, will speak on "The Impact of Chronic Illness on the Family."

The next cycle of the Support Program for Families of Stroke Patients, scheduled to begin on Monday at the Merwick Unit of the Medical Center, has been cancelled. The entire program will be offered again at a later date.

The West Windsor Lions Club will hold its annual fertilizer sale on Saturday, April 14, at Lucar Hardware in Princeton Junction.

The Lioness Club of Princeton will meet next Monday at the Nassau Inn. The board meeting will be at 6, cocktails from 6:30 to 7 and dinner at 7. Mrs. Leona Hodge will preside over the meeting. The guest for the evening will be Rev. Kervel of the Crisis Ministry.

The Central Jersey Group of the Sierra Club will meet on Wednesday, April 11 at 8 in Guyot Hall, Room 220, on the Princeton University Campus. The meeting, which is free and open to the public, will have as its topic "Scenes and Stories from Along the Appalachian Trail," described by Don Fortunato and Keith Robinson.

IT'S NEW To Us

SURE SIGNS OF SPRING

At Edith's. Despite the lion-like weather of March, the surest sign that spring fashions are not far away from reality is found in Edith's Lingerie Shop window at 30 Nassau Street, where alluring intimate apparel in lovely spring pastels is tastefully displayed.

Pink is one of the favorites at Edith's this month when women of all ages come to find the well-designed lingerie and a good fit, so essential for the right look under spring silks and summer clothing. A multitude of bulges can be hidden under winter wools, but everything shows during the warmer months which is why Edith Zuckerman, owner of the shop, insists on a perfect fit. Her inventory is selected for women of all ages, sizes and shapes, whether it be a young teenager buying her first bra or a woman who has just been through a mastectomy.

HANDSOME HOSTESS: Step into lovely flowing gowns, robes and lingerie of silk and crisp cotton in soft spring pastels seen at Edith's Lingerie Shop on Nassau Street. Owner Edith Zuckerman has an exquisite selection of the finest intimate apparel, including handsome hostess gowns such as this one and bathing attire with cover-ups to match.

Edith's experience in the lingerie business goes back many years, beginning in her native Hungary and continuing through design school in Vienna, where she learned to construct brassieres and bathing attire.

"But I love people more than the drawing board, so I always wanted to open my own shop," explains Edith, who has been retailing for 35 years. She had a shop on Chambers Street until 1979 and then moved to her spacious quarters on Nassau Street. Anyone who has stood in line wasting precious shopping time in the department stores' lingerie sections will appreciate the professional service and tranquil atmosphere of Edith's.

The international influence — hand-embroidery, delicate laces, pure silks, and sensational couture designs to please the romantic — is ever-present this spring at the lingerie shop.

A luxurious purchase or gift would be one of the imported French creations, such as a pure silk salmon slip or a set of ivory silk satin tap pants, bikini, camisole, or half slip with beautifully embroidered lace. A Chinese handkerchief lace camisole and half slip by Iris, or perhaps a livelier set of matching bikinis, bras, and garter belts for the more youthful figure, are among the selections.

The alluring lacy teddy is seen in several styles and colors this spring, many constructed with sufficient support for a fuller figure. These could be a special intimate gift for a birthday, anniversary or even Mother's Day. Romantic gifts abound at Edith's — slivers of silk nighties cut on the bias, negligees, even a lace corset, the height of coquettery!

Many women prefer 100 percent cotton lingerie. A matching camisole and bikini, with a tiny rose for decoration, are by Hanro of Switzerland who also designs the elegant silk long underwear for winter. Other items of interest in the foundation department include: the backless long-line bra, perfect under summer dresses; a braslip by Olga which is elasticized to the waist; and an all-lace stretchy teddy which offers a good deal of support and looks terrific. Spring colors include: navy, pink, lavender, yellow and of course black, an important color this summer according to the fashion magazines.

Short and long nightdresses in cotton voile and lace by Iris will catch the eye, as will the pink, blue and white classics by Lucie Ann. Gorgeous silk-like gowns in pale blue or pink by Eve Stillman, including one with buttons for the nursing mother, are trimmed in lovely Chinese lace. Pink and lavender tulips are printed on a stunning white nightie, a pretty gift.

There is not a woman in Princeton who would not appreciate a new nightie, robe or hostess gown this spring — ideal gifts for Mother's Day. Look no further for a wide selection of elegant yet reasonably priced ones at Edith's. An all-cotton print wrap robe with black or white background by David Brown is a good buy. Summer pastels and prints (several animal ones) and silky caftans, for cool chic summer evenings, are machine washable and can be dried in the gentle cycle.

The kimono is still a popular item because it travels well and is so cool. The white satin tailored wrap seen in the shop will go over any nightdress in the perfect classic look, ideal for trips.

Many of Edith's hostess gowns can double as beach cover-ups this summer, such as the black crinkle cotton one or any number of summer pastels with zippered fronts. Terry jumpsuits and long or short thick terry robes in several colors are always useful at poolside or at the beach. They last for years!

Edith has expanded her swimsuit department to include several alluring maillots or blouson styles with matching pantaloons, skirts, and jackets. Prints of khaki and white, black with a red and green criss-cross, checkers and stripes are flattering when combined with cover-ups to be worn anywhere all summer. Women who have undergone surgery will be happy to know that Edith has some handsome bathing attire for them as well.

The bridal season will soon be upon us. Gifts for her trousseau are a delight to behold. Short and long pegnoires of silk in pastels and traditional white are as lovely as those made by hand for young brides years ago. Lace and dotted Swiss, or the handkerchief lace will tempt the shopper and her mother. Go to Edith's for a breath of spring.

HAPPY WITH BOOKS

Titles Unlimited Owner. Art Keusch, owner of Titles Unlimited, is a happy man. His enthusiasm for the book business is contagious for his customers as well as his staff.

"I've been in the book business for 23 years and I love it! I can't think of anything I'd rather do," says Mr. Keusch who claims to have had every job imaginable in book stores, from "sweeper to shipper to janitor to receiver." It is all fun according to the owner of two shops in this area, in the Princeton and Montgomery shopping centers, but he especially enjoys looking for obscure books for his customers.

ENJOYING BOOKS: Steven Boynton, manager of Titles Unlimited in Rocky Hill, shares some humorous moments with the shop's owner, Art Keusch, whose business includes wholesale work with schools and libraries in the area. A discount bookstore, the Book Cellar, next to the Music Cellar below the Titles Unlimited in the Princeton Shopping Center, is a new addition.

Titles Unlimited's customer needs include quantity orders for both public and private schools in the area and libraries. Special ordering and customer-oriented service are top priority for this company. The Rocky Hill store is ably managed by Steven Boynton and the Princeton store is run by Judy Tass.

"I'm not worried about any competition in town because I know the business so thoroughly that I feel we can give the customer better service," explains Mr. Keusch, who initiated an incentive program for shoppers, the 750 club, where $7.50 coupons are given after purchases reach a certain amount.

A new Book Cellar, located downstairs below the shop in Princeton, next to the Music Cellar, competes with discounted prices elsewhere. Remainders, closeouts, and out-of-date print specials are terrific values and surely worth several hours of browsing.

Princeton author Steven Schlossstein was autographing his new book "Trade War" at a party in his honor last weekend in the Princeton shop. Several such occasions celebrate new books, including Dr. Pat Carrington's "Releasing," a book on stress.

Gardening books are popular and abundant at Titles Unlimited this spring. While the snow melts, enjoy reading "Wildflowers of the World," "Theme Gardens," a how-to book on planning and growing 16 different gardens, "Low Maintenance Gardening" (good for those who would rather play tennis!) and "Crockett's Victory Garden," to mention a few.

New best sellers are always available in the shops. Andrew Greeley's "Lord of the Dance," a biography by E.B. White, Robert Ludlum's "The Aquitaine Progression," and Barbara Tuchman's "March of Folly" are among the selections.

Travel vicariously or in reality with the numbers of pictorial or travel books on almost every country in the world, available at Titles Unlimited. Jill and Leon Uris' "Ireland, a Terrible Beauty" or Richard Kraus' "An English Forest," are recent choices.

Titles Unlimited has the finest assortment of children's books in town, the classics and the latest innovations such as the new musical books which when opened play tunes as the child turns the pages. "Old MacDonald" and "Twinkle, Twinkle" will delight the budding reader. Pop-ups and the long skinny ABCs and "I Am a Bunny" would make nice Easter treats for small children as would the forever popular Richard Scarry books. Babar, and Maurice Sendak's creative books for children such as "In the Night Kitchen," "Outside Over There" and "Where the Wild Things Are," play out and minimize a toddler's fears.

Gifts for graduation such as the hundreds of handsome reference books and dictionaries or the splendid New York Times hardcover Atlas of the World will solve the shopper's dilemma.

TIGERS SPLIT WITH PENN

Yale, Brown to Play Here. A split in a doubleheader doesn't go very far to improving a team's record, but if it does no worse than that against each opponent in Eastern Intercollegiate Baseball League play this spring, the Princeton baseball team will have improved considerably.

It's been several years since it finished at or above the .500 mark in EIBL competition.

The Tigers won one and lost one against Penn Sunday afternoon, and found themselves tied for first in the league, as no other team could do any better. Saturday's twinbill with Columbia was postponed until this past Tuesday afternoon, because of wet grounds.

This weekend, weather permitting, the Tigers will finally get an opportunity to open their home season with a pair of league doubleheaders on Saturday and Sunday, beginning at 1. Yale will provide the opposition on Saturday and Brown will be in town Sunday.

Coach Tom O'Connell had a good chance to sweep a pair against a good Quaker team last weekend, but his team could not hold on to a 4-0 lead early in the first contest. A single tally in the first and three more in the second gave the Orange and Black that advantage, but the home team scored four of its own in its second to tie.

The lead changed hands three more times with a homer by Dan Arendas giving the Tigers a 7-6 advantage in the sixth. However a seven-run outburst in the bottom of that inning put the Red and Blue on top for good. Bill Beard started for the Tigers, with Steve LaForest, John Buchanan and Mike DeNoia all pitching in relief. LaForest was tagged with the loss, his first.

Princeton had only one extra base hit, a double by Todd Tuckner, among its seven hits. One encouraging note, the Tigers were charged with just one error in each game.

In the nightcap, hurler Ed Aulisi was staked to a 6-0 lead after four innings, but that almost proved not to be enough. Penn scored once in the fifth, twice in the sixth and once more in its last at bat, to make it a 6-4 final. Aulisi got the outs when he needed them most, however, and won his second game in as many starts, limiting Penn to just four hits.

Sophomore third baseman Harry Kolowrat had the big hit of the contest, a bases-loaded triple in the Tigers' five-run third inning. Rick Edie stroked a double and a triple.

PHS NINE IMPRESSIVE

In Opening 9-2 Win. "We had the heavy artillery out today," commented Princeton High baseball coach Ed Beacham, after he had watched his team pitch and bat its way to an impressive, 9-2 opening win over Lawrence Monday.

The Little Tigers banged out 11 hits, including a two-run triple by first baseman Jim Opperman, another triple by Jason Petrone and a double by Mike Petrone. On the mound, Gavin Hulsman turned in a strong complete game, striking out seven and limiting the Cardinals to four hits, two in the final inning when they scored their only runs.

"For a first game, I was really pleased," said Beacham. "We hit the ball well and even the kids who got out hit the ball hard. That was our big nemesis in the past; we would strike out eight or nine times every game. We only had two strikeouts this game."

The Little Tigers will try to keep the string going when they entertain Trenton High this Wednesday at 3:45. Saturday they will be at newcomer Tom River South High for a 1 p.m. contest and on Monday they will be at Nottingham High.

After going out in order in the first inning, PHS scored all the runs it would need in the second when Mickey Carenvale stroked a leadoff single — the first of three in four at bats — and Jason Petrone got on by way of an error. Sophomore centerfielder Marvin Trotman then advanced both with a single, and Opperman's triple scored the first two runs of the game. Opperman then scored on a passed ball.

The Little Tigers added single runs in the fifth and sixth frames and plated four insurance runs in the seventh.

It was a big day for the entire PHS lineup: Dino DiAngelo walked twice and scored two runs; Mike O'Connor singled and scored a run; Mike Petrone contributed two hits and two RBIs; Carnevale had his three hits and scored three runs; Jason Petrone tripled and scored a run; designated hitter Derek Martin (for catcher John Blankstein) had a hit and a run scored, as did Trotman, while Opperman was 2-for-3 and two runs scored.

The game was scheduled to be played in Princeton but was switched to the Cardinals' diamond at the last moment because of wet grounds.

"It was a good way to start," summed up Beacham. The game doesn't count in the Colonial Valley Conference standings but it does in the Little Tigers' overall record. "We'll take it," said Beacham.

LAWRENCE BLANKED

By PHS Netmen. The Lawrence High tennis team which fashioned a fine 16-7 record last year and returned its three top singles players from that squad was blanked, 5-0, Monday by Princeton High — a reaffirmation of why all the coaches in the area have made PHS the unanimous choice to repeat

Here's an amazing fact about a current big league baseball player, Rod Carew ... Did you know that Carew has hit over .300 every season for an incredible 15 CONSECUTIVE YEARS ... Carew has batted over .300 every season in the majors from 1969 through 1983.

While some big league baseball teams change managers almost every year, did you know that the Dodgers — amazingly — have had only five different managers in the last 45 years! ... The only Dodger managers since 1939 have been Leo Durocher, Burt Shotton, Charley Dressen, Walter Alston and Tom Lasorda.

One of the strangest things that ever happened in a major golf tournament happened in the 1968 Masters when the winner was decided — NOT on the golf course — but at the scorer's table! ... Bob Goalby and Roberto DeVicenzo tied for first but DeVicenzo mistakenly signed the wrong scorecard which knocked him out of a playoff against Goalby ... The Masters championship was then officially given outright to Goalby, even though he had only tied for the title.

as Colonial Valley Conference league champions.

Jacob Leschly, Princeton standout singles player, routed Ken Richter, 6-0, 6-0, in the first singles, and younger brother Mark Leschly almost duplicated his older brother with a 6-1, 6-1 victory over Bryan Martin. Freshman Bruce Ellis triumphed in the third singles — shortened when Raleigh Chu had to default because of cramps. Ellis had won the first set, 6-1, and was leading 5-4 in the second, when the match was halted.

In the only close match of the day, Princeton's first doubles tandem of Rob Dunham and Mike Elliott outlasted the Cardinals' Mark Petchel and Dave Loyak, 7-6, 2-6, 7-6. Matthew Mack and Brett Van deBovenkamp then made it a sweep with a 6-1, 6-0 victory in the number two doubles.

The Little Tigers' second match will be Monday at Nottingham High School.

NAVY TURNS THE TABLES

On Tigers in Lacrosse. The Princeton lacrosse team scored a big upset victory over Navy a year ago, and the manner in which it was achieved perhaps encouraged the Midshipmen to turn the tables last Saturday.

Last year Coach Jerry Schmidt's team trailed Navy 10-4 at the end of the first half, but rallied in the final two quarters to post an outstanding 14-12 triumph. This spring the two schools reversed those roles.

The Orange and Black emerged from a low-scoring first half at Annapolis clinging to a 3-1 lead, but was trampled in the third period, allowing six unanswered goals by the home team. Navy built a 7-3 advantage during that span, and eventually won, 9-5, as each team scored twice in the final quarter.

John Donovan led Princeton's attack with a pair of goals; Rick Kirschner, Jerry Rizzieri and David Chang each tallied once. Otey Marshall started in goal for the Tigers and made five saves; he was replaced in the third period by Chris Corcoran who made two. Navy's Steve Nims blocked 12 shots.

With their record now at 1-3, the Tigers will begin league play against Yale this Saturday at 2 p.m. on Finney Field. Already 0-1 in league play this season with a loss to Brown, the Elis haven't won an Ivy contest since 1982. They were last in the league a year ago with an 0-6 mark, finishing 5-10 overall.

The competition will get considerably more difficult next Wednesday, April 11, when Princeton travels to Philadelphia to play Penn. The Quakers, who tied Cornell for the title a year ago, are off to a fast start this spring with two wins.

Tiger Crews Win. Princeton's lightweight and women's crews enjoyed a fine day on Lake Carnegie Saturday, winning every race.

The lightweights swept two varsity and one freshmen contest from Drexel, all by wide margins. The first varsity boat won by 23 seconds, finishing in 6:36.4; the second varsity's winning margin was 40 seconds, and the freshmen won by a margin of almost 50.

The women similarly had little trouble leaving four Rutgers shells far behind. The winning margin of 8.5 seconds in the first varsity race was the smallest, as the women won in a time of 5:15.8.

.500 SEASON IS GOAL

Of Hun Lacrosse Club. "Right now, we're shooting for .500 or better and I think it is well within our reach."

The speaker is Hun School lacrosse coach Dave Faus who guided the Raiders to a 4-8 season last year -- his first as head coach. Because of the poor weather conditions, the team has had no real preparation, Faus admitted, for the start of the season.

Hun was scheduled to open this week against St. Joseph's, a newcomer to the schedule. It will entertain George School in its next start Saturday at 2:30.

The outlook for this year? "It's a little hard to tell," responded Faus. "I have been impressed with the way we've been practicing. It's an intense group but we're pretty young. This team," added Faus, "has the potential to be surprising."

Another aspect that will help Hun reach that .500 goal is the dropping of two bigger schools from the schedule -- Bridgewater East and Fairlawn. "The schedule is more competitive," agreed Faus.

Leading a thin group of returning veterans are Chris Goodyear, a Princeton resident, who was a starting attackman and captain John Selasko. A defenseman, Selasko is a four-year starter who, Faus reported, is being heavily recruited by colleges.

In front of the goal will be Stephan Babin, a former defense player, who spent part of his summer at a lacrosse camp working out with All-American goalies. "He looks pretty good," said Faus.

Others include senior Jim Lomker, a transfer student from Highland Park, junior Buzz Walsh, a middie, and Greg Savidge who will probably earn a starting berth as a freshman, said Faus.

"We have a lot of new faces and it should be an interesting season," predicted Faus. "We're trying a few things defensively and we might surprise a few teams.

REGISTRATION AHEAD

For PYBA Baseball. Registration will be held soon for the 1984 season of the Princeton Youth Baseball Association.

Registration for the program wil be held on Sunday, April 29, and on Saturday, May 5, from 12 noon to 2 at the Community Park Fields. The registration fee of $15 per child includes playing time, a Saturday morning instructional clinic, use of uniform, a team cap to keep when the season is over and a team photo.

There are two leagues, A Minor League for 8-10 year-olds is instructional with an emphasis on teaching and developing individual and team skills and learning good sportsmanship.

The Major League for 11 and 12-year olds is more structured, more advanced, although the emphasis remains on learning basic skills and sportsmanship.

The PYBA has announced that it will continue its Saturday morning instructional clinic which is designed to give individual instruction and practice in any phase of the game where a player may be experiencing difficulty.

In addition to teaching basic skills, the PYBA believes that it is equally important to learn the values of respecting an opponent, accepting an official's decision and learning fair play, cooperation, leadership and self-control.

All games are played Monday and Thursday evenings starting at 6 at the Community Park ball fields. For further information, call Clark Lennon at 924-7242 or Doug Davis at 921-2362.

STARTING LINEUP SET

For Hun Baseball Opener. Despite the weather, which raised hob with his pre-season schedule, Hun baseball coach Bill McQuade has named his starting lineup. Hun was scheduled to open the season this week against West Windsor High School in Plainsboro and will play its home opener Friday at 3:45 against Hopewell Valley. Tuesday Pingry will be here for another 3:45 contest.

McQuade nominated veteran Richie Stout to start in the first game. Tim Landis will be behind the plate, Ted Bransfield at first, Brad Mumme at second and Owen Cane at third. Returning veteran Lorenzo Mendoza is the probable starter at short -- provided, McQuade revealed, he is fully healed from a sprained ankle injury. If not, he will go with freshman Nick Miller, who had an excellent ball game in last week's only scrimmage against Lawrence High.

Patrolling the outfield will be seniors Pete Stam, Joe Scandariato and sophomore Rick Brenner.

McQuade reported that he had been pleased with his team's performance against Lawrence, in contrast to a scrimmage the previous week against Montgomery High. The pitching was excellent, McQuade said. Stam hurled the first four innings, allowing a couple of hits, while Bransfield pitched the next two, yielding one hit. Sophomore Tom Jingoli, described by McQuade as the probable fourth pitcher on the squad, finished up and was the victim of some fielding errors.

The Raiders also hit the ball well, reported McQuade, who added, "I'm not worried about that."

As for the weather, which has left fields saturated and coaches frustrated, McQuade commented, "It's hurt every team in the area, no doubt about it.

We're all in the same boat. It's just a matter of who makes the fewest errors in the first couple of weeks."

HIGHTSTOWN HERE

For PHS Home Track Opener. The Princeton High School track team, which was scheduled to open its season this week at Notre Dame high school, will open at home Tuesday afternoon against Hightstown.

Two years ago saw the end of the Little Tigers domination of the track scene in Mercer County. Last year Trenton High was the dominant team. This year, Trenton will again be the standard against which other teams are measured, while Lawrence High has been pre-eminent in the Colonial Valley Conference in spring track.

Although such standout performers as Stephan Fletcher, Bill Bushnell, P J Young and Ken McKellar are gone from last year's team, PHS veteran coach Marc Anderson expects the Little Tigers to be competitive because he believes the CVC league isn't as strong.

Those returning who will make PHS competitive in the shorter running events are Tom Haggerty, Ed Katz and Brian Ellerstein. Also back is veteran distance runner Tom Perkins. He is expected to get help from Nathaniel McVey-Finney, Chris Cleaves and Ben Elref. Graham Trelstad will compete in the 800.

In the field events, Eric Rapp, a three-year veteran, will lead the Little Tigers in the pole vault and javelin. Others Anderson is counting on to contribute include Shawn Hutchins in the long jump and Mashall Jensen in the high jump — both will double in the hurdle events — Tim O'Gorman in the vault and discus and Sandy Huffaker in the javelin. Mike Riddick is a freshman prospect in the long jump. Anderson will also try to capitalize on his speed in the 100 and 200.

PHS VS. NOTTINGHAM

In Softball Monday. Its scheduled opener Monday against Lawrence postponed a day, the Princeton High girls softball team will play its second game on Monday at Nottingham High School.

The Little Tigers won only one game last year — edging Trenton High — but second year coach Doug Snyder commented that, with some of the girls he has returning, he feels the team will be more competitive this year.

He describes senior short-stop Monica Greenland as the mainstay on squad. "A real talent. She has a good strong arm and good range."

Other veterans include senior Diana Schmidt at second base, giving the Little Tigers a seasoned double play combination, junior Annie Heard in left field and center-fielder Carolyn Huebel. Plus some newcomers, says Snyder, "who should be able to help us out."

Marcy Murray, a junior, did the bulk of the pitching for the Little Tigers last year and will again be on the mound, but Snyder reports that he plans to try some newcomers in the position, too. Foremost is sophomore Tracey Hemmingway, who he plans to use not only on the mound but as a catcher and third baseman. "She's very talented," he said.

Snyder has about 25-26 players to fill both his varsity and junior varsity squads. The most popular sport for girls in the spring is lacrosse, he points out, where 111 answered the call of coach Joyce Jones. "Most of the schools we play don't have a lacrosse program," said Snyder.

For Snyder, the Ws and the Ls don't mean that much. "I really love it," he said. "If we win two games, we will have doubled last year's output — that's what I keep telling the girls.

"All I ask of them is that they play their best. If that means we get beat by 20 runs — well, we get beat by 20."

PHS LACROSSE CO-CAPTAINS. Troy Norris (right) and Peter Gager are co-captains of the Princeton High School lacrosse team which will open its season this Wednesday under second-year coach Peter Larsen.

3 FROM HERE TO SWIM In Junior Olympic Meet.

The Princeton area will be represented in the Eastern Junior Olympics to be held in Richmond, Va. this week.

As a result of their winning at the New Jersey Junior Olympics at Somerville County College last weekend, Jane Skillman, Irene Shu and Sue Fontana have been named to the New Jersey All-Star team. Skillman will swim the butterfly and the freestyle, Shu the breast and butterfly and Fontana the breast stroke. Shu was also runner up for most valuable swimmer in her age group, winning four first-place medals.

One of the coaches of the New Jersey team will be Loraine Wood, coach of the Flying Fish at the Princeton Y and a teacher at the Hun School.

OPENER WEDNESDAY

For PHS Stickmen. The Princeton High School lacrosse team will open its season this Wednesday at 4 when it plays host to Bridgewater East. For coach Pete Larsen it will be largely a journey into the unknown.

"I don't know anything more than I did last week," said Larsen. Scrimmages against Columbia, St. Joseph's and Livingston set for last week were all wiped out — the victim of rain and weather conditions that turned fields into quagmires.

"We've only been inside once," said Larsen. "We've been working with individual players but I haven't been able to work with the entire team yet."

Following the Bridgewater opener, PHS will entertain Westfield Saturday at 1:30 on the PHS football field.

The team this year is co-captained by middy Troy

Syrena Caribom Honored

It may be decades before another woman duplicates the feat achieved by Princeton's Syrena Caribom in Ivy League women's hockey.

The senior defense-woman was named the league's player for the year for the third consecutive season in balloting by the coaches. Forwards Kelly O'Dell and Laura Halldorson were named to the all-Ivy first team, along with Caribom.

Forward Gina Pietrangelo and defenseswoman Patti Kazmaier achieved second team recognition. Pietrangelo also garnered Rookie of the Year honors. Suzanne McGilvray received honorable mention.

The Tigers swept by all Ivy opponents with a 10-0 record, winning their third straight title.

Continuing Education

now I can. My eyes just had to get used to it."

Dr. Drewry herself warns applicants of the 300 to 400 pages a week that students must routinely cover.

The student who's been out of college 40 years, merely shrugs. She'd always liked to read, but can imagine "a peck of trouble, if you don't."

She's taking a course in the poetry of the 16th century and another in the literature of the American Renaissance and last semester, did English drama to 1700.

"American literature wasn't required when I was in college, so I have gaps," she explained. Her reason for enrolling in the program is simply that she's always loved being a student.

And she has a commentary on today's classroom:

"Teaching is much more relaxed now. It's a small class, and you can actually talk to the professor! The professor isn't some authoritarian figure up there above everyone."

Jim Michener is almost 40, he says, and never got his B.A. from Swarthmore in the early '70s. It was to have been a Political Science degree, but now he's switched to archaeology and has applied for admission to full-time status as a junior in the class of '86.

"I wanted to see how well I'd do, after such a long time." And apparently he's done very well: he's one of four students chosen to spend this summer on Cyprus with Dr. William Childs and the Princeton archaeological team.

Scholarly Life Fun. "I was in the construction business for 15 years," Mr. Michener continues, "and used to rugged physical life. The scholarly life is a lot of fun."

"An unexpected bonus" for Mr. Michener is the $250 worth of computer time allowed to each student — including Continuing Education students — at no cost. He spends six to eight hours a week in the Computer Center working on papers, having attended a lecture series at the Center where he learned how to handle all the hardware and software.

This particular student made plans ahead of time for going back to college when he was older. He wonders whether, as a young man who didn't even enter Swarthmore until several years in the service and who left without obtaining a degree, he might not serve as a role model for students thinking about leaving now, and returning later.

"I find the undergraduates interested — why is someone coming back after a long while?

"You need the strong suport of your professors, and I've found everyone very cooperative."

Pure Interest. Although Joseph Kolibol doesn't really need math courses in his Plasma Physics lab. job, he's been taking one course a semester since 1980 out of "pure interest."

"You learn math in a different sense as an engineer, and my background is in engineering. You have no time to delve into the theory, and I very much appreciate the opportunity I have now to do that. The competition is stiff — these are very, very bright 18-22 year-olds — and the courses are well-taught.

"It's important to do this. You lose a lot of skills over the years, and you can 'age out' of things — they just slip away.

"And the nice thing is, there aren't the same pressures you had as an undergraduate or graduate student, so you can have a better perspective. It won't make or break my career. But there are these bright kids, so you don't want to look bad. I try to get an A — and I've done reasonably well."

Mr. Kolibol has only missed one semester since 1980. That was the semester his daughter was born.

Incidentally, employees of the University and their spouses have a considerably reduced tuition in the Continuing Education Program. About 30 percent of those in the Program are on the University staff.

These older students say one of the nicest things about the Program is the socializing arranged by Dr. Drewry. She plans brown-bag lunches, a holiday get-together, an opening reception.

Alumni from several years back — the Program is now in its 10th year — come to the opening reception, meet old friends, give advice to the newcomers and have a fine time. Because contact on campus is intermittent, these social opprtunities help to form the students into a cohesive group.

Everyone says "It's fun!" They are enthusiastic, or they wouldn't be there.

OPEN HOUSE SET

By Montessori Center. The Lakeside Montessori Center will hold an Open House on Sunday, April 8, from 2 to 4 p.m.

Lakeside is located at 39 Magnolia Lane in the rear wing of the former Littlebrook School. There will be a slide show presentation at 2:30 that is open to adults only.

Lakeside Montessori is currently accepting applications for both its toddler (for children 18-30 months of age) and primary (for children 2½ through kindergarten) programs. The Center offers both full and half-day programs, as well as an extended day program from 8-9 a.m. and 3-5:30 p.m. and is in session both during the school year and the summer months.

The slide show presentation will feature the Lakeside Toddler program that began in January of this year, as well as provide an introduction to the Montessori philosophy and programs for Primary School students. The slides are accompanied by songs sung by the Lakeside students.

For further information call 924-8077. Parking is in the rear parking lot of the school.

Books on Housing

The bibliography of about 60 reports, books and pamphlets on housing that has been set aside at the public library for use by the Borough's Affordable Housing committee, is now available to the public.

Material includes the major part of the Mt. Laurel II decision, George Sternlieb's analysis of it, copies of the Nolon and Mallach report now under discussion by the Planning Board and various articles from law journals relating to Mt. Laurel I and II and other housing cases.

Those interested should inquire at the Reference Desk.

Norris and defenseman Peter Gager. Other seniors on the 26-member squad include Eric Bergman, John Bolster, David Gibson, Fergus McCormick, David Schowalter and Brook Trubee on defense, Chris Carrington and Sam Chambers, attack, and Jeremy Stein, middy.

RELAYS SATURDAY

In Girls Track. The Princeton High School girls track team, scheduled to open its season this week against defending league champion Notre Dame, will compete next in the annual Mercer County Relays which will be held Saturday at the Ewing High School track. Events will start at 2.

The Little Tigers finished above .500 last year under long-time coach Lamont Fletcher who has stepped down. The team is coached this season by Tom McMorrow, Fletcher's assistant.

"It looks promising," comented McMorrow on the upcoming season. "If everyone stays healthy we should have a winning season — maybe .700 or better. "We're not deep, but we're decently balanced in most events."

The team is co-captained by Dawn Gray, a hurdler, and Kirin Cummings, a two-miler. Among those whom McMorrow is counting on for a lot of points this season are senior Gail Woolston in the 200 and 400 meter events, senior Kim Johnson in the 100 and 200, two more seniors Alyson Brandt in the intermediate and 110 hurdles and Carine Toussaint in javelin, discus and shot.

Also sophomore Hillary Jones in the 200 and 400 and sophomores Susan and Heather Gray, identical twins and younger sisters of Dawn. Both, says McMorrow, are good distance runners, Susan in the mile and Heather in the half-mile.

Another strong performer in the field events, according to McMorrow, is junior Barbara Halvorsen, who is expected to receive help from junior Dorothy Mann and Nancy Vawter.

Barbara Byrne is a half-miler and Sarah Doig is starting to come along, said McMorrow. Newcomer Sarah Billington is the only one he has in the high jump, adds McMorrow, but she is a good one. In her first season warmup in the winter track season, Billington tied the school record of 5-0 in the high jump.

Bearse to Switch To District 12; Will Face Courter

Democrat Peter Bearse has given up the Democratic primary race in the Fourth Congressional District and moved his challenge to District 12 — which, under the new re-districting, includes Princeton. In District 12, he says, he does not expect a primary contest.

He will, however, face Republican Congressman James Courter, regarded as a formidable candidate. He is President Reagan's campaign chairman in New Jersey.

Mr. Bearse, now serving his first term on Borough Council, said that, although he could legally run for both offices, he has not yet decided what to do about running for a second Council term. Deadline for filing is April 26.

"I love Council so much, I want the opportunity to continue serving. It's an agonizing decision," he stated. Mr. Bearse is also Council's representative on the Planning Board.

He was running in the primary race in District Four although he does not live there, a situation allowed under the law, and decided to switch his candidacy to District 12 because "I was drafted" by all seven Democratic county chairmen in the district. The Twelfth includes all of Hunterdon County and parts of Warren, Somerset, Middlesex, Mercer, Sussex and Morris.

In addition, he said he was encouraged to run by Walter Bliss, former Mercer County Democratic chairman who is now Borough attorney. Mr. Bliss had announced his support of one of Mr. Bearse's opponents in the District Four primary. Jennye Stubblefield is current Mercer County Democratic chairman.

Hill Gives Up Seat On Borough Council

Borough Council member Barbara Hill announced this week that she was resigning from Council as of noon this Wednesday, April 11. The resignation also affects her position as Police Commissioner of the Borough.

She has been in the second year of her second three-year term on Council. Earlier this year, she took a job in New York City and has been commuting between Princeton and New York. She said this week that she will now move to New York where she and her husband, Raymond, have bought a house.

Sigmund's Vote Sends Collins' Plans Back To Planning Board; Court Action Is Likely

With Mayor Barbara Sigmund casting the crucial fourth vote in a series of tallies, Borough Council beat its midnight deadline Tuesday and sent back to the Planning Board the Phase III plans of Collins Development for Hulfish North.

If Council had not made its decisions by midnight, the original Planning Board approvals would have been automatically affirmed and Collins would have won. By law, four votes, representing a majority of all six Council members, were required to remand.

Voting largely followed the expected pattern, with Richard Woodbridge and Barbara Hill usually voting in Collins' favor, and Peter Bearse, John Huntoon, Irv Urken and Mayor Sigmund voting to remand. Richard Macgill, out of the country on vacation, took no part in the appeal process

During Tuesday night's deliberations, some Council members proposed negotiaton and compromise with Collins. Asked at five minutes after midnight whether he might go along with such proposals, Collins vice-president Gary Green would only say that he and his lawyer would meet Wednedsday "to plan our legal strategy." In the past, he has declared that Collins would continue to the courts.

Pivotal matters remanded to the Planning Board were the question of lower-income housing, sewer capacity, open space and facilities such as garbage compactors, loading docks and garage exits planned for the Chambers Street side of the Hulfish North Phase III project.

All represented successful appeals by the Witherspoon-Jackson Development Corporation. R. William Potter. Dwight O. North and Greenholm neighbors. Appeals by Mr. Potter relating to use of solar energy were not voted on.

In addition, acting on a motion by Mr. Woodbridge, Council agreed to affirm designs for the Chambers-Robeson intersection, directing Collins to avoid any further encroachment on the Greenholm areas. The request was part of the Greenholm neighbors' appeal. Mr. Huntoon opposed. Because four votes were available from Council members, Mayor Sigmund did not vote.

Mr. Woodbridge also proposed affirming the office building plans, but "strongly recommending" use of brick. This also had been part of the Greenholm appeal. Ms. Hill voted against, and again, since there were already four votes, Mayor Sigmund did not vote.

An initial motion by Mr. Huntoon to remand everything to the Planning Board, received no second.

Regarding her controversial use of the vote, Mayor Sigmund told Council and audience, before voting began, that she would "exercise my duty as a member of the governing body and will vote if there are insufficient votes."

Borough attorney Walter Bliss detailed statutes and case law, advising Mayor Sigmund that voting was her decision. He cited a statute allowing mayors to vote if a governing body fails to act because of "insufficient vote," in this case, the required four. He also quoted definitions that governing "body" included the mayor.

He conceded, however, that it is an open question, "not absolutely clear-cut."

When Ms. Hill said the state Department of Community Affairs had told her a mayor could vote only in case of a tie, and had sent back to the Borough several years ago a budget on which former Borough Mayor Robert W. Cawley had cast a tie-breaking vote, Mr. Bliss replied that the DCA had simply returned the budget. The question had never been framed into a formal decision, he stated.

Mr. Woodbridge also challenged the mayor's right to vote.

In the public deliberations, Council members spoke in order of seniority.

Mr. Woodbridge warned that lower-cost housing in Hulfish North would draw residents out of the Witherspoon area, leaving houses which would be quickly bought, leading to gentrification.

Ms. Hill declared she was "very upset at the seeming lack of regard for the eviden-

A TOWN TOPICS Editorial

By a margin of 4-2, with Mayor Barbara Sigmund casting the decisive vote, Collins Development has lost its case before Borough Council. We think this is unfortunate.

The Collins corporation has indeed made mistakes: pushing its kiosk (a trivial part of the overall plan) in the face of public protest; evicting long-time retail tenants; leaving stores vacant, and so on.

But present plans are workable plans, of benefit to the whole town. They represent many revisions, worked out after many meetings with the Planning Board and many contributions from the public.

And yet a new mayor and new Council want the process to start anew, undoing what a bi-partisan governing body had previously agreed to, and a Planning Board — whose appointed members are representative of the community, after all — had previously approved after long deliberation.

Collins is a reputable corporation, trying to be responsive to the wishes of the town after having learned some painful lessons. Nothing they do will ever please everyone, but at some point, their project simply must be allowed to proceed because the Borough and its taxpayers will benefit when it does.

We should like to comment also on the appeal hearings.

Many thoughtful people who have opposed Collins feel that the Palmer Square plans would turn Princeton into a big city and cause the town to lose a quality which, in a familiar local phrase, makes "Princeton Princeton."

These people must have been jarred by the appeal hearings. Procedures and policies adopted and followed by mayor and Council are not what Princeton citizens have thought of as "Princeton." It is an irony that Collins' critics, concerned with preserving the town's character, have unwittingly been the instruments for a change in that character.

Throughout the hearings, it was hard to avoid a sense of pre-arrangement, starting with the possibility of a vote by the mayor. In the Borough, mayors have always voted only in case of a tie. But four votes were required to defeat Collins and only three Council votes could be relied on.

Attorney Walter Bliss found a New Jersey statute he believed would allow Mayor Sigmund to vote even though, with only five Council members participating, there could not be a tie. Mayor Sigmund's vote, therefore, would provide the required fourth.

Prepared agendas for Wednesday and Thursday nights provided time for Collins and Planning Board attorneys to make presentations. But these agendas were changed as the hearings went on, and neither lawyer was able to make his case either night. Instead, at the request of the Collins lawyer, the Sunday session was held.

Mr. Bliss ruled, in the beginning, that no comments would be allowed unless they referred to matters on the Planning Board record. Later, he allowed some remarks, [although Collins' lawyer protested they were not on the record], and said Council members themselves could decide which comments would be appropriate to consider.

To go back farther in time, there is Mr. Bliss's ruling that Council member Irv Urken was eligible to vote although when Mr. Urken was a member of the Planning Board, he had not participated in the Collins hearings before the board on the grounds of conflict of interest.

There is the role of the Witherspoon-Jackson Development Corporation vis-a-vis Mayor Sigmund. This fine group, working quietly, successfully and without publicity, has been acquiring properties so that black residents of Princeton may buy homes in the Witherspoon neighborhood.

But a painful question must be asked: where was the WJDC all this time? Did they approach Collins back in the beginning, with a suggestion for low-income housing? Mrs. Sigmund, after all, was on the WJDC advisory board, even before she assumed a position on that board in her capacity as mayor of the Borough. Why did the WJDC only face Collins publicly last fall when Mrs. Sigmund was a candidate for mayor?

Then, there is the association of Mrs. Sigmund and appellant R. William Potter. He appeared at a Planning Board meeting last summer to speak against Collins for the first time. Mrs. Sigmund, who had not in previous years attended Collins hearings, was also present.

Mr. Potter and Mrs. Sigmund conferred frequently that evening. This led reporters to ask Mr. Potter about a possible association with the mayoralty candidate. He replied that, although he had talked with Mrs. Sigmund, "I am not anyone's stalking horse."

But it seems obvious that they have conferred frequently. Borough residents whose affairs take them in and out of Borough Hall have observed that Mr. Potter, a Township resident, is frequently there in conference with the mayor.

The sense of pre-arrangement extends even to the audience. The spokesperson for open space, for example, is a member of a family long prominent in Borough Democratic affairs.

Finally, there is the question of the mayor's remarks at the hearings. Mayor and Council sit in quasi-judicial capacity, charged with hearing both sides and weighing testimony impartially. Yet Mayor Sigmund, at the end of the presentation by the WJDC appellant, commented to him on "your very eloquent and well-put arguments," surely an inappropriate remark.

Similarly, when the Collins attorney said "you can't change the rules as you go along," adding, "that's what these hearings are all about" and Mr. Potter challenged him with "no, that's not what they're about," Mayor Sigmund turned to Mr. Potter and said "thank you."

Township Committee Talks with SOC Chairman On Suggestions for Sewer Problem Resolution

Reimposing a ban on new construction, requiring inspection of house connections to make replacements and repairs a condition of sale each time a property is sold, and restructuring the Sewer Operating Committee are all under consideration by Township Committee as the next steps in dealing with Princeton's sewer problem.

Committee held a lengthy discussion with SOC Chairman J.B. Smith at its work session last Monday night. Members worked their way through a five-point suggested outline for sewer discussion prepared by Mayor Winthrop S. Pike.

Topics ranged from how to improve the public perception of the SOC by wider dissemination of meeting notices and reports, to how the SOC might be reorganized as a functioning arm of the two municipalities--minus Princeton University. Under the 1930s agreement establishing the Sewer Operating Committee, the University is an equal partner in the tri-partite organization.

At the same meeting Committeewoman Gail Firestone read a letter outlining her own five-point program for getting the sewers fixed quickly. Fresh from a tour of rain-swollen trunk lines and gushing manhole covers, Mrs. Firestone said she was "prepared to consider re-introduction of the resolution imposing the no-connection zone on the Mountain Avenue and Harry's Brook lines."

Committeewoman Firestone was out of town when the Environmental Commission asked Township Committee to impose a no-connection zone on the Mountain Avenue and Harry's Brook lines where much of the surcharge has appeared. She made her suggestion dependent on "a new Sewer Trust Fund for developers--one based on actual, verifiable improvement to the system rather than theoretical removal of infiltration and inflow.

"We must start to see improvement on the landscape as well as on the blackboard," Mrs. Firestone said.

Mr. Smith spoke of the preliminary results of a computer study of the entire sewer system presently being made by the firm of Betz, Converse and Murdoch. The study takes data pertaining to water use, flow, infiltration and inflow in the system, as well as data from the treatment plant and puts it all together by computer to get some idea of sewer line capacity. In such studies, the first run is not usually very good, Mr. Smith warned.

However, the first report lists trouble spots on the Mountain Brook line operating at 75 percent capacity at a time of high ground water (infiltration) but no rainfall (inflow). "That's fuller than it ought to be," Mr. Smith remarked.

Township-Wide Ban? When asked by Committee whether he would recommend reimposing a sewer ban on all or part of the Township, Mr. Smith hedged. On the one hand he pointed out that 1,000 gallons here or 1,000 gallons there would not make that much difference in a system that has a normal flow of two million gallons per day and at least 12 million gallons per day--perhaps twice that amount, because that is the top range of the two meters measuring the flow--in a "rainstorm event."

New sewer connections are "a finite addition," Mr. Smith said, "but a ban will not stop the overflow. We must get the overflow out of the system, and we're not going to do that until we make many more improvements. A ban will cut off funds," he added.

"I'm glad you said that," interjected Township Mayor Winthrop S. Pike, who has consistently opposed a no-connection ban because of the greater burden for the cost of repair that a ban would place on the taxpayer.

"My feeling is the SOC shouldn't make these decisions," Mr. Smith said, although he acknowledged that the two municipal attorneys, Edwin C. Schmierer for the Township and Walter Bliss for the Borough, say the SOC has that authority. According to Mr. Schmierer, Township Committee (or Borough Council) can impose a ban of its own, or lift an SOC ban--but only in the Township (or the Borough). Mr. Smith suggested that if the Township decides to go ahead with a ban it ought to make sure the Borough does too.

Committeeman William Cherry expressed his concern for "the totality of pathogenic material dumped onto the landscape." Mrs. Firestone, repeating that she was for whatever policy would get the sewers fixed the fastest, said she was in favor "of the concept of a Sewer Trust Fund if development doesn't aggravate the situation and if the repairs resulted in measurable improvement."

Reporting on the present repair program, Mr. Smith

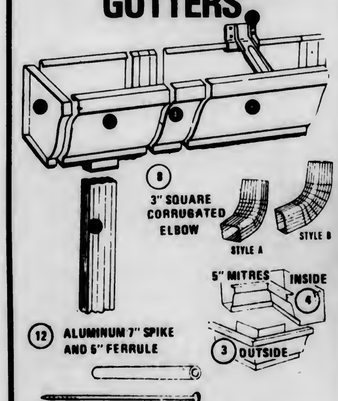
$600,000 for Authority



A check for $600,000, representing money recouped from the Federal Environmental Protection Agency, will be on its way to the Stony Brook Regional Sewerage Authority, Borough Mayor Barbara Sigmund announced this week.

According to Mayor Sigmund, the Authority has said it will probably use the money toward rebuilding its defective Princeton pumping station.

The money represents the sum spent by the Authority for design of a single-plant system.

Mayor Sigmund credited Congressman Robert Roe, Democrat, from Patterson, with clearing the way. She said she had been asked by the Authority in February to see what she could do to obtain the money, and she conferred with Congressman Roe, who heads the Water Resources Subcommittee of the Public Works and Transportation Committee of the House of Representatives.

TOMALIN BOARD HEAD

McGoldrick Steps Down. "It's time for someone else," said school board president Ann McGoldrick this week, announcing that she would not seek the office again. She has been president two consecutive years.

Michael Tomalin, who has been vice-president, was scheduled to be elected president at the annual board reorganization meeting this Tuesday and Karen Woodbridge, vice-president.

Newly elected board members to be sworn in are Corinne Kyle for the Borough and incumbents Harry Levine and Hugh Brandt for the Township.

"It's healthy for the board to have a president with a different perspective," Mrs. McGoldrick continued. "In some districts, presidents serve ten or 15 years, and this is very limiting for the board.

"Besides," she added, "I'm on the tired side!"

Praising Mr. Tomalin for having done a "wonderful job" as vice-president, Mrs. McGoldrick said that she herself had "thoroughly enjoyed" her two years as president and had found it a "wonderful experience."

She has one more year on the board. It has been reported that she has been asked to run for other public offices, and when she was questioned about this, she laughed.

"I have been asked — Borough Council, Congress, even the Senate — you name it! It's very flattering, but I'm not interested in anything else at the moment. I'm not sure that kind of office is where I want to make my mark."

PLANS DENIED

Because of Sewerage. Proposals to build 13 houses on the former Albert Salzman property on Montadale were rejected at last Tuesday's Planning Board meeting for reasons traceable to sewerage problems.

Because the 5-4 vote (two abstentions) seemed to startle even the board itself, there is a possibility the matter may be reconsidered. Owner Russell Baltzer has indicated that he may appeal the decision to Township Committee.

In addition, the Ahmed Azmy two-lot minor subdivision was approved, but with the condition that a septic system be installed instead of a sewer connection.

The vote to deny approval to Mr. Baltzer's plans came on a motion from William H. Walker II, who then voted against his own motion. He said he introduced the motion as a way of stating that the Planning Board has the authority to act.

"The board was not satisfied that the existing sewerage system will take the additional sewage," he said. "I wanted us to fish or cut bait."

But he voted not to deny, he explained, because the project is acceptable at the Planning Board level. "Sewers," he said, "are up to someone else."

At Tuesday's meeting, Olivia Applegate showed slides of spewing sewers and a slide which showed, she said, fecal matter that had backed up into a bathtub.

Voting to deny approval were George Adriance, Michael Floyd, Margen Penick, Winthrop S. Pike and John VanPlantinga. Voting to grant approval, in addition to Mr. Walker, were Tom Poole, Richard Henkel and Alma Field.

Abstainers were Richard Schoch, who is disqualified as a neighbor of the project, and STANDING ELM BOWS TO CARS: This huge and stately elm tree managed to survive the elements for decades, but could not stand up to the demands for more Princeton parking space. The tree was partially topped last week and then pulled down by a steel cable attached to a bulldozer to make room for the garage being erected on the Chambers Street lot. It was caught by a Town Topics photographer in the act of falling.

Barbara Sigmund. Board attorney ruled that Mayor Sigmund was disqualified because she had arrived late at the hearing.

NO MORE PUMPS?

Ordinance Proposed. An ordinance limiting service stations in the Borough to three gas pumps was scheduled to be proposed to Borough Council at Tuesday night's meeting by neighbors of the Sunoco station on Nassau and Murray Place. Mayor Barbara Sigmund has told the neighbors that she herself would favor such an ordinance.

Larry's Sunoco would like to expand the Nassau Street station from three to eight pumps. Neighbors are afraid that the additional pumps will add to traffic and gasoline fumes.

The Sunoco proposal, scheduled for last week's Planning Board meeting, had to be delayed because the Sun Refining and Marketing Company had not properly notified adjoining property owners. The hearing has been rescheduled for May 1.

CREDIT CARD SCAM

Three Are Charged. Three Philadelphia residents, including a 16-year old female juvenile, were arrested by Borough police Friday afternoon, following an attempted credit card scam at a Nassau Street video store.

Kevin Boyd, 22, and Ronald Jackson, 25, were arrested by Borough dectectives inside The Source, 20 Nassau Street, where they had gone to pick up a $665.50 video cassette recorder Boyd had allegedly ordered previously over the telephone with a stolen credit card number.

Boyd has been charged with five counts of attempted criminal theft, theft by deception, possession of a controlled dangerous substance with intent to distribute and possession of CDS. Jackson was charged with possession of CDS.

Both have been remanded to the Mercer County jail, Boyd in lieu of $5,000 bail, Jackson in lieu of $2,500.

The three officers handling the case, Detectives Timothy Huizing, Randy Sutton and Gerald Patterson then apprehended two other suspects waiting outside in a car on Nassau Street.

One was the 16-year old juvenile from South Philadelphia. In her handbag police found a 9-inch steak knife. They also found in her possession three plastic baggies containing 139 CDS prescription tablets which were sent to a police laboratory to be analyzed and 46 yellow tablets believed to be amphetamines.

She was charged with possession of a weapon, possession of CDS with intent to sell and with two counts of possession of CDS. She was taken later to the Mercer County Youth House.

Chief Michael Carnevale reported that the juvenile was on probation and her probation officer in Philadelphia was notified.

Also in the car was the driver, another resident of Philadelphia, and a small child. The driver was subsequently released without being charged, Chief Carnevale said, after police determined he was being used for transportation and was not involved in the theft.

According to police, Boyd had placed four more orders with the store over the telephone but they had not been shipped yet. He was supposed to arrive in Princeton on Thursday to pick up the video recorder but failed to appear.

Borough police became involved after the store owner had made a telephone credit card check which indicated the card number had previously been used without authorization. He then notified the police.

Police were able to trace the card to its owner who told them that other items had been charged against her card number even though the card had never been out of her possession.

Chief Carnevale explained the police investigation revealed that one of the suspects arrested Friday had a confederate who had access to legitimate credit card numbers from his position of employment in a Philadelphia department store. He said the suspect would then order items from different stores using the fraudulent credit card number and then arrange to pick up the items.

Chief Carnevale revealed that one piece of video equipment valued at $525 ordered from The Source had been delivered to Philadelphia.

After Boyd and Jackson were apprehended and detained by Sgt. Huizing, they were searched for weapons by detectives who found in their possession a container believed to contain a suspected drug. Sgt. Huizing had initially responded to a 3:40 call by the store manager reporting the suspects were in the store to pick up the video recorder they had ordered.

The police investigation is continuing, Chief Carnevale said.

THEFT REPORT

Three Bicycles Stolen. Three bicycles were reported stolen last week in the Borough.

The most expensive, an 18-speed model valued at $318, was taken Friday from the grounds of Princeton High School, despite being locked and chained to a tree. An unlocked, 10-speed worth $200 was stolen between 6:30 and 9:30 Saturday evening from a William Street driveway, and an unlocked, girls 10-speed was taken earlier in the week from the east side of Princeton High. It is valued at $100.

A Princeton University student told police that he had left his bookbag by mistake on the sidewalk in the 200 block of Witherspoon Street. When he returned 16 hours later at 10:30 Saturday morning the bookbag was still there but its contents were missing. Taken were a leather wallet containing $30, a check book and a cassette tape. The victim's total loss was placed at $70.

A motorcycle helmet valued at $20 was stolen Friday night from a moped where the owner had left it. The victim, a Princeton resident, told police that he had parked in the Park & Shop lot off Witherspoon Street at 9 and when he returned two and a half hours later the helmet was gone.

A camera, lens and case, valued at $341, are missing from a bedroom in a Dempsey Avenue home. They were taken, Township police report, without forced entry sometime between May 24 and April 1.

Two rib roasts valued at $52.81 and shoplifted last week from the Super Fresh Market in the Princeton Shopping Center were recovered. Police report that the suspect dropped them while fleeing the store pursued by a store employee.

In response to a call from the manager, Township police in several patrol cars searched the area without success. The suspect is described as a six-foot white male with black hair. He was wearing blue jeans, black and white sneakers and a black coat.

EXPENSIVE SCRATCH

Mercedes Repair $3,000. The estimate to repair a 1982 Mercedes that had its paint scratched in several areas while it was parked during the weekend in a lot behind the Elm Club on Prospect Avenue has been placed at $3,000.

A university student told police that he had parked the family car in the lot late Friday night. When he returned Monday morning he discovered the car had been scratched and both windshield wipers broken off.

For the second time within recent weeks, a new car parked in the front of Volvo of Princeton, 255 Nassau Street, was scratched with a sharp instrument. According to police, a 1984 Volvo was scratched on its left side between 2:30 and 4:07 Friday afternoon, causing $300 in damage.

A Leigh Avenue resident told Township police last week that the left front and rear tires of his car had been punctured while it had been parked overnight on Leigh. Replacement cost: $240.

In one of three more acts of vandalism in the Township, a resident of Castle Howard Court reported that his mailbox post was broken and his mailbox squashed early Saturday morning, causing approximately $100 in damage. The victim called police at 12:35 and added that he had observed a white car driving off.

A front window in a Littlebrook Drive home was broken by some type of instrument between 6 and 8 p.m. Thursday, leaving the victim with a $30 bill, and two screens and a glass window were damaged the previous day in a Hillside Road home, causing $135 in damage.

This time police were able to make an arrest. Lt. Samuel Bianco reported that a neighbor saw two boys throw an object at the window and supplied a description. A short time later, two Township youths, both 12, were apprehended in the area and turned over to Township Juvenile Officer Jerry Offredo for processing.

school. Police report the smoke was coming from a malfunctioning auxiliary motor located in an elevator shaft. There was no damage and school opened on time.

Porsche Fire. The 1977 Porsche of a Township resident sustained extensive damage Friday when its rear engine compartment erupted in flames.

The mishap occurred on Harrison Street across from the Princeton First Aid and Rescue Squad building, and, police report, rescue squad members came out with fire extinguishers to help put out the blaze. The owner told police that he had had some engine repair work done prior to the fire.

TWO ROOMS ENTERED

On University Campus, Two student dormitory rooms on the Princeton University campus were entered last week.

An unlocked room in 1915 Hall was entered overnight by an intruder who took $54 from a wallet left on a dresser, and a locked room in Patton Hall was entered without any signs of force sometime last week during a four-day period. Taken was $58 from a desk drawer.

BOROUGH MAN CHARGED

With Trespass, Drug Possession. Luther McKellar, 25, of Lytle Street, has been charged by Princeton University security with trespassing and by Borough police with possession of marijuana.

McKellar was apprehended outside Holder Hall by proctors at 5:43 Saturday afternoon, after a student had called complaining of a suspicious person. He was turned over to Borough police. A subsequent investigation uncovered a small amount of marijuana in McKellar's possession and police charged him with possession of less than 25 grams.

Chief Michael Carnevale commented that McKellar had been warned previously about trespassing on the campus. He is scheduled to appear in Borough court April 18.

BB Gun Confiscataed. Township police on Saturday confiscated an illegal BB rifle that was being carried by a juvenile.

Police responded to a call from a Stony Brook Lane resident reporting two juveniles carrying a rife in the area. The youths, both 15, were picked up by police and turned over to the Township Juvenile officer.

TWO DRIVERS FINED

For Alcohol Violation. Two Princeton residents were fined $215 each in Borough traffic court Monday for driving with open containers of alcoholic beverages in their cars. Judge Russell W. Annich Jr. imposed the fines on Edward J. Perna, 30 Dorann Avenue, and Dino D'Angelo, 128 Linden Lane.

Four area residents were fined for speeding. Jane E. Rodewald, 4 Merritt Lane, Rocky Hill; Jonathan Achinson, 34 Heather Lane, and Russell C. Miller, 74 Parker Road, Plainsboro, each paid $70, and Marjorie Blaxill, 270 Lambert Driver, paid $60.

Others: Norma Lewis, 42 Mulberry Row, $80, stop sign; John D. Rankin, 440 Sked Street, Pennington, $20, unlicensed driver; and Claude

Sutphin, 29 Greenview Avenue, $20, display of unclear license plates.

In Township court last week, Donald B. Teague, 97 Leigh Avenue, was fined $265 each and had his license revoked for six months on separate charges of driving while intoxicated and refusing to take a Breathalyzer test. The suspensions were to run consecutively. Mr. Teague was found not guilty on a second charge of drunken driving.

Josephine W. Borg, 249 Ewing, lost her license for six months and was fined $115 for no insurance and $25 for unregistered vehicle. Lawrence J. Leson, 159 N. Harrison Street, paid $65 for speeding.

In criminal court Christine Kennedy, 41 Greenbrier Row, was fined $225 for shoplifting.

TOWNSHIP MAN CHARGED

With Drunken Driving. A resident of Pheasant Hill Road, Derrick J. Ashcroft, 21, has been charged by Township police with driving while under the influence of alcohol.

Ashcroft was observed at 2:50 Friday morning by Pfc. Anthony Gaylord driving in an erratic manner on Princeton-Kingston Road. He was taken to police headquarters, given a Breathalyzer test and later released. He is scheduled to appear in Township Court May 15.

BOOK SALE RELOCATES

To Baker Rink. The Bryn Mawr Book Sale is moving from the Borough Hall gym to Baker Rink on the Princeton University campus.

The 53rd annual sale will open at noon on Wednesday, April 25, with more than 50,000 books of every kind, including art, drama, literature, biography, foreign-language books, history, cooking, gardening, medicine, and business — all at bargain prices.

Planning Board Hours

As of this week, the office of the Planning Board in the Valley Road Building will be closed to the public during morning hours and the last hour of the work day.

Public office hours will be noon to 4. Those are the only times the board staff will accept telephone calls or visitors to the office.

The pressure of the board's work-load has required the move, which was approved by Township Mayor Winthrop S. Pike, Township Committee and the Township administration. Although the Planning Board serves both Borough and Township, it is under the administration of the Township.

There are hard-to-find out of print books like the Landmark biographies for children, and old Baedeker guides. There are magazines, textbooks and journals galore.

The hours for the sale are Wednesday, April 25 noon to 9 p.m. Thursday, April 26, 9 to 9 records go on sale Thursday); Friday, April 27, 9 to 9 (everything half price); Saturday, April 28, 9 to noon ($2 a box). An advance sale for children only will be held on Tuesday afternoon from 5:30 until 7:30.

Parking is available off Faculty Road between Washington and Alexander Roads. Maps are available by writing The Bryn Mawr Club of Princeton, Box 475, Kingston, N.J. 08528.

The proceeds from the sale are used to support scholarships for girls from central New Jersey who attend Bryn Mawr College.

YARD SALES PLANNED

Items Are Sought. Harriet Vawter has never held a yard sale, but next month she's in charge of — not one yard sale — but nine of them. As special projects chairperson for Vienna '84, the group raising funds for Princeton High School musical groups to attend an international competition in Vienna, she's planning nine yard sales on three Saturdays in May.

FOR HEALTHY CHILDREN: Building healthy parent-child relationships from the earliest years of childhood is the goal of a series of parent discussions to be held this spring as a follow-up to February's stress conferences. Here, in a planning session, are, from left, Linda Meisel, of the Family Service Agency, Dr. Sharon Powell of Princeton Psychological Associates and Tom Baskett, director of Corner House. All are sponsors of the event, with the Parents Council of the Greater Princeton area.

"I've never even been to a yard sale," says Mrs. Vawter. "But people tell me it's a great way to make money. We hope everyone who has been rooting for our musical and money-raising efforts will now root through their attics and their cellars to find forgotten treasures for our Yard Sale," Mrs. Vawter adds.

Still needed for the July trip is $25,000. Last week the students held a marathon dance with more than 100 teenagers taking part.

The nine yard sales are divided among three Saturdays — May 5, 12 and 19. All sales will begin at 9 a.m. To donate an item — whether it's a piece of German china or an extra Christmas tree ornament — call 921-0295, 924-6191, or 924-5600, ext. 305. All contributions are tax deductible.

Except in special circumstances, Mrs. Vawter asks donors to hold their items until the week of the sale. She can arrange pick-up if necessary.

FAMILY TENSIONS?

Build Healthy Relationships. Look to the early years of childhood, and the teen years may take care of themselves. With "prevention" as the theme, a four-part series on building healthy parent-child relationships will be held this spring as a follow-up to the stress series conference held in February.

The purpose of the four evening sessions is to identify places where parents, in the words of one sponsor, "get stuck" or frustrated with their children. Discussions are designed to help parents develop new approaches to handle conflicts.

Sponsors are the Parents Council of the Greater Princeton Area, the Family Service Agency, Corner House and the private group of professionals known as Princeton Psychological Associates.

All parents of students in elementary, middle or high school are invited to participate in the informal group discussions. The fee is $40, or $60 per couple for the four-part series.

The group for parents of middle and high school students, to be led by Dr. Sharon Powell and Selden Illick, will meet April 23 and 30, May 7 and 21 in the Princeton Township courtroom above the police station on Route 206 and Valley Road. Sessions are scheduled for 8 to 9:30 each evening.

The elementary school parents group will be led by Linda Meisel of the Family Service Agency. This group will meet May 7, 14 and 21 and one other date to be decided by the group, at the Princeton public library from 7:15 to 8:45.

The library was chosen because the children's section will be open and parents may leave their children there during the discussions.

The first session, for elementary school parents, will explore the ways children grow, and what can be expected of a child at a specific age. How, for example, should a parent handle a child who is in despair because the "best friend" has found somebody else?

The next will discuss sibling relationships, and the importance of treating each child in the family as an individual.

In the third session, parents will look at the peer pressures a young child is subjected to — the two friends who leave out a third, the child who is never chosen, the child who tries to buy friendship by giving away candy. These are not far from the teen behavior a young person will face in not so many years.

The fourth session will discuss motivation: how does a family with intellectual pursuits handle the child who sits in front of television all day?

Dr. Powell and Ms. Illich urge middle school parents in particular to attend the middle-high school series. Middle school parents are often worried ahead of time about high school, the counsellors say, and in this group they can listen to parents whose children are already in the high school.

The series will encourage parents to talk about their experiences and share them with others in the group.

Parents are asked to call Corner House at 924-8018 by April 18 if they are interested in participating.

INVITATIONS ARE GOING OUT to a dinner dance Saturday, May 5, at the Hyatt Regency as a benefit for Channel 13. Board members Mrs. Sheldon Sturgis, left, and Mrs. Miguel Fernandez address envelopes for the $100 per person benefit that will begin with a cocktail reception at 7:30 and feature dinner and dancing to the music of Mark Davis and his ensemble.

REGISTRATION SET

For YMCA Session. The Princeton YMCA Summer Warm-Up session begins on April 30. Registration has begun for classes designed to help participants keep active and fit through spring.

The YMCA offers swimming instruction to children and adults at all levels of ability, and the pool is open for lap swimming from 7 to 8 a.m. Monday through Friday, and at other hours during the day and evening.

In Parent-Tot Swim Instruction, children 6 to 36 months develop confidence in the water, and parents participate in the instruction. The YMCA's "Learn to Swim" program begins in Preschool Swim Instruction, for ages 3 to 5, and continues for children 5 to 16 in Progressive Swimming. Competitive swimmers who are between 6 and 17 years old can join Preseason Competitive Swim Training to prepare for summer competition.

Adults can improve endurance and sharpen their strokes in Adult Swim Training, and the basics will be taught to beginners in Adult Swim Instruction. Red Cross Standard First Aid and CPR is being offered to those seeking certification in National Red Cross emergency safety procedures.

Adult Fitness Class, a program designed to improve flexibility, strength and cardiopulmonary fitness, is led by YMCA Physical Director John Matune Monday through Saturday. Mr. Matune also teaches the Y's Way to a Healthy Back, a national YMCA program for people of all ages who want to strengthen back muscles and reduce back pain.

Instruction in the martial arts is available to children and adults at the YMCA this Spring. Ike Ballard, a third degree Black Belt, will continue the successful Youth

The funds will be used by the University to expand and modernize research and teaching facilities in the building. The University's plans include the addition of a new teaching laboratory for introductory chemistry, the renovation of faculty research space, expansion of the building's library and the addition of new safety and environmental control systems. Construction work on the Frick Laboratory has been under way since last year, and the renovation is scheduled to be completed in 1986.

CHANNEL 13 TO GAIN

From Dinner Dance. Princeton Friends of Channel Thirteen will hold a benefit dinner-dance Saturday, May 5, at the Princeton Hyatt Regency on Route 1. A cocktail reception at 7:30 will be followed by dinner and dancing from 8:30 to 1. Mark Davis and his ensemble will provide the music.

Tickets at $100 per person may be obtained by calling 921-8356 or 924-3570. Sponsor and donor tickets also are available at $1,000 and $500 per couple, respectively. The tickets are tax-deductible to the extent allowed by law.

Mr. and Mrs. Alden S. Blodget and Mr. and Mrs. S. Wyman Rolph III are serving as benefit chairmen.

They are being assisted by a benefit committee consisting of Mr. and Mrs. G. Hein Bessalaar, Mrs. Louise W. Bristol, Mr. and Mrs. James E. Burke, Mr. and Mrs. Philip S. Carchman, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Egan, Mr. and Mrs. Edward R. Farley Jr., Mr. and Mrs. John L. Griffith Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Peter W. Hegener, Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Jaffin, Betty Wold Johnson and Douglas Bushnell;

Also, Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Johnston, Mrs. Kenneth B. Keating, Mr. and Mrs. Tobin Levy, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Mackie, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas K. McNeil, Mr. and Mrs. Neal W. O'Connor, Mr. and Mrs. Landon Peters, Mr. and Mrs. William Stackpole, Mr. and Mrs. C. Barnwell Straut, Mr. and Mrs. Richard M. Sword and Mr. and Mrs. Hugh de N. Wynne.

The Princeton Friends of Channel Thirteen, one of 17 groups in the tri-state area, have been raising funds for WNET-Thirteen's operating budget and New Jersey programming since 1977.

BUSINESS BENEFITS SCHOOL: Stephen Howard, right, headmaster of the American Boychoir School, presents a Boychoir recording as a token of appreciation to Glenn Paul, president and co-founder of Clancy-Paul personal computer store. Clancy Paul sponsored the Christmas concerts given by the Boychoir and donated an Apple III with printer, profile and software.

OPEN HOUSE PLANNED

By Singles Group. Single Professionals of Princeton will hold their annual Spring Open House this Sunday, April 15, from 2-5 at the Art People Place, 102 Witherspoon Street.

A piano recital will also be held from 3-4 featuring pianist Marianne Lauffer. The Open House will provide an opportunity for newcomers to meet with members and identify interests, trips and activities to be undertaken in the forthcoming months.

Single Professionals is a social, cultural and intellectual resource serving the single professional community. It provides a range of activities throughout the year, including outdoor-sports events and seminar-discussions. Its most recent symposium was on "Success in Man-Woman Relationships."

$70,000 SOUGHT

By Planned Parenthood. The board of trustees of Planned Parenthood Association of the Mercer Area, Inc. has formally launched the 1984 Annual Fund Drive. Rabbi Morton M. Rosenthal of Lawrenceville was named chairman of this year's fund raising campaign.

Rabbi Rosenthal serves as director of the Latin American Affairs Department of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith. Since 1966, he has been in the forefront of the struggle for human rights in Latin America, directing programs to combat anti-Semitism and improve human relations. Rabbi Rosenthal played a major role in the release of Jacobo Timmerman, the Argentine newspaper editor, and many other political prisoners. He was the recipient of ADL's Milton Senn Award for Professional Excellence in 1980.

More than 25 Friends of Planned Parenthood have been recruited for this year's fund raising team, and they are now preparing to ask for $70,000 in contributions from Mercer area residents.

Support from the private sector enables Planned Parenthood to maintain a

Only a Beginning.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

Princeton rejoice! On the evening of April 3, after many years of unrequited pleading, the Planning Board denied two applicants the privilege of adding new sewage to the Mountain Brook sanitary-sewer lines, for lack of evidence that the Princeton collector system "can handle the sewage problem that would be so imposed."

The Environmental Commission would here like to express its gratitude:

● To Providence, which arranged that, at the very moment of decision, the notorious five manholes just outside the meeting room were burbling exuberantly while, down Mountain Brook, still many more were "whaffling through the tulgey wood."

● To Board Member, Margen Penick, for her repeated, courageous, and eloquent insistence that the heretofore unremitting "buck-passing" must stop — here and now.

● To the Mayors of the Borough and the Township for their determined vocal support of the motion.

Princeton, this is only a beginning. The next important step will be a joint meeting instigated by Mayor Sigmund of Borough Council, Township committee, Sewer Operating Committee and the newly heartened public. Watch your newspaper for the final date! (Originally April 19.)

The main purpose of this meeting is to consider and act upon proposals formally presented to both governing bodies by the Environmental Comission some weeks ago to enact certain no-connection zones in the Princeton sanitary sewer system. We strongly urge you to attend and actively participate in the discussion.

PEGGY D. McNEILL
Chairman,
Environmental Commision

The Community's Loss.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

Word is out that Katharine Bretnall will be retiring from TOWN TOPICS in another month. This will be a great disappointment to many of us who have depended for so many years on Mrs. Bretnall's reporting of community events.

Most of us did not attend municipal meetings, but we were always able to know what happened because of Mrs. Bretnall's superb writing. She was always accurate, sensitive and had an uncanny ability to reflect the tone of quoted speakers and to summarize the atmosphere of each meeting. Not many writers ever achieve this standard.

It is the community's loss!

God speed Katharine Bretnall. Have a wonderful retirement.

JEANNE SILVESTER

Thanks, to Collins.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

(The following is a letter to Arthur Collins of Collins Development Corporation.)

On behalf of the Fire Department I want to formally and officially thank you for the $5,000 contribution that the Collins Development Corporation made towards our recently acquired minipumper. Your public spirited donation is a shining example of good public-private cooperation.

Both the community at large and Palmer Square stand to benefit from the new equipment. I am glad that you had a brief opportunity to inspect the vehicle. As you know, the Department is delighted with the equipment since it substantially exceeded our initial expectations in terms of quality and performance.

Also, please extend our thanks to those in the Collins Development Corporation who helped to make the contribution possible. Their assitance is gratefully acknowledged.

Fire Commissioner

Retiring, Not Resigning.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

In my April 2 letter to the editor on the Stony Brook Regional Sewerage Authority I stated that Mr. Kling, the executive director, had resigned. Mr. Kling has advised me that he is retiring, not resigning, and that this was a long standing plan on his part.

I apologize to Mr. Kling for this mistake.

WILLIAM P. STARR, JR.

Facsimiles of Yellowstone.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

Yes, our sewer system is extremely basic for the lives of every single citizen of Princeton (even for those who have done nothing about it for the last 50 years!). Now at last, thanks to the excellent researching work of Olivia Applegate for two years and Dwight North, at last week's meeting of the Borough Council, there is no excuse for our Democratic government to further put off the inevitable, as we must have an immediate, very large scale rehabilitation program.

Many of us know that if the present well-known facsimiles of Yellowstone Park's geysers and the familiar points in Harry's Brook basin had been erupting with bloody red water, our former mayors could not have been able to get away with their "do nothing" policies. Also, had our planning board learned the basic facts about the preferences of our townspeople they could have informed the Collins Development Corporation in the very beginning.

The Witherspoon-Jackson people tried to remind Collins that they must too be considered because all human beings must be considered equal — for a change.

variety of essential services and programs not fundable through government grants — and to provide services to all individuals regardless of ability to pay.

More than 7,600 local women sought medical services from Planned Parenthood in 1983. Approximately 80 percent of these women are considered indigent. Planned Parenthood Association of the Mercer Area, Inc. has been providing critically needed family planning, counseling and educational services to Mercer area residents for more than 25 years.

14 WOMEN SELECTED For TWIN Award. Fourteen business women have been selected to receive the 1984 Tribute to Women and Industry (TWIN) awards to be presented May 8 by the TWIN Committee of the Princeton YWCA.

More than 250 business organizations were invited to submit a nominee. All were within the geographic boundaries of the United Way-Princeton Area Communities, of which the YWCA is a member agency.

The TWIN award honors outstanding executive, managerial and professional women in business and industry and recognizes corporations for establishing progressive personnel policies and providing opportunities for the advancement of women within their ranks.

The winners were chosen by a Princeton TWIN Honoree Review Committee chaired by Joan L. Marik, president of Marik & Associates, Princeton.

The committee included Julia Coale, vice president, Lewis C. Bowers & Sons, Princeton; John Florence, resident vice president, Merrill Lynch Pierce Fenner & Smith, Inc., Princeton; L.L. Vivian, Jr., associate secretary and director of Community & Regional Affairs, Princeton University; and Dr. Myra Williams, executive director, Information Resources & Strategic Planning, Merck Sharp & Dohme Research Laboratories, Rahway.

The 1984 honorees are, Janet S. Averill, director, Foundation Relations, Office of Development, Princeton University; Muriel Bell, assistant general counsel, Squibb Corporation, Princeton; R. Miriam Brokaw, associate director and editor, Princeton University Press; M. Elaine Crocker, assistant vice president and manager, Executive Staffing-Training & Public Relations, Commodities Corporation; Joan E. Gerberding, vice president, Sales, Nassau Broadcasting Company, Princeton;

Also, Georgia Howell Hartnett, Esq., assistant vice president, N.J. Business and Industry Association, Trenton; C. Ellen Hodges, president, Chamber of Commerce of the Princeton Area; Anne H. Knudson-Fitzpatrick, president, Princeton Nautilus Fitness Center, Inc.; Helene E. Kulsrud, member, Research Staff, Institute for Defense Analyses, Communications Research Division;

Also R. Diane Mickle, director, Administration, Gulton Industires, Inc.; Beverley L. Miller, chairman, vice president and secretary, Directions Inc., Cranbury; Christine A. Murphy, manager, Johnson & Johnson Dental Products Company, East Windsor; Laura J. Turbini, manager, Technical Publications, AT&T Technologies, Inc., Princeton and New York City; and Barbara Ulrichsen, partner, Mason Griffin & Pierson.

The awards reception and dinner will be held May 8 at the Institute for Advanced Study. Invitations have been sent to all area companies who have expressed interest in the TWIN concept. The TWIN program is a world-wide effort of YWCA's, established in 1975, which works to develop an ongoing support system to assist women in attaining their career goals.

The Princeton TWIN is the fourth such program in New Jersey. William A. Schreyer, president and chief operating officer of Merrill Lynch & Co. is chairman of the TWIN Honorary Board, which is composed of officers of 10 area corporations.

FLOWER MARKET BACK

At Nassau & Mercer. The French Market will return to the corner of Mercer and Nassau Streets on Friday, April 20, for its 68th spring season.

Easter eggs and baskets, primroses, herbs, hanging baskets and flats of bright pansies will be on sale from 8 to 11. The Market will be open each Friday through June 15. In addition, a special Lilac Market will be held Thursday and Friday, May 3 and 4.

The Garden Club of Princeton, a founding member of the Garden Club of America, uses money raised at the Market for environmental, conservation and civic projects. The Easter eggs will be dyed and decorated by members of the club, and most of the flowers and plants offered for sale will come from members' gardens.

Mrs. Edward D. Thomas and Mrs. Wentworth Thompson are chairmen of this spring's French Market.

SUMMER WORKSHOPS SET

In Science for Youth. A science workshop will be offered by West Windsor-Plainsboro Community Education as part of its summer enrichment program.

Neil Schulman, a director of Sciensational Workshops and known as "the Chemical Magician" will bring an experienced staff. Mr. Schulman has performed and run science workshops all over the United States.

Model rocketry, computers, and electronics workshops will be held at Dutch Neck School, Princeton Junction, from June 25 to the 29, 9 a.m. to noon. Enrollment is limited to 70 students from ages 6 to 12 years.

Projects include building and launching model rockets, learning to program a microcomputer, and building robot blinkers, burglar alarms, or stop action timing testers.

A featured part of the program will be the launching of all the rockets on the final day. Some of the rockets will reach over 700 feet.

For more information call 799-0200 or write: Selma Goore, WW-PCE, P.O. Box 248, Princeton Junction 08550.

Cleaning Hydrants

The annual fire hydrant flushing program of Elizabethtown Water Company has begun and will continue until all hydrants have been flushed and cleaned. The company estimates that the program will be completed by early June.

As a hydrant is flushed, water is rusty and discolored because in most cases, it has not moved since last spring's cleaning. As it goes through the hydrant and is replaced by clear water, the force of new water rushing through the pipes loosens small particles of rust and sediment.

Because of this, water coming from taps in nearby houses may be discolored for about ten hours. The water is safe to drink, Elizabethtown says, and if its appearance is displeasing, householders may put a bottle-full of water in the refrigerator. Sediment will sink to the bottom and the water will gradually become clear.

Flushing is normally done at night, between 10 p.m. and 6 a.m.

CANCER DRIVE BEGINS

In Mercer County. The Mercer County Unit of the American Cancer Society has launched its spring fundraising drive. Mark Donaldson, a recovered cancer patient and a Princeton resident, spoke to a kick-off meeting of neighborhood captains.

For the 11th year, Princeton Day School students will canvass the Borough. In the Township, neighbors will call on neighbors. In West Windsor, there will be an all-out one day effort on Saturday, organized by Marie Smith, a social worker and three year ACS volunteer.

In each community, a folder offering a "Quick Test on Cancer Risks for Lung, Colon and Rectum" will be handed out to all residents. The test is designed to help people find out how lifestyle, medical history and health habits can affect their risk of getting these types of cancer. The folder also describes measures individuals can take to protect themselves against these cancers.

EXHIBIT, TALKS SET

On Latin America. PACLA, the Princeton Area Committee on Latin America, is presenting a photography exhibit and two events this week as part of an ongoing series of activities concerning Latin America and the Caribbean.

On Monday, three Princeton residents will present "Eyewitness Reports from Nicaragua." Daniel Kohns, a Princeton High School freshman traveled throughout Nicaragua on the Guardian (a New York weekly) tour, meeting with representatives of the Sandinista government, the press, and many sectors of Nicaraguan society. Joe Richey and Michelle Parris participated in the International Work Brigades to show American (as well as European and Scandinavian) solidarity with the people of Nicaragua by helping them sow the coffee and cotton harvests.

Their trip was sponsored by PACLA, and they will report on their experiences. The discussion will take place at 8 in the Jose Marti Lounge of the Third World Center, 64 Olden Street.

On Thursday, April 19, Gloria Emerson will talk about "Covering El Salvador." Ms. Emerson is a former New York Times correspondent and Ferris Fellow (1981-82) at Princeton University. She has recently

CONFERENCE PLANNED

On Greek Literature. A conference will be held this weekend at Princeton University to explore the place of modern Greek literature in the American university curriculum.

The conference is sponsored by Princeton's Committee on Hellenic Studies, chaired by Prof. W.R. Connor of the Department of Classics. The opening address, entitled "The Tragic Vision of George Seferis," will be given by Prof. George Savidis of Harvard University on Friday at 4:30 in McCormick Hall.

Firestone Library will have an exhibition of unusual editions of Seferis' work. A major address will be given Saturday of Prof. Edmund Keeley who will report on courses developed at Princeton University for the teaching of modern Greek literature. The Saturday sessions will involve teachers of modern Greek from more than a dozen different colleges and universities throughout the country.

The sessions are open to the public without charge.

IMPROVED STUDY SKILLS

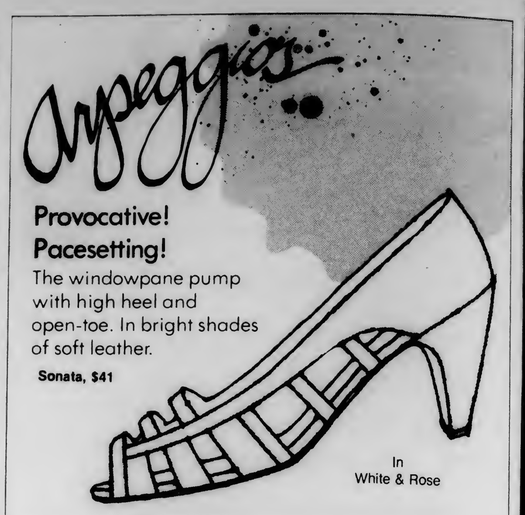
Aim of Course. "Faster Reading, Better Studying," a program to help college bound high school students sharpen their study skills, will again be offered at the Arts Council of Princeton starting Monday, April 16, at 7:30.

Kenneth McCarthy, who conceived the program and will teach it, developed it for the Educational Opportunities Program of Princeton University. The program was designed to help freshmen adjust to the increased volume of work in college, and Mr. McCarthy has adapted the program to meet the needs of high school students.

The course will cover reading rapidly, improving concentration, strengthening comprehension, developing memory, preparing for taking tests and managing time, motivation and stress. A graduate of Princeton, Mr. McCarthy was formerly associated with Learning Skills, Inc., a consulting firm whose clients include Amherst, Williams, Wesleyan, Bucknell, Brown and others.

The class is open to all high school students. It will meet twice a week for 1½ hours per session for five weeks. Class size will be limited to 10. The $145 fee includes registration, materials and tuition. A limited number of scholarships are available on a first come - first served basis.

Additional information is available from the Arts Council or by calling 921-7329.



TWO ARE NAMED

To Head Spring Annual. Mrs. C. Randall Carleton and Mrs. Peter Hoover will co-chair the 29th Spring Annual Benefit fashion show and luncheon sponsored by the Association of the North Princeton Developmental Center, formerly the New Jersey Neuro-Psychiatric Institute.

The event will be held at Smalley Hall on the Center's grounds in Skillman on Tuesday, May 1. The luncheon will begin at 12:30 followed by a fashion show featuring Saks tiary record," and "distressed at aspersions on the Planning Board, former mayor Cawley his comments on a variety of matters had been the object of criticism and Mr. Macgill for being on vacation.

Mr. Bearse said the "quality of the community" was the key issue. He urged remanding for consideration of lower-income housing, not on a Mt. Laurel basis — which Collins could challenge because the Borough has no ordinance — but out of concern for "harmony of neighborhoods." He said he preferred negotiation to litigation, and hoped Collins would, also.

Mr. Huntoon charged there is no final site-plan since the Planning Board sub-committee assigned to work out details of walkways and planting, had not yet met. The Planning Board, he said, "should be instructed to complete the record."

Mr. Urken — whose right to vote was challenged by Collins and Ms. Hill — also asked for negotiation. He said "too much is still open-ended, with the sub-committee that is to work out details." Collins' project will benefit the town, he added, remarking "I don't want them to go away: we must all work to get it going."

Mayor Sigmund, who began her remarks by saying "Yes, we're open to negotiations," referred to the law as "britches that are too narrow."

"The limitations of the law effectively nullify the last Borough elections," she declared. "We need new laws if the will of the people is to prevail. We don't have the power now, to do anything but stick to the narrow law.

Before Tuesday night's deliberations, mayor and Council heard almost 12 hours of testimony over three nights — Wednesday, Thursday and an unprecedented Sunday.

Collins attorney Thomas C. Jamieson contended that Council had no jurisdiction at all over these appeals from the final plans of Phase III, stating that jurisdiction is limited to preliminary plans; however, Mr. Bliss reminded him that Collins had not objected when Council heard appeals from final approval of Phase II plans. Nobody on Council moved to dismiss the appeals.

Threats to Black Community. For the Witherspoon-Jackson Development Corporation, appealing because it wants lower-cost homes in Hulfish North, Walton Johnson declared that Collins "is not responsive to the needs of the community," and would not suffer economic hardship if required to set aside 20 percent of its homes for lower-income purchasers.

"It will be the death-knell of the black community if Collins is allowed to go forward," Mr. Johnson declared.

He quoted a 1917 absentee landlord who had referred to "renting to niggers," cited the 1930s construction of Palmer Square which moved black residents away from Nassau and reminded Council of urban renewal efforts of the 1950s to have Princeton's black streets declared "blighted."

"There always seems to be something threatening our black community," he stated.

"It is questionable to locate luxury housing across from the Robeson Place neighborhood," he told Council, because housing prices on Witherspoon will become so inflated and taxes so high that black families will not be able to remain.

When the WJDC tried to protest to the Planning Board, he continued, "we were told these issues were not relevant."

He said the Planning Board attorney, Alan Lavine, had advised the board that "no matter how meritorious, low- and moderate-income housing is not before the board."

Mr. Johnson also reminded Council that all lower-income housing provided in the Borough is rental, and he declared that rental housing is related to social ills.

"The eradication of our community is not in our best interests, nor in the best interests of Princeton," he stated. "Collins is pushing the community toward being an upper-class, white community."

From the audience, Mrs. Emma Epps, 179 Birch, demanded "Doesn't anybody in town care anything about those of us who were born here?" and she asked "What about generations of us to come?"

The Rev. Fred Tennie Jr., pastor of Mt. Pisgah A.M.E. Church, declared it was not a housing issue, but a spiritual issue: "How can we sleep when our brothers and sisters have no place to go?"

Mr. Johnson, who had spoken for almost two hours, was praised by Mayor Sigmund for "your very eloquent and well-put argument."

Collins Welcome, But... Lynn White, 5 Greenholm, speaking for Greenholm neighbors who protest Collins' plans for Chambers Street, said "We do not oppose Collins.

"They ought to build as soon as they can get a decent plan. They own the land and have a right to a reasonable profit. We wish them well, and welcome them into the neighborhood."

Greenholm appellants ask these design changes: removal of two loading docks from Chambers (perhaps to Hulfish); moving the garbage

Perhaps citizens have been naive, thinking that Princeton is still a small town. It would now seem to be a big town, with big-city politics. We repeat: it is an irony that opponents of Collins, deeply concerned about the future of their community, may have been the instrument for the very change they feared.

compression room away from Chambers; adding a garage exit near the Nassau Inn for short-term cars, thereby, Mr. White said, reducing Chambers Street traffic and using brick, rather than stucco for the office building planned for the Chambers-Hulfish corner.

"Our side of the project has been treated as the rear end," Mr. White said. He told Council that Collins had said it could comply with the request, "but they listened to their lawyers too much."

"Lawyers always want clients to go for broke. They're like bird dogs: they see the duck and they want to go for it. There's nobody to say 'Down, Fido.'"

Mr. White, who made the briefest presentation of any of the appellants, also charged that the Planning Board "was not in a mood to question anything Collins wanted."

(While Mr. White was speaking, flakes from a damaged, water-logged Council chamber ceiling began to float down on his head. As the hearing ended, shortly after 11:30, a metal tray on top of the cloak rack in the rear of the room, placed to catch water from an even bigger hole, clattered to the floor, scattering water and audience.)

It was at Thursday's meeting that Mr. Bliss said there is a state law which might allow a mayor to vote. He asked anyone who wished, to file briefs on the matter.

Changing the agenda so that members of the audience could speak first, instead of ninth, Council heard the Rev. Robert Moore, Birch Avenue, cite the Torah and the Prophets, declaring that making room for lower-income families was a question of "simple justice."

Marvin Reed, 21 Maple, speaking to the density of the project, said Collins had not met the spirit of the requirement to provide 25 percent of its project for open space which the public might use.

Gerald Boswell, 46 Murray Place, himself an appellant whose air-rights case is now in the courts, charged that the Planning Board was predisposed as to who it would listen to, and should not have "pushed aside" those who wanted to address low-income housing.

Planning Board on Trial. Throughout the hearings, the Planning Board was on trial almost more than Collins Development itself.

"Don't remand this to the Planning Board," urged appellant Dwight O. North, who bases his appeal on the effect of a Collins connection on Princeton's sewer system. "It doesn't act in consonance with the Land Use Law."

Instead, he petitioned, amend the conditions laid on Collins by the Planning Board so that no certificate of occupancy can be granted until the sewer overflow points below Palmer Square are reduced so they are no longer detrimental. He estimated, to question from Council member Huntoon, that this might be five years.

During Mr. North's testimony, Mr. Bliss said the line between commentary and the "record below" — that is, what the Planning Board heard — is often hard to draw, but he said speakers should "err on the side of inclusiveness." Mayor Sigmund remarked, "That sounds like democracy to me."

R. William Potter filed an appeal with several parts, but has been chiefly concerned with Mt. Laurel II and requiring Collins to provide lower-income housing. The Planning Board had refused to allow him to speak on Mt. Laurel, although he reminded Council that its members had said there would be later chances to address housing, when the Phase III hearings came along.

When Mr. Huntoon commented that Mt. Laurel spoke to governing bodies, and that the Planning Board has no power to remedy, Mr. Potter replied that the state constitution should take precedence.

He asked Council to send his concerns about open space to the Borough Zoning Board.

Proceedings had gone on so long that Mr. Jamieson did not reach his place on the program until 11:40 Thursday night. He said he was willing to start, but suggested an additional night. Mayor Sigmund reminded him that Collins had refused the extension, thereby shortening the deadline. Mr. Jamieson proposed a week-end night, and Sunday was agreed on.

At the midnight conclusion Thursday, Council member Bearse urged both sides: "Don't create points just for litigation. It's costly, and taxpayers will pay, too. Look for solutions."

He added that he thought it had been unfair not to allow Mr. Jamieson his time when it had been included in both Wednesday and Thursday agendas.

The Rules of the Game. The thrust of Mr. Jamieson's presentation, which lasted almost four hours, was that once a developer receives preliminary approval of site plan, the developer has rights that cannot be modified, unless by an ordinance related to health and safety.

"These are the rules of the game on which a developer is entitled to rely," he stated, adding that the preliminary-final procedures allowed the public to take part.

He also reminded Council that Collins is not asking for

The situation caused R. William Potter, a Collins appellant, to challenge last month the legality of her remaining on Council. Mr. Potter claimed that she was no longer a legal resident of the Borough — her house was on the market — and was therefore not entitled to sit on Council.

Mr. Potter acknowledged that he wanted to remove Ms. Hill from Council because he was certain she would vote against his appeal and in favor of Collins.

Gerald Boswell, another Collins appellant, also questioned Ms. Hill's right to retain her seat.

Borough Council asked its attorney, Walter Bliss, to study the matter. After doing so, he told Council that he did not find any reasons to disqualify Ms. Hill.

A Democrat, Ms. Hill will, by law, be replaced by a Democrat.

Princeton Regional School HIGHLIGHTS

Community Park School

Mrs. Toscano's Kindergarten class went to the State Museum in Trenton. The docent, Mrs. Merino, talked to the children about shape and form in art. The youngsters learned how to identify various shapes in abstract art works and participated in games about shape and form. The class has also had many visitors during the past few weeks. Gladys Steinman, Cooperative Learning Support and Enrichment teacher, has been continuing the Spanish lessons started by Priscilla Russell earlier this year. Connie Escher, from Princeton Historical Society, has been in to talk about Princeton history. For a delicious "hands on" experience, Mrs. Feld, a parent, has been in to talk about Purim and bake Hammantaschen (the traditional Purim treat) with the children.

The Kindergarten children in Mrs. Perna's class made alphabet books containing the letters of the alphabet and pictures to represent the sound of each letter. They also worked on an assembly program called "Spring". This welcome to their favorite season gave the entire school and the friends and relatives of the young performers a chance to hear the songs and choral speaking they worked so hard practicing.

Mrs. Penrose's second grade class has had several classroom visitors. Mrs. Tebbe, a parent, showed slides and talked about the family's life in Bangladesh. Her talk helped the children become aware of the large population of that country and of the abundance of water which makes the growth of the diet mainstay, rice, easy. Mr. Hofmeyer, whose son is in the class, spoke to the children about South Africa. Another parent, Mrs. Smith, introduced the children to some of the uses of the computer through a series of humorous skits and games.

The third graders in Mrs. Craig's and Mr. Hlebowitsh's class are learning about Greece. They are studying about the culture, the alphabet and learning to translate Greek words. The children are also reading many of the more popular myths of ancient Greece. This study will continue with an introduction to the architecture of Greece and a culminating "surprise" field trip. The parents have been very helpful by coming in to share experiences and information with the children. Both the third and fourth graders in this class are writing poetry this month. Some of them are writing Haiku and some are writing verses about animals that are familiar to them.

Paper bag puppets is the most recent art project for C.P.'s second graders. Through the use of a wide variety of materials such as paper, yarn, paper springs, pipe cleaners, markers, etc. Mr. Lynch is helping the children to create puppets. At different times throughout the work the children will team up and cooperatively work out problems and exchange ideas and suggestions. At other times Mr. Lynch will acquaint the children with new techniques and skills to aid in the creation of the puppets or to help solve group and individual problems.

Riverside School

The entire fourth grade attended a performance of the musical "Carnival" which was presented by the Hun School students at the Hun School.

Barbara Schwarzschild, an ornithologist, has volunteered her time to come to some Riverside classes to teach the students about birds with the aid of her slides, bird feathers and the skeleton of a rooster. Melva Moore's third grade class continued the study of birds by writing reports, illustrating them and making covers with drawings of the student's favorite bird. As a culminating activity, Sally Skey, a parent who enjoys ornithology, showed the class how to mold birds using air dry clay. The children made models of birds of their choice which they mounted and placed on display at the school entrance.

A geography unit focusing on such features as plains, mountains and rivers and presented using cooperative learning strategies has been part of (Mrs.) Eleanor Dreeben's 3rd grade class program. The students listened to tape cassettes and saw a filmstrip on their special area of study. After answering individual questionnaires, the children exchanged their answers and information with the rest of the class and finally wrote up reports.

Mr. James Fairfull's 3-4 class has been doing a lot of work on the computer. All the students have had experience with the Bank Street Writer word processing software. Many of the students are working in turn with a keyboarding tutorial computer program. Mrs. Gilpin, Support and Enrichment teacher, has been in the classroom frequently to help individual students solve problems as well as to present instructional demonstrations to the entire class. All students will be writing stories using a word processing program during the year.

On exhibit in the Princeton Public Library's childrens' section are 12 stabiles which were made of recycled wood scraps by 2nd graders in (Mrs.) Margaret Lawton's PEP program.

Science Day was a resounding success thanks to Dr. Fong Wei and Dr. George Pinder who organized the day and to the approximately 25 Ph.D.'s and M.D.'s who volunteered to come and share their expertise with the students. This year the program had lecture/demonstrations in areas which included math, physics, electronics, chemistry, medicine, psychology, architecture and biology. The PTO, under the direction of (Mrs.) Sally Brannon, presented a luncheon for all the volunteers and staff. The following afternoon there was an assembly with Clyde Peeling of Clyde Peeling's Reptiland who told the students about reptiles. During his talk he showed a live tortoise, lizard, alligator and a variety of snakes. At the end of the show many children were allowed to touch the boa constrictor.

During the week of Science Day, the children were able to view the hatching of chicks from fertilized eggs supplied by Princeton University. The incubator, which was set up in the entrance of the school, had been prepared by (Mrs.) Anna Rosa Kohn who used a fish tank, a 75 watt bulb and a dish of water for humidity. The hatched chicks were then given to a local farm.

"It's a great show of support, and it means the resources of the party organization will be behind me. Without a primary — and a primary isn't likely — we can concentrate all our resources on the main event in November."

Mr. Bearse conceded that the Twelfth is traditionally a Republican district.

"But there are a lot of independents in the district, and they are a very sophisticated bunch; they talk to the issues in a very serious way."

His campaign will focus on peace and the economy, Mr. Bearse said, commenting in a prepared statement that "the stronger we are economically, the better position we are in to negotiate peaceful solutions to world problems."

A graduate of Harvard, Mr. Bearse has a doctorate in economics and operates his own management and economic consulting firm. The candidate, 42, lives at 110 Leigh Avenue with his wife, Myrna, and two daughters, 12 and 10, both of whom attend Princeton schools.

Sewer Problems

said the SOC is in the process of completing metering work now to assess whether or not a line needed replacing. After that comes engineering design work, which will be contracted out, he said. Pressed by Mayor Pike for a timetable, he said he hoped that engineering contracts could be let out by the end of the year and that rebuilding the system could begin by the summer of 1985.

Inspect Before House Sales. Moving from I and I in the public lines to I and I in private laterals, Committee was enthusiastic about a recommendation from Township Engineer Robert V. Kiser for linking mandatory inspection and replacement of worn out house connections and illegal sump pump and drain connections when a property changes hands. Mr. Kiser made the point that the necessary work could best be accomplished at the time of sale, when funds are available through the sale and purchase. Also resistance from property owners would be at a minimum, he suggested, since they would not have to "find the money" to make the required major repairs.

Mrs. Firestone suggested that replacing a lateral would only cost about $100, and the Township should finance these repairs. But her colleagues and the Engineer said her estimate was too low, and the total bill would be too much for municipalities already struggling to pay for repair of the public lines. Attorney Schmierer was asked to draft an ordinance along the lines suggested by Mr. Kiser.

In a discussion of the reorganization of the Sewer Operating Committee, which he has long advocated, Committeeman Richard Schoch said that he thought the University, which contributes 27 percent of the sewerage in the system, would be amenable to bowing out of the operation. Mr. Schoch proposed a committee of 10: four representatives and the engineer from each municipality sitting down with the paid staff.

In a discussion of the need for clarification of where the responsibility lies for making policy--with a sewer operating committee or with the town council--Mr. Smith cautioned against creating another authority. In a thinly veiled reference to the Stony Brook Regional Sewerage Authority, Mr. Smith said, "You'll end up with an uncontrollable monster that bleeds you dry." 924-4787.

Mayor Pike said he would bring these latest suggestions and recommendations of Township Committee to Borough Mayor Barbara Sigmund.

any variances, has made changes requested by the Planning Board and has made its plans "according to your rules and ordinances."

"It's a joke," he said, "to ask us to put mandatory setasides for lower-income housing long after we've obtained approval," and he pointed out that the Borough does not yet have a Mt. Laurel housing ordinance.

Regarding open space, he said George Olexa, the Borough's zoning officer "repeatedly" found that it met the Borough's requirement. He said Collins provided 34 percent, instead of the required 25.

To Mayor Sigmund's question, "How much will be covered by cement, ground cover and walks?" Mr. Jamieson said Collins could not yet provide square feet, but did plan to plant grass instead of ground cover.

To Greenholm residents, he said Collins would accept suggestions about material for the office building, and that "probably" it would be largely brick.

But Borough ordinances require loading docks for office buildings, he said, hence loading docks on Chambers, and specify the size: 33 feet long. He said Collins, at the Planning Board's request, had added 11 feet.

Making a garage exit on Hulfish would be inadvisable, he explained, because Collins plans that Hulfish will be a pedestrian way. He said architectural designs will "minimize" the impact of the loading docks.

To Mr. North's concerns about sewage, Mr. Jamieson said Collins' contribution to the sewer trust fund must be cupancy. Mr. Olexa had not dedicated to removing in- told him what method of filtration from the measurement he would use, downstream section of the Mr. Jamieson said.

Mayor Sigmund also pressed questions about the Planning Board sub-committee that the Sewer Operating Committee would measure when this will had occurred, and Mr. Jamieson said Mr. Olexa had told him infiltration and inflow would have been removed by the time the office building is ready for a certificate of oc- evaluate landscaping plans. Inna Hecker Grade, widow and translator of the Yiddish writer Chaim Grade, will speak on her husband's work this Wednesday at 4:30 at the Woodrow Wilson School, Bowl 5. The lecture in sponsored by the B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation.

Chaim Grade, who died this year, was the author of Rabbis and Wives, The Agunah and The Yeshiva. He was described by a New York Times reviewer as "a curator of Eastern European Jewry" and "a writer for all languages." Near the end of his life he was nominated for a Pulitzer Prize and invited to read at the White House.

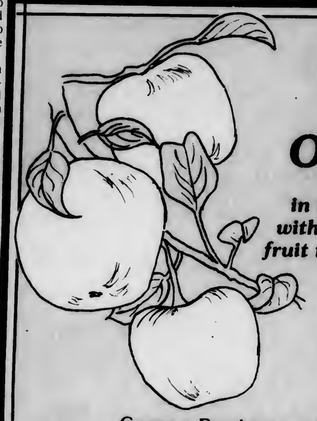
Mrs. Grade, whose work in translating Rabbis and Wives along with Harold Rabinowitz, received much praise, came to this country from the Soviet Union with her husband after World War II

A cable television documentary, "That The World May Believe," describing the work of the Consultation on Church Union will be carried on the Satellite Program Network on Sunday, April 29.

Dr. Gerald F. Moede, general secretary of COCU, said the 28-minute program will be fed by the network at 4:30 p.m. (E.D.T.) but any cable system can pick up the program free of charge and carry it at another time. Pastors are encouraged to inquire about it from their local cable system.

Dr. Charles L. Fefferman, professor of Mathematics at Princeton University, will lecture at Bard College on Saturday, April 14. Dr. Fefferman was named professor at Princeton in 1974, at the age of 25, and became the youngest full professor in the history of the university.

Sam L. Barker, Ph.D., of Pennington-Lawrenceville Road, Lawrenceville, general manager of Squibb Diagnostics, has been named vice president of E.R. Squibb & Sons, Inc. He will continue to work in New Brunswick.



Dr. Barker joined Squibb in 1969 as a research investigator. He was promoted to senior research scientist in 1972 and became section head in radio-pharmaceutical research in 1973. After a year in Squibb's management development program, he was appointed director of parenteral manufacturing in 1977.

A year later he became associate director of The Squibb Institute for Medical Research and director of diagnostics, research and development. In 1982 he was appointed general manager of Squibb Diagnostics.

Steven R. Levine, M.D., has been certified as a diplomate in the subspecialty of cardiovascular diseases by the American Board of Internal Medicine. Dr. Levine, who is also a board certified specialist in internal medicine, is a graduate of Williams College and the University of Pennsylvania Medical School. He completed a fellowship in cardiology at Boston University Medical Center. Dr. Levine is a member of the Princeton Medical Group and is on the staff of the Medical Center at Princeton.

The insignia of the Order of Alfonso X el Sabio was conferred upon Prof. John H. Elliott of the Institute for Advanced Study by the Spanish Ambassador at a ceremony at the Institute.

Alfonso the Wise, after whom the order is named, was a medieval Spanish king, known for his patronage of learning. The order was given in recognition of Prof. Elliott's contribution to Spanish studies. A member of the faculty at the Institute since 1973, he is the author of a number of books on the history of Spain and the Hispanic world.

In 1981, A Palace for a King, a study of the palace of the Buen Retiro in Madrid written with Prof. Jonathan Brown of the Institute of Fine Arts in New York, was published. Prof. Elliott's most recent book, Richelieu and Olivares, will be published in a few weeks time.

Marquette University's College of Speech has announced that Helen C. Logan, 265 Cold Soil Road, has been named to the dean's list for the fall semester.

John Konvalinka, of Gordon Way, partner-in-charge of the management consulting division, Arthur Andersen Company, has been appointed to the Arts & Culture Council of the Greater Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Konvalinka has been actively involved with Philadelphia's cultural community for several years. He serves on the board of the Greater Philadelphia Cultural Alliance and has had major responsibilities for two years with the Philadelphia Orchestra Marathon.

Michael R. Glogoff, D.M.D. of Rosedale Road has been installed as chairman of the New Jersey Dental Political Action Committee. Dr. Glogoff is an oral and maxillofacial surgeon practicing in Mercerville and East Windsor. Chief of dentistry and oral surgery at Hamilton Hospital, Dr. Glogoff serves on the staffs at the Medical Center in Princeton and St. Francis Medical Center in Trenton. He is also on the teaching faculties at the New York Hospital — Cornell Medical Center and Woodhull Hospital in New York.

Marine Lance Cpl. John D. Gocke, son of David J. and Barbara A. Gocke of 78 Lovers Lane, recently participated in "Teamwork '84." He is a member of Third Battalion, Eighth Marines, Fourth Marine Amphibious Brigade, based at Camp Lejeune, N.C. "Teamwork '84" was a NATO exercise to test the ability of NATO forces to reinforce and resupply Northern Europe under winter conditions. It took place in the North Sea, Norwegian Sea and North Atlantic areas.

Air Force Reserve Airman David A. Kohut, son of Albert and Helen G. Kohut of Belle Mead, has been assigned to Chanute Air Force Base, Ill., after completing Air Force basic training.

He will now receive specialized instruction in the aircraft maintenance field. Airman Kohut is a 1982 graduate of the University of District of Columbia, Washington.

TWO FIRMS FORMED

From Bowers Organization. Changes have taken place in the architectural and engineering operations of Lewis C. Bowers and Sons, resulting in the formation of a wholly new partnership and a new group within the Bowers organization.

The new group, Bowers Design Associates, will be headed by Fred L. John, who joined the Bowers organization in 1982. Mr. John, who served as general manager of Fulmer Bowers and Wolfe, the architectural partnership being dissolved and replaced by Bowers Design Associates, has had 25 years of architectural experience. He was formerly associated with two Michigan firms that developed the Mall at Short Hills and the Stamford, Conn., Town Center.

Mr. John represented Bowers for the Nassau Inn redevelopment project with the Collins Development Company, and he has also been involved in the $45 million, 350,000 square foot renovation at Harborside Plaza in Jersey City for Bankers Trust.

At the same time, it was announced that Thomas S. Fulmer and William A. Wolfe of Fulmer Bowers & Wolfe have formed a new partnership, Fulmer & Wolfe, architects. Mr. Wolfe will direct design, and Mr. Thomas will supervise the technical and administrative side of the new practice. The new firm is located at 746 Alexander Road, as is Lewis C. Bowers and Sons, Inc.

NEW PARTNERSHIP: Thomas S. Fulmer, left, and William A. Wolfe have announced a new architectural partnership to be known as Fulmer & Wolfe. The two men were formerly associated with Fulmer Bowers & Wolfe as part of Lewis C. Bowers & Sons.

Princeton area projects that the two men have been involved in through Fulmer Bowers & Wolfe include the Recording for the Blind headquarters; Carnegie Center 103, 104 and 105 office buildings and centrum; and the Princeton Bank Building at Forrestal Center. Other recent projects are the Pepperidge Farms headquarters in Norwalk, Conn., a factory for International Flavors and Fragrances in South Brunswick, N.J., and Hercules Corporation marketing center in Wilmington, Del.

Mr. Fulmer has practiced as a partner of Fulmer & Bowers since 1967 and has specialized in planning health care facilities. Before joining Fulmer Bowers & Wolfe in 1980, Mr. Wolfe was design associate with the same Michigan firm with which Mr. John was associated.

Members of the AIA and licensed to practice in five states, Mr. Fulmer and Mr. Wolfe are both graduates of Princeton University. Mr. Wolfe received his graduate degree in architecture from Princeton as well in 1967; Mr. Fulmer completed his architectural studies at MIT in 1961.

Lewis C. Bowers and Sons, Inc., the parent company for Bowers Construction Company, Bowers Development Company, Bowers Management Company and now Bowers Design Associates, has had an extensive roster of corporate clients. Among them are AT&T, Exxon, General Motors, IBM, Prudential Insurance, RCA, Merck and Xerox, as well as Princeton University and Princeton Theological Seminary.

FIRM IS FINALIST

In Design Competition. Kelbaugh & Lee Architects has been selected as a finalist in the national design competition for a new cultural arts center in Newport News, Va.

The firm is one of seven selected for the final phase out of a field of 110 that submitted designs.

The 80,000 square-foot facility is a $15 million center for performing and visual arts which is to be the centerpiece of downtown redevelopment. Kelbaugh & Lee's design team consisted of Doug Kelbaugh AIA, Sang Lee AIA, Alan Goodheart, Kevin Wilkes and Don Prowler AIA. They were assisted by a team of six architecture graduate students from the University of Pennsylvania.

HISTORIC HOUSE TO BECOME CLUBHOUSE: The turn-of-the-century Theobold Smith House near Lake Carnegie in Plainsboro, will be the clubhouse for Princeton Landing, the 412-unit residential community. It is now the company's sales office. Restoration has revealed entry arches, French-glass pocket doors, several fireplaces and authentic moldings hidden behind plaster. The house is named for the first director of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research. When the Institute moved to New York City in the early 1950s, the house and land were bought by Princeton University. Between 1956-60, the house was used as offices for "Project Matterhorn," a University-sponsored program researching peace-time uses of thermo-nuclear energy. It was later the first administrative office building for Forrestal Center, of which Princeton Landing is a part.

OBITUARIES

Dr. Harold B. Law

Dr. Harold B. Law, a retired RCA Laboratories executive who was responsible for developing the shadow mask for television tube employed in the majority of color TV receivers throughout the world, died April 6 in Princeton Medical Center. A longtime Princeton resident, he was 72 years old, and lived in Hopewell at the time of his death.

Dr. Law was recognized throughout the electronics industry for developing fabrication techniques which led to the first practical color picture tube demonstrated by RCA in 1950. Among his key contributions were the "lighthouse" to simulate the shadowing of electron beams on the tube's faceplate and the corresponding photo position of a mosaic of tiny phosphor dots to produce the color picture.

Still used today, Law's techniques made possible the hundreds of millions of color TV receivers produced in the past 30 years.

Dr. Law received many honors for his work both from RCA and from outside professional groups. In 1979 he was elected to membership in the National Academy of Engineering of the United States of America, the highest professional distinction that can be conferred on an engineer.

Born in Iowa, but raised in Ohio, Dr. Law received B.S. degrees in liberal arts and education, both in 1934, from Kent State University. He earned M.S. and Ph.D. degrees in physics from Ohio State University in 1936 and 1938, respectively. In 1959 he received a citation from Kent State as an outstanding graduate. He was to receive an honorary doctorate from Kent State at the 1984 graduation ceremonies.

Dr. Law joined the RCA Corporation in Camden in 1941, working on television camera tubes. He transferred to the newly established RCA Laboratories in Princeton in 1942 and was one of three RCA researchers honored by the Television Broadcasters Association in 1946 for the development of the image orthicon camera tube, the "technical accomplishment of the year."

He was named a Fellow of the Technical Staff of RCA Laboratories in 1960 and two years later, was appointed director of the RCA Electronic Components Materials and Display Device Laboratory. He retired in 1976.

In 1955 the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers (IEEE) awarded Dr. Law the Vladimir K. Zworykin Television Prize and in 1975 the Institute presented him the Lamme Medal "for outstanding contributions in developing color picture tubes, including the fabrication techniques which made color television practical."

———

Dr. Law was a Fellow of the Society for Information Display (SID) and in 1975 received the SID Frances Rice Darne Memorial Award for his work in color picture tube development.

Surviving are his wife, Ruth Workman Law; and three daughters, Linda Krantz of Lexington, Va.; Sara Schlenker of Hinsdale, Ill; and Kathy Orloski of Allentown, Pa.

A memorial service was held in the First United Presbyterian Church in Hopewell. Memorial contributions may be made to Kent State University.

Ruth D. Beck, 85, of Westcott Road, died April 6 at home after a long illness.

Born in Denmark, Mrs. Beck had lived in Perth Amboy and in Chicago, where her father, the late Pastor Alfred Dorf, had a parish and where she attended the University of Chicago. She had lived in Princeton for 50 years with her husband, Martin L. Beck, a member of the faculty in the School of Architecture at Princeton University. She was a den mother to several generations of architectural graduate students.

Mrs. Beck was the cofounder of the Princeton Decorating Shop. She was also a longtime worker and member of the board of directors of New Jersey Planned Parenthood.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Terry Morse of Moorestown; four grandsons, Martin, Tom, Samuel and Michael Morse; a sister, Helga Eisler of Princeton; a brother, Prof. Erling Dorf of Princeton, and several nieces and nephews.

A memorial service will be held Tuesday at 3:30 at the Marquand Transept of the Princeton University Chapel. Dean Frederick Borsch will officiate. Memorial contributions may be made to Planned Parenthood Center, 437 East State Street, Trenton 08608. Arrangements are under the direction of the Kimble Funeral Home.

Leslie T. Fagan, 80, former Lawrenceville School teacher and business manager, died April 8 in Mercer Medical Center. He had lived in Lawrenceville for the past 56 years.

Born in Waterbury, Conn., Mr. Fagan earned a Bachelor of Philosophy degree from Brown University in 1926 and an M.A. in 1928. After graduation, he taught mathematics at the Lawrenceville School for 21 years. He was appointed assistant business manager of the school in 1944 and business manager in 1953, a position he held until his retirement in 1969.

From 1953-54 Mr. Fagan was president of the Association of Business Officers of Preparatory Schools. He was the co-author of a math review text that is still used at Lawrenceville, and he continued to tutor boys in math after his retirement.

Surviving are his wife, Mildred G. Fagan; a son, Roger C. Fagan of Pittsburgh; a daughter, Roberta Evans of Trumbull, Conn.; two brothers, John of Seattle and Dr. Frank Fagan of West Hartford, Conn.; a sister, Georgia Fagan of West Hartford; and two grandchildren.

A memorial service will be held this Wednesday at 3 in the Lawrenceville School Chapel. The Rev. Dr. H. Dana Fearon III, pastor of the Lawrenceville Presbyterian Church, will officiate. Burial was in the Lawrenceville Cemetery.

Memorial contributions may be made to the American Heart Association, 3490 Route 1, Princeton 08540.

Donald S. Allen, 51, of Mt. Holly, died April 6 at Burlington County Memorial Hospital.

Mr. Allen was born in Princeton and had lived in Burlington County for the past 20 years.

He is survived by four sisters, Eleanor Ranallo of Ewing, Evelyn Lesko of Edison, Mrs. Arthur Gallant of Princeton, and Catherine Schantz of Hightstown; a brother Henry Allen of Florida, and several nieces and nephews.

A graveside service was held in Kingston Cemetery, the Rev. Carl Brandt, associate pastor of Princeton United Methodist Church, officiating. Arrangements were under the direction of the Kimble Funeral Home.

RELIGION

HOLY WEEK BEGINS

With Palm Sunday. This Sunday, Palm Sunday, marks the beginning of Holy Week in area churches, as Christians prepare for Easter and the high point of the Christian year.

The week is seen as a journey from the triumphal entry of Christ into Jerusalem, when the people spread palms before him, to his betrayal, arrest and crucifixion on Good Friday, and the empty tomb on Easter morning.

Princeton area churches will celebrate Palm Sunday with readings of the story of the Passion, with special music and with the distribution of palms at their regular Sunday morning worship services. TOWN TOPICS will list the Wednesday, Maundy Thursday, Good Friday, Holy Saturday and Easter Sunday services of individual churches in next week's issue.

At the 11 a.m. worship service on Palm Sunday at Kingston Presbyterian Church, Main Street, Kingston, a combined youth choir from the Taiwanese American Fellowship Presbyterian Church and the Bound Brook Methodist Church, under the directorship of Victor Chen, will present the children's cantata, "To See a Miracle."

The Rev. Canon Timothy B. Cogan of the Episcopal Church at Princeton University will preach the Palm Sunday sermon at the Princeton University Chapel Sunday at 11 a.m.

The Bible Discussion Group at the Princeton Monthly Meeting, Religious Society of Friends, will meet Sunday from 10 to 11 in the Library for a discussion of The Passion of Jesus. Barbara Forman will be discussion leader.

PASSOVER BEGINS

Seder, Services Planned. The Festival of Passover will begin this year with the first Seder service and meal on Monday evening, April 16. Worship that evening will be held at The Jewish Center, 457 Nassau Street at 6:30.

Passover, of "Pesach" in Hebrew, commemorates the liberation of the Children of Israel from servitude in ancient Egypt. A special book of narration called Haggadah is read at the Seder Services. The theme of freedom is stressed in this anthology of liturgy, literature, and song.

In explaining the Festival of Passover, Rabbi Melvin J. Glatt, spiritual leader of The Jewish Center said, "Passover addresses itself to all human beings not only persons of the Jewish faith. In our time, as in the past, we must be willing to work and even struggle for human liberty and dignity to be achieved for all people created in the image of God.

"There are many who are still disenfranchised in our society. Minority groups, women, and even children have not yet won their rightful place in our world. Passover bids us look at their situations and help them."

Rabbi Glatt and Cantor Robert Freedman will officiate at all services during the eight-day celebration of Passover. Services will be held Tuesday at 10 and 7; Wednesday, April 18, at 10; Friday, April 20 at 6:30; Saturday, April 21, at 10; Sunday, April 22, at 6:30; Monday, April 23, at 10 and 7:15, and Tuesday, April 24 at 10.

ORGAN RECITALS SET

For Holy Week. Nassau Presbyterian Church will hold noontime organ recitals all next week as part of its celebration of Holy Week.

A different organist will perform each day in the church sanctuary at 61 Nassau Street at 12:15, except for Good Friday, April 20, when the Nassau Church Choir will present Faure's Requiem with Carol Evans, soprano; James Amick, baritone; Mary Helbig, harp, and Ray Robinson, viola.

Organists will include Thomas McBeth, organist-choir director at the Armenian Evangelical Church of New York and former organist-choir director at St. Andrew's Church, Princeton; Karl Zinsmeister, a graduate student in church music at Westminster Choir College and assistant organist at Nassau Presbyterian Church; Also, Brian-Paul Thomas, organist-choirmaster at First Presbyterian Church of Merchantville and former assistant in music at Nassau Church; and Kenneth B. Kelley, current director of music at Nassau Church.

John D. Longfellow

returned from Japan after serving for 18 months as a missionary of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. He is one of the church's 27,000 volunteer missionaries presently serving throughout the world.

While in Japan, Elder Longfellow spent his time in Matsusaka, Iwakwa, Nagoya, and Kanazawa, teaching the gospel and learning about the people of Japan. At present he attends the Princeton Ward Chapel on Alexander Road at Route One.

BEEF AND HAM OFFERED

By Hopewell Methodist Church. The Hopewell Methodist Church will hold its annual Spring Roast Beef and Ham Dinner on Saturday from 3:30 to 7:30 in the church at 20 Blackwell Avenue.

Tickets for the family style dinner are available at the door and cost $7 for adults, $6.50 for senior citzens, and $3.50 for children 6 to 12. The dinner is free for children under six.

The menu includes a salad bar, roast beef, ham, string beans, carrots, mashed potatoes, rolls, beverage and home-made desserts.

Items for Easter baskets and gifts will also be on sale at a craft display table.

BLACK THEOLOGIAN DUE

For Talk at Seminary. One of the leading Black theologians in America, James H. Cone, will speak at Princeton Theological Seminary on Monday at 7 in the Main Lounge of the Campus Center. His topic will be "Black Theology and Third World Theologies."

Dr. Cone is professor of theology at Union Theological Seminary in New York City and has lectured widely at colleges and universities in the United States. In 1973 he completed a lecture tour of Europe, speaking in symposia about the relationship between Black theology and Latin American theology of liberation. He is the author of several books which have been translated into many languages.

BULLETIN NOTES

The Central Jersey Humanistic Judaism Group will hold a mini-Passover celebration Sunday afternoon, April 22, in Princeton.

This is a group of Jewish humanists who have recently formed an organization that will study and enjoy Jewish history and culture and celebrate the traditional holidays in a secular fashion. For information about membership, call 924-3323.

The Prince of Peace Lutheran Church will celebrate Palm Sunday this Sunday with a service featuring the distribution of palms, the reading of the Passion story by church members and special music by two of the church's choirs during the 11 a.m. service.

The senior choir under the direction of Jan Westrick will sing, as well as the junior choir, under the leadership of LaRue Unglaugue. For information call the Rev. Frederick Schott at 799-1753 or 799-1785.

The Women's Association of Witherspoon Presbyterian Church will hold its annual Palm Sunday Tea this Sunday at 3:30.

Barbara Trent & Sons from Trenton will be presented in concert, along with special guest vocalist, Michele Fizer of Baltimore, Md. A reception will follow.

Tickets at $5 for adults and $2.50 for children 12 years and under will be available at the door. Everyone is invited.

Denny and Deanza Duron will be preaching and singing at the Nassau Christian Center on Sunday at the 6:30 p.m. service.

The Rev. Mr. Duron is a former professional football player and former coach of the Evangel College football team in Springfield, Mo. His wife is a former World-Action singer from Oral Roberts University in Oklahoma. The two have travelled across the world singing and preaching.

For more information call Pastor Jesse Owens at 921-0981 or 452-2828.

Princeton Monthly Meeting, Religious Society of Friends will hold a covered dish supper and discussion on Saturday beginning at 5:30 in the First Day School.

Susan Greenthal and the Rev. Henry Atkins, chaplain of St. Michael's Church in New Brunswick, will speak on the crisis in Central America and the question of church groups providing sanctuary to refugees. Background information on the situation in Central America and American involvement is available in the main assembly room.

o little attention is paid to se of maintenance in the esign of landscaping. omeowners often sabotage emselves into situations re- uiring too much money and me to maintain grounds, when mple changes in design ould result in significant sav- gs.

ou don't save anything by eglecting maintenance, as en you will soon be faced by e need for complete recondi- oning, which is both costly in me and money.

revention is the best medicine hen it comes to pruning. An vergrown forsythia shrub may quire four hours time by a rofessional to bring it under ontrol, whereas, an annual runing to control size will re- uire only about 15 minutes me by an amateur. In winter, nventory your plants and nrubs and make a schedule to ollow in accomplishing the job. your time is at a premium, ou want to consider having a rofessional set up a schedule or you. You may then want to ivide the work load between ourself and the arborist. In this way, your garden will be pro- erly cared for; have the pro- er maintenance and you'll ave healthy trees and shrubs.

ay attention to the siting of in- ividual plants. It is easy to reate a jungle by ignoring this rinciple. Jungles take hours to ntangle. Estimate how each lant will look in ten years. llow space for that growth. ometimes in early stages it is ecessary to overplant for the ake of appearance, but draw our plan to include what and hen plants will be removed as he landscape matures.

BEAUTIFUL CRESTVIEW DRIVE CONVENIENT TO STUART, PDS, AND TOWN AND AFFORDABLE!

In the beautifully wooded area off Cherry Hill Road in Princeton, you'll find a very special neighborhood close to everything yet quiet, with large, lovely yards. Homes here when they do come on the market, sell quickly. Firestone is pleased to present in this location an expansive home built by a master builder. Plaster walls, beautiful hardwood floors, the lovely stone terrace in the rear and wide picture windows for deer watching are just a few of the special touches that will make this home a dream come true. A real feeling of interior space pervades the house from the large living room with fireplace to the formal dining room and the heated sun porch. On the lower level you'll find a large game room with entertainment center, laundry and family room. Three bedrooms make this house fit your needs now and later. Let us tell you more and arrange for your personal inspection. $268,000

BLENDED WITH TASTE

to make a happy mixture of contemporary and traditional in Princeton's lovely Edgerstoune! Wonderful new glass enclosed, Jerry Ford designed kitchen – breakfast room and deck overlooking private grounds made even more so by "The Mall." Modernized living room, large dining room, both with track lighting, opening to cozy sitting room. Master suite with dressing room-study, and state of the arts bath, 3 other bedrooms and 2½ baths, plus an oversized recreation room for all kinds of activities. Everywhere there is imaginative use of built-ins, fabulous closets and storage areas. In fact, too much to describe in a small ad - so come see for yourself! Reduced to $305,000

ONE OF A KIND - Post modernist architect designed residence, 6 plus wooded acres. Light, airy, air conditioned and energy conserving. 4 bedrooms, 3 baths, separate office or guest house. $450,000

WONDERFUL PRINCETON AREA, beautifully landscaped and manicured grounds, attractive 3 bedroom, 2 bath contemporary split level. Cathedral ceilings in living and dining areas, family room, study. A find for someone! $174,500

CLOSE BY A BABBLING BROOK

on over 2½ acres in a rural section of Princeton Township, we present a beautifully kept ranch. Living room with energy efficient heatolator fireplace, large step-down dining room, excellent kitchen with Quaker Maid cabinets and pleasant breakfast area. Three bedrooms, den or fourth bedroom and 1½ baths. A real plus is the separate auxiliary building - with large studio, office or recreation room, kitchenette and its own heating system.
A pretty place to call home! Offered at $225,000

and all of downtown Princeton, we offer an expansive frame house with large living and entertaining areas and numerous bedrooms and baths. Set on almost an acre, this new listing on Bayard Lane has a location well worth exploring for its many future potentials and present possibilities. Call for further information.

A LOT OF HOUSE FOR YOUR MONEY

and a pretty one, too! Situated on about ¾ acres near the Province Hill area of Lawrence Township, it's just minutes from downtown Princeton. Attractive living room with fireplace, dining room with pine wainscotting, cozy panelled study or den. Four bedrooms, 1½ baths, screened porch overlooking flagstone terrace and pretty grounds. Solidly built by Houghton, with plaster walls, and of course, oak floors.

STUART ROAD

Nature's woodland, huge boulders and the rolling countryside make a perfect setting for a limited number of contemporary houses on this picturesque road in Princeton Township. With seclusion assured by the required acreage, this unique hillside home also overlooks a running brook and acres of parkland, beautiful when snow covered or when the dogwoods bloom. Weathered cedar siding, glass walls, two fireplaces and outside decks, add interest to the dramatic living areas, four bedrooms, three baths and family room. $349,000

CONSTITUTION HILL

A way of life to which many of us would aspire. This handsome brick townhouse with its dramatic peaked roof is near the Morgan mansion with its formal gardens, the swimming pool and tennis court, yet overlooks a meadow with pond which will remain open space. Living room with fireplace and cathedral ceiling, dining area under the balcony, master bedroom with bath, powder room on first floor. Large bedroom, bath and study on second. $320,000

CRESCENT DRIVE

Griggstown - an area reminiscent of Washington's March and the early days of transportation by way of the Canal - is the setting for this neat barn-red house. With the convenience of being on one floor on a full acre with trees, and a Princeton address, it offers: living room with fireplace, dining room, kitchen, three bedrooms, bath and screened porch. Panelled family room and bath on lower level. $115,000

PRINCETON HORIZONS

Princeton address - walk to the bus from this choice first floor, two bedroom, 1½ bath condominium. A spacious living room with dining area plus a modern eat-in kitchen opening on to a patio, make this property attractive for both comfortable living and investment potential. $81,500

RIDGEVIEW ROAD

Spring, Summer, Fall and Winter - all seasons are beautiful when viewed from every room of this dramatic contemporary house. On four plus acres in northwestern Princeton Township, it seems to offer the seclusion of much more acreage. Spacious living room with fireplace and two walls of glass, dining room, bright kitchen, screened porch, two bedrooms and bath on main level. Family room, two bedrooms and bath on lower level. $335,000

RELO: World Leader In Relocation

PCH's Struggle to Build Housing for Elderly Was Guided by a Determined Harriet Bryan

A small, gentle lady, quiet-speaking, with soft brown hair, big brown eyes — and a spine and mind of stainless steel.

"How can she stand it!" people used to say of Harriet Bryan, watching her in meeting after meeting over the years as she made the case for Princeton Community Housing and its 89 apartments for elderly people with modest incomes.

Often the opposition was palpable, hostile and intense. Rarely was it polite.

Through two disastrous referendums; malfunctioning voting machines that snatched away victory with a kind of malevolent glee; lawsuits; the law's delay; bureaucratic lethargy and even, six days before the end, the appearance of a new and earnest young lawyer with yet another demand, Harriet never paused, never lost her temper, never once burst into tears.

"Well," she would sometimes sigh in the face of troubles that would make Job weep, "it IS frustrating ..."

On Sunday, April 1, she pressed into the earth of the Elm Road plot the shovel that broke the ground for the apartments. It had been three and one-half years.

How did she stand it!

"I was very shy and retiring," she remembers, telling about an earlier and similar experience, "but I discovered that if you believe strongly enough about something and have studied it enough, you can go out and talk to people. I'd never have thought it possible."

That earlier experience was in suburban Washington, in Fairfax County, Virginia, where Harriet and Kirk Bryan had moved in 1960. They were in a development next to an old settlement where descendants of George Washington's slaves had lived for many years.

DAY OF TRIUMPH: Harriet Bryan speaking at the April 1 ground-breaking ceremonies for Princeton Community Housing's Elm Road project. (Michaela McMillan Photo)

The League had come early into Harriet's life. She grew up in rural New Hampshire where her mother was president of the state League. It was during World War II, there was gas rationing and "mother did everything on the typewriter and the telephone." She was also active in Republican politics and although Harriet followed her mother into the League, she took a different direction politically and is a Democrat.

Arriving in Princeton in 1968, when Kirk began work with the Geophysical Fluid Dynamics Lab at Forrestal, Harriet naturally joined the League. It was in that year that Princeton's League helped to get 200 units of lower-income housing written into the Township Master Plan.

"We were trying to keep Princeton from being a one-class society. The emphasis was on civil rights, and we helped the Civil Rights Commission with a fair-housing office, listing what apartments were available."

On the Board of PCH. After serving the League as president, she joined the board of Princeton Community Housing in 1979 as the League's representative. PCH comprises 20 non-profit institutions and organizations, and the League is one of them.

Housing was coming to be more and more in the spotlight in Princeton. A booklet called "Spotlight on Princeton," focusing on the need for lower-cost housing, had been prepared by PCH president Laura Goldfeld. Developer Benedict Yedlin, for whom Harriet has high praise ("he's tremendous") was working with the Housing Authority to build Redding Terrace.

And in 1980, with Harriet now president, PCH applied to Federal Housing and Urban Development officials, taking that fateful first step toward the 89 units on Elm Road.

In spite of months and years of problems, Harriet says "it never seemed to me that we had any option but to continue, so long as we weren't completely stopped.

"We never were completely dead, although we came close, and so long as there was a chance, with so many people who wanted it and needed it — well, we had no option but to continue.

"I never felt personally injured, I never felt PCH was threatened. We WERE doing the right thing, and I felt the majority was with us.

"Voting down the garage in the referendum, wasn't voting down PCH — I never felt that. Even those who were against the garage, wanted housing somewhere.

"But they didn't understand how close they came to killing it altogether, no matter how we tried to tell them."

The referendums were in the fall of 1981 and the spring

"I was very shy and retiring, but I discovered that if you believe strongly enough in something and have studied it enough, you can go out and talk to people. I'd never have thought it was possible."

Joined the League. These families were about to be evicted by the county, which had declared their houses unfit for habitation, and they had no place to go. The League of Women Voters, that nurture medium for so many public-spirited women, set up a study committee and Harriet joined.

Various possiblities were examined by various groups, but finally it was decided that what the county really needed was public housing.

"In Virginia, you had to have a referendum on public housing," Harriet explains, "and Fairfax was a well-to-do suburb. It was very educational.

"There were 40,000 votes cast, and it passed by 200 votes.

"It was my second college education," says this Wellesley history major, "and tremendously helpful in later projects. I learned so much!"

Incidentally, PCH's delays are not unique: it was not until 14 years after that referendum that public housing was finally built in Fairfax County. But the county did suspend its eviction notice, declaring that families could not be evicted unless they had alternative housing.

McCarter Picks Five Plays for the 1984-85 Season

Something from France — "with love," McCarter says — will open the 1984-85 five-play drama season at McCarter Theatre, it was announced this week.

In the best of all possible worlds, artistic director Nagle Jackson would like that French drama to be Rostand's "Cyrano de Bergerac;" however, it's possible that the Royal Shakespeare Company will be playing "Cyrano" in New York with Derek Jacobi, and Mr. Jackson doesn't want to compete with that one.

So it may be Moliere's "School for Wives" instead. It all depends on whether the RSC secures a New York engagement. If it does, McCarter will simply wait a year, then do its own "Cyrano."

Dates for the opening, whatever it may be, are October 3-21.

After lengthy negotiations with the Soviet Union, Mr. Jackson reports, McCarter has obtained the rights to the premiere in the United States of the English translation of "The Dawns are Quiet Here," by Boris Vassiliev.

The Soviet play is about a platoon of 11 women soldiers and their male commander stationed in a remote army outpost in 1945. Mr. Jackson says the play is "often humorous, profoundly moving exploration of the ravages of war," and he promises "unique staging techniques that will surprise and amaze McCarter audiences." "The Dawns are Quiet Here" will play October 31 through November 18.

Nagle Jackson himself has constructed "The Play of Faustus," starting with Christopher Marlowe's text and adding components from the early English Mystery plays, Goethe and even Moliere. He describes it as "a new treatment of the great legend of a man and his devil."

Contemporary playwrights in England and the United States are being commissioned by Mr. Jackson to write several sections which will complete his Faustian mosaic. "The Play of Faustus" has been scheduled for January 23 through February 10.

"Under Milkwood," Dylan Thomas' love letter to his past, has been planned for March 6 through 24. And for the concluding play of the season, playing a year from now between April 3 through 21, Mr. Jackson says "the search is on!"

"When we find just the right play to close the season," he says, "a title will appear on the marquee ..."

And of course, as always, there will be "A Christmas Carol."

WORST MOVIE EVER

In Cult Festival. Widely acclaimed — that's what the press release says — as "the worst movie ever made," a cult classic called "Plan 9 from Outer Space" will be shown Friday, April 27 at 9 p.m. at the Art People Place, Witherspoon Street.

It's the start of the Princeton Cult Film Festival, presented in co-operation with the Arts Council of Princeton, which will show a movie on the fourth Friday in every month through August. Admission is $3 and there is a subscription price of $12.50 for all. Details from Carol Weiss, 921-3639.

"Plan 9" stars Bela Lugosi — it's the last film he made — With Tor Johnson and "Vampira," Edward Wood directed.

Others in the Festival series will be "The Tingler," with Vincent Price (May 25); "What's Up Tiger Lily?" directed by Woody Allen (June 22); Roger Corman's "The Little Shop of Horrors" with Jack Nicholson (July 27) and "The Terror of Tiny Town," an all-midget musical Western (August 24).

AT THE MOVIES

"The Verdict." Sidney Lumet's "The Verdict," starring Paul Newman, will be on the Movies-from-McCarter screen next Monday through Wednesday at 7:15 and 9:30 each evening.

An old-fashioned court-room drama, written for the screen by David Mamet ("Glengary Glen Ross" and "American Buffalo"), the film has Newman as a defeated idealist, battling the succesful cynics.

BUT IS SHE REALLY CRAZY? The question is asked in "Nuts," a drama about a woman who may or may not be sane enough to stand trial. From left, in Theatre Intime's production, are Holly Tooker, Kevin Teal, Noel Fairbrothers and David Newcomb.

News of the Theatres

Newman plays a lonely has-been lawyer who has become a boozy ambulance chaser. A decision to pass up some easy money and try a case instead of settling out of court pits the shaky lawyer against powerful antagonists, including a big-time lawyer played by James Mason, and a corrupt judge played by Milo O'Shea.

MUSICAL MYSTERY

"Dead Give-Away..." Michael Rosenfeld, completing a degree in composition with Princeton University composer Milton Babbitt, has written book, music and lyrics for a musical mystery called "Dead Give-Away."

It will be performed in Murray Theatre on the University campus May 3-6 and 9-12 at 8, under the direction of Veronica Brady.

It's a world premiere, and was a finalist in the annual Richard Rodgers Production Award competition.

Mr. Rosenfeld writes about three young writers who are trapped on the deserted estate of an infamous mystery writer who has disappeared. He left his greatest mystery unsolved and as the writers try to complete his masterpiece, they fail to realize that the key to the mystery is the only thing that can save them from the very characters they are creating.

DANCE IN '84-85

Three Companies Booked. Three dance companies will come to Princeton in the next season to perform on McCarter's stage in the Dance-at-McCarter series.

The companies are Paul Taylor (November 19-20); The Feld Ballet (February 4-5) and the Twyla Tharp Dance Company (April 8-9).

SENIORS TO SEE PLAY

With Lunch. A senior citizen trip to Bethwood Theatre in Totowa to see "Barefoot in the Park" will be held Wednesday, May 2, under the sponsorship of the Princeton Recreation Department.

The $20 cost includes the trip, tickets and lunch, with a choice of entrees. Reservations should be made now at 921-9480.

'NUTS'

At Intime. What is "sane" and what is "insane"? The questions will be addressed in Tom Topor's drama called "Nuts" to be given by Theatre Intime this weekend and next in Murray Theatre on the Princeton University campus.

Production time is 8 p.m. this Thursday through Sunday and again Thursday through Saturday, April 19-21. Tickets may be reserved by calling 452-4950 or 452-8181 between 1:30 and 5:30, Tuesdays through Fridays.

In the play, the question is whether a woman is mentally competent to stand trial, and in the course of the drama, the playwright questions society's definitions of "sane" and "insane."

age involvement with alcohol as a way of coping with academic problems and peer pressure is explored in a play called "Who Says I Can't Drink?" to be presented this spring by the Family Service Agency of Princeton.

Diana Crane, director of the Agency's Plays for Living program, has chosen a cast consisting of Ted Irenas, Marni Rice, Kelly Caulk and Marie Bograd, Rip Pellaton is stage manager.

Organizations interested in presenting the play for their membership are invited to call Linda Meisel, 924-2098.

DANCE WORKSHOP SET

By Folk Dance Group. The Princeton Folk Dance Group is sponsoring a special workshop on Saturday.

George Tomov, a native of Yugoslavia who heads a professional folk dance troupe in New York City, will teach Yugoslavian dances from 2 to 5 at the Riverside School gym. The workshop will emphasize Croatian dances, and a small donation will be requested.

The Folk Dance Group will hold a party at 8 on Saturday, which will feature the dances taught at the workshop as well as dances from other countries. Everyone is welcome, even if they could not attend the workshop. Participants are encouraged to bring refreshments.

For more information, call 921-1462 or 924-7350.

EVENING OF THEATRE

At Seminary. "North of Boston - South of Richmond," an evening of theatre, will be presented at Princeton Theological Seminary on Thursday and Friday at 7:30 in the Campus Center Theatre. The production will be directed by William Brower, associate director of speech.

The program will include readings of Flannery O'Connor's "The Crop"; Lee Smith's "Between the Lines," (narrated in chamber theatre performance); and two monologue poems by Robert Frost. The title acknowledges the New England tone of the two Frost selections which are contrasted with the distinctly southern idiom of the stories by Smith and O'Connor.

The public is invited to attend free of charge.

MUSIC

FINAL CONCERT SET

For University Orchestra. The Princeton University Orchestra, under the direction of Michael Pratt, will give its final concert of the season on Saturday, April 21, at 8:30 p.m. in the Princeton High School Auditorium on Moore Street.

Guest artist Mary Wescott, mezzo-soprano, will perform Five Ruckert Songs by Mahler. Admission to the concert is free.

In addition to Mahler's Ruckert Songs, the Orchestra will perform Rossini, "Overture to Semiramide"; Ravel, "Mother Goose Suite" and Mozart's Symphony No. 38 in D Major, K. 504 ("Prague").

Mary Wescott was most recently heard as soloist with the Orchestra and the Westminster Symphonic Choir in Beethoven's Ninth Symphony. A graduate of Westminster Choir College, Miss Wescott has studied with Martin Katz and Judith Nicosia; Robert Eckert at the University of Iowa, and Flora Nielson at the Royal Academy of Music in London. She has been soloist with several orchestras in Michigan, and with orchestras at Duke University and the University of Iowa.

Michael Pratt is currently in his seventh year as conductor of the Princeton University Orchestra and Opera Theatre. A graduate of the Eastman School of Music, he has been guest conductor at the Manhattan School of Music, at the Aspen Festival and with the Rochester Philharmonic. He is assistant conductor of the Cathedral Concert Orchestra in Newark and co-director of the June Opera Festival of New Jersey, which will be held at the Kirby Arts Center in Lawrenceville, June 15-30.

CONCERT SATURDAY

By Wind Ensemble. The Princeton University Wind Ensemble, under the direction of Michael Pratt and assistant director Dan Plante, will give its annual spring concert Saturday at 8:30 p.m. in the Princeton High School Auditorium. Admission is free.

The performance will include the world premiere of a piece entitled "Sirens" written for the Princeton University Wind Ensemble by Elizabeth Wiemann, a graduate in the music department at Princeton University. Ms. Wiemann previously studied at Oberlin College where she earned a bachelor's degree in music composition and clarinet.

Guest-artist Martin Butler, pianist, will perform the piano solo in "Sirens." A native of Romsey, England, Butler is a graduate of Manchester University and the Royal Northern College of Music. He has performed extensively in England and Europe and is a graduate student in composition at Princeton.

The ensemble will also perform a variety of works written for wind symphony including Symphony in B-flat by Paul Hindemith, Overture to "Candide" by Leonard Bernstein, and First Suite in E-flat for Military Band by Gustav Holst.

EASTER MUSIC SET

By Early Music Group. Princeton University's group for the performance of early music, Musica Alta, will present "Music for the Easter Season" in the University Chapel on Tuesday, April 17, at 8:30 p.m.

Mary Anne Ballard will direct the ensemble of 10 singers with instrumental consorts of viols, recorders and krummhorns. The program of medieval and renaissance music will focus on the crucifixion and resurrection, and music for other sacred rituals, as well as secular songs of springtime. The repertory includes little-heard compositions of Dufay, LeGrant, Cara, Brumel, Cornyshe, Tye, Willaert, Rossi, Praetorius, Tompkins and Weelkes, and many anonymous works.

Sponsored by Friends of Music, admission is free and the public is invited.

VIOLINIST IN RECITAL

At Choir College. The Westminster Conservatory Faculty Recital series will offer a solo performance by Mark Zaki, violinist, at 8:30 Saturday in Bristol Chapel on the Choir College campus.

Mr. Zaki has been heard most recently with the Nassau String Quartet. His other current commitments include the Collegium Musicum of Princeton, the Rutgers Festival Orchestra, the New Jersey Chamber symphony, and the Naumberg Orchestra in New York City. Mr. Zaki took his bachelor's degree at Rutgers University, and his Master's at the Mason Gross School of the Arts.

Mr. Zaki's performance this Saturday will include works by Bach, Brahms, and Stravinsky. He will be accompanied by Judith Avitabile, a graduate of Skidmore College who was staff accompanist for the State University of New York at Albany. She has performed with numerous other ensembles and soloists in New York and New Jersey and is completing a double masters program at Westminster Choir College, in piano accompanying and voice performance.

For more information, call the Westminster Conservatory at 921-7104 or 924-6359.

CHAPEL CHOIR TO SING

At Westminster. The 65-voice Westminster Chapel Choir will give a free double concert conducted by Westminster graduate students Grace Kingsbury and Michael Jarvis on Tuesday, April 17 at 7 p.m. in Westminster's Bristol Chapel.

The first concert will feature a program of early music, with most works from the 15th through the 18th centuries, conducted by Mr. Jarvis, a student of church music. Grace Kingsbury will conduct the Chapel Choir in a program of folk song settings.

QUARTET MONTAGE of New York will give the final concert in its chamber series here on Sunday at 3 at the Unitarian Church. Members are Nancy Bean, violin; Jonathan Spitz, cello, Cheryl Hill, clarinet, and Christopher Sanborn, top right, piano.

FINAL CONCERT SET

By New York Quartet. The Quartet Montage will conclude its chamber series at the Unitarian Church on Sunday at 3. Members of the group are Nancy Bean, violin, Jonathan Spitz, cello, Cheryl Hill, clarinet, and Christopher Sanborn, a former Princeton resident, piano.

The quartet will perform Beethoven's Archduke Trio; the Berg Opus 5 pieces for clarinet and piano; and the Schoenberg Kammersymphonie op. 9 with guest artist Susan Rotholz.

Tickets, available at the door, are $6 general admission, $3 students and senior citizens.

Correction

The date for the 15th annual show by the Princeton Chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America was incorrectly listed in last week's TOWN TOPICS.

The correct date is Saturday, April 14, when there will be two performances, at 2 and at 8, at the Trenton War Memorial.

An Improved Little Orchestra of Princeton Delights Audience with its Finest Concert Yet

Over the years, the Little Orchestra of Princeton has gotten mixed reviews in this column. Problems with intonation and ensemble often marred what could have been very fine performances. However, after hearing this Sunday's performance at Princeton High School auditorium, this writer would like to give the orchestra and its conductor, Portia Sonnenfeld, a well-deserved and unequivocal "Bravo!" The program presented was nicely varied. Each piece was appropriate for the ensemble, and the orchestra's performance of these works showed that it has attained a higher level of sophistication and musicality. Indeed, this probably was Sonnenfeld's best effort to date.

The program itself was indicative of a pattern which Sonnenfeld seems to be following in planning her concerts. The works she chooses tend to be ones not often heard, thus promoting a wider appreciation for literature in this genre. Sonnenfeld also often features U.S. and world premieres of recently composed works, developing the progressive nature of the orchestra.

One such work was the Violin Concerto by Michael Blake Watkins, which had its first U.S. performance in this concert. A piece of considerable difficulty for both soloist and orchestra, this concerto was written for and performed by Yfrah Neaman. Neaman, a well-known British violinist, played the work with great passion and energy, supported by the undying concentration of Sonnenfeld's orchestra. Though an exceedingly complex work, the concerto was enthusiastically received.

More importantly, Sonnenfeld often presents soloists of local recognition. This concert brought two such people to the stage, both of whom are regular members of the orchestra.

Andre Tarantiles appeared as harp soloist in Debussy's Danses pour Harpe Chromatique. Over the lush backdrop of the strings, Tarantiles played the work effortlessly, though his instrument suffered some intonation problems. Soloist and orchestra meshed perfectly, and phrasing was splendid, particularly considering the constant give-and-take of the tempo. Tarantile's etherial tone balanced well against the strings, which had a much fuller, warmer sound than had been heard in previous concerts.

Though not a concerto, the second movement of Haydn's Symphony No. 24 provided an excellent opportunity to spotlight flutist Jayn Rosenfeld. Her round, lucious sound carried well over the strings, and took on an especially rich lustre in its lowest register. Rosenfeld will be remembered as one of the soloists in the Little Orchestra's performance of Bach's Brandenburg Concerto No. 5, performed earlier this season.

Most exciting of all, though, is the overall improvement of the orchestra. While Sonnenfeld presses on with works which continually demand more of her musicians, they seem to be better able to handle the challenges. Intonation has improved; articulation is more unified; balance is sublime; and the responsiveness to Sonnenfeld's excellent conducting is precise and complete.

In short, the Little Orchestra of Princeton has matured into an organization of quality musicianship. It serves a vital function in this community as an exponent of new and rarely-heard works, as well as of talented artists, both local and world-reknown.

ORCHESTRA RECRUITED

For June Opera Festival. The June Opera Festival of New Jersey will present its opening season June 15 through June 30 in Lawrenceville.

The festival will be composed entirely of musicians from the New Jersey Symphony Orchestra and will feature a new production of Mozart's comic opera The Marriage of Figaro and three evening concerts. Michael Pratt, music director and co-founder of the Festival, said that the Festival was fortunate in beginning "such an ambitious undertaking with an orchestra that is already a seasoned ensemble."

The Marriage of Figaro, in a new English translation, will be conducted by Mr. Pratt and directed by Peter Westergaard, director of production and the other founder of the June event. It will be performed June 15, 17, 22, 24, 27 and 30 in the 890-seat, air-conditioned theater of the Kirby Arts Center at the Lawrenceville School.

A concert of Romantic vocal music will be performed June 20, and two orchestral concerts will be presented June 23 and 29. The June 23 concert will salute the collaboration between the members of the New Jersey Symphony Orchestra and the festival.

James Dickson, former administrator of the Santa Fe Opera, is general manager. A fireworks display will follow the opening and closing night performances, and a patrons' party will be held on opening night.

Inspired in part by European summer opera festivals, the June Opera Festival of New Jersey invites ticket holders to picnic on the grounds of The Lawrenceville School before the performances or during the 90-minute intermissions scheduled for the evenings of June 17, 24 and 30. According to Mr. Westergaard, the festival was founded to present, in English, the many masterpieces conceived for intimate theaters the size of that at the Kirby Arts center.

A company of professional young singers and designers has been assembled. Among the opera houses and festivals at which these young people have worked are the Pennsylvania Opera Theater, the Opera Company of Philadelphia, the Opera Company of Boston, Wolf Trap, the Michigan Opera Theater and the Aspen Music Festival.

The Festival is made possible in part by a founding grant from Merrill Lynch & Co., of which Princeton resident William A. Schreyer is president.

For information about subscriptions, tickets for individual performances, the patrons' gala and performance times, call the festival box office, 683-1759.

How About Performing?

Musicians and singers specializing in folk, jazz, Dixieland, bluegrass and contemporary music are invited to audition for a spot with Events Unlimited, Inc., a public relations firm.

Events produces concerts, benefits, festivals and the like for business firms or non-profit institutions, and needs performing artists to perform.

If you're interested, you're invited to submit a resume with details of your professional experience, and a cassette tape with a sample performance. Both should be send to EUI, P.O. Box 1415, Princeton, N.J. 08542.

ORIGINAL CERAMICS

At Clayphernalia. In a picturesque 200-year-old converted mill which rests on the banks of the Delaware and Raritan Canal, two creative young artists, John Shedd and his wife Nina Gelardi produce exquisite works of art in their studio. Both ceramic artists have gained wide recognition in several individual shows in New Jersey and many other states for their unique work, which is displayed in their own gallery adjoining the studio, Clayphernalia.

The 2000-square-foot grist mill, dating from 1708, is said to have once been owned by Thomas Hart, a signer of the Declaration of Independence. The site seems to inspire its owners, who are constantly experimenting with new forms, glazes, and firing of the clay. Both work full time as ceramic artists while producing large numbers of pottery pieces to send to department stores and shops around the country, as well.

John Shedd, whose most recent show was held in a gallery in Tequesta, Fla., is challenged by the colors of his glazes and their control through the several firing processes. He is most recently experimenting with a brilliant red, made from copper. Its brilliance is largely determined by the atmosphere of the kiln in which his hand-built and thrown porcelain forms are fired. Mr. Shedd's new cylindrical vases have throwing marks, made by his hands as he molds the piece.

"My work is about color and the challenge to control that color in this medium. I create objects in porcelain that speak of simple beauty. Through the use of different textures in the form and glaze, I hope to create an object rich in character and pleasing to view," he explains.

CERAMIC ARTISTS: John Shedd and his wife Nina Gelardi ready his highly acclaimed ceramic pieces for one of the several firings in the kiln to achieve a brilliant copper red glaze. Ms. Gelardi's work is pit-fired behind their gallery and studio, Clayphernalia, in Rocky Hill.

Beautiful platters, plates, mugs, tea pots, and vases in lovely combinations of colors are on view at Clayphernalia. Some functional work by a friend of the couple, potter Royce Yoder, is also on display. His high-fired stoneware pottery is durable and, of course, lead-free. Casseroles, baking dishes, soup tureens, teapots and other serving pieces will make wonderful gifts this spring.

Clayphernalia still does special orders for customers, which is good news for those shopping for wedding gifts. A square plate, an oblong tray for bread or cheese, or a stunning planter are good ideas for gifts.

Nina Gelardi's work is focused on hand-built porcelain basket forms which are primitively fired. Her latest work includes wall collages assembled from fired pieces, found objects, and drawings. Ms. Gelardi's concern lies in the "properties of form, line, and negative space."

A mixture of leaves, twigs, and sawdust from various hardwoods covers her work, which is placed in a pit or a drum and fired in the ground. The nature of the fire determines the light and dark designs on the surface of each piece. "It is the total interaction of the pattern, line, form and space that is the most important aspect of my work," she says.

A visit to the Clayphernalia gallery and studio is an interesting experience. Hundreds of hand-thrown pieces are neatly stacked on shelves to await firing and glazing. Large orders for Bonwit Teller and Macy's are soon to be filled. The gallery's annual sale will be held during the first week in May from Thursday through Sunday.

books, plastic overlays and transparencies, decorative executive maps, enlargments and motor carrier routes are among the items available for business and research. A spring-loaded double-laminated map for $185 is one of Ardic's "biggest movers," according to the owners.

Reference Maps. Educational reference materials for families, teachers, and librarians aid in teaching map skills, geography and other social science subjects are all on display in the shop. Such items as map puzzles, moon and star maps, globes, foreign language dictionary and phrase books, and handsomely mounted maps of the oceans' floors make learning more fun and can encourage interesting conversation among families and friends. The selection is enormous!

United States and World maps, political ones, weather, geological and mineral charts, historical maps and charts can be mounted or framed, reduced or enlarged and printed on a laminated surface or mylar at Ardic. The options are endless and further selections to order may be found in catalogues. Every quadrant of the country has been mapped by the U.S. Geological Survey. A thoughtful gift might be certain quadrants of interest mounted together. A color map of New Jesey, 55 by 50 inches, that comes in a tube, sells for as little as $7.95. A huge wall map such as the one seen in Mr. Sargeaunt's office would please any executive who has the space in his or her office.

ALL THE MAPS YOU'LL EVER NEED: Richard Sargeaunt, one of the three owners of Ardic Map Center in the Montgomery Shopping Center, displays his large wall map, only one of hundreds of maps found in the shop. Charts, globes, travel maps and literature for hikers, campers, and sailors are among the fine selections on display. The shop will mount and frame any map sold there.

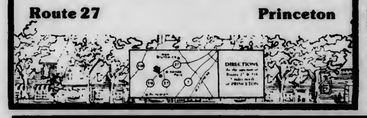
Look no further for an ideal gift for Mother's or Father's Day, graduation, or even wedding presents. Ardic Map Center offers beautiful globes, a gift which will last forever, atlases, scenic books, and antique and antique replica maps.

During the Christmas holidays the Center had 45 different globes on display, ranging in price from $6.98 to $1100. A globe identical to the one which is used by the President in the Oval Office is sold for $3500. Two-way illuminated political globes made by the World Horizon company show the physical world when the light is off and the political world when it is turned on. Globes for desks, standing ones, and a flat lighted business map (which has a magnetic board with electric current behind it with 24 options of symbols and colors) are all on view. What eighth grader, high school or college senior or graduate student could not use a globe on his or her desk or a small mounted wall map? A bride and groom will appreciate a map or globe on which to plan a host of future trips. One young bridegroom gave each member of his wedding party a globe as a gift recently.

The most spectacular globe seen in the shop is the lucite earth and space one which displays all of the stars' and planets' paths. The sun rotates from within and the horizon is set to date and time.

A Travel Center. Domestic and foreign travel, vicarious or real, is facilitated at Ardic Map Center, where scores of travel guides, local maps, city directories, road atlases, geological maps, national park guides, fishing maps, camping and backpacking guides and nautical, aviational and atmospheric charts are found.



Boating charts neatly arranged in kits will aid the sailor or yachtsman from New York to Nantucket, through the Chespeake Bay, from Norfolk to Maine or through the Bahama or Virgin Islands this summer. A distinctive library of maps and informational guides for backpackers, cyclists, and canoers will furnish new ideas for the adventurous and provide gifts for same.

Specialized gifts are available here, such as an exquisite geographic atlas with full information (the first one was printed in 1909) printed by the famous Hoen company, which has gone out of business. The atlas is a topographical study of every street and house in Trenton, aerial geology, and structural sections.

One hundred portfolios of the ten most important maps in New Jersey history, beautiful illustrations, were publised by the Historical Society for Christmas. These and other antique replicas and authentic antique maps receive much attention in the store, where dealers come from the cities to shop. Hours are from 9:30 to 6 Monday through Saturday.

Nassau Conover Motor Company

"Your One-Stop Automobile Dealership"

We Americans have many things to be proud of, and one of them is the automobile. After all, Henry Ford practically invented the automobile back in 1904! So why bother with those little foreign cars when you can get a well-built and gas-economical American-made car instead?

NASSAU CONOVER, located on Route 206 in Princeton, phone 921-6400, is the largest American car dealer in the Princeton area. They feature the trusted and time-tested lines of FORD, MERCURY, LINCOLN, CHRYSLER and PLYMOUTH models, as well as complete service, parts and body shop. Daily rentals and long term leasing are also available. With so many excellent cars to choose from, let the experts at NASSAU CONOVER find the one that's just right for you.

Countless satisfied customers will testify to the fact that NASSAU CONOVER offers a fair price on the new car as well as an honest dollar for the car you trade in. Where the service you receive on your automobile is a most important factor, NASSAU CONOVER has established an enviable reputation.

The composers of this 1984 Business Profiles Review would like to point out a dealer that considers the most important part of selling a car is the quality service he can offer you after the sale. We are talking about NASSAU CONOVER, of course - dealers for the world-renowned AMERICAN car. See them today or call 921-6400 for an appointment to test drive one of the beautiful FORD, MERCURY, LINCOLN, CHRYSLER or PLYMOUTH automobiles in stock!

The Alchemist & Barrister Restaurant

ART

FROM CHINA

To University Museum. Chinese calligaphy and painting from the Elliott collections will be on view at the Princeton University Art Museum, McCormick Hall, from this Sunday through June 17. The exhibit is "Images of the Mind: Selections from the Edward L. Elliott Family and John B. Elliott Collections of Chinese Calligaphy and Painting."

A film called "Ming Garden," provided by the Metropolitan Museum of Art, will be shown this Sunday at 2 and 3 in 101 McCormick Hall. The public is invited and admission is free.

According to the museum, the collections are rare in their exploration of the close relationship of Chinese painting to calligraphy during the last thousand years.

Highlights of the exhibit, say University curators, are rare works by two of the leading calligraphers of the late 11th century; the earliest known complete set of "The Eight Views of the Hsiao and Hsiang Rivers" by the mid-12th-century painter Wang Hung and major calligraphic works by artists of the late 13th through 16th century. There are also works by outstanding artists of the Ming and Ch'ing periods.

The catalog, obtainable in hardcover from the Princeton University Press for $65, or in softcover at the museum for $28, has a book-length introduction by Wen C. Fong, professor of art history at Princeton and consultant on Far Eastern affairs to the Metropolitan Museum.

His essay is illustrated with 170 examples of paintings and calligraphic works from the great collections of Chinese art from the eighth to 18th century. As described by the museum, Dr. Fong's essay is an independent text documenting the way Chinese artists attempted to express their inner spirit in "images of the mind."

BY ROSENBORG

At Gallery of Fine Art. Oils and watercolors by Ralph Rosenborg will be at the Princeton Gallery of Fine Art 8 Chambers Street, from April 24 through May 19 in an exhibit marking 50 years of public exhibitions of his work. The Gallery will show works executed over the past 25 years.

Since 1934, Rosenborg has had over 60 solo exhibitions and has been included in more than 300 group shows. His work is in the collections of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the Hirschhorn Museum and Sculpture Garden, the Guggenheim and others. Louise Nevelson the sculptor, has written that Rosenborg is "a modern Turner, a master of the lyrical approach to landscapes."

Of Swedish parentage, the artist has been placed by critics in the Northern Romantic tradition which regards art as a way of communicating with mysteries lying beneath the surface of the material world.

The Gallery is open from 10 to 5 Tuesdays through Fridays and 11 to 5 Saturdays.

WOOD SCULPTOR

In South Brunswick. Wood sculptor Edmund Spiro will be featured in the third part of the "Art Goes Public" series at the South Brunswick Public Library on Saturday and Sunday. Mr. Spiro will demonstrate the process of creating a sculpted piece of wood. He welcomes the public's participation in his creation process and will answer questions on tools or techniques.

This artist's works have received awards in numerous juried shows throughout the state of New Jersey, and he has participated in many exhibitions including the Diamond Gallery in Millburn, the Hait Gallery in Maplewood and the East Brunswick Museum. Mr. Spiro received his MA in humanities from Kean College and currently resides in East Brunswick.

EXHIBITS

Paintings and drawings by Robert Gherman and Bruce Gherman, the two brothers who own Art Masters Gallery, 44 Spring Street, will be exhibited from this Sunday (reception 2-4) through May 15. At the same time, the Gallery will feature sculpture by Kris Sendra and Sunny Wilson.

The two artists, born in Brooklyn in 1953 and 1958 respectively, both studied at the Art Students League in New York. Robert has a degree in fine arts from the University of Colorado and spent ten years in the west, learning and teaching landscape painting. He has exhibited in various Colorado galleries and at the City College of New York.

Bruce has exhibited at the Brooklyn Museum, the Art Students League and the Salmagundi Club. His studies were abroad and in the Woodstock workshop of Albert Handels.

Sendra served his apprenticeship at the Johnson Atelier in Princeton and is now a member there. The basis of his work is figurative. Wilson, also a Johnson apprentice, has exhibited widely in California and has shown in the Ambrose Gallery in New York. She, too, works in figurative style.

Watercolors by four artists will be on view from this Thursday through April 25 at the Stainton Gallery of The Pennington School. Exhibiting artists are Mary Green La Forge, Bob Sakson, Eiko Kahn and Dorothy Bissell. Gallery hours are Mondays through Fridays from 9 to 4:30.

Baseball, Lacrosse Teams on the Road This Weekend; Lightweight Crew Will Race on Lake Carnegie Saturday

THE GAME-WINNER!: A desperate lunge by Yale's goalie Brian Reilly wasn't enough to stop this game-winning goal by Princeton's Jon Lurie, giving the Tigers a 12-11 triumph in Saturday's game on Finney Field. The junior attackman scored two minutes into the overtime to enable Princeton to continue a 12-year winning streak against the Elis. (W.L. Bill Allen photo)

SPORTS

If the weather cooperates and you are in the mood to view one of the more glamorous events of intercollegiate athletics, then Lake Carnegie will be the place to be this Saturday afternoon as Princeton's lightweight crew hosts Cornell, Rutgers, and Ithaca College.

The racing should begin at 1:45 p.m., with the varsity shells scheduled to leave the starting position at 3.

Should begin...scheduled to leave. Last Saturday the lightweights' scheduled races against Navy at Annapolis were postponed by harsh conditions on Chesapeake Bay. The crews stayed overnight, arose at 4 on Sunday morning, and competed literally at the crack of dawn—the only time one can count on good water at this time of year. Princeton's varsity eight, off at 7 a.m. in the last race of the day, surged past the Midshipmen for a two-length victory, and then headed in for breakfast before the bus ride home. So much for the glamour.

Barring torrential rains or hurricane-force winds—either one of which could make Carnegie unnavigable—the lightweight crew will be the only major University sports team competing at home this weekend.

The heavyweight crew, which lost to Navy by 12.2 seconds in a race held earlier in the week, will compete against Penn and Columbia this Saturday in Philadelphia.

Baseball On Road. The Tiger baseball squad, which raised its record to 7-10-1 overall and 4-4 in EIBL play as a result of splitting four straight doubleheaders, was scheduled to host Villanova this Wednesday at 3 and then play more doubleheaders, at Dartmouth and Harvard, before returning to Clarke Field next Tuesday against Fordham.

With triples by Dan Arendas and Drew Stratton and three hits from Todd Tuckner, Princeton rolled past Brown, 7-3 in Sunday's opening contest. Stratton homered in the second game but the Tiger bats otherwise were silent in the second game, a 5-1 loss.

Princeton's fortunes sank lower the next day against Yale. The Tigers rebounded from a 5-2 deficit to take a 6-5 lead into the top of the seventh. Then the Elis loaded the bases and Bill Beard entered the game in relief. He struck out two batters and got the third to hit what appeared to be the game ending grounder to second base. But Chip Newton, who entered the game after Todd Leavitt injured his arm, booted the ball and Yale scored two runs and won the game.

In the second game Newton doubled and drove in two runs and Stratton again homered to take Princeton to a 7-5 lead entering the final inning. Yale threatened as freshman pitcher Joe Pape walked the lead-off man. But the next hitter drilled another grounder to Newton, who this time began a crisp doubleplay to clear the bases.

Lacrosse Escapes Defeat. Princeton's lacrosse squad opened its Ivy League season by snatching victory from the jaws of an imminent defeat at the hands of Yale, which hasn't won in 26 league games. Bill Donahue tied the game for the Tigers with 17 seconds left in regulation play; John Leary scored two minutes into the sudden death overtime to pull out the win, which raised the team's overall record to 2-3.

This Wednesday's game against league-leading Penn at Finney Field was expected to be a greater challenge, as is Saturday's contest at Brown.

The Orange and Black registered 11 first place finishes to defeat the Army in track, 89-68, in the only dual meet scheduled this season at Palmer Stadium. The Tigers, who travel to Yale this weekend, benefitted from strong performances by Jim Anderson (first in both the 100 and 200-meter dashes), Rod Quinn (first in the steeplechase), Jack Fonss (1,500), Gordon Christie (5,000), and Bob Igoe (24-4¼ for first in the long jump).

Princeton's tennis team whipped Yale, Boston University, and Brown over the weekend to improve its season record to 8-5. The Tigers play Clemson and Trinity of Texas in South Carolina this weekend.

The team at home this weekend may be the one with the most ambitious travel plans. Last year's lightweight crew set a Princeton course record, captured the Eastern Sprints, and then rowed into the semi-finals of the 32-boat competition in Henley, England. That performance came despite the loss of three regulars due to injuries and scheduling conflicts.

This year's crew includes few experienced oarsmen: Captain Mark Califano moved into the varsity boat for the Henley races, and Andy Card, Jeff Peterson, and Mark Michalowski competed in a four-man boat that also made the trip to England. Still,

Coach Gary Kilpatrick's crew exudes optimism.

'England Is Gravy.' The coach himself sounds cautious. "Rutgers is the crew to beat this week," says Kilpatrick. "They beat Penn by 10 seconds. And the following week Penn is here and Penn beat Cornell last week, which was a little surprising."

His rowers, especially after their cold dawn at Annapolis, just can't help but look forward to the more glamorous stops on the schedule. "We go one day at a time," insisted Califano, "always hoping to get better."

"But in the back of our mind we're always thinking of HYP (the Harvard-Yale-Princeton meet, this year April 28 in Cambridge) and the Sprints (May 13 in Worcester)," interjected Card. And a win in the Sprints, noted Peterson, is the prerequisite for Princeton's trip to Henley: "England is the gravy from the Sprints." But first Rutgers on Carnegie Lake, of course.

PHS GIRLS STUN ND

In Track. For a new coach, his debut could not have been more dramatic.

Last week, Tom McMorrow, new coach of the Princeton High School girls' track team, watched as his underdog Little Tigers defeated Notre Dame, 64-58, to hand the Irish their first dual meet loss in 36 outings -- a string stretching over the past three years.

A few days later, he watched again as PHS captured one first, two seconds and two thirds in a fine showing in the Mercer County Relays held Saturday at the Ewing High track.

One more hurdle early in the season remains: the scheduled meet this week against Hightstown. The Rams were described by McMorrow as "very well matched with us in balance. They have about the same depth, the same strengths and weaknesses in many areas.

"It looks like a really tight meet; I'm keeping my fingers crossed on that," said McMorrow. "If we get past them it looks like a real good season for us in the league. If we don't, we'll still have a decent season. Either way we win."

In the Mercer Relay event, all of Princeton's triumphs came in the runnng events. It was shut out in the field events.

Barbara Byrne, Susan Gray, Heather Gray and Gail Woolston combined to run a 10:32.8 in the 4x800 for Princeton's only first-place finish. Byrne, Woolston, Gray and Kiran Cummings placed second in the distance medley with a clocking of 13:19.7 to Notre Dame's winning time of 13:01.6 and freshman Meg Parsons, Woolston, Hillary Jones and Gray combined for a second place in the sprint medley, posting a 4:39.2 compared to the winning time of 4:36.7 set by Hightstown.

The Little Tigers also flashed their speed in the two sprint medleys, coming in third in both. In the 4x100, Parsons, Jennifer Altman, Jones and Teressa DiPerna, the latter a sophomore transfer from Connecticut new to the school, ran a 54.0. Trenton High won the event in 49.8. In the 4x200, Gray, Parsons, Jones and DiPerna finished third behind Trenton and Ewing. "DiPerna," said McMorrow, "ran a good anchor leg in both events."

In one of three meet records set, Tanya Young and Margaret Locke of Ewing jumped a combined 31-6 to better the previous mark of 31-3¾ set in 1981 by Princeton High's Gladys Rice and Terri Phox.

Again, following a custom started last year, no team scores were kept. Had they been, Hightstown and Notre Dame would have tied for first, followed by Ewing and Princeton.

We Got Lucky. McMorrow, who had predicted before the meet with Notre Dame that he didn't expect his team to come within 20 points of the Irish, admitted later that, yes, he was surprised by the outcome and that, two, he was a lousy predictor. "We got lucky," he said.

"Notre Dame is certainly the stronger team but it was a combination of our girls having a great day and Notre Dame having three of their key performers out." Two from the Irish squad were sidelined with an illness and one -- Melanie Nosal -- with a sprained ankle.

"Essentially, we didn't make any mistakes," continued McMorrow. "We captialized on our points." Notre Dame in contrast, he said, was the victim of some breakdowns. One ND girl fell down in the 400-meter race, which was eventually won by Princeton, and another dropped out of the two-mile, after not feeling well. Those two breaks plus his own girls running the best they could added up to a PHS upset.

A double winner for the Little Tigers was Woolston, who captured the 400 in 1:01.0 and the 200 in 28.5, with Hillary Jones finishing second behind her in both. Kim Johnson was also a double winner, capturing the 100 dash in 14.0, Parsons taking a second, and the long jump. The final and key event which sealed the win for PHS was the mile relay where Susan Gray, Dawn Gray, Byrne and Heather Gray won with a clocking of 4:26.5.

Other first-place finishers for PHS were Dawn Gray in the 400 hurdles and Byrne in the 800 ahead of teammate Heather Gray. Their times were 2:33.4 and 2:35.1.

McMorrow also singled out the performance of Barbara Halverson in the field events. She finished second in the javelin with a toss of 100-6 -- three inches behind the winning toss by Stephanie Mahler of ND, and third in the shot put.

Notre Dame's Joyce Lanier ed an Irish sweep in the iscus and set a new Mercer ounty record in the shots ith a toss of 39-2½.

Kiran Cummings and Vicky Adler finished second and third in the 3200, while Susan Heidere was second in the 1600 for PHS.

THE BIG ONE

PHS vs. Lawrenceville. "That's the big one," commented Princeton High lacrosse coach Pete Larsen about the Little Tigers' upcoming game this Wednesday against Lawrenceville.

Lawrenceville is a perennial lacrosse power in the area; PHS has been forced to struggle for recognition the past few years. Larsen views the game, which will be played at Lawrenceville starting at 3:45, as a litmus test of how PHS will fare the rest of the season.

The Little Tigers started the season Saturday with an 8-1 loss to visiting Westfield. This Saturday, following the key Lawrenceville contest, it will host Clifton. Starting time is 1 p.m.

If the Little Tigers hope to do well they are going to have to work on three areas, claims Larsen: ground balls, the transition game and face offs.

"Our transition game was not too good. We were playing defense three-fourths of the game," observed Larsen after the loss to Westfield. As for faceoffs, "We didn't win one the entire game," added Larsen.

Westfield, also playing its first game of the season, scored twice in the opening period and then added four more goals in the second to take a 6-1 lead. Princeton's only tally came in the second on a shot by senior attackman Chris Carrington, the team's leading scorer last year.

Dan Gilday scored five of the eight goals by the victors who outshot the Little Tigers, 31-11. "Westfield was a really good team; they passed the ball well," said Larsen.

Junior Jason Sinclair and freshman Rob Lester shared the goalie assignment for PHS. Larsen described both as inexperienced.

HUN DENIED TWICE

In Opening Lacrosse Games. It was, allowed Hun lacrosse coach Dave Faus, not a real successful opening week. The Raiders were defeated Saturday, 9-1, by George School, and 17-5 by St Joseph's earlier in the week in their opening game.

Veteran Chris Goodyear, a Princeton resident, scored the lone goal against George School -- freshman Greg Savidge had three assists -- and he scored four of the five against St Joe's. "He looked good," said Faus.

Hun has three games coming up, starting this Wednesday with Montclair-Kimberly, last year's Division B state prep school champion. The game will be played at Montclair.

On Friday, Hun will entertain Peddie in a 3:30 contest and on Tuesday it will host Edison High School at 3:15.

For Hun, gunning for a .500 season, "it's been a combination of things," said Faus. "Our youth and inexperience are showing up and we just haven't had the practices we need."

Faus reported that Hun has been able to get on the field only twice in nine tries and has resorted to the Hun tennis courts for a dry area and Marquand Park "just to get some grass."

Hun's field lies adjacent to Stony Brook, Faus explained, and at one point last week it was under three feet of water.

"My main concern right now is to keep their heads up," he offered. "Goodyear has been playing well but unfortunately we can't rely on one person to do all the scoring for us."

To automotive engineers concerned with performance, the air we breathe isn't fit for combustion engines.
It's too thin.
So turbocharging was developed to create a denser air/fuel mixture, which in turn created more power.
But now there's something even more powerful: the new Volvo Intercooled Turbo. And what it does is make the air/fuel mixture even denser by cooling the air in the cylinders by as much as 135°F.
The result? An unbelievable 24% increase in horsepower that delivers 0-55 in 6.8 seconds.
See us today for full details on how easy it is to add this remarkable innovation to any Volvo Turbo.

PDS LOSES FIRST TWO

In Lacrosse. Bob Krueger has coached Princeton Day lacrosse for many years now, but its doubtful he has experienced a more dishearteningfirst week of play.

The week started with the cancellation of the Columbia contest on a sunny Monday afternoon, because the PDS field was still too muddy. Krueger has almost learned to live with that problem, which occurs frequently.

On Saturday, he thought he had his first win in the bag against Hill, only to have a couple of rulings by the referees turn a potential 7-6 victory into a 7-6 defeat. Finally, this past Monday, PDS lost 12-10 to a St. Joseph's team they had defeated 12-4 last season. Things can only get better for Krueger and his young squad.

AND NOW THE BAD NEWS: When Bill Noonan scored for PDS with less than two minutes to play, the Panthers seemed headed for a 7-6 victory. But Hill asked for a check of Noonan's stick, claiming it was illegal. The referees took a look, while PDS coach Bob Krueger looked on, and agreed. Noonan's goal was disallowed, and Hill eventually won the game, 7-6, scoring the winning goal with 30 seconds left to play. (W. L. Bill Allen photo)

The Panthers led St. Joe's 6-3 at the end of the first half, but the home team fought back to a 6-6 tie by the start of the fourth period. It then jumped in front by two goals, and although PDS pulled to within one on two occasions, it never caught up.

Trying to rebuild, after losing nine starters last year, Krueger noted some improvement in riding the opponents and clearing the ball, but commented that much work is needed on the whole defensive unit. One bright spot so far has been the play of Jack Cook, a jayvee player last year. Converted from midfield to attack, Cook scored four times against St. Joe's; Tim Foster had one goal and three assists, Peter Gallup, two goals and two assists, Eric Hovanec, one goal and two assists, and Bill Noonan and Eric Bylin, one goal apiece.

Bad Breaks against Hill. Last Saturday's opener against Hill was a tough match right down to the final horn, and at the end became one of the toughest losses Krueger will ever have to swallow.

A strong first half gave the Panthers a 6-3 lead against the visitors, but Hill came back in the final two periods to pull into a 6-6 tie. Held scoreless up to the final two minutes, PDS appeared to have taken a 7-6 lead with about 90 seconds left on a goal by Bill Noonan.

However, Hill had spotted something illegal on Noonan's stick, and asked for a ruling by the referees. When they agreed, Noonan's goal was disallowed, and he was hit with a three-minute penalty.

As if that were not enough, the referees then goofed, allowing a penalized Hill player to leave the penalty box too early. With a man advantage, Hill managed to work the ball around and scored the winning goal with 30 seconds left for a 7-6 triumph.

"The refs admitted they made the wrong call," Krueger said. "But, they couldn't disallow a goal because of a referee's mistake. They both apologized afterwards, but that doesn't help us."

Neither did it hel- , when Krueger discovere two days later that the referees could have disallowed the final Hill goal, that came about from their own mistake. He received a call from the supervisor of lacrosse referees who informed him that the two officials had erred in their decision. He got a second apology, but the victory will remain Hill's.

PDS was led by Foster, who tallied three times, Cook, Bill Haynes and Noonan tallied once. Chris McCabe made 11 saves.

PHS NINE EDGED

By Nottingham, 7-6. Princeton High baseball coach Ed Beacham described Monday's 7-6 loss to Nottingham as "one of the up and down games; a great spectator game, an exciting game." But it wasn't a satisfying game for Beacham.

"Fundamentally, we didn't play well the first three or four innings," said Beacham, who watched the Little Tigers lose their second in a row after an opening win. "We were sort of day dreaming out there."

Gavin Hulsman went all the way on the mound for PHS, walking two and giving up eight hits. He didn't strike out any Northstar batter. "Nottingham is a very pesky team; everybody gets a piece of the ball," observed Beacham.

Trailing, 5-4, after five innings, the home team Northstars took command with three runs in the sixth. The rally started with a walk and featured a single sandwiched between two doubles. Hulsman would have gotten out of the inning had PHS caught a foul pop by Mike Ganci, but the ball was dropped and Ganci followed with his third hit of the game.

The slugging standout for the Little Tigers was outfielder Jason Petrone whose two-out homer in the last inning brought PHS to within one run of tying. The burly Petrone also tripled in the second and singled in the fifth in going 3-for-3 and accounting for a third of Princeton's nine hits.

Mike O'Connor had a double for PHS, while three of Nottingham's hits were good for two bases. Reliever Henry Cole got the win for Nottingham. Hulsman, who deserved better support, took the loss to even his record at 1-1.

PHS NINE ALL EVEN

After Loss to Toms River. A 6-0 loss to Toms River South Saturday left the Princeton High School baseball team all even with a 1-1 record.

Despite the loss, PHS coach Ed Beacham found a lot he could admire in his team's performance, particularly the pitching of Dino DeAngelo, who limited Toms River, last year's Group 4 state champions, to six hits. Only two of the victors' runs were earned, said Beacham.

"I told them to forget about that game," said Beacham. "If Dino can continue to pitch like he did against them, then we're going to be in good shape."

DeAngelo will have another crack on the mound this week when PHS plays three games in five days.

Thursday the Blue and White will host Hopewell Valley in a 3:45 contest at the Valley Road School field and on Saturday it will entertain rival Hun School in a game starting at 3. On Monday, the Little Tigers will be at West Windsor.

Two PHS errors helped pave the way for the home team Indians, both leading to runs. In the fourth, Toms River scored the only run it would need when the leadoff batter hit one deep to Gavin Hulsman in center. Hulsman thought he was a lot closer to the fence than he was, reported Beacham, and the ball dropped for a three-base error. DeAngelo retired the next two batters but walked the third.

PHS then caught the runner on first in a run-down, as the runner on third broke for the plate. "Mickey (second baseman Mickey Carenvale) has to make the split-second decision whether to throw to the plate or try for the runner at second," said Beacham. "He made the tag at second but not before the runner had scored."

PHS had two chances to score. In the first with two down, Mike Petrone tripled to center. Carnevale, next up, hit a shot, a sinking line drive that was caught. "Who knows what might have happened if we had scored in the first," commented Beacham.

In the fifth, third baseman Derek Martin led off with a single. (Martin batted 3-for-3 to account for three-fourths of the Little Tiger hits). He was picked off, however, when the catcher threw behind him and the scoring chance died with him.

Toms River broke open the tight contest in the sixth when it bunched back-to-back doubles, another single and a swinging bunt which allowed a run to score on a throwing error to first.

"In reality they only scored two runs," said Beacham. "Dino pitched an excellent game. We knew these guys could hit but to my surprise they didn't hit that well.

"They are a well schooled club, though. I was surprised that they threw their number one pitcher against us."

The game — the first meeting between the two schools on the diamond — was played in raw, cold weather. "The sun never did come out," said Beacham, who added the weather sort of mirrored the outcome of the game as far as Princeton High was concerned.

Baseball Coaches Needed

The Princeton Youth Baseball Association needs coaches to help in its program. Those interested in coaching or assisting should call Clark Lennon at 924-7242.

DEJA VU

PHS Softball Routed. Hoping to improve on last year's 1-15 record, the Princeton High School girls' softball team conjured up memories of last spring when it was routed, 24-4, by Lawrence High in its opening game last week.

When the Little Tigers scored four runs in the first inning, after Lawrence had jumped to a 2-0 lead in the same inning, PHS coach Doug Snyder recalled, "I thought maybe it would be a competitive game."

It wasn't. The Cardinals scored six more runs in the second and plated ten more in the third off PHS starter Marcy Murray. The game was stopped after five innings when the 15-run rule was automatically invoked. Sophomore Tracey Hemingway pitched the final two innings for PHS, allowing six runs.

The Little Tigers will play host to Hopewell Valley Thursday in a 3:45 contest at Community Park and will be at West Windsor Monday.

"Again, pitching is our problem," commented Snyder. "We've been giving up too many walks." He reported that he has tried four different pitchers in practices to try to find a solution.

Princeton scored all of its runs when it bunched three of its seven hits in the first. Diana Schmidt opened the inning with a single. A walk and Greenland's double sent the first run across. Another walk, a two-run double by Nina Gougoutas and another free pass accounted for the next three.

Lawrence, playing its first game, raked Princeton's two pitchers for 16 hits, including four by winning pitcher Donna Frascella who went 4-for-5 and batted in three runs.

HUN LOSES OPENER

Faces Busy Week on Diamond. Its second game last week with Hopewell Valley a victim of a scheduling mixup, the Hun baseball team has only one game under its belt — a 5-1 opening loss to West Windsor.

That will change in a hurry. Hun will entertain Hamilton this Wednesday and be at Peddie on Friday. On Saturday another scheduling quirk has Hun playing a double-header. It will oppose two town rivals, starting with Princeton Day School at 11 and following with Princeton High at 3. Both games are away.

Tuesday afternoon at 3:45, Hun will entertain a strong Lawrenceville team and it was scheduled this week to play host to Pingry. "We're lucky to have three pitchers this year," observed Hun coach Bill McQuade. "We can juggle the staff to cover those games."

April 11, 1984

Dear Princeton and surrounding communities:

Sixty-five years ago a company was born. It was a small company and its founder had great dreams of making it grow. There was no doubt that Princeton was the prime area to make this new company grow.

All of the employees, seven in number, pledged themselves to the founder's theory -- that no company can survive unless dollar value is always given in return for dollar spent, and he wanted to make this his life's career.

This new company grew, expanded, moved, and now, 65 years later, the Nassau-Conover Motor Company is celebrating as the oldest dealer in the state of New Jersey and one of the oldest dealers in the United States.

The same dedication to honesty has been handed down from father to son.

Today, 46 employees reaffirm their pledge to always give the same honest service that has been given for the past 65 years.

Come help us celebrate by allowing us to show you how you can own a new Ford-Lincoln-Mercury, Chrysler-Plymouth car or Ford truck.

Let the dealership who always cares about you before, during and after the sale, show you how enjoyable it is to purchase a new or used car from the Nassau-Conover Motor Company.

Thank you, Princeton and surrounding communities, for the privilege afforded the Nassau-Conover Motor Company to serve your transportation needs over the past 65 years and we look forward to many, many more.

Sincerely,
NASSAU-CONOVER MOTOR COMPANY

of 1982, the second required because of a failed voting machine in the first. Construction of PCH apartments on the parking lot next to the library would have required construction of a garage on Tulane to replace the lost parking. The referendum was on the bond issue to build the garage.

———

Life with PCH is not all balky voting machines and red tape, however.

"We've had loads of fun at Princeton Community Village, working with the residents to develop the Hilltop Park playground."

———

Tremendous Support. "We've had tremendous support from merchants, Township Committee, the Planning Board, the EDRC — everyone and it's been fun all the way. It's so exciting to see how much support there is in the town."

Right now, plans are moving on for the 1984 Road Race on April 29. The 250 runners who entered the 1983 race brought in $2,500 for Hilltop Park, matched by the Friends of Princeton Recreation.

To speak of support is to think of Kirk Bryan.

"I had his support and encouragement, or I couldn't have done it. He'd come home to dinner and say right off, 'What's the news today?' — because every day there was news — and we'd talk about it all during dinner."

Daughter Betsy, 26, and son Sam, 23, were home for some of the PCH battle, although they're on their own, now.

———

Since everyone in the family loves hiking and skiing — Harriet, daughter of a Swedish mother, learned to ski at the age of two, downhilling a foot-high snow pile built by her father — there are pleasant vacations in Colorado, where Betsy lives.

But Harriet Bryan comes back to PCH.

She loves working with the board, "such a varied group of people! They epitomize the best in Princeton" and is looking forward to developing the new project.

———

A strong believer in volunteerism, she does not agree with feminists who say that the kind of professional-caliber work Harriet has done for PCH should be paid.

"If the volunteer approach is diminishing, that's bad news. With budget cuts, we may need volunteerism in government to survive — it's what our government has been built on, after all.

"And there's a lot of satisfaction to be gained by doing that sort of work."

———

After a moment of thoughtfulness, she adds, "I grew up in the Protestant ethic. I've had, personally, a very good life and I grew up being taught that you should help those less fortunate. That's where one gets true happiness in life: to do something that is worthwhile."

Sports in Princeton

Bats Are Silent. In the opener with West Windsor, McQuade commented, "We didn't come out and swing our bats at all. I know we have a lot of offense to pick up and I'm confident we will get it back as the season goes along."

Hun was limited to three hits, two by WW sophomore Scott Pierson who was making his varsity debut and another in the seventh off reliefer Dave Arendas. "West Windsor," observed McQuade, "is a young, scrappy ball club; they are going to be tough the rest of the way."

Veteran Hun hurler Rich Stout, who pitched a perfect game against West Windsor when he faced the Pirates, was the victim this time, as much of three costly Hun errors as of Hun's impotent bats. Stout yielded seven hits, fanned two and walked one.

West Windsor got to him in the first inning, scoring three runs. With one out, Brian Lenox singled, stole second (the first of five WW thefts) and scored on Craig Ender's single. An error on a grounder to second, another single, a walk and a sacrifice fly produced two more runs.

Pete Stam, Ted Bransfield and Joe Scandariato accounted for Hun's three hits. "We couldn't score with men on base," said McQuade. "A hit or two either way could have made it a different ball game."

Hun scored its only run in the third, combining two WW errors and a walk to load the bases. Stam then scored on catcher Barry Landis' sacrifice fly to right. The potential rally ended when Bransfield tried to score on a throw down to second and was thrown out at the plate by Pirate shortstop Jay Villani. It was one of four key plays that decided the game, McQuade said. WW coach Rex Walker agreed. "I thought that play was the key. It sparked us."

PRINCETON TEAM 4-0

In Soccer. The 1974 Princeton "A" team, an independent soccer club for nine-year-olds, last week won its fourth in a row by defeating the Princeton Soccer Association's 74 Team, 3-0. The victors dominated the game, limiting the 74 Team to three shots on goal.

Earlier, the "A" Team, coached by Charlie Scozzaro, defeated Lindcroft, 8-1, and blanked Montgomery 74, 5-0, and Willingboro, 8-0. Lindcroft had won its division title last year and is the only team to score a goal against the "A" team.

The "A" team, which finished its indoor season with a 7-1 record and received trophies on Saturday, has been invited to participate next month in the 1984 Southington, Connecticut Invitational Tournament where it will compete against teams from Canada, New York, Massachusetts and Connecticut. This weekend it will oppose East Brunswick and Bordentown.

PHS NO-HIT VICTIM

In Softball. The Princeton High girls softball team was mastered Monday by Kim Bodolowksy of Nottingham. The Northstar pitcher tossed a no-hitter at the Little Tigers, belted a three-run homer and drove in seven runs during the game to lead the victors to a 21-0 victory.

The Northstars never scored less than four runs in any inning. The game was halted after five when the 15-run rule was invoked. Tracey Hemmingway was charged with the loss for PHS which is 0-2. Nottingham increased its record to 3-0.

PHS NETMEN TRIUMPH

Over Nottingham. The chances of Princeton High's tennis team defeating winless Nottingham Monday were as likely as Monday following Sunday.

Jacob Leschly, Mark Leschly, Princeton number one and two singles players, and the second doubles of Brett Van deBovenkamp and Matthew Mack all won, 6-0, 6-0. Freshman Bruce Ellis was a 6-1, 6-1 victor over Mike Stout in the third singles and Rob Dunham and Mike Elliott captured the first doubles, 6-1, 6-3.

———

COLUMBIA 10-2 VICTIM

To PHS Girls Lacrosse Team. The Princeton High School girls lacrosse team has served notice that it intends to be a strong contender again for the state championship which eluded it last year by one game.

Although the Little Tigers lost 10 players, including five starters, from last year's team which bowed 10-7 to undefeated Moorestown (18-0) in the state title game, they appeared to be in mid-season form in their opening game last week.

Ranked second in the state this year, PHS routed Columbia, 10-2, getting four goals from Erica Gabrielsen and a pair from Pam Jennings. Booie Lockwood, Cassie Vogt, Alison Fraker and Carol O'Donoghue contributed single goals.

PHS will test its ranking next against a strong Cherry Hill East team Saturday at the Princeton University field. Game time is 12:30. On Monday the Little Tigers will be at Summit.

The Little Tigers outshot Columbia, 40-20, and scored early as Gabrielsen found the net 30 seconds into the game. Jennings and Lockwood followed with goals to stake the home team to a 3-0 lead.

Leading 5-2 at halftime, Gabrielsen almost single-handedly took apart the visitors, scoring three goals in the second half, getting an assist from Vogt on two, to increase Princeton's margin to 8-2. Liz O'Donoghue, making her debut in the goal, was credited with seven saves.

TENNIS ROUND ROBIN

Women Invited to Play. Women interested in playing in the Princeton Recreation Department's tennis round robin are requested to stop in the recreation office and complete an application. The event is open to players of all levels of ability.

All matches will be played at Community Park Monday through Thursday mornings from 9 to 10:30. The round robin will begin May 7 and continue for six weeks.

To be eligible a participant must have a Community Park tennis permit. The last day to register is April 27. For more information, call 921-9480.

REGISTRATION SET

For Babe Ruth Baseball. Registration for new and old players in the Babe Ruth Baseball League will be held April 26-27 from 3 to 5 at the Valley Road School field. Eligible players must be 13 years old on or after August 1, but not more than 15 on the same date.

Those interested must bring a copy of their birth certificate to registration and there is a $15 registration fee. Further information is available from Bob Rumer at 921-6521 or Spence Reynolds at 921-1920.

Neighbors Say No Thanks To More Pumps at Sunoco

Remember the days of the gas crisis?

You'd sit in line for hours in the hopes of getting $2 or $3 worth of overpriced gasoline into the car. You'd smile meekly everytime you saw a service station attendant, and hope that you wouldn't do anything or say anything to offend him. No more.

Last week neighbors of Larry's Sunoco gasoline station at the corner of Nassau Street and Murray Place won the first round in their fight to keep the station from expanding its number of pumps from three to eight and to construct a cashier's booth on an 8 by 32-foot island. In the midst of the final Borough Council hearings on Collins Develop-

Democrats Pick Attorney Jane Terpstra To Replace Barbara Hill on Borough Council

Meet Jane Terpstra, who very likely will be the new representative on Borough Council replacing Barbara Hill, who is moving to New York.

Mrs. Terpstra, 35-year-old lawyer and mother of three who lives at 17 Maple Street, was selected this Sunday by the municipal committee of the Democratic Party as the first preference to replace Mrs. Hill, who resigned last week. Borough Council is expected to act on the recommendation by its meeting next Thursday, April 26, which is also the deadline for candidates to file for the primary election for Borough Council. Council must pick another Democrat to replace Mrs. Hill. It is not bound to follow the recommendation of the municipal committee, though it generally does.

A member of the Borough's task force on affordable housing, Mrs. Terpstra has already begun circulating a petition to place her name on the ballot. Three seats will be at stake in November: the three-year terms of Peter Bearse and Richard Macgill (Mr. Bearse is concentrating on his campaign for Congress and Mr. Magill is stepping out of politics), and the remaining year of Mrs. Hill's term.

Battle over Collins' Plans Will Now Shift to Courts

The battle over the proposed $40 million expansion of Palmer Square apparently will shift from the familiar confines of Borough Hall to the chambers of the New Jersey Superior Court in Trenton. Collins Development Corporation was expected to file papers this week to ask the court to reverse last week's vote of Borough Council which remanded the proposal to the Regional Planning Board.

In another phase of the protest against the Collins plan for the central business district, the Appellate Division of Superior Court moved to hear a suit by Gerald Boswell charging that the Borough had no right to sell the air rights that would permit the construction of a bridge over Palmer Square East. Mr. Boswell predicted that suit might not be resolved for another year, and suggested that the losing party would appeal the case to the State Supreme Court, tying up the issue and the project, presumably, even longer.

Amid the rancor created by the appeals and threatened lawsuits, the Collins project might be described as the Second Battle of Princeton. But given the plethora of legal developments, the more appropriate imagery might borrow from Charles Dickens: Welcome to Bleak House.

The Collins suit follows last week's lengthy deliberations of Borough Council, which heard four appeals from residents who were unhappy with the Planning Board's approval of the project in January. With Mayor Barbara Sigmund casting a vote that appeared to be allowed only by certain interpretations of the law, Council remanded the case to the Planning Board to reconsider the issues of low and moderate income housing, open space, the impact on sewer capacity, and on the adjoining Greenholm neighborhood.

In its suit, Collins was expected to challenge not only the mayor's vote, but also the question of whether or not Council had jurisdiction to act. "The Borough's own ordinance states clearly that the Borough Council has no legal right to act on appeals from final site plan approvals granted by the Planning Board, charged Arthur Collins in a statement released the day after the Council's vote. The mayor's vote, he added, "broke with 85 years of precedent in New Jersey statutes which prohiblt the vote of a mayor except In the case of a tie."

Gas Pumps

ment, an ordinance was introduced that would limit gas stations in the service business district to three pumps, or a total of six gas-dispensing nozzles.

The new ordinance is expected to be enacted at the Borough Council meeting next Thursday, April 26. That likely event will render unnecessary the gas station's appearance before the Regional Planning Board. The application had been scheduled for a hearing on April 3, but was delayed by what was described as the improper notification of neighbors by the company.

The only gas station in the Borough with more than three pumps is Griggs Corner Amoco on Witherspoon, which has four, but it would not be affected by the new ordinance because it is in the central business district, not service business.

"It would not apply to Griggs," said Mayor Barbara Sigmund, "but I checked with the owners of that station and they assured me they have no intention of expanding." Mayor Sigmund had encouraged the Sunoco neighbors to suggest the ordinance to Council as a "sense of the community" that could serve their purposes better than any argument before the Planning Board.

The neighbors feared that the increased number of pumps might result in brighter lights, more noise and fumes, and possible self service pumps, which currently are not allowed in New Jersey. (This state and Oregon are the only ones in the nation not allowing self service at gas stations, but bills to repeal that restriction are introduced annually in the Legislature.)

Self service, the opponents argue, could lead to all-night stations. Residents of Murray Place, which used to be lined with cars beginning at 4 or 5 in the morning during the gas crisis days, may feel they have had enough gas station traffic to last a lifetime.

Jane Terpstra

In deciding whether to run for a full term or the one year term, Mrs. Terpstra said she "would go along with the recommendation of the Democratic Party." Other Democrats who may be interested in seeking spots on Council are the second and third choices of the municipal committee for Mrs. Hill's position: Marvin Reed, practically a neighbor of Mrs. Terpstra at 21 Maple Street and the public relations chief for the New Jersey Education Association; and Pierina Thayer, 9 Pine Street, who has been leading the fight for tenants' rights.

The Princeton Community Democratic Organization will meet next Thursday to endorse candidates for Council. Mrs. Terpstra serves on the executive board of the PCDO.

The Collins Question. Gertrude Dubrovsky, chairman of the municipal committee, said that the recommendation of the replacement for Mrs. Hill came after a review of resumes submitted by four Democrats, including Mrs. Terpstra, Mr. Reed, and Mrs. Thayer.

"There was not enough time to set up an interviewing process," said the chairman, "so we did not question candidates as we did in the past. All we did was read resumes. Their position on Collins did not come up."

Mrs. Terpstra said that, while she has followed the Collins controversy as a citizen, she could not yet say where she would stand as a member of Council. "There's a lot of material and a lot of considerations that I would have to review.

"I would go along wholeheartedly with what Irv Urken and Barbara Sigmund have said — I would hope that instead of spending a lot of money on litigation that the Borough and Collins could sit down and talk. Litigation is not something to be afraid of, but it is something many lawyers hope to avoid or minimize."

Raised in St. Louis, Mrs. Terpstra studied at the University of Chicago and Seton Hall law school. A resident of Princeton since 1972, she is a former director of the Mercer County Legal Aid Society and president-elect of the Mercer County Bar Association. A solo practitioner, she has her office at 601 Ewing Street. Her husband, Ted Terpstra, works at the Plasma Physics Laboratory.

VOTE SET MAY 1

For Russell Estate. The proposed development of 56 single-family houses on an 84-acre portion of what was once the Russell estate on Edgerstoune Road will likely be voted upon by the Planning Board at its meeting Tuesday, May 1.

The controversial development by Springland Associates of New York has sparked formation of a citizens group called the Edgerstoune Area Association, representing 75 of the 98 homeowners on Edgerstoune, Hun, Winant, and Russell roads. At the Planning Board meeting last week the association, which has hired both a lawyer and a planner, presented an alternate scheme for the development and the flow of traffic generated by it.

With the lawyer, Frank Petrino, and planner, John Lynch, seeking more time to complete their presentation, the board continued the hearing until the May meeting date, which already had six applications scheduled. Those will now be carried over until Thursday, May 17.

The Springland proposal calls for the houses to be clustered on a main road linking Route 206 and Edgerstoune. The neighbors, who have turned out in large numbers at the hearings, protested that, particularly during rush hour, the traffic from the development would tend to pour out onto Edgerstoune, rather than Route 206.

Through their attorney and planner, the residents suggested that one group of about five houses be clustered on a cul de sac leading to Edgerstoune, with all the others on a second cul de sac exiting onto to Route 206. The neighbors' scheme calls for a chain to separate the two clusters, so that access could be gained from one to another in case of an emergency.

In the event that the larger cul de sac has trouble exiting onto Route 206, then the residents suggested that a one-way exit be built on a narrow right-of-way leading from the Russell estate onto Rosedale Road, thereby easing the congestion.

While the Planning Board was awaiting the chance to vote, the principals in the case were reported to be meeting to contemplate the possibility of a compromise that would satisfy the developers, the association of homeowners, and the Planning Board.

SEWER PACT NEAR

Princeton Pays Up. The four members of the Stony Brook Regional Sewerage Authority — the Borough and Township, South Brunswick and West Windsor — are on the verge of striking a deal that will resolve the current impasse over underbilling and overpaying and set the stage for a new — and possibly more equitable — form of sharing costs in the future.

That's the estimate of Borough Mayor Barbara Sigmund, who had helped create the impasse by refusing to pay the entire first installment of $110,000 levied against the Borough by the Authority.

The proposed new agreement, which is expected to be endorsed by all municipalities by the time of the Authority's next meeting on Tuesday, is described by Mayor Sigmund as one based "not solely on meter readings, as the present agreement is, but on a series of data, such as demographic information, the number of new connections, and information on infiltration and inflow."

———

In the meantime the Borough, which had threatened to pay only $50,000 on that first installment, will pay the entire amount. The new agreement, said the mayor, will call for the Borough "to pay what the old agreement contemplated, and then we'll start all over again. For the next three years a new agreement has to be negotiated."

The sewer brouhaha began when the Sewer Authority discovered that a meter had been misread over a period of years, thereby causing the Borough and Township to be undercharged a total of about $1.3 million, and the other two municipalities to be overcharged by the same amount.

The amount of the undercharge is not as staggering as it may seem. Sewerage Authority Chairman John McGee pointed out that the amount owed translates into about $150 per household in the Borough and $200 in the Township. But that is still more than any budget-conscious politician would want to face on a homeowner's tax bill in one year.

Mrs. Sigmund predicts that the new agreement will be "equitable for the Borough taxpayers and will provide an equitable basis for renegotiation. My prognosis is that because all the errors in the metering system were on the Princeton side of the system, it will be demonstrated that the Borough and Township do not owe as much as previously believed. We based our payments before on a system that's faulty. We need to find a new system that's more fair."

Mr. McGee expressed similar optimism for a settlement, but was less critical of the existing meter-reading system. "We have found that they do seem to be within the manufacturers' tolerances," he said. "We have minor changes proposed and a plan for reviewing the new readings so that we don't get into this sequence in the future."

SEWER BAN PROPOSED

On Major Trunk Lines. Township Committee has asked its attorney to draw up an ordinance imposing a "no connection zone" on a portion of the Mountain Brook sewer line and on the Harry's Brook line.

The measure was suggested by Committeewoman Gail Firestone and is linked to a reworking of the sewer trust fund so that "contribution to the Fund by developers will result in verifiable, measurable improvements to the system as a condition for (connection) approval." A resolution requesting Township Attorney Edwin W. Schmierer to draw up such an ordinance was voted 4-1. Mayor Winthrop S. Pike, who believes a sewer ban will not relieve the overflow problem, cast the negative vote.

Mrs. Firestone called her proposal a middle ground between the desire "to keep the faith with the community and the legitimate developers." Another resolution, proposed by Committeeman William Cherry, that requests the state DEP review the sewer situation in Princeton and evaluate the work done to date in keeping with the Brokaw Report, was adopted on a 3-2 vote and only after a further request that the DEP impose a ban of its own was deleted. Committeman Richard Schoch joined Mayor Pike in voting against Mr. Cherry's resolution.

Still a third proposal was never voted on at all. This was a four-point recommendation made by the Friends of Princeton Open Space and read aloud in the opening minutes by Rosemary Blair, president. The Friends asked that the Planning Board not approve applications for new developments which would connect to the Princeton sewer system until the necessary reconstruction and replacement had been completed. Their resolution also sought a sewer moratorium by both municipalities, a "Sewer Reconstruction and Clean Water Bond Issue" and an alternative to the Sewer Operating Committee to administer the reconstruction program and to operate the sewer system.

Mayor Pike told Mrs. Blair that only the Sewer Operating Committee and the two municipalities could legally impose a ban — not the Planning Board. He reiterated his opinion that a ban would not solve the overflow problem and pointed out that more than $1 million had been appropriated for sewer repair, with more to come. "After

New Post Station

A U.S. Post Office contract station will open in the rear of the Pants Saloon store at the Princeton Shopping Center on Monday.

The station will sell stamps and handle registered and certified mail, parcel post, and money orders, as well as regular mail. Its hours will be 10 to 4 daily and 10 to noon on Saturday. The station's decor will be old West, like the store in which it is located, but the mail service still should be faster than the old Pony Express.

talking to the Sewer Operating Committee, I have the pious hope that come September contracts for the Mountain Brook and Harry's Brook trunk lines will be let," he said.

Plans for examining the structure of the SOC were already underway, the mayor added.

In other business, Committee introduced three bond ordinances which will be given public hearing on Monday, May 7. The first was for $456,000 of general improvements, including road resurfacing, a new dump truck, communications equipment for the Fire Department and the Public Works Department, skylight replacement in the Public Library, and refinishing the pool surfaces in the Community Park complex.

Another provides $354,000 for sewer-related items, including the Township's share of the current computer study of capacity and various pieces of equipment. Some $37,000 is proposed to be spent for a computer terminal, software hook-up and clerical assistance to computerize the tax assessor's records. The proposal will make it possible to do in-house tax revaluation.

An ordinance designating a portion of Littlebrook Road as Littlebrook Road North was introduced, at the request of the residents, who felt the situation on their street was confusing. A bond ordinance appropriating $107,000 for the dredging of Turning Basin Park was unanimously adopted. A Greenacres grant will contribute $50,000, and the Friends of Princeton Open Space have pledged to try to raise $25,000.

Committee accepted with regret the resignation of Olin McGowan from the Joint Commission on Aging due to illness. At the work session, Committee agreed to change the alternate side of the street parking regulations on Birch Avenue to permit parking all day on the south side of the street and forbid it all day on the north.

On Race Street, the hour for switching one's car to the other side of the street will be advanced from 8 a.m. to 9 a.m. An ordinance will be drawn up putting these regulations in effect. Committee also wants to ban smoking for those sitting at the dais in the Valley Road Meeting Room and in Township Hall over the Police Department, as well as in Conference Rooms A and B in the Valley Road Building. The main meeting room will be divided down the middle into a smoking and non-smoking section.

WOMEN'S VOTE TOPIC

Of Panel at University. "The 1984 Election: The Importance of the Women's Vote" will be the topic of a panel discussion held at Princeton University's Woodrow Wilson School on Monday at 7:30 p.m. in Dodds Auditorium.

The discussion will focus on the nature and impact of the women's vote in contemporary politics, and will also outline the historical roots of current trends. The topics to be examined include female voting behavior since the advent of women's suffrage in the 1920s, the influence of the "gender gap" and feminism on women's voting, the participation of black women in the 1984 election, and the role of women candidates.

The four panelists will be Barbara Farah, director of polling at the New York Times; Harvard professor Ethel Kelin, author of "Gender Politics;" Sheila H. King, director of research and policy development for the National Alliance of Postal and Federal Employees; and Elisabeth Griffith, co-chairperson of the Women's Campaign Fund.

Ruth Mandel, director of the Center for the American Woman and Politics at Rutgers University, will be panel moderator.

TWO BROTHERS CHARGED With Assault in Knifing. Two brothers have been charged by Township police with aggravated assault following the knifing Thursday of a 16-year-old student in Grover Park behind the Princeton Shopping Center.

George E. Tkacs, 32, and James R. Tkacs, 30, both of 252 N. Harrison Street, were processed and remanded to the Mercer County Detention Center, after they turned themselves in at Township police headquarters about 1 Saturday afternoon. No bail was set in Trenton and they were later remanded to the Mercer County Jail to await further action by a Mercer County court.

The two are charged with stabbing the student while he was listening to his Sony Walkman radio in the park while waiting for a ride to his home in Trenton.

According to Police Chief Anthony Pinelli, two men approached the youth and one asked if he could see his Walkman. When the victim refused to hand the radio over, there was an exchange of words. One of the men, Chief Pinelli continued, pulled out a pocket knife and cut the victim on the top of his right hand.

The victim then ran over to the Princeton Shopping Center and then back to school where he notified authorities of the incident. Police said he is a student at the Lewis Clinic for Educational Therapy located in the old Littlebrook School building on Magnolia Lane. Police were called by the director of the clinic at 4:42 Ptl. Robert Buchanan responded.

The victim, who had been taken to Princeton Medical Center where six sutures were needed for treatment of his wound, gave Ptl. Buchanan a description of the suspects. He told the officer both were about 17.

Shortly after, police located two suspects sitting in Grover Park drinking. The victim was transported to the park and shown the two suspects. According to Chief Pinelli the victim gave police a quick "no" and did not identify the suspects. "We felt there was a reluctance on the victim's part," said Chief Pinelli.

The police investigation continued the next day with a second interview with the victim and his father. A final statement was taken.

According to police, the victim admitted that the two suspects shown to him the previous afternoon were the ones who had approached him in the park. Police said he knew one of the suspects.

Chief Pinelli reported that the youth told police that he had intentionally given an inaccurate descripton of the suspects because he was afraid of reprisal.

Shortly after at approximately 3 p.m. Friday, after the victim had identified both of the suspects, a warrant for the arrest of the Tkacs brothers was signed by the Township detective bureau.

Assisting Ptl. Buchanan in the investigation were Ptl. David Cromwell and Detectives Jerry Offredo, the Township Juvenile Officer, and David Wilbur.

HOME IS RANSACKED On Shady Brook Lane. A home on Shady Brook Lane was broken into last week and ransacked.

Police report that a video cassette recorder and miscellaneous pieces of silver and jewelry with a combined value of approximately $3,500 were taken. The thief entered the home between 8 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. last Wednesday by breaking a first-floor rear window leading to a den. Ptl. John S. Seeley investigated.

A resident of Fairway Drive told Township police last week that a pearl and diamond ring and a diamond engagement ring are missing from a jewelry box in her bedroom.

The victim reported that, when she first noticed one of the rings missing, she thought that she might have mislaid it, when she noticed the second ring missing two days later she called police. There were no signs of any forced entry into the home, police said.

An unlocked students' room in 1901 Hall on the Princeton University campus was entered last Wednesday between 8 p.m. and 3 p.m.

Stolen, police said, were a 35 mm camera, a calculator and two men's tuxedos. Combined, the items are valued at $876.

FUGITIVE ARRESTED On Campus by Borough Police. A 23-year-old fugitive from Seattle, Wash., where he was wanted for failure to appear in court on a charge of indecent liberties with a child, was arrested last week by Borough detectives in a student's room in Old Graduate College on the university campus.

The fugitive, Kenneth Lee Mack was later turned over to the Mercer County Sheriff's Office for extradition to Washington. Police identified Mack as a former resident of Washington Township in Mercer County.

According to Lt. Thomas Michaud, a joint investigation by Borough and Township police and the Mercer County Probation Department revealed that Mack had been living on the Princeton University campus for about a month after a student had struck up a friendship with Mack and allowed him to stay in his dormitory room.

Police were able track Mack down when they learned that a telephone number he had been using turned out to be the telephone of the student who was harboring him. Police here had been informed that Mack was wanted by the County Probation Department.

Trenton Pair Returned to TPD. Two Trenton residents, who had aroused the suspicions of a Nassau Street store owner who thought they were shoplifters, were apprehended Friday morning and later turned over to the Trenton Police Department.

They were identified as Joseph L. Hayes and Dennis Robinson, both 22. Hayes was wanted by the Trenton police on a warrant charging him with obstruction; Robinson is wanted by the police in Trenton as a fugitive from the Trenton and Lawrence Township municipal courts.

Lt. Michaud reported that nothing had been shoplifted from the store. Police had responded to the 10 a.m. call of the shopkeeper who pointed out the suspicious pair as they approached the store. The suspects were stopped outside the store and taken to headquaraters for questioning.

ITEMS ARE SOUGHT

For Music Flea Market. The Princeton Pro Musica will sponsor a "Mostly Music" flea market on Saturday, April 28, from 10 a.m. at The Art People's Place at the corner of Witherspoon Street and Paul Robeson Place.

Pro Musica is asking for used records, music books, tapes, instruments, radios, music stands, and stereos and speakers (that work). Donations may be delivered to Christ Congregation Church, 55 Walnut Lane, this Saturday from 10 to noon.

The Princeton Pro Musica was founded five years ago by Frances F. Slade. Today 100 auditioned singers perform great classical works for audiences in the Princeton area.

THEFT REPORT

Roofing Materials Stolen. Roofing materials worth approximately $6,500 were reported stolen last week from the Princeton Shopping Center by the Paramount Roofing Company of West New York, N.J.

Police said that a 270-gallon pump, tar kettle, saw cutter, assorted tools and various building materials had been stored on the west side of the shopping center. The materials were taken sometime between March 21 and early last week when the theft was discovered.

A Briggs & Stratton gasoline engine valued at $400 was stolen last week from a barn on Pretty Brook Road. Also taken, police said, were tools valued at $50.

The barn is the only building on the property. Some windows and doors in the barn were also shot with what police believe is a .22 calibre rifle. They found spent .22 cartridges lying about the site.

A 9- by 12-foot, off-white rug was removed last week from a basement storage area located in a store in the Princeton Shopping Center. There were no signs of forced entry. Police said the area is used by other stores in the center for storage. No value was placed on the missing rug.

A man's suit valued at $900 was shoplifted last week from a Palmer Square store and police are looking for a suspect who drove off in a small, tan car. He is described as a 5-9 white male.

Sour Note. A Princeton University student would like to know who has his Yamaha saxophone. The victim told police that he had left his sax in a case in a friend's room in the Terrace Club off Washington Road on March 19. When he went to retrieve it April 7, the case was still there but the saxophone was missing. He valued it at $800 to $1,000.

Another university student joined the list of theft victims after someone removed a $400 AM-FM digital cassette player from the dash of his 1982 Volkswagen parked Sunday in a lot behind the Engineering Quadrangle. Police report the victim was unable to remember if he had locked his car which was entered between 8:30 and 11:30 in the evening. There were no signs of forced entry.

More Bicycles Taken. Among four bicycles reported stolen in Princeton last week was a $265 silver Raleigh Grand Prix from an unlocked garage on FitzRandolph Road. A girl's three-speed Raleigh — unlocked — was taken Thursday from a bike rack in front of Jones Hall on the university campus.

A silver and blue bicycle valued at $150 was taken overnight from John Witherspoon School — it, too, was unlocked — and another unlocked 10-speed model worth $60 was reported stolen Thursday afternoon from the Westminster Choir College campus. Police described the owner as a Princeton teenager.

A university student locked his Peugeot bicycle in front of the Cottage Club at 6 p.m. Thursday. When he returned at 4 in the morning, the bike was still there — but someone had stolen its front wheel. Replacement cost: $50.

DRIVER IS CHARGED

With Alcohol Violation. Robert M. Campbell III, Woodward Drive, Belle Mead, was fined $215 in Borough traffic court Monday for having an open container of alcohol in his car.

Special Program Offers Nutrition To Needy Women, Infants, Children

W.I.C., a special program which helps provide nutritious foods and nutrition education to needy women, infants and children — hence the initials — will begin operation in Princeton.

The program is offered by the Health Department, in conjunction with Princeton Medical Center's Department of Community Health Services and the Trenton-based W.I.C. program. It will operate via the Health Department twice a month Child Health Conference.

Pregnant women and children from birth to five years are eligible, provided they live in Borough or Township, meet W.I.C. income guidelines and have medical or nutritional need for the program.

W.I.C. provides checks for certain foods to be used at a designated store in the Princeton area. For women and children age 1-5 these foods are milk, cheese, eggs, juice, cereal and peanut butter or beans. For infants under one, iron-fortified formula, infant juice and infant cereal are provided. A nutritionist tailors the food package to meet the nutritional needs and eating habits of the participants; therefore every participant does not receive the same types or amounts of food.

To apply, call the Nursing Office of the Department of Community Health Services at 724-4626. Proof of identification, current address and current income will be checked. A nurse will evaluate height and weight and administer a blood tests for anemia every six months. W.I.C. nutrition eligibility will be determined by a questionnaire.

CABINETS ARE CHARRED

By Cooking Fire. Kitchen cabinets above a stove in a home at 47 Locust Lane were charred Sunday afternoon by a cooking fire.

The fire was extinguished by the owner prior to the arrival of police, but firemen were called to check to make sure the fire had not spread further and to clear the house of smoke with fans.

TO PLANT A MAPLE

In Quarry Park. The public is invited to a tree planting ceremony Wednesday, April 25, at 3 p.m. in Quarry Park.

To celebrate Arbor Day and its own 20-year history, the Borough Shade Tree Commission will plant a Norway Maple (acer platanoides) in the Borough's newest park at the end of Spruce Street. William Flemer III of Princeton Nurseries, which has donated the tree, will be on hand, as will Mayor Barbara B. Sigmund and other municipal officials..

The Borough Shade Tree Commission was formed in May of 1964 by then Borough Mayor Henry Patterson and Councilman Alan Carrick who felt that there was a need for an organization to oversee the care and replacement of trees in Borough streets and parks. The five-member commission, each of whom is appointed by the mayor for a five year term, has policy-making responsibility in the selection, planting, care and control of Borough shade and ornamental trees and shrubbery.

Former Princeton University football coach Richard Coleman was an active member of the Shade Tree Commission, and he and Mr. Carrick were responsible for selecting the four sugar maples that grace the four corners of Tiger Park in the middle of Palmer Square. That is one example of how the Shade Tree Commission functions.

More often it is the vehicle through which residents may request trees to be planted in the municipal right-of-way in front of their property. Requests may be made either as a replacement for a tree that has died or been toppled in a storm, or because a tree would look well in that spot. In recent years of tight municipal budgets, the Commission has sent a letter inviting private donation to the municipally-owned tree and reminding the homeowner of his or her responsiblity for watering once it is planted.

According to the Borough Engineer's office, the Shade Tree Commission has a 1984 planning list of some 20 trees that it is in the process of ordering either as replacements or for new locations. The list includes sugar maples, cherry trees, locusts, Bradford pear trees, Zelkova, hemlocks, arbor vitae and yews.

In addition, the Commission knows of 32 spots where tree stumps need to be dug out or pulverized and the ground prepared for planting of a new tree.

Present members are Sylvia Healey, chair, Robert MacMillan, Meg Kelbaugh, Debbie Harris and Stanley McKaig. They invite the public to celebrate Arbor Day at the tree planting ceremony in Quarry Park.

After all, what would Witherspoon Street be without its arcade of callery pear trees that are just about to burst into bloom? It is the Shade Tree Commission that put them there.

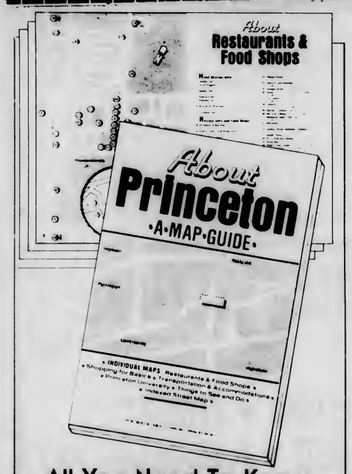
TALENT SOUGHT



For Art People Party. They already have more than 20 music and dance attractions, from Princeton Pro Musica to mimes, jugglers to puppeteers, Scottish dancers to break dancers. But the organizers of the annual Art People Party scheduled for Saturday, April 28, are inviting more to participate.

The theme of this year's party, the 12th or 14th depending on how you count them, is "Spring Sounds," but the event is not limited to musicians. Artists, craftsmen, dancers, civic groups, and any other organizations not covered by that umbrella are asked to fill out applications available at the Arts Council, 102 Witherspoon Street, the Princeton Public Library and Borough Hall.

The party, which will be held on Paul Robeson Place, will also feature food stands set up by various Princeton caterers and restaurants, flowers, information tables, musical instruments, and an ensemble of amateur musicians with homemade instruments. The Arts Council will not guarantee a fiddler on the roof, but no one should bet against it.

IDENTIFICATION SOUGHT

For Historical Photos. The Historical Society would like the help of TOWN TOPICS' readers in identifying some of the unknown houses, people and businesses in its collection of late 19th and early 20th century photographs.

The first in a series of Historical Society photos for which identification is sought appears on page 1 of this week's issue--the elegant ladies in their splendid spring hats. Others will be reprinted as space permits under the heading, "Do You Remember?" Anyone with information about the photographs is encouraged to call the Historical Society weekdays from 1-5 at 921-6748 or to drop a note to the Society at Bainbridge House, 158 Nassau Street.

The photographs are from a collection of thousands of glass print negatives taken by Charles Silvester and Edward C. Kopp during the late 1800s and early 1900s.

Mr. Silvester was born in 1847 on his father's farm in Mount Lucas. He was educated at the stone school house on Mount Lucas and went on to become a well known community figure in the late 1800s. He served as Justice of the Peace for many terms, the last beginning in 1906.

The Historical Society has a reference to him in 1888 as "the Justice" on University Place, where he may also have had a photographic studio. He also served on the Princeton School Board, as his father did before him.

Charles Silvester inherited his father's 30-acre farm in Mount Lucas, but never enjoyed farming. His real love was photography. He traveled around the area by horse cart and took photographs of families, church picnics, school groups and anything else of interest at the time.

Known as Squire Silvester, he is recalled as "a good photographer" who had good equipment for that time--old wet plate cameras with large open lenses. He was said to be a very exacting individual, and everyone had to be in just the right position before he would put his head under the hood and focus the camera.

Charles Silvester died in 1927, leaving eight children, and is buried in the Rocky Hill Cemetery.

Edward C. Kopp was born in 1870 and spent his early working years with his parents at 52 University Place. He was a shopkeeper from the 1890s through the 1930s and lived and worked in various locations. In 1900 he had a bicycle, watch repair and photo supply business at 54 Nassau Street, in the "Hotel Block," and lived at 14 Bank Street.

Around 1910 he moved his business to 60 Nassau Street and eventually sold antiques as well as bicycles. He lived on Park Place and Madison Streets prior to buying a house at 43 Wiggins Street around 1930. Bicycles became the predominant interest of the Kopp business, which moved to Chambers Street, then to John Street and now is on Witherspoon Street.

Photography was the favorite pastime of Edward Kopp, and it is said he took at least one photo a day. He especially liked to record the changes in the architecture of Princeton and he recorded the construction of various University and commercial buildings on a day-to-day basis. Photos from his collection date from about 1900 until his death in 1936.

Council Vote Defended.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

It's hard to understand TOWN TOPICS's nostalgia about "small town" politics as expressed in "The View from Here" April 11, only to find so little concern for the advent of "big time" business development in our community.

Yes, the Collins Development has been on our doorsteps for the past three years. We have had a chance to see how smoothly a multi-million developer can work. It is not just that Collins plans to invest a lot of money. With their expert lawyers, their impressive cadre of consultants, and their beautifully colored drawings, the tweedy bicycle riders of our town hardly seem an even match.

Up and down Route One it is the same story, you only have to sit stranded in Route One's traffic lanes from 8 to 9 or 4 to 6 to know that the Princeton area, with all its high-powered intelligence and concern for community, has met the world of corporate power.

Princeton Borough had a clear choice last fall. It could have continued its laid-back downstairs-in-the-Tap-Room style of politics or it could opt for a more colorful, open, activist approach. The voters obviously chose the latter.

There may have been risks taken in some of the votes cast at April 10's Borough Council meeting. But, they were risks our Mayor and Council took to defend the public's interest in affordable housing, workable sewers, negotiable traffic, and usable open space.

The Collins Corporation is here to stay. It may even come about that everything the developer planned will go forward — won on technicalities and the limitations of the law. But, if that happens it won't be because people who care about Princeton didn't try for a better way.

Let's welcome the new company to town, but let's not become a "company town" to do it.

Sigmund, Council Praised.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

Your "The View From Here" editorial April 11 struck at the integrity of not only the Princeton Borough Mayor and Council, but also of every Princeton resident who opposed any part of Collins' plan. The arguments used by you, the Editor, point to issues of timeliness and a sense of pre-arrangement. Using these points, you chastise Collins critics en-masse, saying that we "may have been the instruments for the very change they (we) feared."

Yes, the issues you mention are important — and we are grateful to the Mayor and Council for their courage and integrity in addressing them.

Yes, much of the opposition to Collins' plans surfaced "late" in the proceedings. The reason was not neglect — only trust. We trusted the (then) Borough Council and the appointed citizens of the Planning Board to represent our interests.

When we eventually became aware of the extent to which we disagreed with these government bodies, we supported citizens who represented our interests and who proved that the Planning Board did not sufficiently consider crucial points during the preliminary hearings.

Yes, there was a sense of pre-arrangement. In fact, this sense began months ago, when Barbara Sigmund and other present members of the Council made clear their position towards Collins — and more importantly toward Princeton. We, the citizens of

Your comments point in every direction except to the heart of the matter — were the appeals with merit? Nowhere do you address this question. Barbara Sigmund and the Council did address it — and they have our heartfelt thanks.

Abuse of Discretion.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

Your editorial was a clear and flagrant abuse of discretion. Collins Development is nothing but an elite corps of Mr. Cigars. Even though the common man is in the minority in Princeton, it is the common man who delivers the mail, it is the common man who builds our bridges, it is the common man who handles the essential aspects of interstate commerce.

Collins Development is anti-common man, and pro-rich man all the way. Your mention in your editorial about the mistake of evicting of long-standing tenants from Palmer Square is a clear and classic example of Collins being anti-common man. Witherspoon Jack has every right to be concerned about Collins, because generations and generations of blacks have lived in one neighborhood in Princeton, but because of fear of rising property values, there is a fear among the black community in Princeton of extinction. The black community in Princeton represents the element of the common man.

Princeton should be looked at as a community of human dignity and human compassion, not as a community where an elite corps of Mr. Cigars has a dramatic impact on the complexion of the community. In one of John F. Kennedy's last speeches before the public in Dallas before he was gunned down by an assassin's bullet he said "We ought to live the way we want to live."

To let Collins continue their battle plan would be a slap in the face to President Kennedy and a slap in the face to the black community and to the common man. The answer to the Mr. Cigars should be, alas, no cigar.

Our New Mayor's Style.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

There must be something wrong with a government system when the mayor can step in and cast a deciding vote when there is no tie, and something she opposes is going to go through; and not vote if the result had been the way she wanted it.

But this seems to be the style of our new mayor. Right off the bat, she discharged an experienced Borough attorney and brought in a less experienced one whose opinions would undoubtedly be, as President Reagan said, "more in line with the administration's policy" — in other words, the way the mayor thought it should be.

Next she refused to make payment on a previously approved agreement to fund the undercharged sewer treatment costs.

She has sided vigorously with all opponents of previously Planning Board-approved Collins Development plans, and complimented adverse comments at hearings from individuals whose point of view she approved. Instead of getting on with the job of letting Collins get going she and other opponents are piling up high potential legal fees which could cost the taxpayers hundreds of thousands of dollars, as other municipalities which have bickered over basically sound development plans have found out.

So far, the Sigmund administration seems to have been one where "If I like it, it's all right, if I don't, I'll do, or undo, everything necessary to have it my way." This does not seem to be "democracy" but an attempt at a one-person rule.

Our Borough's legal governmental framework seems to be lacking in some of the restraints on executive power which the framers of the U.S. Constitution sought to provide.

Borough on Road to Ruin.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

The folk in the Borough who cleverly engineered the scant defeat of Consolidation four years ago should be made honorary residents of the Township. While they predicted ruin for the Borough if Consolidation took place (for reasons that escaped many of us at the time), they unwittingly did the Township an enormous favor, for ruin seems to be fast descending on the Borough without Consolidation.

The suspicion is that few Township residents would have the stomach for Consolidation anymore or covet a closer association with the Borough's mess. At the same time, most of us are saddened by the recent unfortunate events, which seem so out of character for the Princeton we have known and loved without distinction for boundary lines.

A suggestion for the anti-Consolidation leaders: turn your obvious skills to the campaigns of the Borough politicians who seek or hopefully will seek higher office.

Ode to Bill Potter.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

I'm really mad about the way you've portrayed Bill Potter — as if he were an old-time Anarchist putting his head together with Mayor Sigmund to blow up Congress or a Watergate type planning the Saturday-Night massacre.

I know that you're cross, maybe even struck of a heap, at the loss of Mayor Cawley, and I can tolerate your customary piety even in its present excess provided that you lay off Bill Potter. I am sorry to resort to such vulgar language; you have driven me to it

Just as you, Town Topics, and Mayor Cawley are disciples of the gospel of progress, Bill Potter and Mayor Sigmund are environmentalists. That is, I assume that Mayor Sigmund is one, because Bill Potter has been one since undergraduate days, since in fact environmentalists were "nature lovers," pure and simple.

He is not only a Sierra Club type of environmentalist, though he has tramped half the wilderness between the West Virginia coal mines and the Californy shores; he is also a human environmentalist, hard as it is for me to write that tacky phrase. And he has been that since undergraduate days, when he conceived and founded and led a community at the University which aimed at reviving the ceremony of innocence, as Yeats puts it.

No doubt Bill views the sort of Peddlers' Village conventional chic that Collins seems to have in mind in the same way he viewed his choices at Princeton when he arrived there: conventional chic at the clubs, grade-grinding in professors' offices, playing campus politics, or just looking in from the outside, lonesome in a crowd, as the cliche has it.

Bill didn't recruit his community by foul means or other: they were mutually attracted by their love of poetry, music, painting, religion, history, ideas in the abstract, and basketball and girl chasing. No doubt Bill and Mayor Sigmund and others you don't mention are attracted to each other because they have the same view of Princeton, Collins, politics, and the poor.

I can't understand why it is so hard for you to see that, Town Topics, You and Mayor Cawley and various disciples of progress have put your heads together for years. Were you conspiring to overthrow our institutions? One man's Collins is another man's catastrophe. A "mistake" is a mistake, but a wrecking ball at the ready to smash the Playhouse as soon as the verdict was announced, a sense of history like Henry Ford's, and an attitude toward human beings like Flem Snopes's reveal character, not human error.

Unhand Bill Potter, you villain!

WJDC Is Not Political.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

We refer to your editorial "The View From Here" in TOWN TOPICS of April 11, 1984 and to your question about the "role of the Witherspoon Jackson Development Corporation vis-a-vis Mayor Sigmund."

On one previous occasion we have had to publicly ask that WJDC not be portrayed as a "political" organization which is supported by much of Princeton's political spectrum. In addition to the operating board, we have a 23 member advisory board. This body neither makes nor implements the organization's policy.

Members of the advisory board with direct involvement in the Palmer Square Development Project include Robert Cawley (when he was mayor), Peter Bearse, Barbara Hill and Barbara Sigmund. The law firm which has represented WJDC from its inception through 1983, is Jamieson, McCardell, Moore, Peskin & Spicer, the firm which represents the Collins Development Corporation. It should be evident that our supporters are on both sides of the Palmer Square issue.

The operating board of WJDC decided to pursue the Collins appeal, despite allegations that the matter was "political" because of its great importance to our town and because we believe our position is just. This decision was explained to all of the advisory board in a letter. We must continue to adhere to this position and hope Princeton residents will understand and respect our decision.

We are, therefore, once again requesting that the Witherspoon-Jackson Development Corporation not be identified as a party in Princeton politics. Such identification is unfair to us and injurious to the community interests that we try to serve.

In conclusion, we believe there has been insufficient "non-political" debate about Palmer Square development and the pros and cons of the appeals. To help alleviate this situation, we would be delighted to sponsor, co-sponsor, or participate in a public town meeting or any other open forum to discuss the important issues before Princeton.

EMPLOYEE IS HONORED

By Township Resolution. In what may have been a first for a member of the road crew, Township Committee unanimously adopted a resolution of appreciation for the 21 years of service of John W. Ijames as a member of the Township Public Works Department.

Mr. Ijames was on hand to hear Mayor Winthrop S. Pike read the resolution in full and to receive a framed copy for his own keeping. He became a crew chief with the Public Works Department in July 1962 and was promoted to Foreman in 1969. He is retiring, effective May 1, and was known, as the resolution states, for his "faithful dedication to service, courteousness, leadership and hard work ethic."

A native of North Carolina, Mr. Ijames came to Princeton in 1956 and worked in construction for William Bucci for five years before joining the Township Public Works Department. These are the unsung heroes who do the snow plowing, leaf collecting, street sweeping, tree trimming and grass cutting along public roads and right-of-ways. They repair drains and curbs, replace sidewalks, maintain bike paths, and rebuild the recycling shed after arsonists have tried to burn it down.

Mr. Ijames was adept at all these tasks and was known as one who would often be right down in the ditch with the men. For as he says, he would not want anyone to do something that he wouldn't do himself. He remembers the time it began snowing on Christmas Eve and snowed all day and all night. Snow plow crews were out making the first passes to open the streets all night until 10 a.m. Christmas morning. After a brief rest, they were out again to widen the streets from 2 to 10 p.m.

With the five percent cap on municipal budgets, there were years when men who retired or left would not be replaced. That meant some of the work would not get done, and that bothered him because, as he says, he enjoyed the work and took a lot of pride in it. He has high praise for Public Works Supervisor John S. Clawson Sr. ("I'll really miss him") and for Township Engineer Robert V. Kiser, who made himself understandable to the men.

Originally living in and commuting from New Brunswick, Mr. Ijames has been a resident of Princeton Community Village since 1975. He is a classic example of those for whom PCV was built — individuals who make their living in Princeton but can not afford to live here. He is married and has three daughters, the oldest of whom just earned her bachelor's degree.

In retirement, Mr. Ijames plans to visit relatives in North Carolina and then perhaps take some side work to keep active. Township Committee wished him a long, happy and prosperous retirement.

-Barbara L. Johnson

CASTRO VISIT TOPIC

Of Panel. Twenty-five years after Fidel Castro visited the Woodrow Wilson School in April, 1959, a panel will discuss "Castro's 1959 Visit to Princeton and U.S.-Cuban Relations" on Tuesday at 4:30 in the Dodds Auditorium.

Speakers will be Dr. Ernesto Betancourt, a member of the 1959 Cuban delegation and now an economic consultant in Washington, and Robert A. Stevenson, the State Department Cuban Desk Officer at that time, now retired from the Foreign Service. They will analyze the state of Cuban-U.S. relations at the time of the visit which took place four months after the overthrow of Batista and before Castro's decision to align his revolution with the Soviet Union.

Dr. Betancourt will discuss the debates between Fidel Castro and other members of the delegation, especially with his brother, Raul, over the future course of the revolution. Mr. Stevenson will draw on memoranda he wrote at the time, including one on Castro's conversation with Vice-president Richard Nixon.

Invited to the U.S. to address the American Society of Newspaper Editors in Washington, Castro and a 220-person delegation stopped in Princeton on April 20-21 at the invitation of President Robert Goheen to address students and faculty of the Woodrow Wilson School, and the History and Romance Languages Departments. His talk, which was given in the Conference Room of the Woodrow Wilson School (now Corwin Hall, which was moved from its present location in 1963 to make room for the new building), was on the topic, "The United States and the Revolutionary Spirit," the subject of a Special Program in American Civilization undergraduate conference.

Castro received a standing ovation after the speech in which he promised to lead his country to economic progress without sacrificing individual freedom, and called democracy "the most beautiful political and social idea." After he left the building he spoke to the crowd of 2000 outside in English and Spanish, urging them to back his revolution. A reception at Morven, the governor's residence, followed and Castro gave another talk at Lawrenceville School the following morning, before the group left for New York.

Among the topics that the speakers will address are the U.S. role in Castro's decision to move to the left, the internal dynamics of the early post-revolutionary period, and the character and evolution of Castro's political beliefs in 1959.

APRIL 28 IS DATE

Of Rhododendron Sale. The Princeton Chapter of the American Rhododendron Society will hold its annual sale of unusual rhododendron hybrids on Saturday, April 28.

The sale will be held from 8:30-2 on the grounds of Mercer County Community College, Old Trenton-Edinburg Road, West Windsor. Plants will be sold on a first-come first-served basis, with no advance or reserved sales. The sale will take place rain or shine.

Each year rhododendron hybridizers bring forth new varieties with superior flower colors and plant foliage. Most of these plants never become widely distributed. This annual event provides the public an opportunity for obtaining fine plants which are usually available only to rhododendron collectors and specialists.

The Society will sponsor its annual display of rhododendron and azalea flowers at the Quaker Bridge Mall Saturday and Sunday, May 19 and 20. Membership in the ARS is open to all interested persons, and the public is invited to attend all meetings and programs. Regular meetings are held the second Wednesday of the month at 8 at the Unitarian Church, Cherry Valley Road.

PRINCETON ADMITS 2,126

To Class of 1988. Princeton University has offered admission to 2,126 young men and women as members of next fall's freshman class.

They were chosen from an all-time record of 12,715 applicants. Dean of Admissions Anthony M. Cummings expects approximately 1,140 of them to accept the offer of admission and to matriculate in September with the Class of 1988.

The admitted secondary school students, 1,326 men and 800 women, were selected from 7,833 male and 4,882 female applicants. Princeton follows an "equal access" or "sex-blind" admission policy.

Nearly 97 percent of the admitted group rank in the top 20 percent of their classes. About 89 percent are in the upper 10 percent. Average college board scores for the admitted group, up slightly from last year, were 656 verbal and 701 math, with a 669 average of all achievement test scores.

There was an increase in the number of admitted minority group students from last year (438 to 502). The number of alumni sons and daughters admitted was 256.

A specially equipped van will transport wheelchair bound people and those who need other special assistant devices to their medical appointments and will also take them shopping one day a week. The van will be for the disabled population and those 60 years of age and older. There is no cost to the participants, who must call 924-5816 between the hours of 6 p.m. and 9 p.m. to schedule an appointment to be picked up.

The van will operate between the hours of 2:30 and 5:30 five days a week. Wednesdays will be reserved for shopping days, however, and prospective users are urged to make their appointments on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday or Friday. Except for emergencies, two days advance notice is required for scheduling purposes. Monday's appointments must be called in by Thursday evening.

The van will be dispatched by the Senior Resource Center. All appointments will be verified in the morning. If their residences are not barrier free, the clients must inform the scheduler so that appropriate arrangements can be made. Clients who have a regularly scheduled therapy appointment or other types of medical appointment are advised to notify the Senior Resource Center of this to help expedite the scheduling.

If the special van is not used to capacity, it may service the overflow, if there is such, of Crosstown 62.

This demonstration project will be in effect for two months, starting on May 1. Princetonians wishing to register for the program may call the Princeton Senior Resource Center at 924-7108. The service is available free of charge only to Princeton Borough and Township residents.

CAREERS TO BENEFIT

From Flea Market. A Flea Market will be held Saturday, April 28, from 9 to 3 at Princeton High School for the benefit of Career Development Awards.

This is a program which makes grants for further study to non-college bound students. Graduating seniors in Princeton, Montgomery, Lawrence and West Windsor-Plainsboro are eligible for the awards, which have enabled students to pursue studies in such fields as dental hygiene, aerospace or auto mechanics, mechanical drawing, fashion merchandising, computer programming or secretarial studies.

For exhibitor information for the Flea Market, call 883-6174 or 924-5600, ext. 390.

TWO PROGRAMS PLANNED

By Watersheds Ass'n. Two short courses, one on birds and one on photographing nature, are planned by the Stony Brook-Millstone Watersheds Association.

Photographing nature will begin Tuesday at 7:30 and continue with evening sessions April 26, May 3 and May 10. The course will be taught by Phil Moylan, whose photographs have appeared in Audubon Magazine, N.J. Audubon and American Birds. An additional session during the day of May 5 (raindate May 6) will provide participants with field experience and the final session will be spent reviewing that field work.

Class members are asked to bring their own equipment or be familiar with 35mm photography. The cost is $20 for members, $25 for nonmembers. Classes will be held at the Watersheds headquarters, Titus Mill Road, Hopewell Township.

Dick Wood will lead a two-session course on bird behavior on May 9 at 8 p.m. and May 12 at 9 a.m. The evening class will feature a slide presentation and identification of bird songs. Mr. Wood will take participants on a walk at the Watersheds Reserve on the following Saturday, May 12, for observation of birdlife.

The cost is $4, $5 for nonmembers. Class size in both instances is limited to 12. For information call the Watershed headquarters at 737-3735.

YWCA TO GATHER

For Membership Meeting. The YWCA will hold its annual volunteer appreciation lunch and membership meeting on Friday, April 27, at noon at the YWCA. The YWCA will honor its more than 500 active volunteers who have served many hours in such areas as registration assistance, office support, athletic instruction, and the installation of a computer.

The board will also introduce newly elected board members and nominating committee members. Current board members serving another two-year term are Barbara Garretson, Janet Grace, Frances Hutner, Andree Marks, Nancy Myers, Mayeve Tate, Penny Thomas, and Nancy VanderVoort, all of Princeton; Gail Clough of Belle Mead, and Dorothy Katz and Kinnie Schmidt of Pennington. New board members include Barbara Butler, Zoe Bylin, Evelyn Ellerbe, Elizabeth Sword, Anne Thomas, and Sue Tillett of Princeton, Ruth Mellk of Pennington, and Pat Van Ness of Trenton.

YWCA members wishing to attend may reserve a place by calling 924-5571 by this Friday.

8TH DOLL SHOW SET

In Hightstown. The Hightstown-East Windsor Historical Society will sponsor its 8th annual Doll Show and Sale on Saturday, April 28.

The show will be held in St. Anthony's Hall at the corner of Route 33 and Maxwell Avenue. Free parking is available for this event, which begins at 10 and continues until 4.

The Hightstown Doll Show features dolls and doll-related items only — no miniatures. Dealers from across the nation will display and sell a variety of wares, from antique and French and German Bisque dolls; collector quality cloth dolls, personality dolls of the '30s, '40s and '50s; composition and plastic dolls; handmade pincushion and clothespin dolls; Lenci dolls; paper dolls, Barbie dolls; and collectible modern dolls. There will also be doll clothing and accessories and a raffle drawing of a 22" Bisque Doll. A cafeteria on the premises will offer homemade sandwiches, baked goods and beverages. Admission is $2.50.

HUNGER RUN PLANNED

By Seminary, U-Store. The second annual Princeton Hunger Run will be held on Saturday, April 28 at 10 a.m.

The 10 kilometer run will again be sponsored by Princeton Theological Seminary and the Princeton University Store. A record turnout is expected. Net proceeds of the main event, plus a one mile fitness run, will be turned over to Oxfam America, a world hunger relief organization.

The main event, the 10K run, will be over a certified course and will be electronically timed. The start and finish will be in Princeton Theological Seminary, corner of Mercer and Alexander Streets. Area clubs as well as interested individuals are encouraged to participate. Entry fees are $5 per person if paid in advance and $6 on the day of the race.

Princeton Hunger Run T-shirts will be awarded to the first 400 registrants. There will be awards to overall male and female winners in each of six age groups.

Holland's largest exporters of bulbs.

The Club will have displays and information about growing tulips, narcissus and other spring bulbs on two occasions in May. Display tables will be available Tuesday, May 1, at the Spring Annual at the North Princeton Development Center in Skillman and at the Stony Brook Garden Club's annual May Market at Morven on Friday, May 4.

Orders may be placed on those occasions, or with any Sweet Briar alumnae before July 15. Bulbs are shipped to buyers at planting time.

Mrs. Homer D. Jones is president of the local club. Mrs. Frederick H. Borsch serves as treasurer, and Mrs. Alfred G. Genung is bulb chairman.

ALL ABOUT BATS

Program at Library. "Snow White and the Flying Foxes," a free slide lecture on dispelling myths about bats, is scheduled at the Princeton Public Library Saturday morning at 10:30.

Bonnie Sumner, vice president of the Bat Conservation International, Milwaukee, Wisc. will be the speaker and will illustrate her talk with slides from the collection of Merlin Tuttle, one of the world's foremost wildlife photographers. Bats have scientific value, and current research involving bats is said to hold promise in fighting cancer, treating speech defects, and improving birth control.

The program is co-sponsored by the Library, the Stony Brook-Millstone Watersheds Association and the Washington Crossing Chapter of the Audubon Society.

Collins

Critics of Collins spoke hopefully of a negotiated settlement. Mayor Sigmund volunteered to travel to Connecticut to meet in person with Mr. Collins. She said she would be willing to submit the issue to mediation or to join with Collins in appointing a blue ribbon commission of Borough citizens empowered to resolve the areas of conflict.

"My offer still stands," the mayor said. "According to their own plans, Collins does not intend to start any building on the Hulfish north parking lot until next year. There's still plenty of time and room to negotiate."

Despite the protracted schedule of hearings already devoted to Collins, the critics of the proposal argued that returning to the board for further study would be a much more expeditious route for Collins than the courts. Councilman Irv Urken said he voted against Collins in part because he believed that the plan could be improved within a few months through the Planning Board process.

Margen Penick, the vice-chairman of the Planning Board, theorized that a revision of the plan to overcome her greatest objections — the impact on Greenholm, the exit of both garages on Chambers Street, traffic problems on Palmer Square East — could sail through the Planning Board in two meetings plus one look by the Environmental Design Review Committee.

When asked what the Planning Board would do differently on another review of the plans, Mrs. Penick was blunt: "The board has a lot of new members who were nervous and inexperienced. They didn't do the job they were appointed to do. They were either unaware of the powers of the Planning Board or were afraid to use them. Whether or not the members now have enough experience and con-

Rolfing and Your Body

If you would like to feel the ultimate in physical, mental, and even emotional well-being, Rolfing just might be for you. In a series of 10 carefully planned sessions involving deep tissue manipulation, an orderly change in the human structure is promoted. To know this sublime experience call your ROLFING CENTER OF PRINCETON at 921-3136 for your appointment today.

Developed and refined by Dr. Ida P. Rolf over a period of 50 years, Rolfing today is a major presence in the field of Holistic Health. The unique plasticity of the human body allows it to undergo structural changes in response to the demands placed upon it. Throughout a person's lifetime the body tends to respond negatively to the stresses of daily living and falls prey to poor posture, tension, and even pain. Rolfing takes advantage of this plasticity to once again evoke the body's natural symmetry, balance, and freedom.

As a means of unlocking human potential, Rolfing is unsurpassed.

We, the writers of this 1984 Business Profiles Review, suggest you find out more about Rolfing at the ROLFING CENTER OF PRINCETON, located at 204 North Harrison Street, Princeton 08540. It is our belief you will be more than glad you did.

Tempting Tiger Health Food Store & Restaurant

"Your Nutritious & Delicious Health Alternative"

In this day and age when our waters are polluted, our air poisoned and our food supply contaminated, we have to try hard to stay healthy. One sure way to aid and abet our everyday health is to eat pure foods.

The TEMPTING TIGER, located at 14 Witherspoon Street in Princeton, phone 924-0643, has made pure and natural foods their business for over 5 years. Open 7 days a week, they serve Continental Breakfasts Monday-Friday from 8 to 11 a.m., and their regular menu and daily specials from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m., Saturday 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Sunday from Noon to 6 p.m.

Whether you choose to eat in or take out, you're always welcome at the TEMPTING TIGER. All wholesome foods are served in their relaxed atmosphere with classical background music. Whole grain breads, sandwiches, casseroles, and their extremely special soups are a small sampling of their fare! They have gift certificates and, in addition, a fine catering service to help make your next event or party a success.

Visit them soon and try their new Gelato or Sorbetto Italian ice creams and ices, made fresh on the premises with imported equipment. These ices are creamier, lower in air and fat, and also made with only a small amount of fructose. They are a delicious summertime treat and come in dozens of flavors.

Another plus is their convenience store, where they will be happy to advise and guide you on all health-related items such as vitamin supplements, cereals, grains and whatever you might need.

All in all, the next time you want to treat yourself, try the TEMPTING TIGER for wholesome, "down-home goodness." They give special discounts to Senior Citizens and Students. The editors of this 1984 Business Profiles Review gladly give the TEMPTING TIGER our complete endorsement.

Thul Auto Stores Introduces "Video Clinics"

The THUL AUTO STORE at 990 Route 518 (just off Route 206) in Rocky Hill has one of the largest stocks of new and rebuilt automotive parts, tools, accessories, paint and equipment in the Princeton area. In fact, they just relocated to their newly constructed 6,000 square foot store that features an attractive showroom, plenty of inventory space, and a complete machine shop.

When they opened their new store, THUL's introduced a new concept called the "Video Clinic". Here in THUL's showroom a TV runs auto repair clinics on VCR tapes at their customers' request. While many of the tapes in THUL's library cover sophisticated repairs for their professional customers, more basic repair training is also available, and it's free for the asking.

THUL's, with its obvious commitment to the supply and training of all automotive customers, plays a vital role in this community. We, the writers of this 1984 Business Profile Review, give our recommendation to this highly regarded and innovative firm which has served Central Jersey since 1913, and has become known as the "Home of the Professional and the Car Owner."

Whether you, or your mechanic, are supplied by THUL's, you have the assurance of receiving the industry's finest quality name brand products at prices you can afford.

THUL's is now open seven days a week, so now it's even more convenient to shop where you have the confidence in the products as well as the people.

Collins

fidence to feel they can do something about Collins, I don't know."

Collins Against Mediation. The Collins people see it all differently. In response to the Sigmund proposal for mediation, Collins vice president Gary Green said, "Mediators are good at cutting pies in half. It would leave behind a project that doesn't make sense."

Mr. Green argued that Collins does not have the luxury of time. "A year is when we begin construction, but that doesn't mean that we can postpone preparing drawings, working drawings, fine-tuning the project."

Even if Collins did succeed in navigating the Planning Board straits again, company officials believe that new appeals — perhaps by people not yet even heard from — would surface. "We are not going to play ping pong with the emotions here in Princeton," said Mr. Green. "We want an impartial judge."

Mr. Green said Collins is working in the face of "an unrealistic set of expectations. We're being asked to provide more open space and low income housing. The Mount Laurel ruling calls for density bonuses if a developer puts up low-cost housing. This is contradictory to the design for more open space."

How About High Rises? "An obvious ploy," continued Mr. Green, "would be to say 'okay, we'll design Mount Laurel housing, with five-story high rises and several hundred units. That would bring people out of the woodwork. But it would not be right for Princeton, it would not be right for us, and we wouldn't do it."

Nor would Collins take any of the presently designed housing units and convert them to low cost housing.

"We've been negotiating for three years," said the Collins representative. Mr. Green predicted that the court would overturn the Council ruling within four to five weeks. Then he envisions "the special interest groups" will file their own court appeals.

The Collins appeal would have no immediate impact on the work already underway in the Square. The financing for the Chambers Street garage, for which ground was just broken, and the Inn renovation and expansion has been in place. But Mr. Green acknowledged that financing for the area north of Hulfish would be virtually impossible to obtain as long as Council's decision stands.

Collins's timetable called for seeking that money about 45 days prior to the start of construction. Other funding for the preliminary work has been interrupted. "I don't know what the impact of that will be," said Mr. Green.

The Delay Game. The appeal of the air rights may be a different matter, however. Mr. Green said that the Borough's lawyer in that case, Edwin Schmierer, has advised that the case might be heard in July or August. "We're going to proceed with the new wing and the sequence of construction is such that the bridge itself wouldn't be started until October or so."

Mr. Boswell, predicting a more extended timetable, pointed out that "time is more costly to Collins than to any other party." Said Mr. Green of the potential delays that could be created by Mr. Boswell: "I'm sure that's his objective."

One legal opinion is that Collins could proceed with the bridge despite Mr. Boswell's appeal. Then, even if it lost the case, it could appeal and send the issue so deeply into the bowels of Chancery that it would take years to resurface — during which time the hotel could function as if the matter never occurred. That strategy was not viewed as a likely one, but one never knows what convoluted events may transpire next in...

...Bleak House.

NEW TV CAMERA

Developed by RCA. RCA has introduced a solid state portable color TV camera which is said to provide outstanding pictures in low light and in situations of rapid motion.

The announcement at a specially called press conference in New York City came on the heels of an earlier announcement that RCA would cut its losses on its VideoDisc players. The "CED" VideoDisc System was developed at the RCA Laboratories here, as were the charge-coupled devices (CCD) that replace conventional tubes in the new TV camera, which has been given the name CCD-1.

The electronic "eyes" of the camera are three silicon-based chips that replace pickup tubes and eliminate many of the drawbacks of tube technology. The active elements of all three CCDs are no bigger than a postage stamp. The camera's main advantages are its ablity to see detail in rapidly moving objects and its ability to perform over a wide range of lighting conditions, thus making it particularly useful for sports and news coverage.

The new RCA CCD-1 camera will be demonstrated to potential customers starting April 29 at the annual show of the National Association of Broadcasters in Las Vegas. First deliveries are expected at the end of the year.

According to Dennis J. Woywood, vice president, marketing, RCA Broadcast Systems Division, RCA has invested heavily in the technology of charge-coupled devices for more than 10 years with the goal of producing imaging devices good enough to produce a "broadcast quality" color camera. "We have clearly met that goal," Mr. Woywood stated.

DEVELOPED IN PRINCETON: The research and development for the CCD chips and circuitry used in RCA's new color TV camera were designed by a team of scientists and engineers at RCA Laboratories. Standing, from left, are Gary W. Hughes, Peter A. Levine and Frank W. Shallcross. Seated are Grazyna M. Meray and Walter F. Kosonocky.

JOINT VENTURE BEGUN

Out of Princeton. Squibb-Connaught, Inc., a new jointly owned company which conducts sales and marketing activities in the United States for a range of biological products and vaccines, has inaugurated its new Princeton-based corporate headquarters.

Connaught Laboratories, Ltd. is one of the world's largest suppliers of vaccines and biologicals to induce immunity to infectious diseases. Products include vaccines and toxoids for influenza, poliomyelitis, tetanus, meningitis, yellow fever and a diphtheria antitoxin.

As part of its research program, Squibb-Connaught is concentrating on developing an improved pediatric vaccine to combat hemophilus influenza-B, which can affect children under three years of age and result in a range of frequently fatal diseases including meningitis and retardation.

E. R. Squibb & Sons, Inc., the largest subsidiary of Squibb Corporation, and Connaught Laboratories Ltd., of Toronto, Ontario, Canada, formed the jointly owned company on January 1, 1983. The new company was established to coordinate the research and production resources of Connaught with the marketing and sales resources of Squibb. Steffen Gruhn, former E. R. Squibb director of special projects, is vice president and general manager. Douglas B. Reynolds is vice president of marketing and sales, and Richard F. White, M.D., is medical director.

PERSONNEL NOTES

Two new staff appointments and one promotion have been announced at Response Analysis.

Janna Walsh of Plainsboro has been appointed senior research associate. She was formerly a senior project manager for Bruno & Ridgeway Research Associates and a research analyst for E.R. Squibb.

Linda Asterino, a Titusville resident who has worked at Response Analysis as a secretary since October, and before that as a student research intern, has been appointed research assistant. Ron Kolodziej of Ewing has been promoted to research associate. An employee of Response Analysis since 1976, he was previously director, interviewing and data services.

Michael Aguilar, art director at Princeton Partners advertising agency, is participating in a course on TV commercial production in New York City.

Among the topics discussed during the semester-long program are concept development, story-boards, budgeting, shooting, editing, and music. Also included are cable and music video production, visits to production facilities and interviews with industry professionals.

OBITUARIES

Erling Dorf

Internationally known geologist Erling Dorf, 283 Mercer Road, died April 16 at Princeton Medical Center following a hemorrhage of the brain suffered three weeks earlier. A professor of geology, emeritus, at Princeton University, he was 78 years old. A memorial service will be held in the Princeton University Chapel this Saturday at 2 p.m.

Prof. Dorf is best known for his contributions toward the solution of the Cretaceous-Tertiary boundary problem in the American West; for his investigations of the primitive Early Devonian plants of Wyoming, Newfoundland and Maine; for his studies of climates of the past 100 million years; and for his work on the petrified forests of the Yellowstone Park region. His research interests took him on numerous expeditions to the Rocky Mountains, Venezuela, Mexico, California, Labrador, Gaspe and India.

Born in Nystad, Neb., he received his B.S. degree in 1925 and his Ph.D. in 1930 from the University of Chicago. As an undergraduate he was captain of the swimming team and he was Big Ten diving champion in 1925. He was an honorary member of the Class of 1933 at Princeton.

A member of the Princeton faculty from 1926 until he transferred to emeritus status in 1974, Prof. Dorf also served as curator of paleobotany from 1930 until 1974 and chief marshall of the University from 1967 to 1975.

Twice honored by the National Association of Geology Teachers, he received the 1963 Neil Miner Award and the 1967 Ralph Digman Geology Service Award. In 1983 he received an Alumni Council Award for Service to Princeton, citing his lifetime of teaching Princetonians about the history of the earth.

Reporting a celebration of Prof. Dorf's 75th birthday, TOWN TOPICS described him as "A genial Scandinavian from Nebraska who loves teaching and rocks with such an equality of passion that he is probably one of the best geology teachers around." While serving on the Princeton faculty, he taught evening adult education courses at the Wagner Free Institute in Philadelphia and the Princeton Adult School, as well as secondary school science teachers at Villanova University and summer conferences at Red Lodge, Mont.

A member of the Royal Danish Academy of Sciences and Letters, he was a member of many professional societies and academies. He was a contributor and consultant for numerous books, journals and scientific publications.

A former trustee of the Princeton Country Day School, Prof. Dorf was a charter member of the Princeton Community Players; former president of the Nassau Club; a member of the Princeton Environmental Commission; the Environmental Design Review Committee and the Township Flood Control Committee. He had served as chairman of the Blood Donor Program, Princeton Chapter, American Red Cross, and as a member of its board of trustees, and on the Princeton Township Board of Health.

During World War II he was chief air raid warden of Princeton and a member of the Princeton Defense Council.

He is survived by his wife, Ruth K. Dorf; a sister, Helga Eisler of Princeton; two sons, Norman of Glen Cove, N.Y., and Robert of Vail, Colo.; a daugher, Martha of Seattle, Wash; and five grandchildren.

In lieu of flowers, contributions may be made to Princeton University (care of the Geology Department), either for The Dorf Undergraduate Field Fund or the YBRA Red Lodge Camp; or to the Stony Brook-Millstone Watershed Association.

Belia E. Gordenker of 492 Riverside Drive died of cancer on April 15 at Princeton Medical Center. She was 56 years old.

A resident of Princeton since 1958, Mrs. Gordenker taught and professionally translated from her native Dutch language. She was a member of the Princeton Language Group, an active aide to the International Center at Princeton University and a participant in other activities involving foreign students.

Mrs. Gordenker first came to the United States in 1947 as an exchange student from Leiden University, where she studied French. She later worked for the Netherlands Information Service in New York, the United Nations in Paris, immigrated to the United States in 1952 and worked for KLM-Royal Dutch Airlines in New York.

She married Leon Gordenker, professor of politics at Princeton University in 1956 in Utrecht, Netherlands, and was the mother of two sons, Robert, an engineer, of Ann Arbor, Mich., and Hendrik, a student at Columbia Law School; and a daughter, Emilie, a student at Yale University. She is also survived by a sister, Mrs. G.Y. Fransen van de Putte of Wassenaar, Netherlands.

There will be no memorial service. Memorial contributions may be made to the International Center at Princeton University 08544.

Edith M. Schreier, 65, of Pennington, died April 11 at Princeton Medical Center.

A lifelong area resident, Mrs. Schreier was a member of the First Presbyterian Church of Ewing and a life member of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Pennington Road Fire Company.

Wife of the late Anton Schreier, she is survived by a son, A. Michael Schreier of Robbinsville; two daughters, Edith M. Moscarelli of Monmouth Junction and Joyce M. Trani of Princeton; a brother, Richard Evans of Lawrenceville; three sisters, Hannah A. Evans of Pennington, Florence Clark of Hamilton, and Bertha Bunting of Yardley; and seven grandchildren.

The service was held at a Pennington funeral home, the Rev. David Prince, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Ewing, officiating. Burial was in Ewing Church Cemetery.

John A. Archer, owner and operator of the University Cleaners & Laundry on Moore Street for 35 years, died April 11 in St. Mary's Hospital, Tucson, Ariz. He was 78 and had lived in Princeton for almost 40 years before retiring to live in Green Valley retirement village south of Tucson.

Born in Baltimore, Mr. Archer was a 1929 graduate of The Wharton School of Business of the University of Pennsylvania. He worked at his father's laundry in Baltimore before coming to Princeton in 1937 to purchase University Cleaners which he operated until 1972.

He served a term on Borough Council from 1950-54 and was past president of the Princeton Lions Club. Active also in the Lions Club in Green Valley, he had been a Lions Club member for 46 years. In Princeton he was also a past president of the Family Service Agency and a former member of Nassau Presbyterian Church. In Arizona he was a member of the Sabar Shrine, Blue Angel Unit in Tucson and the Green Valley Masonic Lodge.

Area Churches Plan Variety of Services for Holy Week

Area churches will observe the Passion and Resurrection of Jesus Christ, the central focus of Christian belief and practice, in various ways this week.

At All Saints' Episcopal Church, All Saints' Road, off Van Dyke Road, The Maundy Thursday Service at 8 p.m. will include the rite of foot washing, which commemorates Christ's washing of his disciples' feet. The Good Friday service Friday at noon will feature the singing of the Passion according to John, the Solemn Collects, and the Veneration of the Cross.

At The Great Vigil of Easter, held Holy Saturday at 8 p.m., All Saints' parishioners are given candles upon entering the church. The service begins in darkness, the Paschal candle is lit and its flame passed from hand to hand throughout the congregation until the church is brightly lit, symbolizing the spreading of the word of the resurrected Lord. Easter morning services are at 9 and 11:15.

The same tradition and liturgy is observed by Trinity Episcopal Church at 33 Mercer Street, where Holy Eucharist with foot washing will be held Thursday at 8 p.m. There will be an all-night Watch in the church, in remembrance of Christ's request to his disciples that they watch with him on the night he is betrayed in the garden. The Watch will be held from 9 p.m., right after the Maundy Thursday service, until Friday morning at 9 a.m., when the Good Friday liturgy with Holy Communion will be observed.

The three-hour preaching of the Passion, interspersed with prayers, moments of silence and quiet music, will be held at Trinity from noon until 3 p.m. All are welcome.

On Holy Saturday, there will be a brief service at 10 a.m., and at 8 p.m., The Great Vigil of Easter, the lighting of the paschal candle, baptisms and the first Eucharist of Easter, will be held. On Easter Sunday, Festival Eucharist will be celebrated at 7, 9:15 and 11:15 a.m.

Nassau Presbyterian Church, on Nassau Street opposite Palmer Square, will hold a Communion Service Maundy Thursday at 8 p.m. The Rev. Cynthia A. Jarvis will preach. Noontime Holy Week organ recitals will continue this Wednesday and Thursday, and on Good Friday at 12:15 the Nassau Church Adult Choir will present Faure's Requiem with Carol Evans, soprano; James Amick, baritone; Mary Helbig, harp, and Ray Robinson, viola. All are welcome.

Two Easter Sunday services will be held at Nassau Church, one at 9 and another at 11. There will be child care for infants and toddlers at both times, but no church school classes.

Princeton United Methodist Church, Vandeventer Avenue and Nassau Street, will hold its Maundy Thursday Communion Service at 8 p.m. Thursday, with the Rev. James H. Harris Jr., senior pastor, speaking. His sermon topic will be "Out into Darkness."

The Good Friday Service of the Cross will begin at noon, and a guest speaker, the Rev. John Powell, will deliver the message. The Easter Vigil at United Methodist will begin at 6 a.m. Easter Sunday morning, and be followed by a continental breakfast. Celebration of the Resurrection will begin at 11 a.m. when the Rev. Mr. Harris will preach on "The Easter People."

The Lutheran Church of the Messiah, 407 Nassau Street at Cedar Lane, will also hold special services for the Easter Festival. The congregation will gather Thursday at 6:30 for a Christian Passover Seder Pot Luck Dinner with Holy Communion. The Good Friday Tenebrae Service signifying the death of Jesus Christ on the Cross will be at 8 p.m. April 20.

At 6:30 a.m. Easter Sunday, an Easter Sunrise Eucharist will begin the day's celebration. The service begins outside on the front steps where the striking of the newfire and pouring of water, symbolizing the Resurrection, is followed by a procession into the church nave. There will be special music with trumpets and by the senior choir. An Easter Breakfast will follow at 8 prepared by Messiah's Youth group.

At 9 a.m. there will be a film strip and egg hunt for the church school children. The 10:30 a.m. Easter Eucharist service will include a children's sermon and special music by the senior choir.

Trinity Episcopal Church in Rocky Hill will hold two services for Easter Sunday, at 8 and 10:30 a.m. Both will be celebrations of Holy Eucharist.

The Princeton University Chapel will hold a Maundy Thursday Service on Thursday at 10 p.m. Good Friday services will be from noon to 3 p.m. and at 8 p.m.

On Easter morning, there will be a service of Holy Communion at 8 a.m. with a homily by Dean Frederick Borsch. Dean Borsch will also preach at the 11 a.m. Festival Service. The title of his sermon is: "Somebodies out of Nobodies." There will be special music by a choir composed of members of the Princeton University Chapel Choir and the Glee Club. Curtis W. Lasell, graduate student and principal university orgnist, will be the organist for both services. All are welcome

---

Christ Congregation, Walnut Lane and Houghton Road, will hold a Seder Meal Thursday evening begining at 6 p.m. Members of the congregation are asked to bring a main dish and salad or dessert. All other elements of the pascal meal will be provided.

On Good Friday, there will be a Tenebrae service at 8 p.m., a special service of shadows recalling the events of the day when the Son of God was killed.

On Easter Sunday, an informal Sunrise Service will be held at 7:30 a.m., followed by a home cooked breakfast. After the meal, adults will help children dye Easter eggs. There will be a service of worship at 10 a.m. in the sanctuary, followed by an Easter egg hunt for the children.

Bunker Hill Lutheran Church, Bunker Hill Road, Griggstown, will have a special speaker, Prof. Hosch, during Holy Week. Prof. Hosch will speak Maundy Thursday at the service of Holy Communion at 7:30 p.m.

Holy Week

and again on Good Friday at 7:30 p.m. There will be an Easter Sunrise Service at 6:45 a.m. at Bunker Hill Golf Course and an Easter Service at 11 a.m. in the church.

On Easter Sunday evening, at 7 p.m. the Hillcrest Lutheran Academy Choir from Fergus Falls, Minn., will present a program of sacred music at Bunker Hill Lutheran. All are welcome.

At Princeton Monthly Meeting, Religious Society of Friends, children in the First Day school 5th and 6th grade classes will present a short play about the Easter story immediately following Meeting for Worship at 9 and 11. There will also be a peanut hunt for First Day school children.

The Kingston Presbyterian Church, Main Street, Kingston, will hold a special Communion Service on Maundy Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Assembly Room. On Good Friday, the Young Adults will lead a Tenebrae Service at 8 in the Sanctuary. The service will include the dramatization of "In the Shadow of the Cross" and special music.

Easter celebrations will begin at 5:05 a.m. at a Sunrise Service to be held near the boat house on Lake Carnegie, followed by a continental breakfast back at the church. At 9:15, the church school will celebrate with balloons, banners and butterflies. The 11 a.m. Easter worship service will include special music from the choirs.

Princeton Presbyterian Church will sponsor an Easter Sunrise Service at 5 a.m. at the Princeton Battlefield on Mercer Street. Participants should bring their own folding chairs. Breakfast will follow at the Colonial Diner on Route 1. There will be no Sunday School at 9:30 a.m.

The Easter worship service will begin at 11. The church meets at the John Witherspoon School on Walnut Lane.

Princeton Theological Seminary will re-enact a four-hour vigil celebrating the festival of Easter Saturday evening at 8.

The vigil's theme, "Feed My Sheep," traces the history of the Christian faith from creation through the Exodus, the Old Testament prophets, and the life and death of Christ, culminating in the announcement of the Resurrection at midnight. Central to the service are preaching and the celebration of the sacraments of the church, baptism and the Lord's Supper. Seminary President Thomas W. Gillespie will preach the sermon.

Worshippers will proceed to various stations on the campus for parts of the service. At midnight the congregation will re-enter the chapel to the sound of trumpets announcing the dawn of Easter day.

Following the service there will be a breakfast in the Campus Center dining room. Those attending are asked to bring food contributions to the Campus Center before the Vigil. A donation of $1.50 per person is also requested for food.

Faure's Requiem will be performed Friday at 8:30 p.m. at the Community Good Friday Service at the Hopewell Presbyterian Church. A special choir of area singers will be directed by Norman Hurst and accompanied by David Hutchings on organ.

BULLETIN NOTES

The United Methodist Women of the Princeton United Methodist Church will hold a Spring Rummage Sale in the church basement on Thursday and Friday, April 26 and 27.

Items for sale include clothing of all types, household and kitchen wares, appliances, toys, books, records, linens and notions. At noon Friday, April 27, everything will be half price, and shoppers are invited to stuff a grocery bag full of any soft items for $1. Hours are 9 to 5 on Thursday, April 26, and 9 to 3, Friday, April 27.

First Church of Christ, Scientist, Bayard Lane, will sponsor a lecture entitled "The Consciousness of the Healing Christ" on Thursday at 8 p.m. at the Nassau Inn.

The speaker will be John A. Grant, an authorized teacher of Christian Science, who will link Christian healing to what he describes as the vital relationship between God and man. Mr. Grant will be introduced by Paul Manni of Hamilton Square.

The Blawenburg Reformed Church will hold a Rummage Sale and Bake Sale Friday, April 27, from 9 to 7 at the church, Route 518, Blawenburg.

The Separated and Divorced Catholics Support Group at St. Paul's Church will meet Monday at 8 in St. Paul's School. Father Louis Stingel, pastor of St. James Church, Jamesburg, will speak.

Interested persons are invited to attend. For further information call Pat Cleaves, 921-6863, evenings, or Marjorie Gilbert, D.R.E., 924-2681, days.

"A Thurber Carnival" will be presented by students at Princeton Theological Seminary on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, April 24-26 at 7:30 in the Campus Center Theatre.

The revue features sketches of American life as seen through the eyes of humorist James thurber, including "The Secret Life of Walter Mitty," and the fable "The Unicorn in the Garden."

G. Robert Jacks, assistant in speech at the Seminary, will direct the production.

The public is invited free of charge.

CHERRYBROOK ROAD

Just north of Princeton and with a Princeton address, this loop road has the seclusion of a cul-de-sac with the advantage of two outlets. Adjoining a horse farm and with a barn of its own, this attractive Colonial has much to offer a growing family. Hall, living room, dining room, laundry, lavatory, eat-in kitchen opening to large redwood deck and family room with fireplace on first floor. Five bedrooms and two baths on second. Basement. Two car garage. $185,000

STUART ROAD

Nature's woodland, huge boulders and the rolling countryside make a perfect setting for a limited number of contemporary houses on this picturesque road in Princeton Township. With seclusion assured by the required acreage, this unique hillside home also overlooks a running brook and acres of parkland, beautiful when snow covered or when the dogwoods bloom. Weathered cedar siding, glass walls, two fireplaces and outside decks, add interest to the dramatic living areas, four bedrooms, three baths and family room. $349,000

CONSTITUTION HILL

Luxury condominium in Constitution Hill, on a well situated site with terraces and view of the pool. The house contains a gracious entrance hall with white quarry tile, separate study with built-in bookcases, large living/dining room, master bedroom and bath on first floor. Upstairs are two bedrooms, each with built-in vanity and basin in addition to large hall bath. $335,000

PRINCETON HORIZONS

NORTHWEST PRINCETON

This triple award winning contemporary - the architect's own house - is a testament to architectural excellence. Its unusual mirrored and glass exterior blends with and reflects the dramatic three plus acre site - forrest trees, boulders, streams and beautifully shrubbed and landscaped garden areas. A brick circular drive-around and courtyard with fountain leads to the raised covered walkway surrounding the house. Inside, entry way with closets looks into a dramatic dining atrium with multiple skylights; a living room with a unique circular fireplace; an adjoining study; a family room or separate dining room adjoins a fully equipped center island kitchen with an enclosed inlaid wood breakfast nook plus a laundry corner; master bedroom suite with adjoining bath; two other bedrooms and bath. All rooms have sliding doors to the outside. Among the many features are marble floors, mahogany trim, oversized doors, extensive lighting system indoors and out, burglar alarm, and central air. When You're 100, You'll Live Contentedly In Congregate Housing, Says Vivian Carlin

Where will you be living when you're 100?

You'll notice "when", not "if."

———

It is the hope of Vivian Carlin — or even the expectation of Vivian Carlin, since she is a strong and persuasive lady who has helped bring many of her beliefs into reality — that you will be living contentedly in spacious congregate housing, surrounded by busy and contented peers, your daily chores assumed by a competent professional staff.

Well! When do we move in?

Mrs. Carlin has just published "If I Live to Be 100 ..." a book about congregate housing, and an easier version of the doctoral thesis she wrote for the Rutgers University Graduate School of Social Work.

You may buy the book at Titles Unlimited in the Princeton Shopping Center and Mrs. Carlin will be there Saturday, April 28 from 11 to 3 to autograph your copy.

———

"Congregate housing" isn't one of your "where's the beef" catch phrases. Mrs. Carlin explains it clearly in her book, with dozens of warm and happy anecdotes about old people — and we mean "old," not just your down-home elderly: the average age in the unidentified place she describes is 83 — who have found a rainbow at the end of their life span.

Because you buy into this housing, it is for middle and upper-income families. (Mrs. Carlin's next goal: more of it for low-income couples.)

———

Entrance Fee. You pay an entrance, or "founders" fee, from $15,000 to $60,000 and up. This one-shot payment, with no refund, depends on the size of the facility and the size of your apartment.

Yes, "apartment." With your own furniture. This is not a nursing home, don't forget.

You might select a simple efficiency, if you live alone, or a one or two-bedroom apartment if you want guest-room or study. You pay a monthly fee, usually $550 to $1,000.

———

This includes taxes, maintenance, services; dinner each evening, eaten restaurant-style as a social event; the staff member who regularly cleans your apartment.

In many congregate housing projects, there is 24-hour medical care without additional cost and often an infirmary, where you might spend a few days if you have the flu.

"I'm an advocate," says Mrs. Carlin briskly. "I didn't write this book to make money. It's my life's work and my message is this: plan for old age!

"Most people don't plan. They say 'I don't want to think about it. I'll never be alone, no, not me; my spouse will never die, no, not mine.' But it will happen — in one year or 20, one way or another."

———

"My life's work..." The Carlins moved to Princeton in 1965, after Mrs. Carlin had spent ten years as a clinical psychologist and vocational counsellor.

In Princeton, she became head of the Housing Committee of the League of Women Voters ("the League is better training than school"), a member of the Township's Citizens Advisory Committee on Housing and a member of the board of Princeton Community Housing.

With others, she helped to get low-and-moderate-income housing written into the Township's Master Plan, and she worked with Karin Slaby, head of Princeton's Housing Authority, on the Redding Terrace project.

Job as Housing Specialist. Deciding all this was worth something, she successfully applied for a job in 1969 as housing specialist for the Division on Aging of the state's Department of Community Affairs.

"I'd had no experience in gerontology — I learned it on the job! — but the director wanted my skills of advocacy, research and ability to handle statistics."

———

She is now Supervising Officer of Planning and Policy Analysis for the Division on Aging. Besides housing, this involves her in legal services, public-private relationships, long-term care — all related to the general field of aging.

From volunteer work on housing to a paid job with the DCA she returned to her starting place, retained by PCH as consultant on the new Elm Road project for low-and-moderate-income elderly.

———

"The field is so exciting! I wouldn't have gone back to school for my doctorate otherwise. I wanted to study middle-income elderly, as I do in my book, because they are more representative of our future population.

"In the future, elderly are going to be better-educated, in better health, with more money. Even now, there is less poverty among the elderly than ten years ago."

———

Although she was oldest in the class, she says, she got better grades than ever before in her life.

"Straight As. I was better motivated than I'd been before."

The thesis took five years of research, one and one-half of those years, full-time. She lived in the congregate housing project she writes about, saw how residents were supported when a spouse died or when they were ill, saw how rich their social life was, how busy and happy they were.

———

She saw how the actuarial tables, requested by project owners so they could predict vacancy rates, have simply been thrown out the recreation room window by the residents. They're living longer than statistics said they would.

In vigorous middle age with children grown, the Carlins [illegible] to being 100. Mrs. Carlin's studies have shown that most of these congregate places have waiting lists of ten years or more, so she repeats her advice: "Plan ahead."

Theatre Intime's Production of "Nuts" Benefits from a Strong Cast of Characters

Courtroom dramas are easy to have pre-formed ideas about. Some people like them because there is bound to be conflict, and conflict is at the heart of the theatre. Others dislike them because of the overworked procedural formulae — "Do you solemnly swear...?" "Objection, your honor!" "Overruled," "Witness, answer the question," etc.

I went to Theatre Intime's production of "Nuts," by Tom Topor, prepared to be neutral as to the alternatives cited, and hoping only that the characters in the play would make me care what happens to them. I was not disappointed.

'NUTS' TO YOU: Noel Fairbrothers will appear in the role of Ann Levinsky in this weekend's production of "Nuts" at Theater Intime. The play runs Thursday, Friday, and Saturday at 8 p.m.

"Nuts" makes its situation clear at once. A young woman, Claudia Faith Draper, has been indicted for manslaughter in the first degree. At the House of Detention for Women her behavior was such that she has been remanded to Bellevue Hospital for psychiatric evaluation. Is she mentally capable of standing trial? That case is now being argued before a judge in the psychiatric wing of the hospital.

The prosecution, contending that as a paranoid schizophrenic she must have hospital treatment before she can stand trial, is conducted by Franklin Macmillan of the district attorney's office, with the help of three witnesses: Dr. Rosenthal, a psychiatrist on the Bellevue staff, and Claudia's mother and stepfather, Rose and Arthur Kirk. Claudia, fighting to avoid treatment — being "put away," she calls it — is defended by a young lawyer, Ann Levinsky, whose tactics consist of cross-examining the prosecution's witnesses and calling only one defense witness — Claudia herself.

Interest Quickens. After a humdrum start, interest begins to quicken half way through the first act, with Ms. Levinsky's cross-examination of Dr. Rosenthal. Act Two belongs to the parents. Mother and stepfather on the witness stand, both ordinary little people, reveal how un-ordinary the characters of ordinary people often are. While throwing light on Claudia's family past they manage to evoke audience smiles through their different brands of seriousness. At the same time they learn more about each other than they knew before.

Fireworks erupt in Act Three when Claudia takes the stand. It is not for a reviewer to say which side wins the case, but it can be said that, as evidence has been gradually accumulating, the judge's decision is clearly correct. The capsule look into the future as delivered by the court clerk after the case is closed also jibes nicely with the weight of the evidence.

Judge Murdoch explains that his court is not so formal as other parts of the Supreme Court: "We allow a good deal of leeway." This makes some of the proceedings less mechanical and more human. Claudia and Mr. Kirk in particular indulge in interruptions and outbursts which try the judge's patience but bring zest to the theatre audience.

Another feature of "Nuts" is the sometime frankness of its language. This would horrify the little old lady from Dubuque. When the prosecutor delicately tries to make Claudia admit she is a prostitute, she answers with a two-minute long steam recital listing explicitly the countless variations of the "favors" she performs for her men friends. If the old lady from Dubuque doesn't drop dead on the spot, it is only because she probably never learned the modern slang terms for the actions involved.

A Strong Cast. Brian Grady has directed the play with an eye for its theatricality. Personalities rub against each other more than ideologies. And he has assembled a strong cast.

Holly Tooker handles brilliantly the complex character of Claudia Draper. In pajamas and a hospital bathrobe, she is like a restless, caged creature on exhibit, always at the center of the action. It is rewarding to watch her as she listens to the witnesses talk about her, to note her eyes, her hands, her body poses and her enigmatic smile.

Noel Fairbrothers is beautifully controlled as counsel for the defense. We are watching a clever mind at work, and she refuses to be ruffled either by her opponents or by her own difficult client. A professional air distinguishes this performance.

Jeffrey Hall is commandingly aggressive as the prosecuting attorney. Tall and easy of manner, he is readily seen as a man who has made his way successfully in the real world of courts and the law.

Among the student actors Erik Fatemi does well as the hospital psychiatrist, a man of no imagination but great industry, who does his job by the book and grows upset in circumstances not covered by the book. Kristin Branson is very good as Claudia's mother, a loving, loyal but essentially stupid woman who can't understand how her daughter went wrong.

Jack S. Weiss as the stepfather looks a little too young but is amusing as a windbag who uses the witness stand for a spate of irrelevant talk. When he inadvertently says a little too much he becomes suddenly a pitiable character, a change that Weiss handles well. Kevin Renard Teal's Judge Murdoch is firm but never pompous. His natural dignity fits the part well.

Alexa Carls has designed a very honest set. It is all business-like, with no unnecessary decoration but with its own spare dignity. The lighting is by Peter Modlin.

"Nuts" will play three more performances this week, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. For reservations, the box office phone number is 452-4950.

'BEAUTY' IN BALLET

At McCarter. The Princeton Ballet Society's School of Ballet will present its biennial school production — the full length ballet "Sleeping Beauty" — at Princeton's McCarter Theatre on Saturday, May 12, at 1 and 4:30 p.m.

Set to the beautiful score by Peter Ilyitch Tchaikovsky, the Princeton School of Ballet's adaptation of this classic will be performed by more than 275 student dancers in two casts.

The School of Ballet's productions at McCarter, a tradition begun three decades ago by founder Audreee Estey, are undertaken to provide an opportunity for all interested students in the school's Princeton, Cranbury and New Brunswick studios to be part of a performance under fully professional conditions. Movements learned in class are incorporated into original choreography by the faculty of the Ballet School, and each young dancer has the chance to experience first-hand the meshing of the art of dance with the allied arts of drama, music, and design in the creation of a full-length ballet.

A dance critic wrote of a recent Princeton Ballet School production: "With nearly 200 youngsters of different ages and proficiencies to work with, how does one ... create the exciting and romantic illusion that the balletomane looks for in the performance of a fairy-tale ballet? Princeton Ballet has overcome these difficulties. The production was outstanding on all levels."

'PAUSE' TO PREMIER

Next Thursday, April 26. With its traditional all-male kickline, mind-reeling humor, and pun-infected title, and not to mention at least one freshman performer with show business aspirations, Princeton's Triangle Club will launch its 95th annual production next Thursday, April 26, at McCarter Theater.

The show will run through Sunday, April 29, and then again on the Friday and Saturday of the University's annual Reunions, June 1 and 2.

This year's show is called "Revel Without a Pause" — where have we heard that before?

One of the performers who will dance, sing, and act in several of the sketches is freshman Brooke Shields. Given the longstanding tradition and general zaniness of this show, the question of who might upstage whom will best be left to the audience. Tickets are available at the McCarter box office or by calling 452-5200.

'BETRAYAL' AT KRESGE

Next Week's Film. The screen adaptation of Harold Pinter's play "Betrayal," starring Ben Kingsley and Jeremy Irons, will continue the Movies-from-McCarter series at Kresge Auditorium next Monday through Wednesday evenings at 7:30 and 9:15 p.m. Pinter adapted his own play for the screen, retaining the device that supplied its theatrical renown: a reverse structure in which he tells his love story backwards, starting with the end of the affair and ending nine years before on the day it began.

"Betrayal" deals with the interlocking love lives of three special friends: Robert (Ben Kingsley, of "Ghandi" fame) and Emma (Patricia Hodge) who are husband and wife; and Jerry (Jeremy Irons) who was Robert's best man as well as his best friend since college days.

Tickets for "Betrayal" are $3 and can be purchased at the door of Kresge Auditorium. For more information, call 452-5200.

'Off' Still On

Tickets for the McCarter Theater bus trip to New York to see the May 2 evening performance of the Broadway comedy "Noises Off" are still available. For more information on the benefit trip, call 452-6122.

MUSIC

PIANIST SCHEDULED

In McCarter Series. Pianist Horacio Gutierrez, winner of the 1982 Avery Fisher Prize, will present his first Princeton recital on the Music-at-McCarter series on Wednesday, May 2, at 8 p.m. Stage seats are still available from the McCarter Box Office.

The major work on Mr. Gutierrez' program will be Beethoven's Sonata No. 29 in B-flat, Op. 106, the "Hammerklavier." He will also perform Haydn's Sonata in C, the Schumann Fantasy in C, Op. 17, and Liszt's "Mephisto Waltz."

Mr. Gutierrez made his professional debut in 1970 with Zubin Mehta and the Los Angeles Philharmonic, soon after his Silver Medal victory in the Moscow Tchaikovsky Competition. In the ensuing 13 seasons, his artistry has been compared to that of such giants of the keyboard as Rubinstein, Horowitz, Serkin, Gilels, and Arrau.

Stage seats are $11 and may be purchased at the McCarter Theatre Box Office or by calling 452-5200. Visa, Mastercard and American Express are welcome.

SOPRANO TO SING

At Choir College. Soprano Laura Sanders will give a voice recital on Sunday at 7 in Bristol Chapel at Westminster Choir College.

She will perform a varied program of music including works by Corey Field, a young American composer now living and teaching in England. The program will also include pieces by Vivaldi, Wolf and Donizetti. Pianist Jill Simons will accompany the performance.

The recital is part of Westminster's year-round music series which features free concerts and recitals by students, faculty and visiting artists. For information call 921-3202.

For more information, call the Westminster Conservatory office at 921-7104 or 924-6359.

CHORAL CONCERT SET

By Freshman Singers. The Princeton University Freshman Singers under the direction of William Trego will present a concert Tuesday at 8:30 in the Princeton University Chapel.

The program will begin with Duruflé's "Choral and Variations" on the chant Veni Creator. Nancianne Parrella will be the organist, with men from the Singers performing the chant from the balcony. The program will continue from the balcony as the Singers sing three motets: Verbum Caro Factum est by Hassler; Why Art Thou So Heavy, O My Soul by Gibbons; and Randall Thompson's Alleluia.

Freshman Lee Garth and Ms. Parella will present a sinfonia by Torelli for trumpet and organ. The Singers will then complete the program from the front of the Chapel with five motets: Ubi Caritas by Duruflé; Locus iste by Bruckner; Ach arme Welt by Brahms; Herr, nun Lassest by Mendelssohn; and Os Justi by Bruckner.

Admission will not be charged but donations will be accepted.

PERFORMANCE PLANNED

By Collegium. As part of the Trinity-All Saints' Concert Series, the Collegium Musicum will give a concert on Sunday, April 29 at 8 at All Saints' Church.

The works to be performed will be Concerto for Harpsichord in A Major by Bach with Hedi Salanki, soloist; Concerto for Oboe and Strings in C Major by Domenico [illegible] soloist; Brandenburg Concerto No. 5 in D Major by Bach, with soloists Dorothy Kovacs, flute, Joseph Kovacs, violin and Hedi Salanki, harpsichord. The second part of the program will consist of Barcarolle and March for Flute and Strings by Olga Corelli with Dorothy Kovacs, soloist and Septet Op. 20 by Beethoven.

Of special interest for this program is guest soloist Hedi Salanki who is in the graduate department of the Mason Gross School of the Arts at Rutgers University. She is on leave from the staff of the Hungarian State Radio and Television where she is a performer and program coordinator. She studied at the Bela Bartok Conservatory and the Franz Liszt School of Music in Budapest.

Funding for this program has been made possible by a grant from the New Jesey State Council on the Arts and the Mercer County Cultural and Heritage Commission. All Saints' Church is located on All Saints' Road just off of Terhune-Van Dyke Roads.

For further information, call 924-2277.

'BARBER OF SEVILLE'

In Trenton. The Trenton Civic Opera Company will present Rossini's comic opera, The Barber of Seville in English Sunday, April 29, at 5 at the War Memorial Auditorium in Trenton.

Rosina will be sung by coloratura soprano Lea Landolfi, who has appeared as Gilda in Rigoletto with the TCO Co. Count Almaviva will be sung by David Kellett, tenor from Succasunna, N.J., who has sung leading roles in Cosi Fan Tutte, HMS Pinafore, The Mikado, Naughty Marietta and others. Figaro will be performed by Albert Tucher,

Hei-Ock Kim

Erika Van Wyke, mezzo-soprano, will sing Berta, the housekeeper Ms. Van Wyke has sung with the Des Moines Summer Festival of Opera, the Indianapolis Opera Company and the Minnesota Opera Company, among others. Dr. Bartolo will be played by James Stieber, bass, who has performed buffo roles in Don Pasquale, La Serva Padrona and The Barber of Seville. Byron Steele, artistic director of TCO, will conduct, and Gerald E. Guarnieri will design sets and lighting.

Tickets at $5, $7.50, $10 and $12.50 may be obtained by writing Trenton Civic Opera, 2685 Princeton Pike, Trenton 08648, or by calling 392-2433.

FUND RAISER SET

By Westminster Conservatory. Ticket sales and major promotion efforts will begin for the newly founded Westminster Conservatory Scholarship Fund on Monday.

Efforts will culminate on Saturday, June 2, with the "Spring Musicale," a performance and reception to be given by members of the Westminster Conservatory faculty. Money that is raised through ticket sales and contributions will be used to benefit Conservatory students with financial need, and to recognize students who show particular musical promise and progress.

The "Spring Musicale" will be held in Bristol Chapel, and will feature a variety of in-[illegible] students, or contributions may be made in the category of Friend, $25-$49, Sponsor, $50-$99, or Benefactor, $100-$500. Contributors will receive reserved seating tickets and their names will be printed on the program.

For further information call the Westminster Conservatory Office at 921-7104 or 924-6359.

PIANIST TO PLAY

At the Day School. Hei-Ock Kim, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nae-sup Kim of Lawrenceville, and a junior at Princeton Day School, will give a piano recital in the Herbert McAneny Theater at Princeton Day School on Friday, April 27, at 8 p.m.

Miss Kim most recently performed as a soloist with the New Jersey Symphony Orchestra at John Harms Englewood Plaza, the Monmouth Arts Center, and Newark Symphony Hall, with Gilbert Levine conducting. In January, she performed as a soloist with The Juilliard School Pre-College Orchestra at the Juilliard Theater, Ronald Braunstein conducting, and in October, 1982, Minneapolis Orchestra at the Academy of Music.

Since then, Miss Kim has given numerous recitals and performances including "State of the Arts" for the New Jersey Television Network, and for radio station WQXR in New York. She began her piano studies at the age of three, and in 1977 received a scholarship upon admittance to the Juilliard School, Pre-College Division. The recipient of many awards, Miss Kim in 1983 won first prize in the New Jersey Symphony Orchestra Young Artists Competition, first prize in the Anna B. Stokes and the Mary Gindhart Piano Competitions in New Jersey, and finals of the Concerto Soloists Young Artists Auditions in Philadelphia, and first place in the Juilliard School Pre-College Competition.

The public is invited and, in lieu of an admission fee, donations to benefit the PDS Scholarship Fund will be accepted at the door.

PIANIST TO PLAY

In Ewing. Lois Shaffer, pianist, will perform a concert of works by Bach, Brahms and Chopin on Saturday, April 28, at 8 p.m. at the Jewish Community Center, 999 Lower Ferry Road, Trenton.

This concert will be the final in the 20th Anniversary Celebration of the JCC Concert Series. The series, which has been coordinated by Ms. Shaffer, has been awarded a grant by the Mercer County Cultural and Heritage Commission and the N.J. Council on the Arts.

Although this grant has helped to make these concerts a reality, funds are needed to purchase a piano for the use of visiting artists. Therefore, this concert is being given as a benefit, to celebrate the close of the 20th season and to raise money for the piano fund.

The admission of $10 is tax deductible, as are any contributions made to this fund. The concert will be followed by a reception for the audience and for the artists. For further information call 883-9550.

Auditions for 'Figaro'

The June Opera Festival will hold auditions this week for chorus members for its new production of Mozart's The Marriage of Figaro, sung in English.

Auditions will be held Thursday and Friday from [illegible] campus and from 2 to 5 on Saturday. Singers should bring a prepared piece; an accompanist will be provided.

Performances will take place June 15, 17, 22, 24, 27 and 30 at the Kirby Arts Center at the Lawrenceville School. Rehearsals will be held once or twice a week, starting the week of May 15.

Call the June Opera Festival at 683-1738 during office hours to make an appointment for an audition.

48 PUPPETS 48

In "The Hobbit," Bilbo Baggins, the cheerful Hobbit, drafted by the magician Gandalf to help recover the treasure stolen by the evil dragon, will live once again as the Theatre Sans Fil (Theatre Without Strings) presents J.R.R. Tolkien's "The Hobbit" Thursday at 8 p.m., Trenton State College.

It's a puppet show, with 48 puppets ranging from four to 12 feet tall, danced about the stage by invisible puppeteers. Theatre Sans Fil is a group from Quebec.

Tickets, at $6, may be purchased at the door. Details from 771-2700.

CHAMPIONSHIP SEASON

Trenton Theatre Guild. The spring production for the Trenton Theatre Guild will be Jason Miller's "That Championship Season," previewing this Thursday and booked through April 28. Curtain-time is 8, and there will be a matinee at 3 on Saturday, April 28. The play will be given at the Mill Hill Playhouse, Front and Montgomery Streets, Trenton.

In the cast are Tom Causey, David Macky, Alan Rowe, Bob Watson and Churchill Clark, all under the direction of Lila Howley. Producers are Minerva Davenport and Diane E. Dixon.

The play unfolds the story of four high-school basketball stars and the man who was both father and coach to them all. It evokes the memories and emotions of a reunion held 20 years after their last game.

Reservations may be made by calling Mill Hill at 989-3038.

EASTER TREATS

All Over Town. Enchanting baskets, delicious candies and gourmet delicacies, decorations to celebrate spring and Easter Sunday are seen all over town this week. The Country Mouse on Nassau Street has prepared wonderful baskets from $5 to $15. Bunnies, small games, wind-up toys and candies will delight the heart of a Princeton youngster. A special gift might be the Teddy Bear Picnic music boxes.

At Bon Appetit. Traditions gleaned from the "old world" are always found at Bon Appetit, owned by Carl Andersen and his wife, both with European backgrounds. Delicious treats from several different European countries and Great Britain tastefully displayed in the gourmet food shop will make wonderful "fixings" for Easter baskets.

The Andersens have increased their inventory of imported baskets this year so do not miss a chance to use them this weekend and enjoy them all year. No need for an Easter baseket to hide in the closet all year! The selection is as varied as the wonderful imported sweets to put in them. Chinese, Spanish, and Peruvian baskets of all sizes and shapes will catch the shopper's eye. A basket full of Easter goodies does not have to be expensive to be a thoughtful gift. Consider a tiny one filled with just a few foil-wrapped eggs from Germany as a token of appreciation or affection.

What devotee of chocolate would not delight in a beautifully wrapped Perugina chocolate egg this Sunday? The Italians have a special knack of presenting such holiday gifts, according to Mr. Andersen, who takes pride in his fine inventory of imported candies, cookies, cheeses, sausages, cold cuts and other specialty foods.

Tiny Perugina chocolate eggs in ceramic egg cups, German eggs filled with nougat, rum, and other liqueur flavors, fine quality chocolates in the shapes of rabbits, ducks, and chicks, and tasty Italian Easter cake, also by Perugina, baked in the shape of an Easter dove, and tiny Easter marzipans are among the selections.

Fresh Sevruga and Beluga caviar, Scottish smoked salmon, fresh imported pate de foie gras (and a dozen other varieties) are generous gifts. What would Easter be without a ham? Smoked cured hams and sausage for that extra special brunch are all available at Bon Appetit.

The owners' favorite gifts are their exclusive Neuhaus Belgian chocolates at $8.95 a half pound. The succulent chocolates are flown from Europe each week.

Easter eggs in colorful wrappings and many different flavors will be a perfect ending to Easter dinner. The shop has a huge assortment of other imported boxed chocolates.

At the Country Florist. Bunnies, chickens and colorful eggs will be hiding in lovely baskets full of fresh spring flowers from the Country Florist in Hopewell. The shop, which will move on April 30th to 21 East Broad Street, has a variety of whimsical crafts to offer shoppers. Wooden bunnies, chickens for the yard, stuffed chicks for youngsters, and ceramic Easter figures will make pleasing gifts.

A special Easter arrangement will be prepared at the customer's request for $15. Corsages to wear to church and other festive occasions are also available at $10.

Alstromerias, tulips, iris, daffodils, lilies, snapdragons, and delphiniums in baskets or pots can be delivered for gifts. The Country Florist will be happy to make up any arrangement to celebrate spring and new beginnings.

Gail's Gifts, in Pennington, always has a unique selection of ornaments and decorative items for the home in keeping with each season. The shop has a special appreciation and flare for choosing distinctive gifts for her customers — young and old alike.

All ages enjoy the traditional stories of Beatrix Potter. Wind-up Peter Rabbits, Jemima Puddleducks, and Mrs. Rabbit holding her babies are winsome reminders of those famous tales. Bunnykins, Mr. and Mrs. Easter Bunny (complete with Easter bonnet and eggs) and other Beatrix Potter figures made by Royal Doulton are timeless gifts to treasure all year.

Lead crystal ducks, rabbits, and chicks by Swarovski are handsome Easter thoughts too.

Mrs. Kuser has chosen a host of cheerful Dakin plush animals and puppets for the Easter season. Youngsters, even teenagers, enjoy a new plush animal stuffed in their Easter baskets. One Princeton mother recently remarked that her freshman daughter will return home from her Ivy League school this weekend just so she can have another Easter basket!

Porch and patio entertaining items, paper party goods, plastic cups and trays, hand-painted with flowers are specialties at Gail's Gifts. Decorative ceramic pieces, tureens and planters made exclusively for the shop make wonderful gifts.

If you are looking for a panoramic egg or tiny imported German egg tree ornaments in many shapes to mark the season, take a trip out to Pennington and visit the shop.

IMPORTED EGGS: A tempting selection of imported chocolate eggs from Belgium, Germany and Italy are handsomely displayed by the owner of Bon Appetit, Mrs. Carl Andersen.

La Cuisine Delicacies. Adults like to receive Easter baskets too. The excellent gourmet food shops in Princeton provide delicious opportunities for gifts to eat which look beautiful and encourage easy entertaining.

La Cuisine has an ample selection of hors d'oeuvre, a menu of take-out orders which are made on the same day if possible. It includes a kilo of rich imported French brie wrapped in brioche dough, glazed and ready to bake; tiny fruit and cheese; marinated chicken, or shrimp kabobs; cucumber cups with red caviar, cream cheese and scallions; stuffed eggs with salmon and dill; snow pea pod boats stuffed with curried veggies and shrimp; savory cheese cakes (salmon and dill, Stilton and Roquefort, and pecan and onion) to mention a few. Pick up an assortment of these for a festive holiday gathering.

Cream of asparagus, broccoli nicoise salad, celeri remoulade, or pecan asparagus salad are tempting beginnings or additions to an Easter brunch. La Cuisine's own Portuguese Easter breads studded with eggs serve six to eight people for $7.50.

Scrumptious desserts are a specialty of Roberta Churchill, owner of La Cuisine, who is busy making final preparations for her new restaurant opening in the Princeton shopping center. In her words, it will offer "intimate and sophisticated dining indoors and outside in the garden." Fresh seasonal food, traditional and international and new American cuisine will be the fare Princetonians can look forward to. It will be open in the afternoons for tea, espresso, and cap-

NATURE MIRRORED

In Chinese Paintings. Looking at Chinese paintings is always a demanding experience. In return, there are impressive rewards. Ranging from the incredibly complex to the amazingly simple, Chinese art is characterized by mannered expression and the application of traditional forms and techniques that have been in use for centuries — a means of expression that often employs the specific to describe the universal.

In his introduction to the catalogue for the exhibit "Images of the Mind," a distinguished collection of Chinese painting now on display at the Princeton University Art Museum, Professor Wen Fong notes that for the Chinese, the primary art objective has been the apprehension of the principles of nature through graphic means. He goes on to explain that, traditionally, successful painting was meant to not only mirror but to complete nature's creation.

WORLD CLASS COLLECTION: The Chinese paintings on display at the Princeton University Art Museum are considered to form one of the first collections in the world and one of the few that focuses on the relationship between Chinese calligraphy and painting.

The display for which the catalogue was written supports Dr. Fong's statements in an impressive manner. Hanging scrolls, hand scrolls, folding fans and album leaves — including some that date as far back as the 11th century — exquisitely capture timeless subjects; nature forms such as birds and butterflies, ancient trees, mountains and rivers.

The 70 masterpieces that occupy most of the museum's lower galleries, selections from the Edward L. Elliot and John B. Elliot Collection of Chinese Calligraphy, are considered to be among the finest examples of Chinese art in the world. What is more, according to Professor Fong, this collection is one of the very few that focuses on the relationship between calligraphy and painting in Chinese art and thus it is one of the most significant collections in existence. In an interview he stated that, "too little attention has been given to the role of calligraphy in Chinese art," pointing out, however, that this collection goes a long way toward filling in many of the scholarly gaps.

It is not necessary to be a scholar, however, to appreciate this display. The aesthetic effect of the calligraphy and the universal nature of the art are both easy to see and even easier to enjoy. There is some form of ideogram (Chinese writing) used in combination with every pictorial image.

In many cases, the writing carries as much artistic weight as the painting; in others it provides an effective visual counterpoint. In addition, calligraphy — the use of the brush to create eloquent, modulated linear effects that range from the finest line to strong, clearly defined statements in solid black — plays a major role in the structure of the images.

Entire forests are created using tiny, eloquent brush strokes. Intricate lines are often repeated to create volumes of pattern. In some cases, an astounding amount of information is expressed through the use of only a few lines. And, in many cases, the combination of image and calligraphy seems to capture the essense of a quintessential landscape or, perhaps, the ultimate nature study.

At Western Electric. "The Best of Natalie Best," a collection of 60 paintings — mostly in watercolor — offers traditional subjects in an equally traditional mode. Landscapes and seascapes, beach scenes and piney woods, still life and flowers are all rendered using a naturalistic palette.

Four at Full House. The work of four well-known artists from New York offers a varied picture of what's happening today in that city. Irma Holland's paintings, impressively balanced architectonic works that use light as an effective tool, combine the literal image with a strong sense of creative originality.

Po Kim also uses carefully detailed realism to make a personal and individualistic statement. Pastel studies of fruit employ repeated forms and expressively developed settings in a manner that often creates high visual drama out of understated spatial relationships.

Three-dimensional work by Dorothy Gillespie and Sylvia Wald dispenses with the familiar. Wald's sculpture and hangings, imaginative combinations of mesh, feathers, fiber and other substances — often enhanced by the use of paint — offer attractively varied spaces and surfaces characterized by thoughtful structural balances and concepts.

Gillespie's brightly colored enameled metal "gardens" cheerfully interact with their own negative spaces. These essentially whimsical works, often designed to be viewed either singly or in combination, nicely demonstrate that serious contemporary forms can be decorative, too.

The Princeton Chapter of Sigma Xi, the scientific research society, will meet this Wednesday at 8 at the Engineering Quadrangle, room C-207, on the Princeton University campus.

Dr. Stuart Fleming, scientific director of the Museum of Applied Science Center for Archaeology at the University of Pennsylvania, will speak on "Art Forgery: Scientific Defenses." The talk is open to the public and is geared to a general audience rather than to specialists.

Singles Fellowship Programs will take an all-day trip to Longwood Gardens on Saturday to see the Easter display. Singles Fellowship will also sponsor an Easter Sunday singles dinner on Sunday.

Reservations are required for both events, and must be made by this Wednesday. Call 452-0252.

Moving On, a support group for the recently separated or divorced person, will meet Tuesday at 7:30 at Nassau Presbyterian Church, Palmer Square.

The Princeton Chapters of ACM and IEEE will meet Thursday at 8 at the Princeton University Engineering Quadrangle, room C-206. "Computer Assisted Crime: How, Why, and Where" will be presented by Ned Bulmash.

The Music Department of the Woman's Club will present its Spring Musical Tuesday at 10:30 a.m. at "Sunny Acres Farmhouse," Scotch Road, Pennington. Mrs. Olga Gorelli is the hostess.

Soprano Selma Ehrlich of Yardley, Pa., mezzo-soprano Nora Sirbaugh of Trenton, Carol Hamersoma of Trenton, and Jonathan Klizas of Morristown, classical guitarist, will perform compositions for voice and instruments by Mrs. Gorelli. A social hour will follow.

Mrs. Ernest A. Tyrolf Jr. is chair of the Music Department, assisted by Mrs. Arthur T. Fenton, Mrs. George W. Soete, Mrs. Joseph J. Liedtke and Mrs. William F. Neff.

A reception with Chinese music and refreshments will be held on Sunday from 5 to 7 p.m. The exhibition has been arranged by Susan Hockaday and is sponsored by the Woodrow Wilson School, the Program in East Asian Studies, the International Center and the Princeton Art Association. It is the result of a trip made last May and June by Ms. Hockaday.

In 1980 Ms. Hockaday gave a series of slide talks on "Contemporary Art in New York City" at schools and institutes in Shanghai, Nanjing and Beijing. In preparation she interviewed and photographed 12 Soho artists in their studios and collected hundreds of picture postcards from New York galleries to give away in China. The lecture was given to more than 500 artists and teachers and formed the basis for conversations about artist's concerns in China and the U.S.

In addition to official visits, Ms. Hockaday talked privately with a number of Shanghai painters in their homes. The artists Ms. Hockaday visited work in more radical (abstract) ways than the government permits, and are therefore isolated and unable to exhibit their paintings. They were eager to have materials about Western painting and contact with Western artists, she says, and to exhibit their work here.

Ms. Hockaday agreed to bring out some examples of their paintings and these form the basis of the current exhibition. She will give a lecture, "Contemporary Art in China: A Visitor's View," Monday at 4:30 at the Woodrow Wilson School, room 8.

EXHIBITS

"Recent Works by George Greene" will open at the New Jersey State Museum, Saturday, April 28, and continue through June 10. Mr. Greene, a pioneer in the use of plastics as an art medium, taught at Lawrenceville School for 18 years. He also taught at Phillips Exeter Academy in New Hampshire, the Positano Workshop in Italy, the Princeton Art Association and the Hun School in Princeton.

Mr. Greene's career spans more than 40 years. During that time he has had 26 one-person shows along the east coast. His work is represented in numerous private collections and the collections of the Cleveland Museum of Art, the Guggenheim Museum, Yale University Art Gallery and Guild Hall in East Hampton. The State Museum is open Tuesday through Saturday from 9 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. and Sundays from 1 to 5 p.m. It is closed Mondays and state holidays.

At the Town Shop. Beautiful Herend ducks seen in the window of the Town Shop would make elegant Easter gifts this Sunday. A host of cunning rabbits, one peeking out of a cabbage; tureens, such as one with a white lamb on top, and a handsome oblong narrow ceramic tray painted with a family of ducks, suitable for hors d'ouevre or bread, are among the festive holiday choices.

Fleecy, soft lambs and bunnies for tiny tots can be found here along with many attractive decorative items for the home. The bridal season will soon be upon us and the Town Shop is ready with a number of beautiful gifts of china and crystal.

Fine Candy at Polly's. Polly's own chocolate eggs in a variety of delicious flavors, peanut butter, mint, marshmallow, caramel and strawberry creams, will make a splendid present at $7.20 a pound. The shop in Palmer Square is filled with Easter treats. Mexican pinatas and baskets in the shapes of ducks lend a festive air for shoppers looking for those special gifts of candy.

Godiva chocolates abound at Polly's. This year the famous company has made beautiful chocolate eggs filled with still more chocolate for $25. Tiny eggs and chicks in baskets of chocolate are $16 and $75. Other goodies include: colorful jelly bellies and beans; lollipops in the shapes of rabbits and chickens; German marzipan; and a dozen of filled chocolate eggs.

The Country Petaler. Jerrie Lodato, owner of the Country Petaler in Kingston, and her sister make their own chocolates to sell for special holidays such as Easter. Chocolate "funny bunnies," hens, rabbits, lambs, and even a cross of white chocolate, are delicious additions to the table this weekend.

The shop will feature a mixed bouquet of spring flowers for only $4.95 this weekend to celebrate Easter. Healthy plants, azaleas, hydrangeas, lilies, gloxinias, primroses, and a wide variety of African violets fill the small shop, which also features some interesting small crafts. Lovely white silk flowers are on sale at 50 percent off this week.

TIGER TEAMS TRAVEL

Road Trips Ahead. With the exception of the baseball team, which is scheduled to face Navy Saturday in a Clarke Field double header beginning at 1 p.m., and the lightweight crew, rowing against Penn Saturday afternoon on Carnegie Lake, Princeton's spring sports teams will be on the road this weekend. And with the exception of the heavyweight crew and the track team, all of them will be hoping to reverse declining fortunes.

The heavies won a difficult race last Saturday on the Schuylkill River in Philadelphia, defeating Penn by one second in the Childs Cup. Coach Larry Gluckman's crew will face Harvard and MIT this Saturday on the Charles River in Cambridge.

The lightweight crew, meanwhile, was surprised by Rutgers on Carnegie. The Scarlet Knights whipped the Tigers by more than four seconds; Cornell finished a distant third.

The track team, meanwhile, prepared for this weekend's Rutgers Relays by handily defeating Yale at Palmer Stadium, 99-50. Princeton received a winning performance in the 100 meters from freshman Steve Morgan, who had been injured, and a second place finish in the 400 meters from sophomore Nse Akang, also overcoming injuries.

Other individual winners for the Orange and Black included Jim Anderson in the 200 meters, Mike Davila (800 meters), Jack Fonss (1,500), Glenn Wortmann (3,000), Gordon Christie (5,000), Doug Willen (400 meter hurdles), Pete Corsi (hammer), Geoff Seay (shot), Bob Igoe (long jump), and Scott Garman (triple jump).

Lacrosse Falters. After consecutive losses to Penn, 10-3, and Brown, 16-7, Princeton's lacrosse team will travel to Harvard Saturday, hoping to improve its 2-5 overall record.

The Tigers outshot Penn, 26-23, but managed to get off only 10 shots on goal against the tenacious zone defense of the Quakers. Bill Donahue and John Donovan scored two goals apiece for Princeton against Brown, but the Tigers' luck ran more the way of co-captain David Chang, who richocheted three shots off the enemy goalposts.

The Princeton tennis team, which boasts a nationally ranked player in Ted Farnsworth but which apparently drops off quickly in talent after him, travels to Columbia and Pennsylvania this Friday and Saturday. Farnsworth won both his matches last weekend against Clemson and Trinity, but his team lost, 8-1 and 6-3.

Princeton's baseball team lost one game to darkness last week, an 11-inning, 2-2 tie with Villanova; one game to Dartmouth, 9-5, despite home runs by Dan Arendas and Drew Stratton; and three games to the rain, the nightcap with the Indians and a doubleheader with Harvard. The Cantabs will be rescheduled only if the games could affect the league standings.

The Villanova game was a nightmare for the Orange and Black. The Tigers had 10 hits but stranded 20 runners. Freshman Art Peponis allowed three hits and no runs in the first five innings but lost the shutout on two errors in the sixth. Scott LaForest allowed only two hits in the final five innings.

Princeton's Stratton, another one of Coach Tom O'Connell's hot freshman prospects, opened the 11th inning with a drive off the center field wall. O'Connell, no doubt influenced by his team's failure to drive in runs, waved Stratton on toward third. He was nailed for an out.

After facing Navy Saturday, the Tigers will travel to Rutgers Monday and then host Rider next Wednesday at 3 p.m.

Of all the managers in big league baseball history, who won the most pennants? ... Two men are tied for that record — Casey Stengel and John McGraw ... Stengel won 10 pennants with the Yankees and McGraw won 10 with the Giants, and no other manager has ever won that many.

Ever wonder why bullpens in baseball parks got that name? ... In the early days of baseball, the Bull Durham Tobacco Co. put up advertising signs in many ballparks around the country ... The signs had a big picture of a bull on them ... Many of those signs were located in the area where relief pitchers warmed up ... That area began to be called the "bullpen" — and it's been that ever since.

Here's an amazing oddity from baseball ... As unusual as no-hit games are, there were once — incredibly — FOUR different no-hitters in ONE WEEK in major league baseball! ... It happened the first week of May in 1917 ... There were two no-hitters on May 2, one on May 5, and another one on May 6 that year!

West Windsor to Thursday's key matchup with Notre Dame.

Notre Dame, 23-6 last year, the Parochial A state champions and co-champions (with Ewing) of the Colonial Valley Conference crown have been picked as the team to beat this year for league honors. The Irish are currently 5-0-1 after defeating Ewing, 3-2, in their last start in a dramatic three-run, two-out rally in the last inning.

Moreover, this game marks the start of the contests that count in the league standings this year. By any yardstick, the PHS-ND game is an important one. It will be played at Princeton's home diamond at the Valley Road School, starting at 3:45.

Tuesday, the Little Tigers will be at Hightstown for another league contest.

Beacham's concern about looking past West Windsor never materialized; the game was cancelled, Beacham reported, at the request of West Windsor and will be rescheduled some time next week.

But aren't the Little Tigers with their 3-2 record, including two wins in their last two starts against Hun and Joining in Princeton's 11-hit Hopewell Valley, excessively confident in saying, "Bring on Notre Dame?"

Maybe. Maybe not. Beacham has some interesting figures to back up his team's confidence. As a team, the Little Tigers are currently batting .333. "That's not too bad," observed Beacham. "It's not just two or three kids who are hitting but five or six who are hitting consistently," he added.

Then there is pitching which plays such a large part in any team's success in high school ball. In five games so far, PHS has received four complete games — three from Gavin Hulsman, who has a 2-1 record and one from Dino D'Angelo. The lone time a starter failed was when D'Angelo had to be relieved in the last two innings by Jim Opperman in Thursday's 11-6 win over Hopewell, but PHS already had a lock on the outcome, jumping to a 7-1 lead after three innings. So while the pitching hasn't been airtight — Hun, for example, collected 12 off Huleman in Princeton's 6-3 victory over the Raiders on Saturday — it has done the job.

Attitude Right. "We're off to a much better start than last year," stated Beacham. "Not only in wins and losses but a better start attitude-wise. The kids go out there knowing we can win.

"They know the pitching is coming through. They know they've been hitting the ball. Their whole attitude is we can win — it doesn't mean you're going to win — but it's nice to have that kind of confidence."

Against Hun Saturday, PHS broke open a 3-3 tie in the sixth when it scored three runs en route to its 6-3 win. Third baseman Mike O'Connor's two-run double was the key hit in the rally which also featured five stolen bases by the Little Tigers.

Hulsman helped his own cause with three hits in three at-bats, while second baseman Mickey Carnevale contributed a double to Princeton's 10-hit attack off losing pitcher Ted Bransfield. Shortstop D'Angelo had two hits as did O'Connor.

As for fielding, it reflected the dreary weather conditions. Princeton was guilty of five errors, Hun three. "When a player picked up a ball, you never knew where it was going. It was that kind of day," said Beacham.

---

5 RBIs for Petrone. Mike Petrone, filling in for D'Angelo at short while the latter was on the mound, wielded a big bat against Hopewell, driving in five runs with a double and single.

D'Angelo lost his control in the fifth when the Bulldogs reached him for three runs and again in the next inning when Beacham summoned Opperman to the mound.

Opperman stifled the Bulldogs the rest of the way. "He has a sidearm underhand pitch," commented Beacham. "He's not overpowering but he gives the batters a completely different look from anyone else. If he can keep doing that — come in and give us a couple of good innings — we're going to be in good shape."

Beacham also noted that veteran pitcher Jon Sherin was scheduled to rejoin the team, after visiting in California to attend the Academy Awards where his stepmother, Jane Alexander, was a nominee for a best actress award.

Carril Loses Another Assistant; Wayne Szoke to Coach Columbia

Another graduate of the Pete Carril School of Basketball Coaching has been named head coach of a college basketball team. Wayne Szoke, Carril's assistant at Princeton the past two seasons, last week was named to replace the fired Buddy Mahar as coach at Columbia.

Szoke, 43, a former assistant at Rutgers and Dartmouth, joined the Princeton staff when another Carril aide, Tony Relvas, was hired as Colgate's head coach. Relvas had joined the Tigers when Bob Dukiet left Carril to take over as head coach at St. Peter's.

Szoke's spot on the Princeton staff will be filled by Carril's No. 3 man, Bill Carmody, and the Tiger coach is looking for a new man to replace him. The day Szoke's appointment was announced in New York, Carril received more than 30 calls from coaches seeking the assistant's job. The Princeton coach, who at times has called the University admissions office "Heartbreak Hotel," now must sort through the applicants to form a new freshman class at PCS — limited to one, of course.

LET'S TALK ABOUT

PLANTING RHODODENDRONS with Sam DeTuro

Woodwinds Associates

Select the site carefully when planting rhododendrons. An area with high shade is preferred. Plants will grow reasonably well in full sun if soils are high enough in organic matter to retain adequate moisture. Avoid dense shade. Plants tend to get leggy and may not flower as profitically as they should. Avoid south slopes or the south side of a building that is not shaded by trees. Plants in a southern exposure are subject to severe winter injury. The leaves warm up, even on extremely cold days and lose moisture that cannot be replaced because of frozen soils.

Add large quantities of organic matter to the soil. Check the soil as Rhododendrons prefer a pH range between 4.5 to 5.0, but will tolerate pH levels up to 6.0, if the soil contains large quantities of organic matter. Avoid heavy clay soils with a high pH.

Set the plants at the depth they were growing at the nursery. Pruning of young plants is usually not necessary, but you may want to pinch out the terminal or end buds of the new shoots during the early summer to increase branching and control plant height. Save the big fat central buds when they develop. These are the flower buds.

Old rhododendrons that have grown too tall and leggy can be rejuvenated by cutting them back to within six to nine inches of the ground. To determine if your plants will respond, cut back one or two old branches. If growth develops from dormant buds, cut the remaining stems back next spring. Pinch new shoots to promote branching just as you would for a young plant. Maintain a relatively deep mulch and water as necessary to stimulate growth. You may also want to consider liquid fertilization by a professional.

For any of your questions or concerns regarding your prized trees and shrubs, call WOODWINDS (924-3500).

Said Beacham, "Things are dropping into place."

FIRST WIN SAVOURED

In Softball by PHS. "It's nice to get that first one. It's nice to go home with a win," agreed Princeton High softball coach Doug Snyder last week, after PHS had captured its first win of the season, a 15-4 victory over Pennington School.

A 16-0 loser to Hopewell Valley despite eight hits two days earlier and a 21-0 victim the game before that, Snyder was concerned if the runs would ever start coming.

The win was just the boost the Little Tigers needed. "Everyone is really excited and I think it is going to help," said Snyder. "Last year we only won one game late in the season. Now with this win coming in the fourth game, we really have a good shot at winning some more. It will help propel us -- at least for a couple of games."

Monica Greenland belted a two-run homer and drove in three runs, and Annie Heard contributed two hits, including a double and two RBIs to trigger Princeton's 11-hit attack.

Snyder said that he told his batters to wait, after he noticed the Pennington pitcher starting to get wild in the third inning. A number of walks and five Raider errors helped PHS to run up its score.

Tracey Hemmingway, who was charged with the loss against Hopewell, went all the way to get the win against Pennington. Her record is 1-2.

PANTHERS EVEN RECORD

In Lacrosse. A loser in its first two contests, the Princeton Day boys' lacrosse team evened its record at 2-2 last week with a pair of victories on the road over Livingston and Academy of New Church.

However, the Panthers may find themselves below .500 again, after this Wednesday's home game with powerful Lawrenceville is over. The Larries, according to PDS coach Bob Krueger, are one of the stronger teams in the "A" division. After opening with three triumphs, they lost to Montclair, 10-7, last Saturday.

Although PDS expected to have Tom Foster back in the line-up, after he missed the last two games with a sprained ankle, it will be missing Paul van Horn, who is gone for the season with a broken wrist. David Haynes has a broken thumb, but has managed to play.

The Blue and White, which, in Krueger's estimate, did not play well in the 5-2 victory over Livingston last Thursday, looked a little better in the 12-3 rout of ANC Friday. Bill Noonan provided almost all the offense in the Livingston win, scoring four times; Eric Hovanec got the other tally.

PDS never trailed in the game, building a 2-0 lead at halftime, and then scoring twice in the final period, after the home team had pulled to within a goal at 3-2. Goalie Chris McCabe made 13 saves, and also picked up an assist on one of Noonan's goals.

Noonan was also hot the following day, scoring five times, and getting two assists against ANC, as PDS built up a 9-1 lead after two periods. Eric Bylin, Peter Gallup and Rob Tuttle each added two goals and Hovanec added one more. Jack Cook was credited with two assists.

In goal all but the last four minutes, McCabe played well, allowing just one of the three ANC goals and made 12 saves along the way. Krueger also cited Charlie Jacques for his play on defense.

After Lawrenceville, PDS will follow with a road game against Hanover Park on Saturday, and another in Hightstown against Peddie next Wednesday.

PDS LOSES THREE

In Baseball. The Princeton Day baseball team might have preferred rainouts instead of what it accomplished last week on the diamond. Already 0-1 with an 8-5 loss to Blair, the Panthers lost three contests in four days, and could not score a run in the the final two.

The week began in somewhat positive fashion, as the Panthers lost by only one run, 5-4, to Lawrenceville last Wednesday. But, it was all downhill from there. Ewing blanked the Blue and White, 17-0, on Friday, and the following morning, it had still not found its offense, losing to Hun, 8-0.

Hun got all the runs it needed in the first inning, scoring three off starter and loser, freshman, Matt Lustig. It added three more in the second and single tallies in later innings. The highlight of the five-hit Panther attack was a double by Jason Quick.

No Match for Ewing. That was five more hits than Princeton Day got the previous day. Its batters were no match for Ewing pitcher Bill Wentzel, who just missed hurling a perfect seven inning game against them.

Only a walk to one Panther batter in the final inning spoiled his bid for perfection. Meanwhile Princeton Day's pitching and fielding was far short of perfect.

The Blue Devils scored six runs in the first inning, and added 11 more thereafter for their total of 17, knocking out 17 hits in the process. They hardly needed any more help, but got it anyway in the form of five PDS errors.

The one-sided result was not expected, considering that the Blue and White lost by only one run to Lawrenceville. Unbeaten in its first three contests, Lawrenceville needed a run in the bottom of the sixth to squeeze out a victory.

Unfortunately it was something of a gift, scoring on a wild pitch by PDS's Scott Roberts, who had gone the whole way for PDS, getting out of several tough situations along the way. PDS got its first two men on base in the top of the seventh, but could not bring either one around. The game ended with Andy Bing thrown out trying to steal third.

Now saddled with four losses, the Panthers will be looking for their first victory this Wednesday against Pennington on the road. A home game with George is set for Thursday.

FAST START MADE

By PDS Girls' Lacrosse. It didn't take Kim Bedesem long to get her Princeton Day girls' lacrosse team off and running in the right direction.

Returning from a maternity leave, which forced her to miss last season, Bedesem returned for her sixth season as coach this spring, and the Panthers have responded by winning their first three contests.

A 14-3 victory over a mediocre Peddie team early last week was followed by a pair of significant triumphs in Connecticut over the weekend. The Blue and White knocked off two of the toughest teams in the state, according to Bedesem, beating Greenwich, 7-4, on Friday, and dominating Taft, 15-7, in a driving rain on Saturday.

"I'm proud of the way we have started," Bedesem commented. We have no outstanding individual stars this year; it's been a team effort.

"I wasn't sure we would be able to score, but Karen Callaway is the key to our offense—when we need a score she comes through."

Another who "came through" was senior goalie Hillery Thomas, who played two superb games. "She was the key to our success," Bedesem said. "She played out of her mind in both games."

Thomas made 21 saves against Greenwich and 24 against Taft, often stopping shots that looked like sure goals. Her play enabled PDS to lead all the way in each contest.

Two goals by Callaway and one by Birgit Enstrom allowed PDS to take a 3-1 lead at halftime against Greenwich. Twice in the second half the home team pulled to within one, but the Panthers answered each time with a goal of their own. Callaway had four in all, Enstrom, two and Lynne Faden, one.

Against Taft, Princeton Day jumped out to an 8-1 lead in the first half, thanks to Thomas' strong performance in goal. Enstrom led the attack with five goals, Callaway added three, Faden, Myra Birmingham and Melinda Bowen, two each, and Meredith Eppel, one.

After a game against Stuart, scheduled to be played this past Tuesday, PDS will meet George on Wednesday, and then take a week off before meeting Princeton High next Wednesday.

School girls lacrosse team defeated Cherry Hill East, 11-1, Saturday in a game played at the Princeton University field. The victory, coupled with a 7-3 loss to Montville earlier in the week, left coach Joyce Jones' Little Tigers with a 2-1 record.

Next, the Little Tigers, one of the top-ranked teams in the state, will entertain Montclair on Thursday at 4.

On Wednesday, the 25th, two days after the team returns to classes after the Easter recess, PHS will tangle with rival Princeton Day School at the PDS field.

Against Cherry Hill, Lockwood received scoring support from teammate Erika Gabrielsen, who scored three goals (she had four in the opener with Columbia) and three from Alison Fraker who contributed two tallies. Veteran Pam Jennings and Sue Lofgren also scored for the victors.

Standouts on the Little Tiger defense, which limited Cherry Hill to one goal, were Cassie Vogt, Nadia Glucksberg, Myla Causing and junior goalie and captain of the team, Liz O'Donoghue.

Montville Remembers. Earlier, Montville handed visiting PHS its first loss with a 7-3 victory. Last year, Montville, boasting a 17-0 record, had been knocked out of the state competition in the semi-final round by PHS.

"They were waiting for us," agreed Jennings, one of the players who helped PHS engineer its upset last year. The two teams will meet again later this month.

Lockwood, third home for PHS, scored two of Princeton's three goals (she has scored in all three games) while Lofgren added a second-half goal.

PHS LAXMEN BRACED For Meeting With Montclair. Winless after its first three contests, the prospects of the Princeton High school boys lacrosse team winning its first game this week are slim. Very slim.

The Little Tigers must face Montclair on Saturday at 1:30 at Montclair on Saturday at 1:30 in a battle between two of the top teams in the state, Montclair held off Lawrenceville School to post a 10-7 win.

Comparison scores are often misleading and don't mean anything. But to help understand the magnitude of the challenge waiting the Little Tigers in Montclair Thursday consider this score in Princeton's previous game: Lawrenceville 17, PHS 2.

Clifton socred four goals in the first half against PHS and added five more in the second while holding PHS to one and two goals in the same periods.

Mark Wertz with four goals and Rick Bagoli with three were the big scorers for Clifton, which won its first game of the season against two setbacks. Keith Green, Troy Norris and Sam Chambers each scored for PHS.

For the game, PHS coach Pete Larsen brought up freshman Dan Brandt from the jayvee squad to play goalie. Brandt was credited with nine saves.

Lawrenceville ripped through the Little Tigers for five first-period goals and added six more in the second to take a commanding lead. Peter Smith, a Princeton resident, led the Larries' attack with six goals.

Both Princeton goals by Chris Carrington and sophomore Jim Jones came in the second period. Freshman Rob Lester had 13 saves in goal for PHS.

NO.4 AND NO. 5 EASY For PHS Tennis Team. Continuing to run past its opponents with little resistance, the Princeton High School tennis team defeated Trenton and Hopewell Valley last week for its fourth and fifth victories without a loss.

The Little Tigers will oppose two league foes next, hosting Notre Dame Thursday at 3:45 and traveling to Hightstown on Tuesday. PHS is the defending Colonial Valley Conference champion.

Coach Joe Diefenbach inserted a number of reserve players in Friday's match against Trenton but the result was still a 5-0 triumph. In singles play Bruce Ellis defeated Otis Boone, 6-0, 6-1, in the first singles while Rob Dunham and Mike Elliott won easily, 6-1, 6-1, and 6-0, 6-4. Dunham and Elliott usually team for the first doubles for the Little Tigers.

In doubles play, Matthew Mack and Brett VandeBovenkamp triumphed, 6-1, 6-1, and sophomore Deron Elliott and Nick Rudenstine teamed for a 6-2, 6-1 win. It was Trenton's third loss in four matches.

Earlier in the weekend, the Little Tigers, ranked third in the state (behind No. 1 Montclair-Kimberly and Westfield) stopped a former nemesis, Hopewell Valley, 4-1.

Princeton's first singles player, Jacob Leschly, runner-up in the state singles tournament last year, demolished the Bulldogs' top player, John Aris, 6-1, 6-2. Younger brother Mark Leschly blanked Quentin Kelly, 6-0, 6-0, while Ellis shut out Chris Dunham.

"Actually, Aris is a very fine player," commiserated Diefenbach. "It's just that Leschly is such a great player."

Hopewell, which two years ago had wrenched the CVC title from PHS for the first time, gained some satisfaction with a victory in the first doubles – marking the first loss of a set for PHS this season. The Bulldogs' Tim McDougald and Dave Bovenizer defeated Dunham and Elliott, 6-4, 6-4. Mack and VandeBovenkamp won the second doubles, 6-2, 7-6.

For the Bulldogs it was their first loss against two wins.

HUN DROPS PAIR In Lacrosse. Although its record dropped to 0-4 following losses last week to Peddie and Montclair-Kimberly, the Hun lacrosse team is continuing to show signs of improvement. That is the firm opinion of coach Dave Faus.

"Generally, I was impressed with the way we hung in there. I was impressed with their play all the way around," commented Faus after Hun's 9-4 loss Saturday to Peddie.

Hun trailed Peddie, 5-3, at halftime and was in the game the entire time, stated Faus, who noted that Peddie is a Division A team and plays such powers as Montclair and Delbarton.

"We looked better offensively. We were able to pickup on previous mistakes." Scoring leader Chris Goodyear had two goals and Greg Savidge and Chris Natale each contributed one to pace the Hun attack. Lester Robbins had two assists and Brett Dietrich one. Goalie Stephan Babin was credited with 16 saves.

Two days earlier, Hun was blanked, 15-0 by Montclair-Kimberly.

Faus termed the outcome a "complete disaster. That's why the Peddie game is so encouraging."

BUSY WEEK FOR HUN 3 Wins, 2 Losses on Diamond. The Hun School baseball team, which played only one game its first week, played five last week, winning three and losing two to even its overall record at 3-3.

This Wednesday, the Raiders are scheduled to oppose Ewing High at Ewing. The next day, they will entertain Trenton High in a 3:45 contest.

Hun ended the week with a rare doubleheader on Saturday and managed to get both games in despite the day-long threatening weather.

Hun began the day with a morning game against rival Princeton Day School and the Raiders handcuffed the winless PDS nine behind the five-hit pitching of Pete Stam. Hun rolled to an 8-0 victory.

Barry Landis, Rich Stout and Lorenzo Mendoza paced the 12-hit Hun attack with Landis's two-run double — the key hit off losing pitcher Matt

Lustig. Hun got to Lustig early, scoring three runs in the first and second innings to take a 6-0 lead. The loss was the Panthers' fourth without a win.

In the afternoon in a contest against Princeton High which got underway at 3:15, Hun outhit the home team Little Tigers, 13-10, but could not bunch its hits.

Losing pitcher Ted Bransfield (0-2) was hooked up in a battle with Princeton's Gavin Hulsman when the Little Tigers broke open a 3-3 tie by scoring three runs in the sixth inning, taking advantage of five stolen bases.

The play was ragged on both sides, as PHS committed five errors and Hun three. All of Hun's runs were unearned.

First baseman Stout and Bransfield each stroked three hits for Hun while Landis and Stam combined for four more.

The previous day, in a game called after six innings because of darkness, Hun outlasted Peddie, 10-9, to hand the Falcons their first loss in four games. Both teams scored in every inning but the sixth.

Stout, who got the win for Hun, Stam, Landis, Mendoza and Brad Mumme all drove in runs for the victors. Hun's big inning was the fourth when it plated four runs to take the lead for good, 9-7.

Landis 5 RBIs. Landis, Hun's veteran catcher and one of three senior tri-captains, had a big day at the plate against Hamilton, driving in five runs on a homer and double, but it wasn't enough to prevent Hamilton from taking a 15-9 victory against the home team. Mendoza contributed a double among Hun's nine hits.

Hamilton hit Bransfield hard, banging out 13 hits. The Pier 6 brawl was tied at 6 after three innings. Hamilton went on to score in every subsequent inning including five runs in the seventh; Hun was blanked until the seventh when it sent three more runs across. Mike Novembre (2-0) got the win for the Hornets.

Hun began the week with a 13-7 victory over Pingry for its first win of the season.

Hun was breezing along with a 13-0 lead behind the hurling of Stam when Pingry erupted for six runs in the final inning. The losers scored seven runs on seven hits and made it easy for Hun by committing seven errors.

Stout wielded a hot bat in Hun's 10-hit attack, erupting for a double, triple and home run and five RBIs. Landis, who chipped in with a double, and Mendoza and sophomore Rick Brenner also drove in runs for Hun.

REGISTRATION REQUIRED For Tennis Round Robin. Those interested in playing in the Princeton Recreation Department's women's tennis round robin must register by next Friday the 27th. The round robin is open to players of all levels of play.

Mondays and Thursdays are for levels 4.0 and above, while Tuesdays and Wednesdays are for under 4.0. Play will begin May 7 at the Community Park Tennis Courts. A tennis court permit, available at the Recreation Office, is required. For additional information call 921-9480.

PHS IS IMPRESSIVE In Track Debut. Serving notice of intention to live up to its coach's prediction that it will be competitive this year, the Princeton High School boys track team ran over a strong Hightstown team last week, 83½ to 47½. The meet was Princeton's first of the season.

The Little Tigers surprised the visiting Rams by sweeping to first place in all but three events. Double winners for PHS were sprinter Ed Katz and field man Eric Rapp.

Katz won the 100 meter in 11.5 and the 400 meter in 53.8. Veteran Rapp captured his two specialties — the javelin with a loss of 144-9 to lead a PHS sweep in the event, and the pole vault with a 11-0 mark.

Princeton displayed a lot of strength in the field events. Tim O'Gorman captured the discus (111-6), Tom Haggerty the shot put (40-1½), Marshall Jensen the high jump (5-8) and Shawn Hutchins the long jump (19-3¾).

In the racing events, Bruce Ellerstein won the 200 meter with a clocking of 24.6 to edge teammate Mike Riddick who posted a 25.3. Graham Trelsted ran a 2:09.3 to win the 800, Tom Perkins won the 1600 in 4:45 and Trelsted, Perkins, Haggerty and Katz combined to win the 4x400 relay in 3:49.1.

Nathaniel McVey-Finney finished second in the 3200 in 10:27.3 — 10.2 seconds behind winner Dave Rosenblatt. Hightstown's other two victories came in the 110 high hurdles and the 400 intermediate hurdles where Darry Hagans won both with times of 17.0 and 60.8.

In the javelin, Sandy Huffaker of PHS finished second to Rapp and O'Gorman was third.

HIGHTSTOWN TOO STRONG For PHS Girls Track Team. Tom McMorrow, the first-year head coach of the Princeton High girls track team, had a premonition about Hightstown.

Sky high after upsetting defending Colonial Valley Conference champion Notre Dame the week before in its initial meet, the Little Tigers were still something of an unkown quantity. Had the win over the injury-weakened Irish been a fluke?. "We are very well meshed; in many areas we have the same strengths and weaknesses," McMorrow had commented on the eve of the Hightstown meet. "I'm keeping my fingers crossed on this one."

McMorrow's concern proved to be justified. The Rams swept every event but two to win their second meet, 77½ to 44½, while PHS evened its record at 1-1.

Following a two-week break, the Little Tigers were scheduled to resume action this week against Steinert and will entertain Hamilton at 3:45 on Monday.

Kiran Cummings of PHS won the 3200 with a clocking of 12:22.6 and Teressa DiPerno and Kim Taylor of Hightstown were both timed in 28.0 in the 200 meter.

For the victors, Linda Sweeney was the top point-getter, winning three events — the 800, 1600 and high jump.

The Little Tigers failed to win any field events but captured a number of seconds: Kim Johnson in the long jump, Sarah Billington in the high jump, Dorothy Mann in the discus and Barbara Halvorsen in the javelin.

In the racing events, DiPerno was second in the 100, Cummings second in the 1600, Gail Woolston second in the 400, and Dawn Gray second in the 400 hurdles.

The Rams edged the visiting Little Tigers in the 1600 relay by .8 of a second.

PHS also picked up some points on thirds by Sally Flynn in the 100 hurdles, Johnson in the 100 (a tie), Susan Gray in the 1600, Hilary Jones in the 400, Flynn in the 400 hurdles, Heather Gray in the 800, Woolston in the 200, Susan Gray in the 3200, Carine Toussaint in the long jump and javelin, and Halvorsen in the shot.

TENNIS LEAGUE SET At County Park. The Mercer County Park Commission will sponsor a summer tennis league at the County's outdoor tennis center in Mercer County Park.

The league will be open to all Mercer County residents and run for eight weeks beginning on Monday, June 18, and ending the week of August 10. There will be categories for junior boys and girls 18 and under, 15 and under, and 12 and under.

In the adult division, there will be men's singles and doubles, mixed doubles and women's singles and doubles. Levels of play wil be 2.5, 3.5, 4.5 and 5.5.

There will be a $4 registration fee for singles and an $8 registration fee for doubles. This also includes entry into the tournament at the end of the season. Awards will go to the winner and finalist in each category.

Applications are available at the Outdoor Tennis Center or by calling the Park Commission Office at 989-6533.

OUR FOUR BEST SELLING OPTIONS.

Contrary to popular belief, Volvo doesn't make a wagon.

We make four.

To start with, there's the rugged yet refined DL, our most popular (and least expensive) wagon.

For amenities above and beyond most other wagons, the GL gives you a choice of either a gas or diesel engine.

And for a richly appointed, truly luxurious wagon that can blow an Audi 5000S right off the road, try the Volvo Turbo.

A test drive will demonstrate the 4-wheel power-assisted disc brakes, rack and pinion steering, tight 32.2 ft. turning radius and solid, reliable feel—the same as a Volvo sedan.

That's why no matter which model you choose, you'll get a superb, well-made wagon. One that holds 70 cu. ft. of cargo.

And holds up for years.

Parties Filling Slates For Borough Council, Township Committee

Peter Bearse announced this week that he will not run for a second term on Borough Council.

The Democratic Councilman is already a declared candidate for the New Jersey 12th district Congressional seat held by Republican Jim Couter. Although he could run for both seats at once, under the law, he said his Democratic colleagues had convinced him that "it would send confusing signals to the voters if I ran for both."

Mildred Trotman and Marvin Reed will be the Democratic candidates for Council seats being vacated by Mr. Bearse and by Richard Macgill, who announced several weeks ago that he would not run for a third term. Jane Terpstra will run for the remaining year in the term of Barbara Hill (see page 3).

There will be no primary contest. Pierina Thayer, who was expected to be a candidate, dropped out before the vote at Monday night's endorsement meeting of the Princeton Community Democratic Organization.

Borough Republicans, scheduled to name their three candidates this Tuesday, reportedly were choosing from a field of five. Hank Abernathy, unsuccessful Republican candidate in the last two elections, will not run a third time. Pressure of his job — he is an architect — almost caused him to withdraw in the middle of last year's campaign.

In the Township, where there are two Township Committee seats available, Democrat Bernard Miller said that he will try again, having run unsuccessfully last year. His 1983 runningmate, Eleanor Lewis, who lost by eight votes, said that she is not running again.

Plans Unveiled for Improvements to Shopping Center; New Owners Anticipate a Fresh, Revitalized Image

A face-lift that will give it a new look and a revitalized image is in the works for the Princeton Shopping Center.

Plans were unveiled by the new owners of the Shopping Center at the annual dinner of the Princeton Shopping Center Merchants Association last week. The dinner was held at the Hyatt Regency Hotel. The cosmetic changes planned for the Harrison Street facade and the re-landscaping of the interior courtyard will be the first improvements to the Center since it was built 30 years ago.

The Shopping Center was purchased last fall by George Comfort & Sons, a commercial real estate firm in New York City. It is the firm's first venture into ownership-management of a retail shopping center, although a second shopping center in South Bend, Indiana, another college town, has recently been acquired.

Lyn Comfort, a youthful-looking Williams College alumnus who says he has had 14 years of experience in the firm since graduation, is president. His brother Dana is in charge of leasing and marketing, and their brother-in-law Andrew Saunders is in charge of management.

According to Lyn Comfort, who attended last week's dinner for Shopping Center merchants, no new square footage will be added to the Princeton Shopping Center. "In my experience," he said, "real estate is either improving or on the decline. We purchased Princeton Shopping Center because we feel Princeton has a great future, but economic viability requires that certain cosmetic improvements be made."

Mr. Comfort introduced Barbara Weinstein, a principal with the Hillier Group and project manager for the improvements. Ms. Weinstein listed "certain things" that need to be renewed such as paving and providing safer, well-lit walkways. To enhance the image of the Princeton (emphasis on Princeton) Shopping Center, she suggested outdoor eating areas and water because they are something that attract people and awnings because they are "comforting."

Preliminary plans, which have not been formally presented to any Township boards, call for a green and white stripe awning effect all along the Harrison Street facade which will conceal air conditioning ducts on the roof and afford shelter to a new sidewalk below. In keeping with the stated purpose of drawing people inside the Center, a new, taller entryway will be created highlighting the entrance into the courtyard on the Harrison Street side.

In addition, a clock tower, a sort of open medieval cam-

Art People Party Will Vibrate With Sounds of Spring

What are "Spring Sounds?" A peeper in the marsh? The boom of an unfolding forsythia? The cacophony of an opening daffodil?

Or the happy hum of an Art People Party?

It's the 14th Art People Party — can you believe it? This year, it has been dedicated to music and "Spring Sounds." You're invited to come this Saturday, without any admission charge, and listen or play or hum or just wander around, eating and having a fine time. You should take your own musical instrument, preferably one you've made. (I've got this concert grand ....

Injunction Granted To Collins by Court

Superior Court Judge Paul G. Levy this Tuesday granted the Collins Corporation an injunction stopping the Planning Board from taking any action based on Borough Council's vote to send Collins' Phase III plans back to the Planning Board.

At the same time, Judge Levy set Friday, May 25 as the date for a hearing in his chambers on the question of Council's jurisdiction. Collins claims that Council does not, under law, have jurisdiction in matters involving final site plans.

Papers filed by Collins asked the court to deal with the question of jurisdiction, and also with about ten other matters including the legality of votes cast by Mayor Barbara Sigmund even though there was no tie, and the eligibility of Council member Irv Urken.

It is also understood that William Sutphin, who sat on Township Committee in the 1970s, will also be a Democratic candidate.

On the Republican side, Gail Firestone has declared that she will seek a second term. Richard Schoch, also completing his first term, has not yet decided whether to run again.

"I'm disappointed not to be running for both Congressional and Council seats," Mr. Bearse said. "If, in spite of my best efforts I don't win the Congressional seat, I'll be back to run locally."

He said he regards local experience as "the best possible training ground for Congress."

"In Congress, except for matters of defense and foreign policy," he continued, "most issues are local. There is a great opportunity in Congress to do things on the Federal level that can help people on the local level."

panile that is more sculpture than structure, will be erected within the courtyard to lift the Center within the sightline of passing motorists on Harrison Street. Within the Center courtyard, the hedges that have grown so high they form walls will be removed and a central plaza created. Here there will be a fountain and trees, umbrella tables and chairs, and open space for exhibits.

Shopping Center merchants for the most part reacted favorably to the plans, although those whose stores front on the rear parking lot questioned why the awning effect did not go all the way around the exterior. Mr. Comfort said the Hillier plans came in 50 percent higher than what his firm had budgeted for the project, but he declined to give the overall figure for the improvements. He did not rule out the awning for the rear of the Center, but made no immediate promises either.

If all goes smoothly with whatever Township approvals and permits are required, the renovations could start this summer, he said. "You live in an exciting community," he told the audience, adding that George Comfort & Sons were excited to be a part of it.

Art People Party

The sponsoring Arts Council of Princeton has arranged to have Paul Robeson Place closed off from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. so you can stroll the street and listen to Pro Musica's madrigal singers, watch the dancing kids in peasant costume from the Princeton Ballet Society, buy some used musical instruments (to play old songs on, what else?) and eat, eat, eat.

Of course musicians eat! They are note-worthy for eating, as a matter of fact. You may choose from among caterers, old and new, and there is even the promise of food from Brazil, Indonesia, Denmark, Afghanistan, China.

To say nothing of Italian sausages and opera singers in costume.

Buy Viennese baked goods and help send the Princeton High School Choir and Orchestra to Vienna. A strudle is worth a boodle.

At the Fast Art School, craftspeople will create a work of art while you wait. And remember the Arts Council's policy: all performers and exhibitors must live, work or go to school within five miles of the Council's building at 102 Witherspoon, so it's a real Princeton family affair.

Westminster Choir College is sending along several groups, and the American Boychoir School has promised its Training Choir. There will be musical marionettes by Marjorie, Barbershop Quartets, Deshara doing some Middle Eastern dances and strolling folk singers.

Well, all we need is sun.

And in case there isn't — Sunday is the rain date.

Mime! Fun! Instruments! And sunshine.

ABOUT HOUSING

"Affordable" Report Due. The draft report of Borough Council's sub-committee on Affordable Housing will be discussed next Monday at 8 in Borough Hall in advance of the May 3 presentation of the full report to Council.

Mayor and Council will use the report as a working document in devising a plan to achieve affordable housing in the Borough. Presumably ordinances will then be drafted in accordance with the plan

---

Since the sub-committee began work in early February, 48 people have been appointed. The group has been open-ended, welcoming anyone interested. Three task forces were named: finance and development, ordinance revision and local innovative programs. The one on ordinance revision alone has 22 appointees, with 16 attending regularly.

Members, with widely divergent interests and often sharply differing points of view, represent landlords, renters, real-estate agents, students, clergy and representatives of Princeton University, the Princeton Housing Authority, Princeton Community Housing and the Witherspoon-Jackson Development Corporation.

The goal of the committee is "to provide a realistic opportunity for construction, preservation and maintenance of affordable housing in the Borough." Council members Peter Bearse and John Huntoon are co-chairs.

TERPSTRA CHOSEN

As Council Member. Jane Terpstra, 35, Princeton lawyer, has been unanimously chosen by Borough Council members to take the Council seat vacated by Barbara Hill when she moved to New York. It is not yet known whether Mrs. Terpstra will also take on Ms. Hill's job as Borough Police Commissioner.

Mrs. Terpstra will be sworn in formally at this Thursday's Council work session, having been elected at a special Council meeting Monday afternoon. She will run in November for the remaining year in Ms. Hill's three-year Council term.

The law stipulates that a vacant seat be filled by a member of the same party as the person elected to the seat. Since Ms. Hill was a Democrat, her replacement was chosen by the municipal committee of the Borough Democrats. Mrs. Terpstra was first choice, followed by Marvin Reed and Pierina Thayer.

Council member John Huntoon, nominating her, spoke of Mrs. Terpstra as "an active and valued member of the Princeton community who served nobly as a Democratic committeewoman in the Borough's Fourth District." She had applied for the job of municipal attorney, awarded to Walter Bliss.

"She has a deep, ongoing commitment to serving the disadvantaged," Mr. Huntoon said.

A graduate of the University of Chicago with a major in British history, Mrs. Terpstra earned her law degree from Seton Hall in 1974 and immediately joined the staff of the Legal Aid Society of Mercer County. She was made acting director in 1977 and permanent director in 1978.

She later joined the firm of Pellettieri, Rabstein and Altman, and opened her own office in February of this year, maintaining a general practice at 601 Ewing. Mrs. Terpstra is president-elect of the Mercer County Bar Association, and is scheduled to move into the president's chair in January. She told reporters she was proud to be the first woman to hold that post.

Asked her opinion of Council's vote to send Collins' plans back to the Planning Board, Mrs. Terpstra said she approved of Council's action.

Van Rides to Be Offered to Disabled Free of Charge Five Days a Week

It's not easy to lift yourself aboard a bus — or even into a car — if you're bound to a wheelchair, but starting next Tuesday, you'll be able to ride in a special van if you are a resident of Borough or Township. No bus fare, no taxi fare — it's all free.

Although the van will be dispatched by the Senior Resource Center, it will serve disabled people no matter how young or old they are. Priority, however, will be given to those who are over 60.

The van will operate between 2:30 and 5:30 five afternoons a week. Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays it will take its customers to medical appointments. Wednesdays have been reserved for shopping, errands and the public library.,

Unless you have an emergency, you should make an appointment two days in advance, and appointments for Monday must be called in by Thursday evening. If the place where you live is not "barrier-free" — that is, adapted for use by the handicapped — you must tell the scheduler, so that special arrangements may be made.

To make a reservation for a specific day, call 924-5816 between 6 and 9 p.m. Your appointment for an afternoon ride will be verified that morning.

To register for the program, call the Resource Center at 924-7108

"I think it needed looking into," she explained. "I'm a bit concerned that not enough consideration was given to the impact of plans on the surrounding neighborhoods — that is my main concern. But I'm also concerned about the burden on traffic and congestion around Greenholm."

A Princeton resident since 1971, Mrs. Terpstra and her husband formerly lived on Leigh Avenue. With their three children, they now live at 17 Maple.

ASKS S.O.C. REPORT

Environmentalists Happy. Unanimously, the Planning Board agreed Thursday night on a new sewer policy: ask the Sewer Operating Committee for a report on the sewer capacity of every application that comes before the board.

"This is certainly the dawn of a new day," remarked Dwight O. North, Random Road resident, who has been agitating for action on Princeton's sewer problems for many years.

But developer Benedict Yedlin, in the audience of about two dozen who attended Thursday's Planning Board meeting, wasn't quite so pleased. He is concerned that no-connection zones may be established, affecting his plans for 37 houses connecting with the Mountain Brook trunk line.

He also believes a no-connection ban is a political device that will not fix the sewers.

Meanwhile, the Stony Brook Regional Sewerage Authority was told this week that all its meters are operating within specifications. The report was from CFM, Inc., the firm hired by the Authority to examine its meters.

CFM also warned, however, that the Authority should make sure its operations are efficient, and should guard against future problems. It might be advisable, CFM said, to replace the infamous Meter Number Six with an ultrasonic reading device which is less sensitive than the present device to environmental changes.

At its meeting this Tuesday, the Authority is scheduled to appoint Michael Dimino to the post of executive director, replacing Arthur Kling, who is retiring. The appointment will be effective May 1.

Mr. Kling had indicated more than 18 months ago that he planned to retire, explained Authority chair John McGee, and he asked this spring to have the process speeded up so that he could retire now.

Mr. Dimino, who holds a master's in environmental engineering from Manhattan College and was senior project engineer with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, joined the Authority as executive engineer in 1979 and has been serving as chief operating officer. He is president of the Authorities Association of New Jersey, whose membership comprises 85 sewer and water agencies.

His salary from the Authority, still undetermined, will be in the mid-40,000s, Mr. McGee said.

HELP US PAY

Township Asks Borough. Join us, through the budget of the joint Planning Board, in paying legal costs involved in fighting the Calton Homes suit against the Township. That request, from Township Mayor Winthrop S. Pike, has been made to Borough Council and Council will discuss it this Thursday at the 8 p.m. work session in Borough Hall.

Earlier, Council will hold public hearing on the ordinance restricting service stations to three gas pumps. The ordinance is the product of protests by residents of the Murray Street area against Sunoco's plans to add five pumps to the present three.

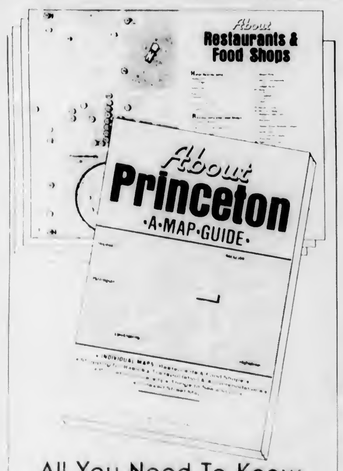
Robert McChesney will report to Council on recycling. The governing body will also ponder the matter of the street clock proposed for the sidewalk in front of New Jersey Bank.

Friends of Princeton Open Space will ask for a moratorium on new sewer connections, and will suggest that a body other than the Sewer Operating Committee be assigned to administer reconstruction of the sewer system.

Ready for Kindergarten?

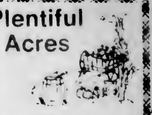
Children eligible for kindergarten in September may be registered next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at Community Park and Riverside elementary schools. To be eligible, a child must be five on or before November 30, 1984. Children should be registered at the school they will attend in September.

Registration hours are 9 to noon Tuesday and Wednesday, 1-4 Thursday.



Parents do not need to take the child to school for registration; however, they must take the child's birth certificate and medical records, especially immunization records. Under state law, children may not be admitted unless they have had these immunizations: DPT, oral polio, measles vaccine, rubella vaccine and mumps vaccine.

Parents who are not fluent in English may take a friend to interpret. Parents should also tell the teacher or school nurse about any conditions that might affect educational planning for the child.



There will be another registration series in June for parents who cannot attend on May 1, 2 or 3.

IMPERSONATOR CHARGED

In Light Bulb Scam. A Philadelphia resident, who collected money from Township residents for light bulbs they did not order, has been arrested by police and charged with wrongful impersonation.

The man, identified as Arthur S. Kauffman, 47, was later released, after he was able to post $1,000 cash bail set by Township Judge Sydney Souter. He is scheduled to appear in Township Court on Tuesday.

Chief Anthony Pinelli described Kauffman's method of operation. Kauffman, Chief Pinelli said, would appear at a victim's door and represent himself as working for the New Jersey Association for the Blind. Next, Kauffman would say he was delivering the light bulbs they had ordered to support the blind and demand a cash payment of $60. Chief Pinelli reported the bulbs in a case of 12 had a retail value of $1.14 each, giving Kauffman a profit of $46.32 on each case.

Police were alerted to Kauffman's scam last week when a Herrontown Lane resident called. She told police that she had received a call last Monday, purportedly from the N.J. Association of the Blind informing her the light bulbs she had ordered were in and they would be delivered on Saturday. Knowing she had placed no such order she called police.

When Kauffman arrived a day early at 4:55 Friday afternoon, and demanded money, the Herrontown Lane resident again called police. She informed police, that prior to their arrival, Kauffman had left in a car driven by another man. She described the car as a small, light-colored Chevrolet with out-of-state plates.

About five minutes later, Sgt. John Hammond stopped a 1984 Chevrolet with Pennsylvania plates. The passenger, later identified as Kauffman, told police that he was an employee of Qualiskill Company, a firm located in Vineland. He produced several items he was allegedly selling, Chief Pinelli said. Some were dish towels he was selling for $4 each that "were nothing more than cheap rags," Chief Pinelli said.

A police check revealed that the Vineland address Kauffman had given was a vacant lot. Det. David Cromwell, checking with the N.J. Commission for the Blind in Newark, a bona fide agency, was informed by an agency official that they were well aware of Kauffman and had received many complaints about his operation in the past.

Chief Pinelli reported that police know of four incidents in the Township involving Kauffman. He listed Cherry Hill Road, Wendover Drive, Herrontown Road and Herrontown Lane and a possible fifth incident also on Herrontown Lane.

CANCER CARE IS IMPROVING–That's the message from this panel of experts who will speak Sunday at 3 at the Unitarian Church on "Living with Cancer" at the annual meeting of the Princeton Memorial Association. From left are Dr. Richard L. Barach, radiologist; Fran Friederman Walker of the Mercer Unit, American Cancer Society, Jan Wisor, R.N., and Dr. John Sierocki, oncologist.

"He's been doing this for years and at $46 a pop he's obviously made a lot of money," commented Chief Pinelli. He added that Kauffman had berated one homeowner, calling her a scum because she wouldn't buy anything to support the handicapped.

In listing the incidents police are aware of, Chief Pinelli said, "We believe there may be more. If there are, I would urge any victim to call Det. Cromwell who is conducting the investigation." Chief Pinelli added: "I would also caution everyone to call police if suspicious of someone trying to sell or deliver articles not ordered."

Chief Pinelli identified the driver of Kauffman's car as Robert Heffner of Langhorne, Pa. Heffner was released after the investigation by Township police revealed that he had answered an ad for a driver placed in a Philadelphia paper by Kauffman. "He was not involved in the scam," said Chief Pinelli, who reported that Heffner had been hired the week before by Kauffman.

CANCER CARE TOPIC

Of Sunday Meeting. The Princeton Memorial Association will hold its annual meeting Sunday at 3 at the Unitarian Church, Cherry Hill Road.

There will be a short business meeting followed by a panel discussion, "Living with Cancer." Among topics to be covered will be some of the new and successful treatments of various types of cancer.

Fran Friederman Walker, a Memorial Association trustee and director of the Mercer County chapter of the American Cancer Society, will chair the panel and discuss "The Human Equation." Dr. Richard Barach, a radiation oncologist, will speak of "Specialists and High Technology at Work." Dr. John Sierocki, oncologist, will cover "Coping Mechanisms."

Jan Wisor, R.N. will speak from the point of view of "What a Nurse Knows." Carol Kientz, R.N., Christ Hospital, Jersey City will describe "Expanding Help for Families."

The Princeton Memorial Association is the oldest and largest of New Jersey's funeral societies with more than 2,000 members in and around Mercer County. A nonprofit consumer organization, it offers its members and the public information enabling them to plan arrangements for death in advance of the event in keeping with their personal wishes and circumstances. The Association works with area funeral directors towards that end.

The Association is open to all who wish to join for a one time fee of $15 or $1 for those of limited means. A request for further information may be addressed to the Association at P.O. Box 1154.

Institute and Merica Language Institute, all of Taipei, Taiwan, and Thomas Tsoung, director of all three.

The case began in October, 1981, when ETS proctors at a San Francisco test center noticed a student cutting pages out of his test booklet for the Graduate Record Examination. The student was arrested as he left the test center.

An accomplice was also arrested and charged with stealing a portion of her test booklet at the same administration. Later the secretary for Merica Association in the United States was also arrested, after police found eight cartons of test-preparatory publications in her San Francisco home.

The original two defendants have apparently fled the country, ETS officials said, but the secretary remained and has pled guilty to theft of trade secrets.

The ruling, by U.S. District Judge William W. Schwarzer of the Northern District of California, totals $1.4 million for damages to the major testing programs ETS administers, including TOEFL — the Test of English as a Foreign Language — the Graduate Record Examination and the Graduate Management Admission Test.

Damages are to cover costs involved in replacing the test questions, and determining what test materials had been infringed. THEFT REPORT

$1,600 Loss in Pocketbook Theft. It was an expensive lunch Thursday for a visitor here from Evanston, Ill.

The victim told Borough police that she had eaten at Chuck's Spring Street Cafe when she realized she had left her pocketbook on a chair in the restaurant. When she returned 15 minutes later, it was gone. When questioned by police, no one inside the restaurant said they saw anything.

The victim lost two 14 karat gold necklaces valued at $700, a pair of gold earrings, a gold and pearl ring and a gold bracelet worth another $750, $100 in cash, a pair of eyeglasses and approximately a dozen credit cards. Her total loss was listed at $1,600.

A Kendall Park resident was out $25 after her brown leather wallet was recovered last week in a first-floor bathroom in Maclean House on the Princeton University campus. The victim told police that the wallet had been stolen between 9 a.m. and 12 noon last week while she was working in a Nassau Street Bank where she is employed.

A Princeton University student lost $10 last week when his wallet was stolen from his trousers which he had left unattended next to a squash court in Dillon Gym.

An AM-FM radio-television combination valued at $299 and an attached power pack valued at $50 were reported stolen last week from a wooden cabinet in Palmer Hall on Washington Road.

The victim, an employee of the university's Building Services department, told police he placed the unit [illegible] had been bolted shut. Last week, he discovered the cabinet screws had been unscrewed and the TV set was missing.

During a five-day period last week, a graduate school student told police that someone had entered his room and stolen a portable radio cassette player valued at $120 and $4 in quarters. Police report the victim's room is located next to a bathroom which is accessible to a common hallway.

In one of two bicycle thefts last week, a blue Raleigh Grand Prix 10-speed, valued at $200, was taken from a second-floor stairwell in 1901 Hall on the university campus between 2 and 10 Saturday morning and an unlocked bicycle was stolen earlier in the week from in front of 185 Nassau Street. Police described the bike as an older, single speed with no fenders and in poor condition. It is valued at $20.

A Pine Street resident reported the theft of a license plate from his 1982 Honda motorcycle while it was parked on Pine between Thursday and 11 Saturday morning.

VCR Stolen. A video cassette recorder valued at $379 was shoplifted last week from a shelf near the door of a store in the Princeton Shopping Center. Township police also report that, on the same day, a 35 mm camera with a red strap was stolen from a car parked in the Princeton Shopping Center lot.

The car's glove compartment and front seat console box had been pried open and rifled, police said. The victim, a resident of Lawrence Township, told police that he had locked his car. There were, however, no signs of forced entry.

In another theft at the shopping center, a Cuisinart food processor valued at $199.99 was shoplifted Monday from a store.

According to police, the store manager had been upstairs and noticed a man carrying a boxed food processor out the door. She asked the clerk on the first floor if a food processor had just been sold and the clerk replied 'no.'

The manager then followed the suspect down the mall. He exited the center by the Dairy Queen, police said, got in a car and drove away.

The suspect is described as a black male, 23 to 28, with a slight build, light skin, short hair and a thin moustache. He was wearing a fatigue jacket and tan, snap-brim cap. The manager was unable to provide police with any description of the suspect's car.

COUNTRY FAIR MAY 12

In Montgomery. The Van Harlingen Historical Society will hold its annual old-fashioned country fair on Saturday, May 12.

Known as "May in Montgomery," this year's community event will feature a "country stroll," as it spreads out its activities along a mile-long road connecting the 18th century towns of Harlingen and Dutchtown. This road, which will be closed for the day, is lined with old houses, some of which date back to the earliest days of settlement of the community by Dutch families from Long Island.

A number of the houses will be open for the day, including three dating back to the Dutch period, and the 1851 Greek-temple style Reformed Church in the village of Harlingen will be open as well. The church building is the third on the site, the original having been built as the Sourland Meeting House in 1752. The stroll, which can be taken in mini-buses, shows the growth of a community from colonial times to the present.

There will be an Antiques Show in the Harlingen church, with some 15 dealers in country items participating, and an arts and crafts exhibit and sale sponsored by the Montgomery Arts Council. There will be farm animals, pony and hay rides and a ride in a tethered balloon for youngsters. There will also be an old-fashioned parade, with flag-bearing marchers, floats, fire engines, vintage cars and an oldtime milk truck that appeared in the film "Poor Little Gloria."

The Jersey Blues, a Revolutionary period costumed militia group, will set up an encampment. Teens will have an art show, poster printing, a maypole dance and a mock country-garden wedding. Two groups will perform blue grass and country swing music.

The Blawenburg Band will play periodically during the day, and in the evening there will be a barn dance at $5 a ticket. Booths will offer a variety of snacking foods and gift items for sale. A lunch of sandwiches and salads will be served by the historical society in the church building, and a box lunch of sandwiches or homemade croissants and cheesecake will be offered by two area caterers at Sunnyside Farm, one of the houses open for the day.

Early visitors can have a pancake and sausage breakfast at Harlingen, served by a fire company auxiliary at the First Aid Squad building between 7 and 10. May in Montgomery will open at Harlingen at 10 and continue to 4. Admission is $4 for adults, $2 for school children. Advance reservations for the barn dance are suggested, and may be made by calling (202) 359-5317.

For additional information call Barbara Rudt, co-chair, at (201) 359-2560.

ROOM ENTERED

In Pyne Hall. An unlocked students' room in Pyne Hall on the university campus was entered shortly before noon Easter Sunday.

One of the occupants, police said, was returning to her room after taking a shower when she saw two men leaving. They did not reply when she asked, "Can I help you?"

She noticed one suspect was carrying a grey wool coat which he handed to her and the other an AM-FM portable stereo cassette. Both items belonged to her roommate.

Police said the suspects continued on and left the building. Both were described as white, about 5-10, in their mid to late 20s. One had light brown hair, the other short brown hair.

Upon reaching her room, police said, the victim discovered the men had taken jewelry, two watches, $20 and other items with a combined value of $794. Among them: a gold necklace with 12 pearls valued at $200, a $50 gold bracelet, $75 class ring and a $116 watch.

Looking for John. When a student returned to her unlocked room last week in the Cap and Gown Club, 61 Prospect Avenue, after being away for 10 minutes, she observed a black male, 23 to 24 with a moustache, in the room.

To her question of what he was doing there, he replied that he was looking for John. Police said the student then led the suspect out of the room down the hall to a room where a person named John lived.

Returning to her room she discovered assorted jewelry and $2 missing. She lost two gold rings worth $375, two more rings and a necklace, with a combined value of $685.

Twelve china saucers worth $180 and 12 crystal glasses worth $300 were reported stolen last week by a former resident of 68 Stockton Street. The victim told police that the articles had been left behind January 30 in boxes to be picked up the next day in moving from her Stockton condominium to Peapack. Also missing is a $65 wall telephone.

In reporting the theft last week, the victim told police she had waited because she thought that the caretaker at the condominium had her boxes in safe keeping. Police report there were no signs of forced entry into her apartment.

Home Is Ransacked. A home on Bertrand Drive was entered during the weekend and completely ransacked while the owners were away on vacation.

Police report that entry was gained by cutting a screen and opening an interior window. It was reported at 2:02 Saturday afternoon by a neighbor working in his yard who noticed a side door ajar. Ptl. Robert Nielsen investigated.

There was an attempted

HOW IT WILL LOOK: The more than 200 children of Princeton Community Village will not lack for a place where they can play when Hilltop Park is completed across Bunn Drive. Residents of PCV and members of the board of Princeton Community Housing helped plan the park with landscape architect Allan Goodheart. They are also raising most of the necessary funds through road races and sales of various kinds.

entry into a Jefferson Road home last week. Glass was broken out of the frame of a rear storm window but the window was not lifted and there was no entry.

Police noted that the victim was inside the house between 9 and 11 in the morning and 2 to 6:30 in the afternoon and the attempt probably took place between 11 and 2. The incident is still under investigation. Police said that a workman had been at the home during the day.

PARK WILL BENEFIT

From Road Race. As area runners register for the Second Annual Hilltop Road Race, to be held Sunday, the land now designated as Hilltop Park lies awaiting the grading which will transform it into a community recreation area.

The Road Race last year raised $2,400, a sum matched by the Friends of Princeton Recreation, who will again donate its proceeds to the development of this park in northern Princeton. During the course of the winter the Township has been razing the hazardous old buildings in the center of the property. With the advent of dry weather work can begin on the regulation softball field, the first priority of the park's planners.

Landscape architect Allan Goodheart has worked with residents of nearby Princeton Community Village and members of the board of Princeton Community Housing to develop a plan for the park, which has obtained all the necessary reviews and permits from municipal bodies.

Next to Bunn Drive lie the gardens of PCV residents. Below them is planned a two-sided tennis backboard, one side abutting blacktop which can be used for tennis, roller skating and tricycling, and as a stage. The other, non-paved side, will be used for lacrosse and soccer practice and for children's ball sports.

Open ground adjacent to the backboard area can be used for other activities, and both are in view of informal seating on the sloping ground leading down from Bunn Drive. There is a parking lot nearby and further into the park, a picnic area adjacent to the softball field.

This sports field is to be joined, in the second stage of park development, by a regulation soccer field, both facilities available to the whole town. "We hope that these fields will become 'home' for various Princeton teams, maybe some sponsored by corporations," says Jenny Guberman, one of the moving spirits behind the park.

The Hilltop Road Race is scheduled to start Sunday at 1 at Terhune Road near Princeton Shopping Center. The location of the finish line will bring the runners around the corner of Clearview Avenue and past the shopping center on North Harrison Street. Pre-registration is $5 with specially designed T-shirts going to the first 200 applicants.

Registration on race day is $6. Applications for the five-mile race may be obtained at Nautilus Fitness Center, Thomas Sweet, Footworks and Hinkson's, as well as the YM-YWCA. Registration may also be made by sending a stamped self-addressed envelope to Hilltop Road Race, PCV Office, Holly House, Bunn Drive.

5 JUVENILES CHARGED

With Alcohol Possession. Five juveniles, ages 16 and 17, including one female, have been charged by Borough police with possession of alcohol. All were later released to their parents, following their arrest Thursday night.

The five were in a car that had passed a Borough patrol car stopped for the light at Nassau Street and University Place. An officer observed one of the passengers in the car drinking beer. The two officers, Ptl. Anthony Federico and Ptl. David Dudeck stopped the suspects' car on Mercer Street. Inside they found 10 full bottles of beer and two empty bottles.

Police report that four of the youths were from Trenton and one was a resident of Lawrence Township.

Moped Driver Charged. Township police have charged a 17-year old Township juvenile with four motor vehicle violations and eluding a police officer on a moped.

He was observed by Ptl. Buchanan last week going through a stop sign at the intersection of Linden Lane and Franklin Avenue. When the officer tried to pull the youth over, he continued on, police said, traveling through other intersections and ignoring stop signs.

The moped driver continued across the grounds of John Witherspoon School, onto Guyot Avenue and then circled back to Linden Lane where he was finally stopped.

The youth was arrested and turned over to Township Juvenile Officer Jerry Offredo. He was later released, pending further action by a juvenile court.

ORGANZA IS IN FASHION: Jacque Parmele, right, models a long black evening dress with a white organza collar that will be featured in the fashion show to be held Tuesday. The event is the spring fund raiser sponsored by the Association of the North Princeton Developmental Center, formerly the New Jersey Neuro-Psychiatric Institute. Spring fashions from Saks Fifth Avenue will be shown. Maureen Pearce of Saks is at center, and Harriet Brainard of the Association is on the left.

SPRING FASHIONS DUE

At Association Benefit. The 29th Spring Annual benefit fashion show and luncheon sponsored by the Association of the North Princeton Developmental Center, formerly the N.J. Neuro-Psychiatric Institute, will be held on May 1 at Smalley Hall on the Center's grounds in Skillman.

Spring fashions from Saks Fifth Avenue will be featured. The show, entitled, "Clean Sweep in Fashion," will include active sportswear, bathing suits and knit-wear as well as "at home" and evening clothes. Fashions by Calvin Klein, Ralph Lauren, Nipon, Adolfo, Esprit and Jean Marc will be among those shown.

Maureen Pearce from the Saks Fifth Avenue store in Springfield will narrate. The fashion show will follow the luncheon beginning at 12:30. The price for lunch and the show is $15, $9 of which is tax deductible.

Contact Mrs. A.B. Vincent, Jr. for further details at 924-6644.

PLATE WINDOW BROKEN

At Mykonos. A 53 by 72-inch plate glass front window at the Mykonos take-out restaurant, 22 Witherspoon Street, was struck by an object last week, leaving a small hole.

Police said the window was punctured by what appears to be a BB pellet sometime between 10 Sunday night and 11 the following night. Replacement cost was placed at $400.

A William Street resident told police that she was lying in her bed shortly before nine Sunday night when she heard the sound of glass breaking and then the report of a car backfire as it drove off in the direction of Olden Street. She jumped to the floor, she said, turned off the light and called police.

Ptl. Dudeck responded and searched the area without success. An 8 by 10-inch bedroom pane was broken by a BB pellet, police said.

A sliding glass door in a Butternut Row apartment was broken by an unknown object Friday night, causing $250 in damage.

According to Ptl. William Potts, a young boy was home at the time when he heard a noise around 7:50 and discovered the window smashed. Police checked the area but were unable to locate any object. The youth had had a confrontation earlier the same evening with another boy in the neighborhood, police report, and that is under investigation.

The night manager at Nassau Inn called police at 3:02 last Wednesday morning to report that two cars were racing around Palmer Square in a reckless manner. He called, he said, after he noticed the two cars stopped on Palmer Square South and observed the drivers get out and start pounding on a pay telephone.

Police responded but could not locate the suspects. The phone's receiver had been ripped from its cord and was missing.

FOUR ARE FINED

In Borough Criminal Court. Four Princeton area residents were fined last week in Borough Criminal Court by Judge Russell W. Annich Jr.

Six counts of passing bad checks against Carmen Thomas, 11 Shirley Court, were merged into two complaints. On each he was fined $25 and an additional $25 for the Violent Crime Compensation Board and ordered to make restitution.

Luther D. McKellar, 12 Lytle Street, was fined $35 and received a five day suspended sentence to the Mercer County Workhouse for trespassing. He was also ordered to pay $25 to the Crime Compensation Board. $60 and $25 to the VCCB was levied against Dexter Thompson, 22 Zoar Street, Lawrenceville, for harassment.

Elaine Robinson, 70 Jefferson Road, paid $25 for violating the Borough's snow removal ordinance.

Speeders Fined. In Borough traffic court Monday, four area residents were fined $70 each for speeding. They are Jeffrey Olsson, 115 Dodds Lane; Jane Pearce, 20 Haslet Avenue; Malcolm N. McKinnon, 91 Edgerstoune; and Anthony Wagner, 216 Penn View Drive, Pennington.

Fined $60 each were Heather S. Lovett, 7 S. Lanning Avenue, Hopewell, and Gineen M. Bierman, 213 Fox Run Drive, Plainsboro, both red light, and Stephen A. Herman, Millstone River Apartments, U-turn.

TWIN BOYS BORN

At Medical Center. Donald and Teresa Pappano of 87 Mark Twain Drive, Trenton, became the parents of twin boys born April 13 at Princeton Medical Center. The twins are among 15 boys and 18 girls born at the Medical Center in the week ending April 19.

Sons were also born to Cary and Mary Kaufman, A-7 Georges Road, Dayton, April 13; Kee and Jung Kim, 4 Stanford Road, Bridgewater; Dr. Joseph and Rita Lamendola, 6 Beth Ann Way, Ewing, both on April 14; Frank and Patricia Shea, 128 Plainsboro Road, Cranbury; Anthony and Claire Laveglia, B1 Avon Drive, East Windsor, both on April 15;

More Funding, Volunteers Sought by the Hub As This Drop-in Center Celebrates Five Years

A place in which to relax at the end of the week. Where you can meet your friends, have a bite, listen to music, shoot the breeze or say nothing at all — nobody minds. It's up to you.

You can play cards, or dance, or just watch television. There's no pressure. They're glad to see you and ask you how you're doing, but they understand if you just want to sit for a while.

After a hard week, everyone needs such a place. Those who are chronically depressed, or have suffered mental illness, or are at a mental, emotional or physical disadvantage, need such a place as much as those who are not. For five years now, the Hub, located in the basement of the Princeton United Methodist Church, has served this function.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY TO HUB: Arianne Kassof, left, joins Hub members in a celebration of five years of the drop-in center in the basement of the Princeton Methodist Church.

Recently, Hub members celebrated the anniversary of its opening in April, 1979, as a drop-in center sponsored by four churches. In place of the usual snack food, there was a full scale dinner of sliced ham, macaroni, pickled beets and salad. There were birthday cakes made by family members and friends, and the multi-colored balloons, streamers, party napkins and paper flowers gave an aura of festivity.

From its modest beginnings, the Hub has grown and prospered. It is open now on Friday and Sunday afternoons, as well as Saturday nights. From the four who dropped in on the first Saturday five years ago, the Hub has grown to some 60 regulars and twice that number who show up now and again.

Arianne Kassof, hired in the beginning as director of the program, still spends every single Saturday night as the hostess. Donning a pretty blouse, she arranges refreshments, sets out games, moves skillfully from group to group. She listens, jokes, and joins in as appropriate. This is not the time or place for counseling, she says; what is called for is non-judgemental acceptance.

Mrs. Kassof says it is her hunch that the social and moral upheavals of the 60s and 70s triggered the inability to cope that characterizes many of the Hub members. Many are young men now in the 30-35 year age group, who were at their most impressionable during the 60s and 70s. Many experimented with drugs and some were hospitalized as a result.

Today the emphasis is on deinstitutionalization into society, but today's society still poses enormous problems for the insecure. Thus the numbers coming to the Hub continue to swell.

Mrs. Kassof has been joined by Fran Ingram as director of the arts and crafts that are the focus of Sunday afternoon program. There is an advisory board composed of two representatives of the many Princeton religious organizations that support the Hub financially and by supplying volunteers. Saturday night's dinner, for instance, was planned and dished up by a medley of Roman Catholics, Methodists and Presbyterians, some young, some older.

But growth and success bring their own problems. "Finding funding is a challenge," says Mary-Kate Heffern, president of the advisory board since September. Two paid part-time directors and the cost of serving refreshments three times a week have lifted the Hub's annual budget into the $10,000 realm. "Arianne would rather serve nutritious snacks than less expensive junk food," Mrs. Heffern observes.

"We want to keep abreast of the growing demand," she adds. "The responsibility for the management of local programs is back with the community. These people who come to the Hub are Princeton's neighbors."

Mrs. Heffern continues: "During the week the hustle and bustle of the community takes care of them, but during Saturday and Sunday the town is closed down. People go home. The Hub is an attractive home — caring, receptive and non-judgemental. There is a congruent atmosphere of stability here; there aren't any demands."

Mrs. Heffern becomes thoughtful. "You know," she says, "put in the wrong atmosphere, any of us could become disabled."

NEEDLEWORK ON DISPLAY: Gloria Westlake, president of the Princeton Chapter of the Embroiderer's Guild, and Penny Archer, exhibition chairman, hold needlework that will be exhibited at the Chapter's Fourth Biennial Exhibition May 3-20 at the Thomas Clarke House on the Princeton Battlefield. Hours for the exhibit are Wednesday-Saturday from 10-12 and 1-6, and Sundays from 1-6. (John Apostolos photo)

EXHIBIT IS PLANNED

By Embroiderers. A variety of needlework designs executed by members of the Princeton Chapter of the Embroiderers' Guild of America will be on display for the Chapter's fourth Biennial Exhibition to be held May 3-20 at the Thomas Clarke House, Mercer Road.

Two special projects of the chapter have been completed for this exhibition. One is a firescreen done in crewel on Buckingham Palace silk depicting the Mercer Oak with the state bird (the goldfinch) in its boughs and the state flower (the violet) growing beneath the tree. The firescreen will be presented to Mrs. Kean on the opening day of the exhibition, and afterwards it will be placed in Drumthwacket.

The second undertaking is a banner that carries out the theme of the firescreen as each of its 24 squares is either the Mercer Oak, a goldfinch or violets. Done in all forms of needlework, the banner is a sampler of needlework techniques.

Quilts, hand-embroidered blouses, skirts, evening bags, table linens, pillows and pictures artfully wrought in pulled thread, crewel, bargello, canvas, counted cross stitch, whitework, Mountmellick, and other forms of needlework will be displayed throughout the Thomas Clarke House.

Floral arrangements prepared by the Marigold Society will also be on view. The exhibition will be open to the public, free of charge, Wednesday through Saturday 10-12 and 1-6, and on Sundays 1-6.

DEADLINE SATURDAY

For Photography Contest. The Princeton University Store has announced the judges for its 10th annual Amateur Photo Contest. Deciding who wins the six prizes will be professional photographers Elton Pope-Lane, Margaret M. Fisher and Tobey Richards.

The deadline for entries to the contest, which is open to all amateur photographers, is Saturday at 5:30. Entry forms are available at the U-Store's camera department.

The show will open with a reception Thursday, May 3, from 7 to 8:30. The show itself will be held from May 3-9.

Mr. Pope-Lance teaches at Mercer County Community College. Some of his work appears in Princeton Reflections, a book of color photographs of Princeton. Mrs. Fisher has exhibited in the N.J. Arts Biannual Show, among others, and her work appears in the book, The New Jersey House, by Helen Schwartz.

Mr. Richards, of R/S Studios, has received a number of awards, including a New Jersey Council of the Arts grant, and third place, among 300,000 entries, in the Kodak International Photo Contest.

CONFERENCE PLANNED

On Racial Barriers. The Intercultural Relations Committee at Princeton University will hold a conference Saturday at the Woodrow Wilson School on "Breaking the Barriers: Social and Cultural Diversity, an Historical Reconstruction of the Present."

The conference will begin at 9:15. Ronald Takaki, professor of ethnic studies at the University of California at Berkeley, will give the keynote address on "Culture, Class and Gender: Minority Students in the University." Howard Taylor, professor of sociology and director of the Program in Afro-American Studies at Princeton University, will speak on "Minorities at Princeton: Recent Trends."

An ethnic lunch will be served at the Woodrow Wilson School to those who have registered. Registration is free.

In the afternoon conference participants will join student, alumni and faculty in workshops to discuss acculturation, social class and women's issues.

For more information call 452-5494 or pick up a registration form at the Third World Center, the International Center or the office of the Dean of Students, all on the Princeton University campus.

TWO NEW CLASSES

At Rock Brook School. The Rock Brook School is accepting applications from the parents of children between the ages of 3 and 9 who are having socialization, reading or confidence problems or who "just aren't fitting in" in either nursery or primary school.

A private, non-profit, state-approved school located on Route 518, the Rock Brook School has been open for 10 years, primarily serving students having difficulty with communication. Claireanne Ganssle is director of the school.

Rock Brook will begin two new classes in September — one of preschool-age children on a half-day basis and one of older children who will attend the school all day. Each of the new classes will be limited to a maximum of eight students.

The new classes are designed to serve children who are not classified as

Is Your House Guilty?
To the Editor of Town Topics:

In the April 11 issue of TOWN TOPICS, Barbara Johnson wrote an article on the April 9th Township Committee meeting at which sewer problems were discussed. I should like to compliment her and TOWN TOPICS on an interesting, well-written and accurate account of the meeting — a fine job of reporting.

Even a casual reference to Ms. Johnson's article will tell that the Princeton Sewer Operating Committee has a clear mandate from the Township Committee to correct the current situation. The same applies to the Borough Council. I want to assure all that we are doing so as rapidly as possible. In fact, we have already spent $830,000 over the last three years on repairs and will be spending $500,000 more this year to correct the sewer surcharging condition.

The above work has removed a great deal of the ground-water which is entering and overloading our system but not by any means all of it. It can be easily seen from the overflowing of the sewers during heavy rainstorms, such as the two we had recently, that much rainwater still goes directly into them. This must be prevented before we solve our problem.

Studies in a number of communities show that a major portion — around half — of the rainwater getting into sewers comes from private properties. Sump pumps, roof leaders, foundation drains, and such are connected to the sewers. Sewer traps in cellar floors are opened to drain out water. These contribute heavily to overloading the sewers in rainstorms. They are also illegal.

I am sure that this situation exists in Princeton also. I urge all citizens to check these items in their own houses. Correcting them will go toward solving our overflowing sewers. We need your help.

Parenthetically, I add that computer models we are developing indicate that the trunk sewers are overloaded even without the rainy water, although not to overflowing. They will probably need replacing. This will cost us several million dollars. All the extraneous water we can keep out, however, will reduce this cost.

Keeping out non-sewage water will also reduce our charges for sewage treament which are based on total flow from our system.

The Sewer Operating Committee wants you to know that we are hastening to correct this long-standing problem. We solicit your understanding and also your help in preventing rainwater from your property getting into the sewers.

Chairman,
Princeton Sewer
Operating Committee

SALE IS FOR THEIR SCHOOL: Ann Alexander and Adrienne Straszynski seem oblivious to the fact that the Princeton Junior School will hold its first Rummage Sale on Saturday, May 5, from 9 to 3 at the Harrison Street Firehouse. The sale will benefit the scholarship program at the school that is an outgrowth of Miss Mason's School. Princeton Junior School provides separate classes for three, four and five year olds, and next year will add a class for those who are six. Those who wish to donate items for the Rummage Sale may drop them off at the firehouse Friday, May 4, from 1 to 3.

Food Baskets Appreciated.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

On the Thursday before Easter it was the privilege of those of us at Crisis Ministry to deliver 34 Easter food baskets to families in Princeton and six baskets to Trenton.

These carefully packed bushel baskets contained hams, fruits, vegetables, coffee, dessert and bread, and were contributed by a local business that prefers to remain anonymous in its generosity. We want to thank this warm-hearted group of people and all of those persons who continue to make the work of the Crisis Ministry possible.

Collins Vote an Outrage.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

I have always found that your newspaper presents a factual and intelligent portrayal of what is occurring in Princeton. Assuming this is the case with regard to your editorial concerning the Collins Development hearings before the Borough Council, then I think residents of this borough should be outraged.

They should be outraged, perhaps, because this proposed development of Palmer Square has been delayed or, possibly, halted permanently. Further, that the costly legal expenses will be borne by the taxpayers.

However, they should be more outraged that this occurred amid an atmosphere handicapped, but are having learning difficulties and aren't achieving their full potential in the school they are presently attending.

The Rock Brook School offers students a full academic program, small class size, a low pupil-teacher ratio and specialized training in language and communications skills. Specialists on the Rock Brook faculty include speech and language pathologists, reading teachers, special education professionals and a registered occupational therapist. The school will continue its services to communication handicapped children.

For additional information call Mrs. Ganssle at 466-2989.

YWCA LISTS CAMPS

For Youth in Summer. The YWCA will sponsor four summer day camps for children of all ages and interests. Space is limited and advance registration is required. Scholarship assistance is available.

Summer Carousel, for 4-5 year olds, provides a diverse program which includes outdoor and indoor games, swimming, arts and crafts, music, creative dramatics, and movement exploration using basic gymnastic equipment. Summer Carousel is offered for six consecutive weeks from June 25 - August 3, with a choice of morning sessions, afternoon sessions, or a full-day program.

Princeton YWCA co-ed day camp is accredited by the American Camping Association and offers Red Cross instructional swimming lessons, arts and crafts, environmental awareness, music, sports and games, nature study and drama for youngsters in grades K-5. The six-week program starts June 25 and ends August 3, and is divided into three two-week sessions. The camp meets at Stuart Country Day School and runs Monday-Friday, 8:30 a.m. - 4 p.m.

Purple Butterfly Camp provides the opportunity for girls 11-12 years old to participate in a host of different activities — day trips, films, cooking, athletics, swimming, games, arts and crafts, canoeing and hiking. The goal of the camp is to provide fun-filled experiences while promoting social development.

The camp runs for six weeks, June 25 - August 3, in three consecutive two-week sessions. Purple Butterfly is based at the YWCA Monday - Friday from 8:30 a.m. - 4:00 p.m.

The YWCA Sports Camp features field hockey, soccer, volleyball, basketball, football, softball, lacrosse, gymnastics and swimming for boys and girls 6 to 12 years old. The camp runs for seven consecutive one-week sessions from June 25 - August 10. It is based at the YWCA Monday-Friday from 8:30 a.m. - 4 p.m.

Pre-camp and after-camp care are available for all camps. For more information on camps and other summer activities contact the YWCA at 924-5571.

COME FLY A KITE

At Terhune Orchards. Terhune Orchards will hold Kite Day on Saturday, May 12.

Young and old alike are encouraged to bring a kite or to make one at the farm and join the Mount family in the 10-acre pasture, where there are no utility lines or trees. Cider, apples, fresh vegetables and fruits will be available, along with special apple desserts, fried apple rings, fruit salad, soup, hot dogs, cider, doughnuts and other items.

Participants are also invited to visit the farm animals: Henrietta the donkey, Teddy the pony, Obediah the sheep and many new baby lambs, chicks and goslings. Hay wagons will drive through the orchards all day, and children can bob for apples, jump in a pile of hay or ride ponies, while parents tour the gardens. Vegetable, flower and herb plants and seeds will be available.

The rain date is Sunday, May 13.

TEEN DANCE SET

As Vienna '84 Benefit. Hoy Boy and the Doys, a band from New York, will play for a dance on Friday from 8 to 11 at Princeton High School to benefit the Vienna '84 fund.

Band members Adam and Charles Roth and John Harris are graduates of the Princeton High School choir and are donating their services to the choir, which, along with the PHS orchestra, will compete at the international music festival in Austria this summer.

All area high school students are invited to attend the dance. Kate Crafton is dance organizer. Admission is $2.

Charles Roth accompanied Princeton High School's choir on its initial trip to the Vienna competition in 1973, and Adam Roth and John Harris were members of the Class of 1977.

At another fund raiser on Saturday, April 7, more than 100 choir and orchestra members danced from 1 to 11 in a sponsored dance marathon.

Correction

Due to a typographical error in a recent article on the federal Women and Infant Children (WIC) nutrition program, the phone number for the Princeton Medical Center's Department of Community Health Services Nursing Office was incorrectly listed.

The correct number is 734-4626.

WILDFLOWER HUNT SET

On Bowman's Hill. The Washington Crossing Audubon Society will hold a wildflower hunt through the woods at Bowman's Hill on Saturday. Participants should meet at 10 a.m. at Bowman's Hill, on the Pennsylvania side of Washington Crossing Park. The raindate is May 5.

The Society will also sponsor a slide lecture of salt marsh life by Ann Galli, assistant director of the Wetlands Institute of Stone Harbor, on Monday at 8 in Stainton Hall, the Pennington School, Delaware Avenue, Pennington. Coffee and cake will be served at 7:30 and the public is invited.

POSTER CONTEST SET

By Chamber. May is Chamber Month, and the Chamber of Commerce of the Princeton Area has adopted the theme, "American Free Enterprise, Believe in It!" for its celebration of Chamber Month. Martin Lombardo is Chamber Month chairman.

In advance of activities which will take place during May, the Chamber is sponsoring poster and essay contests on this theme for students in area high schools. Thomas Streckewald and Joseph Grey, chairmen of the contests, have been distributing guidelines and rules to public and private schools in West and East Windsor, Hightstown, Plainsboro, Lawrence, Princeton, Pennington, Hopewell and Montgomery.

Cash awards of $500 have been donated to the winning students who will be announced some time in May. Heading the panel of judges is Dr. John Arscott, Dr. Paul Chesebro, Lawrence Holofcener, Catherine Lombardo, Mr.

TO RECEIVE AWARD From Heart Association. The Central Jersey Chapter of the American Heart Association will hold its third annual "Hearts of Gold" Dinner in honor of two area residents.

Herbert W. Hobler, owner of Nassau Broadcasting Company, and L. Barry Ultan, M.D., chief of cardiology at Helene Fuld Medical Center, will receive the "Hearts of Gold" award at the dinner on Friday, May 4, at the Hyatt Regency. The award is given annually to a person or persons who have demonstrated outstanding and continuous volunteer support of the American Heart Association.

Herbert W. Hobler

Through his broadcasting company, Mr. Hobler has sponsored numerous community service and fund raising events for the Heart Association, such as the statewide Radiothon and the Jail Bail for Heart. He also organized the "Run for Your Life" in cooperation with the Governor's Office and has been actively involved in organizing the community fund raising effort for Lifemobile.

Dr. Ultan is past president of the Mercer County Heart Association, now a part of the larger Central Jersey Chapter, and is currently director of the Mercer County Lifemobile Program, which he initiated. He is also chairman of the cardiology committee of the Mercer County Component Medical Society.

For information about the dinner, call 883-0588 or 734-9367.

BOTTLE BILL FOCUS Of Sierra Club Hike. The New Jersey Chapter of the Sierra Club, in cooperation with the Delaware and Raritan Canal Commission and Bottle Bill Coalition, will sponsor a Bottle Bill Awareness Hike and Clean-up on Saturday, May 5 at 9:30 a.m.

The group participating in the clean up wil meet in the parking lot of River Road between the Delaware River and the D&R Canal in Washington Crossing State Park, Titusville. The purpose of the hike and clean-up is to increase public and legislator awareness of the problem of throw-away bottle and can litter, as well as the need for new state laws requiring a container deposit on beverages.

Trash collection will take place along the D&R Canal in the D&R Canal State Park at a location between Trenton and Lambertville. Trash bags will be furnished and the State Park Service will furnish a truck to carry away the collected trash, which will be recycled. All those interested are invited.

For further information, call Allan Blair at 799-3536.

THREE ARE NAMED To Dean's Office. Princeton University has announced the appointment of three new assistant deans of students who will assume their duties here this summer.

Each of the new appointees, who were selected from a pool of some 400 candidates, will have principal responsibility in specific areas that are major concerns of the Dean of Students office. Kathleen Deignan will be responsible for student discipline, while Patricia A. Cole will oversee the residential life of Princeton's upperclass students, the juniors and seniors.

Muriel B. Whitcomb will serve as the chief coordinator for the activities of approximately 175 student organizations, including the Undergraduate Student Government and the undergraduate classes themselves.

SCHOLARSHIP AVAILABLE From Rod & Gun Club. The Hit and Miss Rod and Gun Club of Princeton will make a $400 award to an area resident who will graduate from high school this year and plans to further his or her education.

The student must be of good character and high scholastic standing and display potential leadership characteristics. Financial need will be a critical factor in the selection.

Students who are interested in applying for the Augustus Hyter Scholarship Fund should obtain application blanks from their high school guidance office. Deadline for submission of the application and letters of recommendation is May 14. The recipient will be announced at graduation.

NEW LOCATION SET For Montessori School. The Montessori Family School of Mercer County, a pre-school established in 1978, will move from the Benjamin Franklin School in Lawrenceville to the Straube Center, 100 West Franklin Avenue, Pennington, beginning August 1.

The Montessori Family School, a parent owned and operated school, has half-day and extended day sessions as well as a full-week toddler program. It is now accepting applications for children from 18 months to five years of age for the 1984-85 school year.

Open House will be held Thursday, May 3, 10, 17 and 31 at 5:30 to 8:30 at the location in Lawrenceville. Call Kirsten Schneller at 771-0172 for more information.

COME CANOEING With YWCA. There are still a few places available for two YWCA canoe trips for women and men. The trips will be in the Pine Barrens on Saturday, May 12, and Saturday, May 26, with rain dates on the 13th and 27th.

The group will meet at the YM-YWCA, Paul Robeson Place, at 8 a.m. and will return by 5 p.m. Children over 10 are welcome if accompanied by an adult. The fee will be $6 per person per trip.

Call the YWCA, 924-5571, for further information, or come to the YWCA to register.

LACROSSE PROGRAM SET For Boys and Girls. The Princeton Recreation Department is interested in offering a summer lacrosse program for boys and girls in grades six through eight. The program will be instructional and recreational.

It will begin in late June and continue through early August. Those interested in such a league should call the Princeton Recreation Department at 921-9480.

ADULT CLASSES OFFERED In Tennis. The Princeton Community Tennis Program is offering adult daytime tennis classes for beginner through advanced levels.

Each class level will meet twice a week in the morning for a total of three hours of instruction per week for four weeks. For additional information, call the Princeton Community Tennis Program, 924-4343.

LIBRARY TO GAIN From Sunday Tea. The Friends of the Raissa Maritain library at Stuart Country Day School will gather this Sunday at 4 at the school for their annual tea.

Guest speaker will be William M. Dwyer, journalist and author, who will discuss his recently published book, "The Day Is Ours," an account of the battles of Trenton and Princeton through the eyes of participants and bystanders. Anyone interested in supporting the library services at Stuart is invited. Some 169 members of the Friends donated over $2,000 and numerous volumes to the two Stuart libraries during 1983.

Mrs. Marston Morse is chairman of the library committee. Mrs. Peter Mark is treasurer. Sister Chigusa Hayashi is librarian of the Raissa Maritain library, assisted by Mrs. Linda Illavacek. Mrs. Ute Holmes is librarian of the Leonard Etz Memorial library in the lower school.

JOURNALIST TO SPEAK At University. John Darnton, foreign correspondent for the New York Times, will speak on "Spain and Poland: Two Countries in Search" in a Henry Stafford Little Public Lecture at Princeton University on Monday, April 30. The lecture, which is open to the public and free of charge, will begin at 8 p.m. in Dodds Auditorium of the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs.

A member of the Times staff since 1966, Mr. Darnton is currently correspondent for Spain, Portugal and North Africa and is based in Madrid. He has been correspondent at various times for all of Africa, except South Africa, and Eastern Europe. He was awarded a Pulitzer Prize for international reporting in 1982 and the George Polk Award for foreign reporting in 1979 and 1981.

His brother, Robert C. Darnton, is professor of history at Princeton.

FREE TENNIS CLINICS For Adult Beginners. The Mercer County Park Commission will sponsor a series of free tennis clinics for adult beginners during May. Clinics will be held at the outdoor tennis center, located in Mercer County Park off Edinburg Road.

The clinics will run for two weeks on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from May 1 through May 10 from 6-7:30. Several area pros, including Dave Mennel, will go over the forehand, backhand, serve and volley, as well as scoring. These clinics will provide an opportunity for beginning adults to learn the fundamentals of the game. Players may attend any or all of the clinics.

For further information regarding the clinics, tournament schedules, season passes, or court use, call the Outdoor Tennis Center at 586-9850.

ITEMS ARE SOUGHT For Fete Auction. Items in good condition are sought for this year's auction of the June 9th "Jazzy" Fete.

Auction solicitation chairmen of the event are asking area residents to contribute anything large or small, such as tea spoons, cabinets, china, furniture, jewelry, tools, appliances (younger than five years and in good working condition, of course), beds (no mattresses, please), computers, pianos, patio furniture, silver or stainless — anything that is in useable condition.

Appraisal of expensive items will be made by Ruth Block, a certified international appraiser, who has worked at the Fete for more than 15 years. In case of items which are not of great value, a detailed list receipt will be compiled for income tax purposes. Mrs. Block's phone number is 924-4322.

For those who need help with pick-up, a van or truck can be arranged for large or bulky items. For arrangements or questions call the auction solicitation chairmen, Margaret Cruikshank at 799-3123 or Tanya Cope at 924-6169.

The flea market area of the Fete, called "Treasure Aisle," also needs items. China, books, clean clothing, workable small appliances, baby equipment, again, anything in useable condition would be appreciated. Those who are moving are invited to donate to this year's Fete.

The storage facility at Princeton House on Herrontown Road will be open for drop-off every Tuesday and Saturday mornings between 10 and 12 noon in April and May. For smaller items call the "Treasure Aisle" chairman at 924-3829.

STRESS IS FOCUS Of Medical Center Series. Princeton Medical Center, through the Department of Community Health Services, will offer a series of four workshops in May, entitled "Stress Management for Better Health."

The series is open to the public and includes an overview of current professional thinking on the physical, psychological and emotional effects of stress, and ways of changing one's responses to it. Also covered will be self-management strategies, communication skills, relaxation techniques, and the use of physical exercise and the creative arts in stress reduction.

The four sessions will be offered on Wednesday evenings from 7:30-9:00 p.m., starting on May 2, and concluding with May 23. The workshops will be held at Princeton Medical Center, classroom 4. Registration is due Friday, April 27.

For further information or registration call the Department of Community Health Services at 734-4626. The fee for the series is $20 per person, and $35 per couple. Workshop coordinators are Donna Gustafson, RN, BSN, and Eleanor Speers, MSW.

BOB HOPE SCHEDULED For Award at Princeton. Comedian Bob Hope will be honored by Princeton University's American Whig-Cliosophic Society on Thursday, May 3, when he receives the James Madison Award for Distinguished Public Service.

The award has been given since 1959 at the society's annual banquet, a tradition for over 200 years. The award is named in honor of the founder of the American Whig Society, a member of the Princeton Class of 1771 and the fourth president of the United States. It is given to individuals who "in the opinion of the Society are particularly noteworthy for their service to the Nation and to mankind."

Past recipients include Dean Acheson, Adlai Stevenson, Earl Warren, Walter Cronkite and William O. Douglas.

In announcing the 1984 award, Whig-Clio president Michael McBride said Mr. Hope is "worthy of the respect and admiration of all Princetonians for his tireless efforts to bring cheer throughout the world."

TRIP, CLASS PLANNED For Seniors. The Recreation Department has scheduled a trip to the Bethwood Theatre to see "Barefoot in the Park" on Wednesday, May 2.

The cost is $20 which includes transportation, lunch, and the show. The deadline to register is Friday, April 27. For additional information call 921-9480.

A floral arrangement class will be offered to senior citizens interested in learning how to arrange flowers. Seniors are asked to call the Recreation Office at 921-9480, to leave their name, phone number and address on the floral arrangement class list.

Princeton Regional School HIGHLIGHTS

Highlights is reviewed and prepared by the Parent Teacher Organization of the Princeton Regional Schools.

JOHN WITHERSPOON SCHOOL

Rocketry Project for Mathletes: When the rockets go off this month at JW the cause for celebration will not be a national holiday, but the rockets themselves and their successful completion by middle school "Mathletes." Testing day, when the students watch their creations take off in a burst of noise and energy, will be the climax to a program of weekly after-school sessions involving between fifteen and thirty boys and girls from all grades.

For JW's Mathletes, pondering math puzzles, trying to stump the teachers or analyzing a "mystery" science demonstration each fall and winter Thursday afternoon is more pleasure than work. How can a piece of paper hold water in an upside-down jar? How can a Cartesian diver (a hollow figure) inside a plastic container of water be made to rise and sink? Students discover the scientific principles involved through observing and testing and then making their own conclusions.

The final six weeks of the program, under the direction of George Luke, assisted by Jim Messersmith, John Zorzi and Jerry Larkin, are devoted to the study and building of model rockets. The main emphasis is on understanding the mathematical principles of design for flight and on learning safety requirements and procedures. Although some advanced students design their own rockets, the eighteen to twenty-four inch models are generally built from kits of varying difficulty and are powered with purchased solid fuel containers. At the program's conclusion, after the rockets successfully passe their test flights, the most dedicated participants receive awards of model kits to assemble on their own, and the group travels to Community Park and Riverside Schools to hold demonstrations for younger students, the Mathletes of the future.

Writing in Fifth and Sixth Grades: The creative energy in Eleanore Yuchmow's fifth and sixth grade English classes doesn't produce the stir of the Mathletes' rockets, but its presence is quietly evident in a variety of projects. Writing may mean composing a story on a word processor, corresponding with a student who lives 1,000 miles away or preparing a children's newspaper page for publication.

Mrs. Yuchmow has found the word processor an invaluable tool in "freeing the children to express themselves without pencil and eraser," and sees a great advance in creativity within just a few months. Careful scheduling allows four or five students each day to use the machine, and the speed and simplicity of the process from idea to neatly finished product has encouraged the authors to illustrate their stories, essays and poetry before posting them on the class bulletin board.

While composing on the word processor is done on an individual basis, planning and writing an issue of The Trenton Times Sunday "Funtimes" page involved all the children. Students learned to edit each other's work, think in terms of reader interest and work within space limitations. The published page included fantasies on "The Day I Became a Pretzel" (or a hamburger or a newspaper), a word find game, puzzles and illustrations.

Even the presentation of factual information can be absorbing when it's done for pen pals who want to know about life in New Jersey. Students had started an exchange with pupils in Kirkwood, Missouri and were making contact with a class in Hawaii when a request for information came in from Red Wing, Minnesota. There seems no lack of opportunity for the middle schoolers to practice their expository writing skills.

Earlier in the year Mrs. Yuchmow's classes made extensive use of newspapers, studying parts of speech by making collages of nouns, verbs and adjectives for classroom reference and analyzing newspaper stories for the essential "who, what, when, where and why's" of communication. Whatever the activity, the fifth and sixth graders are learning the pleasures and utility of shaping the English language to express their thoughts and feelings and share information.

Information Capsules Ready

A new supply of Emergency Medical Information (EMI or Vials of Life) capsules has been provided to the Princeton community, courtesy of P.B.A. Local 130.

The EMI capsules, designed for use by the elderly or those with chronic medical problems, contain pertinent medical information such as doctors' names, types of medication taken, allergies and chronic conditions. They are stored in the refrigerator, and in case of emergency, police or rescue squad workers can retrieve the information quickly and act upon it in life-saving ways.

The capsules, which are available free of charge, may be obtained at both Borough and Township police desks, the Township Social Services Department, 369 Witherspoon Street, and the Senior Resource Center, Spruce Circle. The EMI program has been operational in Princeton for four years.

BUSINESS

MANAGERS LEAVE NASS

Collins, Aircoa Part. A "mutual decision" to terminate their relationship "in the best interests of both," will remove the Aircoa firm as managers of the Nassau Inn. The decision means that manager Max Lowe, who is an Aircoa employee, will be leaving as Inn manager.

Collins is now interviewing other companies and hopes to have a new management firm shortly. Gary Green, Collins vice-president, said this week that the change will not affect the public and that customers of the Inn will probably not notice any difference.

In a letter to employees of the Inn, Mr. Green and Mr. Lowe assured them there was no reason for alarm or concern about jobs, and said there will be no "disruption." Aircoa will continue until a successor is found, and the transition will be "friendly."

Delays in construction of the new wing, traceable to litigation, have added to frustration and the problems of relationship between Collins and Aircoa, Mr. Green said. He would not elaborate on the causes for dissolution of the agreement.

TWO ARE APPOINTED

By Architectural Firm. The architectural and engineering firm CUH2A has announced the consolidation of marketing and communication programs under the direction of Duncan K. Finlayson, former New York marketing head for the architectural firm of Helmuth, Obata and Kassabaum.

In addition, the Princeton firm has appointed Joseph Huttie Jr. as director of communications and public affairs. Mr. Huttie previously served as director of corporate communications with Ellerbe, Inc., also an architectural and engineering firm.

Mr. Finlayson brings more than 20 years of marketing and project management experience to CUH2A. He has worked on a number of award winning national and international projects including the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, the Albany South Mall, and the Carlton Center, a 3,500,000 square foot, multi-purpose commercial center in Johannesburg, South Africa.

Mr. Huttie holds both a bachelor's and master's degree from the Medill School of Journalism at Northwestern University and has received numerous national communications awards.

NEW STORE TO OPEN

This Saturday. Benetton, the Italian sportswear company, will open its shop at 7 Palmer Square West this Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Jay Goldfarb will be managers.

The shop features sweaters for men and women in classic or high-fashion designs, made primarily of natural fabrics, like wool, angora or linen. Benetton also has its own line of pants and accessories. Prices are described as "moderate."

PROGRAM PLANNED

On 'Appropriate' Living. George and Joelle Emery, founding directors of the Foundation for Universal Unity, will present a program entitled, "The Fusion Factor: Knowing and Expressing What is Appropriate," on Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the Unitarian Church, Cherry Hill.

The Emerys will consider the relationship of "appropriate living" and "true integrity" to such topics as business, education, relationships, parenting and wholistic health. They will present a slide show emphasizing the creative contributions of certain individuals to the transformative process, including Marilyn Ferguson, Norman Cousins, Buckminster Fuller, Jerry Jampolsky and Lord Exeter.

The suggested admission for the evening is $5. For further information call Dr. Susan Rosoff, 683-0392 or 921-0381.

TWO WORKSHOPS SET

For 'Women on the Move.' Two evening workshops for women seeking increased skill in furthering their career goals will be held on Thursday, May 3, and Monday, June 11. Both are sponsored by "Women on the Move," a joint program of Janet Kean, MSW, and Linda Albert of Princeton consulting firm Copleman & Albert, Inc.

The first workshop will deal with how to use power in business and personal life to help get what one wants. The second will be on how to promote oneself. Both sessions will be held in the Copleman & Albert's office at 40 N. Tulane Street and will be open to the first ten women who sign up.

To register, call 921-6363. The cost is $20 per session.

PEOPLE in the News

Karen E. House, a Westcott Road resident, has received the Pulitzer Prize in international reporting for the Wall Street Journal where she is presently foreign editor.

Mrs. House was awarded the prize for her coverage from the Middle East in the spring of 1983 and particularly for a series of articles on King Hussein of Jordan and his pivotal role in President Reagan's abortive Middle East peace plan. She was the diplomatic correspondent for the Journal when she wrote the prize-winning articles.

In nominating Mrs. House for the international reporting award, Wall Street Journal editors noted that her coverage not only had chronicled the unfolding story of the Reagan peace plan in detail but also "analyzed and accurately foreshadowed the course of events."

Mrs. House wrote her series of articles based on exclusive conversations with King Hussein and they deal, the nominating letter pointed out, with a whole range of issues. "Arab divisiveness, American naivete, Soviet meddling and all the intricacies of high-stakes diplomacy played out in a half a dozen world capitals." The articles were also described as providing a "profound and personal insight into the psychology of King Hussein."

Mrs. House, 36 years old, was born in Texas and received a degree in journalism from the University of Texas at Austin. After graduation she was an education reporter for the Dallas News, then a political reporter in its Washington, D.C. bureau. She joined the Wall Street Journal's Washington bureau in 1974 and for the next four years covered regulatory agencies, energy, environment and agriculture.

From 1978 to 1983, she covered foreign affairs as the paper's diplomatic correspondent. In 1983 she moved to New York as assistant foreign editor, and in 1984 was named foreign editor.

In 1982 she won the Edwin M. Hood Award for Excellence in Diplomatic Reporting for a series on Saudi Arabia. She has also received the Edward Weitel Award from the Georgetown School of Foreign Service, given for distinction in reporting American foreign policy and diplomacy.

Kris E. Jensen, 63 Nottingmead is a member of the 1984 varsity lacrosse team at Lake Forest College. Jensen, a sophomore, is a 1982 graduate of Princeton Day School.

Area students were honored at the Winter Varsity Sports Dinner at the Lawrenceville School.

From Princeton they are Peter W. Engels, basketball; Robert J. Bergman and Gregory A. Postel, swimming; R. Craig McClelland, Lance R. Savage, and Peter J. S. Smith, hockey; from Princeton Junction, Daniel M. Tapiero, swimming; Lyle D. Zimskind, fencing.

Also, from Belle Mead, Christopher J. Maas, who was awarded the Samuel P. Harding Ski Award for his contributions to the ski team; from Pennington, Brent H. Davis, track, John A. Rogula, swimming; and Johannes R. E. Adams, fencing; and from Lawrenceville, Peter G. Cano, Christopher C. Modu, who won the Edward J. Poreda Track Award, and Stephen G. Salerno II, track; Lawrence T. Birch, James G. Duffy, and Michael J. Duffy, hockey.

Marine 1st Lt. J. David Donahue, son of John J. and Dorothy R. Donahue of 188 Herrontown Road, has reported for duty with 2nd Marine Aircraft Wing, Marine Corps Helicopter Air Station New River, Jacksonville, N.C.

Eight area residents have been named to the Dean's List at Tufts University.

They are Rebecca M. Davis of 62 Erdman Avenue; Richard C. Galiardo of 56 Crooked Tree Lane; Pierre Maman of 40 Hawthorne Avenue; Kate W. Shaplen of 290 Stockton Street; and Sina A. Saidi of 141 Hunt Drive.

Also, Lisa M. Escalona of 7 Wethersfield Drive, Plainsboro; Susan C. Roessel of 63 Lillie Street, Princeton Junction; and Mitchell C. Stein of 28 Pine Knoll Drive.

Wayne T. Lytle of 24 Bertrand Drive has been named to the Dean's List at West Chester, Pa., University for the fall semester.

Daniel Sun, a senior at West Windsor-Plainsboro High School, has been named a finalist in the $30,000 Duracell Scholarship Competition. He now has the opportunity to win a college scholarship to the institution of his choice or a cash prize.

Duracell U.S.A. sponsored the nationwide contest to encourage scientific interest and creativity among high school students. The competition was endorsed by the National Science Teachers Association.

Contest guidelines required that contestants design and build battery-powered devices with practical functions, i.e., to entertain, amuse, make life easier, be a warning device or provide sound or light.

Daniel's device, a "Five LED Clock" uses five lights placed in a vertical column to tell time. The person reading the clock must scan his or her eyes from left to right past the blinking lights resulting in an optical impression of four numbers which tell the time.

Phillip B. Papier, Jr., Esq., has been reappointed a panelist of the Lawyer Referral Service sponsored by the New Jersey Affiliate of the Association of Trial Lawyers of America. The service was initiated to help people seeking legal counsel about personal injuries, defective products which cause injury, matrimonial problems, and other consumer issues.

Mr. Papier, who maintains his law practice in Princeton, is admitted to practice in New Jersey before the United States District Court and the United States Supreme Court as well as the Third Circuit Court of Appeals.

Ann Fleming, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Fleming of Vernon Circle, has been appointed admissions director at Fountain Valley School of Colorado.

Miss Fleming joined the faculty at Fountain Valley in the fall of 1981 after serving as assistant director of admissions at the Winchendon School, Winchendon, Mass. In addition to teaching French, she worked as assistant director of admissions and in the fall of 1983 was appointed acting director of admission.

A graduate of Stuart Country Day School, she received her bachelor's degree in French studies and history from Bryn Mawr and a master's degree in French from Middlebury College.

Carl Faith of 199 Longview Drive took part in a workshop at Exeter University on the subject of "Direct Sum Decompositions." The conference addressed the solution of a famous problem on direct sums of cyclic modules posed more than 35 years ago by Prof. I. Kaplansky of the University of Chicago and a member of the Institute for Advanced Study in 1946-47.

The solution involved the efforts of a dozen or more mathematicians over the years. The conference was attended by representatives of Denmark, Germany, Italy, Holland, the United Kingdom and the U.S.A.

LET'S TALK ABOUT

PLANTING RHODODENDRONS with Sam DeTuro

Woodwinds Associates

Set the plants at the depth they were growing at the nursery. Pruning of young plants is usually not necessary, but you may want to pinch out the terminal or end buds of the new shoots during the early summer to increase branching and control plant height. Save the big fat central buds when they develop. These are the flower buds.

Old rhododendrons that have grown too tall and leggy can be rejuvenated by cutting them back to within six to nine inches of the ground. To determine if your plants will respond, cut back one or two old branches. If growth develops from dormant buds, cut the remaining stems back next spring. Pinch new shoots to promote branching just as you would for a young plant. Maintain a relatively deep mulch and water as necessary to stimulate growth. You may also want to consider liquid fertilization by a professional.

For any of your questions or concerns regarding your prized trees and shrubs, call WOODWINDS (924-3520).
